An Embarrassing Query.

Sometimes strange difficulties are encountered by the young ladies who are endeavoring to teach Christianity to the Chinese in the Sunday-schools of the metropolis. One of the most conscientious as well as one of the brightest and prettiest of these teachers was attempting in a Brooklyn school recently to inculcate upon the heathen mind of a sleek-looking Mongolian the lesson of charity toward all. "God loves every one," she said.

"We should love every one."

The Chinaman looked meekly up into her face and quietly asked:

"Does God love me?"

"Yes," the young lady replied.

"Do you love every one?" was the next pointed inquiry.

"Yes," she answered.

"Do you love me?"

"Y-y-yes."

"Will you mally me?"

There was no direct answer to this question, but the teacher has since changed her pupil for a Chinaman of less logical turn of mind.

Another Labor-Saving Device.

A New York genius has invented a machine to produce "loud and prolonged applause" at a public entertainment. A sound is evolved resembling the clapping of a large number of hands. The invention is timely. Several "leading American humorists" are going on the lecture platform the coming fall, and at a small outlay they can have their efforts greeted with sufficient applause to destroy the impression among the audience that they are listening to a funeral oration.—[Norristown Herald.

Some More Dont's.

Don't eat hurriedly, and run as fast as you can go to catch a train. Don't try to jump upon a train after it has started, or to leap from it before it stops. Don't stick your head out of the window whenever the locomotive whistles. Don't work all day long as fast as you can work, rushing out for five minutes to swallow a bit of lunch. Don't fail to have warm dinners or drinks at midday four days a week. Don't imagine that life can be supported on white bread and fruit, or pie and milk, or work and pastry. Don't try to get a little beer or whisky every day under the impression that you are a moderate drinker and that it won't hurt you. Don't work on for years without any rest or recreation. Don't rob yourself of sleep in order to have pleasure or to be able to accomplish more in the way of work. Don't stay down town nights. Don't worry about this world or the next, or the price of wheat. Don't tickle the rear parts of a mule, fool around the grip car, or monkey with a buzz-saw. Don't be a corpse.—[Chicago Herald.

A Voice from Dakota.

Reader or readers, if it is so hot in this beautiful world of lakes, rivers, and cascades, of cloud-wreathed peaks and misty vales, of oceans, rivulets, rills, soda pop, and juleps, think what it must be in that politicians' realm where the roasted millionarey incarnation of selfishness and greed begs, through all eternity's countless ages, for one drop of water from a dog-licked beggar's finger-tip? Think of it and flee to the glorious, wind-swept, lake-gemmed summerland of Dakota, where everybody is still wearing winter flannels and sleeping under blankets and buffalo robs.—[Pat Donan, Devil's Lake, Dak.

A half-breed Indian in Montana began, a few years ago, with two or three head of cattle, the business of raising stock. Yearly he has disposed of a portion of the increase, and recently he sold his herd for $22,000.

"Your wife is rather quick-tempered, is she not?" the visitor inquired politely, as he passed out of the front door with his host, the door mat, a feather duster, part of a terra cotta vase, and a volley of feminine language. "Quick," replied the husband. "Bless you, no. I only wish she was. But the fact is, this little ebullition will last a week or ten days."

ELOCUTION.

Discussion of Elocution by Mrs. Lucie Hewlett Carpenter.

Elocution is a branch of education as little understood by the masses as chemistry, botany, or the dead languages. Nevertheless it is one of the most important studies in practical life. What do we mean by elocution? Hamill defines it thus: "The act of expressing thought and feeling by utterance and action." Shoemaker: "Natural expression by speech and gesture." Ours would be, "Beautifying action, and the best expression of thought and feeling." We place action first, because a pleasant voice and grace and dignity of manner are absolutely necessary to command attention, and often in life these alone have won success for the fortunate possessor. Uneducated muscles and joints are as disobedient, and oft as mortifying, as ungoverned children. An uncultured, imperfect organism cannot produce pure musical sounds or lithe, graceful movements. This control of action is acquired by education. Any one who will practice thirty minutes every day under a proper instructor, for three months, need not remain unsymmetrical in form, or ungracefui in movement.

Parents are anxious to educate their children intellectually, but overlook the physical development, without which life loses half its charms and usefulness. A very large per cent. of the students we meet are pale-faced, heavy-eyed, with stooped shoulders, narrow chests, and with uncertain step, as though the weight of years lay heavily upon them. They seem objects of pity, while they should be enjoying the happiest period of life, with mental work enough to give zest to pleasure, and physical exercise to give thorough action to every part of the system. Expect a rich, cultivated voice and elasticity of movement from these over-worked pupils? As well expect sweet harmony from a violin with broken bridge and poor strings. Physical elocution corrects the faults in adults, and prevents them in childhood. It gives a rich, cultivated voice, muscular strength, robust health and symmetry of form.

That elocution is a science with demonstrable principles none can deny, and but few study to understand. Let us see: We find by analysis the human voice is composed of six essential elements, viz: Form, quality, force, stress, pitch, and movement. Now let us take up form. We find it composed of three divisions, effusive, expulsive, and explosive. Effusive is used in pathos, sublimity, adoration, awe, and amazement; expulsive, in narrative, descriptive, didactic, and argumentative; explosive, in intense passion, either joy, hate, or terror, shouting, calling, or commanding. I open my book to some selection. The moment I analyze the sentiment I know what form to use, and so on through the different attributes with their analysis and application. We are no more at a loss how to read the selection, than in mathematics to solve a difficult problem by the application of principles. Now for the amusement of my readers I will give them "Mrs. O'Flannigan's experience on roller skates," as I see her in my mind's eye.

MRS. O'FLANNIGAN ON SKATES.

"Mrs. Muldoony! Mrs. Muldoony! Are yeez at hum? Come out fernist the fince, for I have soomthing to tell yeez."

"Oh, faith, it's meself that's t' hum this toime a day in the mornin', so I am. But the blessid saints preserve us! Was the burglars at yeez house last noit? What has happened to yeez, Mrs. O'Flannigan? Yer noise is bigger than my faist, and yer eyes is blacker thin the bottom of me old tea-kittle, and, och! it's a sorry day some one would be a battin' yeez! in that stoile."

"Oh, begorry! It was not the burglars at all (holds up the skates). See, here are the dirty bastes that did it. Bad luck to the day I iver sot me blessid eyes on thim."

"An' phat in the world is them? They look like two little wagons on wheels."

"Raular skoits! and I could see the man in purgatory whatever invinted sich heathenish things. Every one is goin woild on the dirty thraps (throws them down). Och! may the divil fly away wid thim."

"An' it's doyin wid curiosity I am to hear all about it."

"Will, thin, Mrs. Muldoony, listen and I'll toil yeez all about it. Me darter was a readin how there was to be a foine proize given to the best skoiter, and I sis to meself, says I, begorry, I could slide on the ice equal to the bist of thim whin I was a giurl, so I could, an' I'll jist surprise thim by carrin off the proize meself, so I will. So I toidied up meself an' wint to the place where the man said I' foind thim phat was skoitin'. An' sure enough, there was the foine ladies a skoitin around wid the elegant gintlemen like the ducks on the lake of Kill Carney, an' be me sowl, if some of thim wasn't skoitin on one foot! An' I sis to meself, sis I, 'but yeez got to work hard to bate that, Mrs. O'Flannigan!' an' thin I asked the man how much thim skoites were apiece, an' he told me foive doullars. Och! I thought that a heap o' money! Thin I thought of the foin proize. An' thin he said, 'Faith, but ye'll make an eligant figger on them skoits!' Bad look to his soul; an' thin he explained how to put thim on, and thin I took thim and cum hum and sat down on the floor and put thim on: and then I got up. But Holy Moses! I sat down that quick that me two eyes struck foire, and I had a discussin of me spoin, so I did. Thin I tried to git up by takin' hould of a cheer, and will yeez believe it, Niss Muldoony, but one of thim skoits wanted to go one way an' the other the other, an' me two fate fast to thim at the same toime! Oh begorry, but I thought they'd never walk in the same path again, an' the back of me head struck a cheer that hard that it tore the splints clare out of the bottom, driving me head up to me shoulders on the other side, an' sich a time as I had to git me head out of there! Sure but I thought the splints would take me eyes out by the roots; an' thin I remembered seeing thim skoit on one foot an' I thought to meself

Minnie (inquisitive child)—"Mamma, you told me that ladies should always be first, didn't you?"

Mamma—"Yes, my darling, certainly."

Minnie—"Then, if you please, why wasn't I born before Willie?"—[New York Graphic.

A 3-year old little girl was taught to close her evening prayer, during the temporary absence of her father, with, "And please watch over my papa." It sounded very sweet, but the mother's amusement may be imagined when she added, "and you'd better keep an eye on mamma, too!"—[Baptist Weekly.

It was one of the good little boys from a Sunday-school near Boston who gave this interpretation to a verse taught by his teacher: "Behold, a greater than Solomon is here!" "Hold a grater to Solomon's ear!" When at a loss to give the answer "Cain" to a question relative to that individual, the teacher, to jog his memory, asked: "What does a man walk with?" Quick as a flash came the reply, "A woman."—[Boston Journal.

A little Brooklyn girl who had been sick for some time was just finishing her evening prayer with "Bless papa and mamma, and—and—" when she paused and looked up at her mother.

"Well, my darling, what else?"

"And please, Dod, oh, please let the debbil take all the nasty medicine home with him. Amen!"

As he heard the door-bell ring, Mr. Jinks looked up and said:—

"Jimmie, answer the door."

"I can't do it, pa."

"Jimmie!!!"

"Well, pa, I'll answer it all right when it speaks to me first; but I can't do it before, can I?"

And then Jimmie and the book Mr. Jinks was reading ran a race to see which would get out of the room first.—[The Rambler.

Vienna Girls.

The system carried out in Vienna for educating girls is certainly worthy of notice. They are kept at their studies until they are fifteen years of age. They then go through a course of teaching in the pantry and the kitchen under some member of the family, or sometimes under trained cooks, for a year or two years. Thus they learn to do everything themselves, and to know the value of things long before they commence housekeeping on their own account; and though they may never be required to cook a dinner, they become independent of cooks and servants. The Austrian women are most affectionate wives and mothers. They are as accomplished and learned as any English governess, and are as witty in society as a Parisian, and are some of the most beautiful women in Europe

The Colorado Desert.

The Colorado Desert consists of between six and seven thousand acres of arid land, in the center of which are extensive salt and borax fields. Located in the valley of the desert are several mud springs which emit suphurous colors, and there is here and there a growth of greasewood and cactus. The first European who is known to have crossed this sandy tract was Captain Battista Ainsa, governor of Sonora, in 1774, when he opened up a trail to connect the California missions with Mexico. It was little traveled till the flood of Argonauts came in 1847-50, during which time over 60,000 people crossed at the Yuma Ferry bound for the mines. The Indians living on the desert are remarkably healthy and long-lived. Chief Cabezon died two years ago at the age of 140.

Kentuckian (rushing into a saloon in great haste)—Here, give me a drink of whisky. Bartender—I'll have to go down cellar and tap a fresh barrel, colonel; the old one has run out. But it won't take me a minute. Kentuckian—All right, go ahead; but be quick about it. I've just heard that my house is on fire, and I've no time to lose.

WRINKLES.

Crow's Feet the Detestation of Ladies—How Prevented.

We all become interested sooner or later in the subject of wrinkles. They are the "irreparable outrage" of Racine; but although they are so universal, few have endeavored to explain their origin and progress. M. Mantegazza, in the Italian scientific journal Natura, has recently published a study on the subject, which appears to contain all that can be said on it at present. Wrinkles are produced in the first instance by the frequent repetition of some muscular contraction, or by sickness. According to one writer, they are not merely superficial, but appear when the epidermis is removed, and are found not only in the face, but all over the body. They do not run in any regular direction, and no law has been found including all their directions. They are said to depend mainly on the fasciculi which form the reticular part of the dermis. M. Mantegazza thinks that the life history of a man can be written from his wrinkles.

Those across the forehead are found even in children who are rickety or idiots. Going in the sun with the face insufficiently covered brings them on prematurely. But they are in every case normal at forty, or even earlier. Vertical wrinkles between the eyes come quickly to men who study or who worry themselves. This can readily be imagined: the eyebrows contract naturally when in deep thought; grief or worry produces the same action, which, when repeated, frequently produces a fold in the skin, marking emotion undergone many times. One of the rules of the Jesuits was that the eyebrows were not to be contracted. This was excellent from a moral point of view, but it was also excellent to prevent wrinkles between the eyes. Between these and the straight lines on the forehead already mentioned, come the arched wrinkles of the forehead, found above the roof of the nose. These often tell of long and cruel physical suffering, or of still more painful mental torture. They arise from a great development of the vertical wrinkles and the resistance of the skin above.

The crow's feet mark the passing of the fortieth year. They are especially detested by the ladies, says M. Mantegazza; and he forthwith relates an anecdote of a lady who succeeded in keeping off the dreaded visitation long after it was due, by the expedient of using springs to keep the skin stretched at night at the corners of the eyes. These wrinkles are characterized by furrows which diverge from the external angles of the eye in all directions, like the claws of the bird after which they are named. The wrinkles in the nose are less frequent and less noticeable, and appear in old age. Those which descend from the nostrils down each side of the mouth (the rides naso labiales), are, perhaps, the first to appear. The reason is simple. These furrows are created in laughing or mastication; a simple smile is sufficient to produce them, so it is not surprising the repetition of the commonest facts should soon be graven on the face. They are also hereditary. M. Mantegazza had them when he was twenty-two years of age, and his children have had them from their earliest years. The wrinkles of the cheeks and chin follow the oval of the face, and are caused by a diminution of the fatty substance under the skin, which then falls into folds. The small wrinkles which form a network in the lower part of the cheeks near the ears, have the same origin, and only appear in old age. Those found in the upper eyelids, and sometimes in the lower, which give the eyes an air of fatigue, are the results of hard living, grief or worry.—[Toledo Blade.

The Calico Room in Amesbury.

Everybody you meet in Amesbury, Mass., says "calico." It seems that the people have just begun to realize that calico makes prettier summer suits than any other material, but the predominating reason given by most of the influential ladies who have been asked about it, is that "it will help the poor factory operatives who have been so long out of work," and, "besides," they say, "if every lady will purchase enough of the calico for even a single dress, that it would be sufficient to make such a demand for the goods as to cause every print factory in the country to start on full time for one year."

One lady suggested that, as they are engaged in charitable work as well as a fashionable one, "the men ought to wear calico coats and vests during the summer," and several young men at once acted upon the suggestion, and forthwith bought material for calico vests and left their measures at the tailors. Taken altogether, the move is pronounced a good one, and likely to be of great dimensions. Those who can well afford to wear the most costly silks seem to take great interest in the movement, and will be the first to come out in calico suits. Said one bright, pretty girl about seventeen years old: "If only two or three rich ladies in every town would just buy calico dresses and wear them out to church, then I would have to run two more looms to keep up, and then wouldn't I make good pay?"

An ounce of mother, says the Spanish proverb, is worth a pound of clergy.—[Higginson.

SILVER NOTES.

Inyo and San Bernardino are the two greatest silver producing counties in the State.

In the United States the amount of silver in circulation per capita is $3.70; in Belgium it is $14.

A cry has been kept up that the coinage of silver was draining all the gold from the United States Treasury. And yet near the end of the last year the Treasury owned nearly four and three quarters millions more gold than it owned at the beginning of the year. At the same time the people had the use of over twelve and a quarter millions more paper currency based on gold deposited at the Treasury than they had on the first day of January 1885.

Even in silver producing countries much misapprehension exists in relation to the silver question. There are men in Inyo county who appear to think that the continued coinage of silver must necessarily lead to the actual handling of silver in all business transactions; that all buying of goods or payment of debts must be done by counting out the actual silver dollars, and that this would entail a hardship upon both buyer and seller, debtor and creditor. No such inconvenience need occur, silver certificates could take the place of the bank notes now in use, and all business transactions be done as easily as at present.

CONGRESSMAN PAYSON, of Illinois, has introduced a bill (H. R. 376) granting land to honorably discharged soldiers of the United States Army in the war of the rebellion. It has been referred to the Commitee on Public Lands and ordered printed. He also introduced seventeen other bills relaing to public lands.

VERY recently Congressman Markham called at the Postal Department at Washington, to ask for increased mail facilities for Los Angeles and San Diego counties. He was refused, on the ground that the people themselves had not asked for any increase. Now petitions are going from both counties, asking for better mail facilities. No man can in any position, do much for the public good unless actively supported by the people.

THOSE who follow the movements of the planets learn to take warm personal interest in these celestial wanderers, feel for them a kind of reverential friendship, a personal ownership as it were. Especially is this the case with the three planets that will brightly shine in the January sky. Venus, to lovers of the star, is the queen, the fairest of the stars. Jupiter is the symbol of royalty, and Saturn is the magnificent potentate among the brotherhood. Venus in the west, Saturn in the east in the early evening, and Jupiter looking down from the zenith in the early dawn, will crown the star-lit beauty of moonless nights throughout the first month of the new year.—Scientific American.

ON THE first of next month an issue will be raised that will determine which shall be the more powerful of the two, Congress or the Secretary of the Treasury. The Call says: "The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a call for $10,000,000 in 3-per-cent bonds, to be paid, principal and interest, on the first of next February. This call will bring the silver question to a head. If the bonds are paid in part in silver, the Treasury will have taken its first step in retracting the illegal course it has followed since the present silver act was passed. If the bonds are paid exclusively in gold, Congress will take the usurping Secretary in hand. Congress has said that bonds should be paid in gold or silver: the Secretary has said that they shall be paid in gold. The conflict affords a tolerably good opportunity for Congress to ascertain whether it or an official never contemplated by the constitution is the law-making power. It is time this question should be decided. The departments have been too much in the habit of interpreting laws to suit the views of a clique. The Chinese restriction law has suffered at the hands of the Treasury, with the Attorney-General of the United States as its legal guide. In reference to silver payments it is not a matter of interpretation. The law has been boldly disregarded. The Treasury does not pretend to construe the law away, but defends its course on the assumption that Congress erred in passing such a bill. The Wall-street clique of gold speculators have controlled the Treasury Department too long already. There was, at one time, some hope that a Democratic President would put a stop to it, but at present the only hope is that Congress will assert itself.

A Robbery

The effort of the bondholders to have silver demonetized is nothing less than a gigantic crime; in the words of Jim Fisk "it is an almighty robbery." General Clarke, of Carson, in an article published in the Reno Gazette says: "The country emerged from the war with a debt—public and private—of five thousand million dollars. By contracting the volume of money, levying oppressive taxes and changeing the terms of the contract the burden of this debt was almost doubled. The Government and debtor class were robbed, and the creditor class was enriched more than seventeen hundred millions dollars. The value of the National securities alone was increased more than nine hundred million dollars in gold. As greenbacks and bank notes advanced, all values shrunk, wages declined, property depreciated and it became harder and harder to pay taxes and more and more difficult to pay debts. The rich and powerful shifted their tax burdens upon the poor and weak, and the poor became more weak and miserable. No words can describe the ruin and misery wrought by this crime of the bondholders and manufacturers, consumated through the direct agency of Congress. A financial crisis was brought upon the country. Thousands of business men were driven into bankruptcy—more than 104 000 in ten years. Banks suspended payments business stagnated, "Black Friday" spread its dreadful shadow over millions of homes. The bond-holders multidlied their wealth by spoil, gathered from the ruin of the people. The middle classes were oppressed and plundred, the poor degraded and driven into deeper poverty; the miserable were plunged into more hopeless misery. The time has passed when this crime can be redressed, but the hour approaches when the people will call its perpetrators to account.

THERE are indications that the Chinese are trying to get control of the liquor business in San Francisco. Already it is said, there are several Chinese firms doing a big business. When these people once get started in any business sooner or later they control it.

AT A banquet in Boston Senator Evarts said: "No more responsible question can be brought to the nations of Europe, and this, our own, than that one whether, when heretofore two metals have supported the commerce and credit of the world, one of them can be struck down, and what would happen if it should be done. But if it should be true that we are to discard vituperation are to discard exaggeration, then we shall know how to deal in the councils of this nation with this present and practical question, concerning the coinage of silver in a way that shall bring deliberate determination that when coming from the common councils of the country shall be accepted until there shall be developed some necessary for further action." Senator Allison, of Iowa, also pronounced himself as decidedly in favor of bimetalism and argued at length in support of his position.

Facts about the Feet.

Fashion in men's shoes again strongly inclines to broad toes.

Pointed toes for men's shoes have quite gone out of fashion.

Nothing in nature, the ladies say, is prettier than a girl baby's foot.

The most fashionable ladies everywhere are wearing low-heeled, sensible shoes.

Chiropodists say that ballet dancers, as a rule, have the worst feet in the world.

Two fashionable corn doctors in Philadelphia have made independent fortunes.

Most of the stylish men who black their own shoes use the imported liquid blacking.

A prominent physician says that more men of distinction suffer from gout than from any other malady.

It is said of a small foot that the face may grow wrinkled and the hair turn gray, but the foot is "still than."

French heels and pointed toes have been "in" and "out" by turns for several generations. Just now they are out.

Every year the number of corn doctors increases and annually the army of corn-suffering humanity grows larger.

The average stocking worn by the Philadelphia girl is half a size smaller than the prevailing size in Boston or New York.

In Richard II.'s time the shoes had such narrow-pointed toes they were caught up at the knee by ornamental chains, while in the time of Henry VIII., who had the gout, they were flat elephantine affairs, with puffs.

In the "Mikado," though the girls affect a mincing gait, there is no affection of small feet, as it is a Japanese play, and the Japanese ladies, unlike the Chinese, do not bandage their bunions or cramp their corns.

It is a curious fact, known as a rule only to critical observers of the same sex, that the noted beauties, like the peacocks, are not proud of their feet. Langtry's foot, it is said, is nothing to brag about, and Mary Anderson has a regular "clodhopper."

Part of These Are to Die On.

It is fearful to think how little we have to live on, and how great is our danger of starvation. Scientists tell us that the number of plants used by man is only 2,000.—[Boston Globe.

A STRANGE PEOPLE.

The Terra del Fuego Indians and Their Nakedness.

The Terra del Fuego Indians, the ugliest mortals that ever breathed, are always on the lookout for passing vessels, and come out in canoes to beg and to trade skins for tobacco. The Fuegians, or "Canoe Indians," as they are commonly called to distinguish them from the Patagonians, who dislike the water, and prefer to navigate on horseback, have no settled habitation. They are a simple people, with a dirty and bloated appearance, and faces that would scare a mule. They have broad features, low foreheads (over which the hair hangs in tangled lumps), high cheek bones, flat noses, enormous chins, and jaws and mouths like a crocodile, with teeth that add to their repulsiveness. Their skin is said to be of a copper color. They consider it unhealthful to bathe. They are short in stature, round-shouldered, squaty, and bloated, a physical deformity said to be due to the fact that most of their lives are spent in canoes. The women are even more repulsive in their appearance than the men, and the children, which are uncommonly numerous, look like young baboons. Their intelligence seems to be confined to a knowledge of boating and fishing, and they exercise great skill in both pursuits. Scientists who have investigated them say that they are of the very lowest order of the human kind, many degrees below the Digger Indians.

Although these people live in a perpetual winter, where it freezes every night, and always snows when the clouds shed moisture, they go almost stark naked! The skin of the otter and guanaco are used for blankets, which are worn about the shoulders and afford some protection; but under these neither women nor men wear anything whatever, except shoes and leggins made of the same material, which protect the feet from the rocks. There is some little attempt at adornment made by both sexes, in the way of necklaces, bracelets, and ear-rings, made of fishbones and sea-shells, which are often ingeniously joined together. The women will sell the skin blankets that cover their backs, for tobacco, standing, meantime, as nude as a statue of Venus!

Their food consists of mussels, fish, sea animals, and flesh of a similar sort, which they catch with the rudest sort of implements. Their fishing lines are made of grass, and their hooks of fish-bones. For weapons they have bows and spears, the former having strings made of the entrails of animals, and the latter being long, slender poles, with tips of sharpened bone. They also use slings with great dexterity, which are made of woven grass, and are said to bring down animals at long range.

During the day they are always on the water, in canoes or dugouts, made of the trunks of trees, the whole family going together, and usually consisting of a man, two or three wives, and as many urchins as can be crowded into the boat. When night falls they go ashore and build a fire upon the rocks to temper the frigid atmosphere. Around this they cuddle in a most affectionate way. The name of the islands upon which they live came from these fires. The early navigators, when passing through the straits, were amazed to see these fires spring up as if by magic, all over the islands, every night at sundown, and so they called them Terra del Fuego, or the Land of Fire. The English shortened the appellation, and thus the place is known as Fireland.—[Patagonia Cor. New York Sun.

Healing for Household Aggravations.

Oil of lavender will drive away flies.

Copperas mixed with the whitewash put upon the cellar walls will keep vermin away.

Ceilings that have been smoked by a kerosene lamp should be washed off with soda water.

Drain pipes, and all places that are sour or impure, may be cleansed with lime water or carbolic acid.

Strong brine may be used to advantage in washing bedsteads. Hot alum water is also good for this purpose.

Cayenne pepper blown into the cracks where ants congregate will drive them away. The same remedy is also good for mice.

If gilt frames, when new, are covered with a coat of white varnish, all specks can then be washed off with water without harm.

If a bedstead creaks at each movement of the sleeper, remove the slats and wrap the end of each in old newspaper. This will prove a complete silencer.

If the wall about the stove has been smoked by the stove, cover the black patches with gum-shellac, and they will not strike through either paint or calcimine.—[Philadelphia Press.

Some Reliable Signs.

When two or more females board a car at the same time, it's a sign that they are going to quarrel as to who will pay the fare, and that they will finally end in the Philadelphia plan.

When a homely girl and a pretty girl walk along the street together, it's a sure sign that the homely girl will carry the parasol, and that she will cover the pretty girl's face with it.

When a small boy is caught with surreptitious articles in his possession, it's a sign that "'nother feller done it."

When a prisoner is interviewed in the station house, it's a sign that he's "in for nawthin'."—[Pretzel's Weekly.

Kind Words for Women.

Women are afflicted by trifles, but they are also consoled by trifles.—[Victor Hugo.

The language of woman should be luminous, but not voluminous.—[Douglas Jerrold.

Trust not a woman when she weeps, for it is her nature to weep when she wants her will.—[Socrates.

If the world were put into one scale and my mother into the other, the whole world would kick the beam.—[Lord Langdale.

They that marry ancient people merely in expectation to bury them, hang themselves in hope that some one will come and cut the halter.—[Thomas Fuller.

A fine lady is a squirrel-headed thing, with small airs and small notions; about as applicable to the business of life as a pair of tweezers to the clearing of a forest.—[George Elliot.

There are many women who have never intrigued, and many men who have never gamed; but those who have done either but once are very extraordinary animals, and more worthy of a glass case when they die than half the exotics in the British museum.—[Colton.

To a man who is uncorrupt and properly constituted, woman remains always something of a mystery and a romance. He never interprets her quite literally. She, on her part, is always striving to remain a poem, and is never weary of bringing out new editions of herself in novel bindings. —[James Parton.

Cleopatra is a real woman—she loves and deceives at the same time. It is an error to suppose that when a women deceive us they have ceased to love us. They are only following in their native instinct, and even when they have no wish to drain a forbidden cup, they like to sip a little at the rim, just to try how poison tastes.—[Heinrich Heine.

We must have a weak spot or two in a character before we can love it much. People that do not laugh or cry, or take more of anything than is good for them, or use anything but dictionary words, are admirable subjects for biographies. But we don't always care most for those flat pattern flowers that press best in the herbarium.—[Holmes.

A Great Horseback Ride.

Frank Aubry, says a writer on Western life before the days of railroads, rode from Santa Fe, N. M., to Independence, Mo., 780 miles, in less than six days, and afterwards, in 1848, rode over the same road again in eight days without having stopped to sleep the entire way. His horse gave out when half the journey was over and he had to make his way on foot, keeping guard all the time against hostile Indians, to a fort twenty miles away to get another outfit.

"Why, Mr. Fogg," urged the landlady, "you are not eating anything. Come, now, try one of my nice biscuits." "Thank you, ma'am," replied Fogg, "but when I was a child I was told never to ask for anything I didn't see on the table." The landlady remarked to the servant, after tea, that she wondered what Mr. Fogg meant, something hateful, she'd be bound.—[Boston Transcript.

Harpagon had commissioned a friend to get him a lottery ticket. "If I make a lucky choice we shall go halves," said the friend, smiling. "All right," said the other. The day of the drawing came; Harpagon won a clock worth at least 500 francs. "Ah! poor old chap," he said mournfully to his friend; "if I had won wine or money, or two different articles we might go halves; but a clock—I really don't know how to settle with you!" After a pause. "I have it! You shall come now and again to see the time!"

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 9..... 1886

—The lower mill at Belleville will soon be ready for starting up.

—A bill has been introduced in the Senate to grant pensions to the veterans of the Mexican war.

—There are already one hundred and fifty cities in the United States that use water gas for lighting purposes.

—So ch-i-i-l-l-y! At Bodie last Saturday morning, so says the Miner, the thermometer registered 23° below zero.

—During the past month or two there has been an unusual amount of land located in Owens Valley, and the number of entries is increasing.

—The most important department of the reopened works at Swansea, is the eating establishment. No matter what becomes of the rest this is sure to be a success, Charley Levy is in charge.

—A clean up from a run of a hundred tons of ore from the Lapanta mine was made at the Kinkead mill a few days ago. The yield must have been big; it is said that a dividend of $20,000 will be made.

—The extension of the railroad to Aurora, and the erection of reduction works at Mono Lake are regarded as certainties. It is said that work on these improvements will be begin early in the spring

—The long-pending suit between Groves and Stubblefield was called for trial last Thursday. Both parties agreed to have the case tried by a jury of four, and William Barrows, J. W. Symmes, H. P. Carter and W. Brady were chosen.

I have used Simmons Liver Regulator in my extensive practice for the last four years, and cannot find its equal for bilious colic, dyspepsia, sick or nervous headache and constipation.

Yours truly.

J. M. SHORT, M. D., Builerville, Ark.

—The Alta California's 16 page New Year's edition is a neat and comprehensive history of the whole coast. It is handsomely illustrated and is a valuable number to file away. Strongly Democratic, the Alta discusses all political questions with fairness and great ability.

—Mr. C. M. Joslyn gave up posession of the ranch at Georges Creek to Mr. Hunter on the first day of the year. He is staying for the present with his daughter, Mrs. Irwin, at Independence. Mr. Hunter has engaged Walter James to take charge of the ranch; Walter is a good farmer.

—Natural gas has alredy attained almost as much importance as petroleum. It has effected important changes in the manufacture of iron and glass, and is likely to affect other industries. At Cleveland Ohio at experiment well was board and at a depth of 3,160 feet a strong flow of gas was struck. other wells will be bored in the same locality.

—On Wednesday of last week Colonel W. J. Sutherland arrived at Candelaria, and the citizens gave him a public reception. The Colonel is the man who gave the town an abundant supply of pure water, and raised money to develop mines and build a mill. No doubt Colonel Sutherland felt pleased with his reception; it does any man good to see his efforts appreciated.

—Rev. Mr. Spangler arrived at Independence at the end of last week. He expects to remain here till next September. Mrs. Spangler and two children are at Sacramento; they are expected to arrive here in about ten days. Mr. Spangler has been in Chili during the past four years, engaged in teaching in a college in the City of Conception. He is here at present for the benefit of his wife's health, but intends returning to his former work.

MINE SOLD.—The Chulula mine, at Beveridge, das been sold to San Francisco parties; Mr. Preston was the buyer, Hiario Arambula the seller.

PREACHING.—To-morrow afternoon at half two o'clock Rev. Mr. Spangler will preach at Camp Independence. In the evening at half past seven o'clock he will preach at Independence

KNOCKED OUT.—The Supreme Court has knocked out another act passed by the Legislature; it has declared the bill allowing Superior Judges to appoint Court Reporters at a fixed salary unconstitutional.

PRICE OF ORE.—In consequence of the decline in the price of silver, J. M. Douglass & Co. are compelled to make a reduction in the prices hitherto paid for ores. See their new schedule in their advertisement on another column.

REDUCTION OF FREIGHT RATES.—Beginning with the new Year a material reduction in freight rates has been made on the C. & C. railroad. The managers of the road are ready at all times to make reductions as fast as the business will permit.

FROM SENATOR BECK.—Acting Governor Laughton received the following letter from Senator Beck, of Kentucky, responding to a telegram of thanks which he sent him a few days ago:

WASHINGTON, December 24, 1885.—Hon. C. E. Laughton—Dear Sir; Thank you for your kind telegram. I take the liberty to send you a half dozen copies of the speech I made. Two-thirds of the Senate are with me on this question.

Yours truly.

J. B. BECK.

Personal Mention.

Colonel Stevens was up from Lone Pine at the middle of the week.

Mrs. J. W. Symmes and her children have gone to visit relatives at Oakland and Alameda. She expects to be gone a month.

Mr. Isaac Harris, of Harris & Rhine, has gone to San Francisco; He intends to return to Independence about the end of this month.

J. H. Prince, of Hawthorne, arrived here last Wednesday and will stay until about the middle of next week. He is looking around with a view to the location or purchase of land.

Silver Interests.

The Pro-silver club met on Tuesday evening. Various matters in connection with the silver interest were discussed. It was decided that the Club give a public entertainment at an early day, and the Chair appointed the following committee to prepare a programme: John W. P. Laird, Robert Peeler and G. H. Hardy. It was ordered that a petetion be prepared for presentation to Congress against the demonetization of of silver. Copies of said petetion will be distributed over the country for signature, and will afterward be forwarded to Congressman Markham for presentation. The Club adopted a resolution tendering a vote of thanks to Senator Beck, of Kentucky, for his very able speech on the silver question, delivered in the Senate of the United States.

EYE HURT.—While at work at the Maxim mill last Monday, chipping a piece of steel with a cold chisel and hammer, Mr. John Alexander had one of his eyes severely hurt by a piece of the metal; it flew from the chisel and struck the eye-ball, inflicting a very painful wound. The eye will not be permanently injured.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The Ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorably located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area seeded to alfalfa.

RICH ROCK.—The Walker Lake Bulletin contains the following: "A. Musante, has struck a ledge in the Comstock mine of Santa Fé, near Luning, which shows some of the finest rock ever seen in this section. A large piece brought to town shows that the ledge is of good size, and the horn silver seen on the specimens prepare observers for the assay value of over $1500 per ton."

CRUSHED TO DEATH.—On Monday of last week a man named Thomas Lee was killed near Columbia, Tuolumne County. He had been working alone on a mining claim, when a large boulder, estimated to weigh a hundred tons rolled down upon him. He had been dead a day or two before the accident was discovered. The rock had to be blasted to recover the body. Lee was aged about 55 years, and was a native of Ireland.

DON'T WANT IT.—The Bridgeport Chronicle-Union is not in favor of a resurvey of the State line between California and Nevada; it says: "It is doubtful if the interests of Mono county would be benefitted by a new survey. There is a feeling among the solid taxpayers of county that we do not want any of Nevada's domains. It might benefit Alpine county a trifle—and a trifle only, as it would only add to that county the other half of Keyser & Elrod's ranch, and one or two other little ones, in Carson Valley, all which would not add $20,000 to the assessment roll of that county, but it might throw Aurora into this county again and compel us to pay the old Aurora warrants, amounting, with interest, to some $140,000, which would bankrupt our county."

A TINY BABE.—It is safe to say that Independence can boast of the smallest baby in the State. On Christmas Eve. the child was three months old and weighed four pounds. At the age of six weeks the child—a girl—weighed one and three quarter pounds; this included the garments. A lady's finger ring passed easily over her hand and up the arm to the shoulder. Of course such a mite could not take nourishment from the mother's breast; she was given cows' milk, four or five drops at a time being as much as she could take for several weeks; now she can take take half a teaspoonful at a time. The infant is finely formed, has bright dark eyes, and long black hair; she is healthy and thriving rapidly, having gained a pound in weight during the past month. The parents are both strong, healthy, large people; the mother weighs about two hundred pounds.

A GOOD WORK BEGUN.—The first steps have been taken to compel the Secretary of the Treasury to obey the law, and reopen the Carson mint. On Thursday of last week Gen. Clark, attorney for the Citizens Committee, went to the U. S. Mint in this city with H. S. Mason, Chairman of the Committee, tendered a bar of gold and silver bullion to Major Garrard to be parted and refined. It was refused. He then tendered $500 in gold and demanded subsidiary coin. It was also refused on the ground that Secretary Manning had closed the Mint. He then demanded that Major Garrard should appoint a chief clerk and a cashier in accordance with the law, which was refused and the necessary steps have already been begun to compel the Government to open the mint by a suit of mandamus. It will come up before Judge Sabin Startling Experience.

Next to scarlet fever, there is no disease among children more dreaded by parents than whooping cough. It is liable to come at all seasons of the year, it exhausts the strength of the little ones, and physicians are often unable to check it. Mr. F. W. Harbaugh, of the Telegram, Baltimore, Maryland, had six of his children, aged from six to thirteen years, prostrated with this malady at one and the same time. A complete cure was, however, effected by Red Star Cough Cure; and Harbaugh writes that the cough, which generally lasts nine weeks, left in four weeks, and he is confident it would have disappeared sooner if he had been aware of the existence of such an invaluable remedy.

BREAK DOWN.—There was a break down of machinery at the Maxim mill last Monday morning. Just as the engine was started the eccentric strap, a part of the machine that moves the steam valve, broke into three pieces. The broken part had to be sent to San Francisco for repairs. This mishap will cause a delay of eight or ten days.

HER TEARS AND SOBS

WORKED ON HIS SYMPATHY.

An Irishman Convicted of Selling Whisky Without a License and Gets Pardoned.

"Hayes was President when I was editor and proprietor of the Daily Telegram in Washington," said Hugh Coyle, the Egyptian Hall manager, "and I had been in the habit of pouring hot shot into him and his administration whenever an opportunity offered, but he was a kind-hearted fellow after all, and Mrs. Hayes was a pleasant, good-natured woman. I'll tell you a story that will make you laugh about Hayes.

"Tim —— kept a restaurant in Washington. He was a well-known son of Erin, happy as the day is long, with a good-natured, portly wife and five children that looked like a step-ladder when you stood them up in a row, and were as healthy as little pigs. The oldest of the children was about twelve years of age. One Decoration Day, Tim took it into his head to increase the exchequer of his family by selling some "hard stuff" to the dust-begrimmed and thirsty hosts who always visit Arlington on that occasion, so he erected a frame booth on the road to the cemetery, stocked it with the "rale old stuff" and began business as his own bartender. He forgot the important essential of taking out a license, was nabbed by a constable, marched down to Alexandria, landed in jail, tried, convicted and sentenced to two years for selling liquor without a license, and fined a hundred dollars. When Tim's wife and family heard of what had befallen their natural protector, they nearly went crazy. One day I received a visit from his wife and the rest of the family. They lived in the neighborhood of my office. I listened to the story which she disconnectedly narrated to me through her tears and sobs, and a thought struck me that perhaps I could be of some service to her in securing the release of her husband. I enjoined her to follow my advice strictly, and I thought she could get Tim restored to the bosom of his family. Go up to the White House and see President Hayes; take all the children with you; force your way in and do not allow the doorkeepers to bluff you or prevent you from getting in to see him. When you arrive in his presence tell your story to him, and say that you will all have to starve or go to the poor-house unless he is released. Cry and sob right lively while you are repeating your request, and have your oldest daughter to burst out crying at the same time. I know that all the other children will follow suit if they see the oldest one crying. Mr. Hayes is a tender-hearted man, and will release your husband, I'm sure.

"She obeyed my instructions to the letter. She 'togged out' the little ones in clean attire, went to the executive mansion and got inside the main entrance before Dinsmore, the good-looking doorkeeper, could prevent it. The latter then ordered them out, but the family began the music according to programme, and while crying at the top of their voices enlisted the sympathy of many of the visitors who were passing in and out. A charitable-looking lady and gentleman, with whom the President was acquainted, ascertained between her sobs and tears what Tim's wife was after, and arranged an interview with Mr. Hayes. Up stairs trooped the mother and children. The former pathetically told her story to the Chief Magistrate of the nation. The crying and sobbing of the whole party was 'immense,' said a looker-on. 'Calm yourself, calm yourself, my good woman,' said Mr. Hayes. 'Oh! my poor husband! my poor husband!' ejaculated the mother, and then the chorus of the children would almost reach high C. 'I will release your husband,' said Mr. Hayes, at last. 'Come to-morrow and see me, but do not bring your children.'

"The next day she was promptly on hand. The President accompanied her to the department of Justice, looked over the papers in the trivial case and not only pardoned Tim, but wrote a letter to the state authorities requesting them to remit the fine, which was done. Tim was received with open arms by the happy family and has, since that time, kept within the pale of the law. Coyle says the family overwhelmed him unanimously."—[Philadelphia Press.

Taught His Duty.

A young wife in Brooklyn taught her recalcitrant lord in a very effective fashion that it was his duty to help mind the baby. Two women rang the door bell of a prominent citizen's residence, and when the door was opened by the father of the family, laid a bundle upon the walk. "This is your son's child," they said as they walked away. The bundle contained a six months old girl baby. The gentleman took the child into the house, and then went and reported the matter to the police. He thought that some malicious persons were adopting desperate tactics to make trouble for his son. Next day, however, the son notified the police they would keep the baby. "It is my child," he continued, and the sergeant looked up and waited for an explanation. "The fact is I have been married some little time, but my father did not know it. I was out of work, and as I could not support my wife and child, or even myself, I remained at home with my father. I suppose my wife began to think that it was about my turn to take care of the baby, and so left it in front of our house. I have explained all that at home, and we'll keep the child."

THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind in use adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the past TWO YEARS under a great variety of conditions, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month in the year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its cost for this purpose alone.

BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. Notes on Science and Industry

M. Forquignon states, in a communication to the French Academy of Sciences, that when white iron castings are heated to a point a little under that of fusion, they become transformed into gray iron, this change being due to the separation of carbon from its previous combination with the metal, and its deposition in the bulk of the metal casting. By careful experiments, the following results were developed: A number of white iron pigs were heated, for 172 hours, in a stove from which the gas was carefully exhausted, and afterward the product was analyzed: the iron originally contained three per cent. of combined carbon, while the material as taken out of the experimental furnace was found to contain only .956 per cent. of carbon in combination, and 2.061 per cent. of carbon in the graphitic state. This change, it is remarked, must have been due wholly to the slow and continued heating of the metal—a fact, therefore, of special interest.

What is described as a recent railway invention of considerable importance is a device for preventing or diminishing damage from collisions. The arrangement consists principally of a telescoping frame of tubes which runs from buffer to buffer, and which extends on each end of the car a considerable distance. If a collision takes place these telescoping tubes gradually increase their resistance to the end of the train; the force of the blow is soon expended, and there are no splintered cars and no car off the track. Experimentally, a train with this equipment attached was started down a steep grade, and struck the stop block without a particle of injury, the train coming gradually to a stop.

A good enamel coating for cast iron, wrought iron, or steel—one that will not crack on being subjected to moderate changes of temperature—has long been a desideratum, and this is now claimed to have been discovered. In the case of an opaque enamel being required, as, for instance, a basis for vitrified photographs, about eight parts of oxide of tin are to be added." About 125 parts, by weight, of ordinary flint-glass fragments, twenty parts of carbonate of soda and twelve parts of boricac acid are melted together, and the fused mass poured out on some cold surface, as of stone or metal. When this has sufficiently cooled off it is pulverized, and a mixture made of the powder together with silicate of soda of 50° B. with this substance the metal is glazed and heated in a muffle or other furnace until it is fused. This is said to prove an effective application for the purpose, as compared with other methods, and at least possesses the advantage of simplicity.

The belt system of automatic firing as now applied to machine guns, illustrates the terrible deadliness of modern warfare. In the working of this kind of gun every round after the first is fired by the recoil of the previous explosion. The cartridges are carried in a belt composed of any number of lengths, which are connected together as the cartridges are used. One end of this cartridge belt is placed in the gun mechanism on one side, the cartridges are picked out of it by the automatic action of the gun, and the belt and the cartridge shells are ejected after firing. Every recoil of the gun brings the next cartridge into position, forces it into the barrel, cocks the hammer, pulls the trigger, extracts the empty cartridge case, and ejects it from the gun, all these processes going on with the almost inconceivable rapidity represented by the firing of six hundred rounds a minute. At the moment of firing, the recoil drives the barrel back about three-quarters of an inch, and it is this recoil which directs the mechanism of the gun and makes its fire continuous. The gun can be pointed in any direction by turning a crank, and the rate of discharge can be accurately regulated by means of a "controlling chamber," so contrived that the gun may be fired rapidly or slowly as desired.

"I'm getting dreadful fat, my dear," said a husband to his wife; "I must get a set of dumb-bells and practice with them." "Why not do as Mr. Smith did when he was getting so fat?" "What did he do?" "Broke up housekeeping and went to live in a boarding-house."—[Boston Courier.

DAVID AND GOLIAH.

The Story as Told by a Local Preacher in the Southwest.

Last week, my brethrin, as I was areadin' my Bible, I found a story of a big fight (1 Sam. 17). It was powerful interestin', and I studied it almost all the week. There was two armies a campin' on two mountains right fornenst each other, and a holler and I reckon, some good bottom land and a medder lot lyin' between 'em. In one of the armies there was a big feller—a whoppin' great big feller and every day he went down into the medder lot and looked up the hill to t'other camp and just dared 'em. He told 'em to pick their best man and send him down and he'd fight him. And he just strutted around there in his soger close and waited for 'em to send on their man. And such soger close I never heard tell on afore.

He had a brass cap and brass trousers, and a coat made like mail bags where they all ironed and riveted together. But the fellers in t'other camp jest clean flunked. They daren't fight the big feller, nary one on 'em. They jest all sneaked away, and the big feller he went back to camp. But he didn't quit thar, the big feller didn't. He was spilin for a fight, and he was bound to have it. He jest went down into the bottom land, into the medder lot, every day, mornin' and evenin', and dared 'em and dared 'em. I tell you he pestered 'em mightily. The old feller Saul, the gineral, he felt more clawed up and meaner than the sogers, and, when he couldn't stan' it no longer, he told the boys if any on 'em would go down and lick the big feller he'd give him his gal and a right smart chance of plunder. But they was all so skeer'd that even that didn't start one of 'em. The big feller went down and dared 'em' and pestered more'n a month—forty days, the Bible says.

I don't know what they'd a done if it hadn't a been that a peart little feller had come down to camp one day to fetch some extra rations to his three big brothers that their old dad sent to 'em from home. Kind old pap he was, and sharp, too, for he sent along a big present to the boys' cap'en. Well, jest as the little feller drove up, they was all gwine out to fight, and the little feller left his traps with the driver, and legged it after the sogers, and told his big brothers howd'y. Right thar the old big feller came out and dared 'em again, and they were all so skeer'd that they jest run like mad. The little feller heered him, and then went back into camp and heered all the sogers talking about him, and what the old gineral would give to have him licked. He asked 'em a heap of questions about it all, and his big brother he got mad at him, and twitted him about keeping sheep, and gave him a right smart of sass. He was plucky, but you see he had to stan' it, 'cause 'twas his big brother. Big brothers are mighty mean sometimes.

But the little feller talked a heap with the other sogers, and they told the old gineral about him and he told them to tell the little feller to come and see him. The little feller was mighty plucky, and he jest up and told the old Gineral Saul that he'd fight the big feller! The gineral looked at the handsome little feller—he was real handsome—and ses he, kinder softly, "I reckon," and shakin' his head, "it's too big a job; you're only a chunk of a boy, and he's an old fighter." The little feller spunked up and told the old gineral that he'd had one b'ar fight and he had killed the b'ar. He said there was an old lion and a b'ar got among his dad's sheep, and gwine off with a lamb. He broke for 'im, and as soon as he met up with the old b'ar, he lamm'd him till the b'ar turned on him for a hug; but he got one hand into the long ha'r under his jaw, and he lamm'd him with the other'n till he was dead. He'd killed the lion and the b'ar, and he know'd he was enough for the old big feller.

Then the little feller talked real religious to the old gineral. You see, he'd got religion afore that, and he knowed that the Lord would help a feller, if he was all right, and got into a tight place. He told Gineral Saul that the Lord had made him mighty supple, and looked out for him when the old lion and b'ar tried to get their paws into him and he knowed he'd see him through the fight with the old big feller, for he was just darin' 'em and pesterin' 'em to make game of religion. When the old gineral seed he was so plucky and religious, too, he knowed them's the kind that fit powerful, and he told him to go in, and he made a little prayer for him hisself. Then the old gineral put his own sojer close on the little feller, and strapped his sword onto him. But they were a heap too big, and he shucked 'em off directly, and made for a dry branch down in the bottom. Then he hunted five little rocks, smooth as a hen egg, put 'em in a little bag where he carried his snack when he was a tendin' the sheep, got his sling fixed all right, and hurried up to meet the old big feller in the medder lot. When he seed him comin' he was powerful mad they'd sent down such a little feller, and jawed awful. But the little feller jest talked back religious, and kept his eyes peeled. And I reckon the big feller couldn't a be'n a lookin'. I've studied a heap on it, and I jest know the big feller couldn't a be'n lookin'; for the little feller got out his sling and drew away and shied a little rock at him, and he popped him and down he tumbled. Then the little feller rushed up and mounted him jest as an old hunter loves to get on a b'ar after he's shot him; and he out with the big feller's long sword and off with his head. Then it was them Philistine sinners' turn to be skeer'd, and they broke for the brush; and all of them chil'en of Israel fellers jest shouted and chased 'em clean over the mountain into a valley, and then com'd back and got all their camp plunder.

My brethren, that's the best story of a fight I ever read after, and you can't buy no better story book nor this very Bible.—[Dr. Pierson's Reminiscences.

He Knew Bill Gimps.

"Do you know the prisoner at the bar?"

"Him?"

"Yes; answer up prompt."

"That fellow there?"

"Certainly; do you know him?"

"Him?"

"Yes, to be sure; why don't you answer?"

"Why, pshaw, Judge! Him an' me married gals out of the same family—sisters, you might say."

"Well, do you know him?"

"Him?"

"Can't you understand plain English? Do you know this man?"

"That'n?"

"Of course, you blockhead. Do you know him?"

"Know him? Why, bless your old heart, Judge, he's got a pup now that I gave him mor'n five years ago, an' you never see such a dog in all your born days as that'n turned out to be. Why, pshaw, Judge, you couldn't find nothin' like him with hide an' hair on in seven counties; but the way I come to git him was just one of the funniest blamed things you ever heered tell of. You see the way of it was this—ah?"

"Hold on! Stop right there! We don't want any dog stories just now. Do you know him?"

"Who?"

"Why, this man!"

"Uh! Why, I 'lowed you meant the dog. Well, if I'd knowed the pup half so well as I did him, you can bet your socks he wouldn't never a got him, Judge; that's what he wouldn't. Why, dog gone it all, Judge, that dog was half pinter, an' —— ah?"

"Stop this sawing around and answer the questions, or you'll be committed."

"Uh?"

"I say you'll be committed.'

"Uh?"

"I say you'll be committed for contempt."

"For what?"

"For contempt."

"What's that?"

"Will you answer the question?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, why don't you do it?"

"Do what?"

"Answer the question!"

"What question?"

"The one I asked you."

"Which'n?"

"Do you know the man?"

"What man?"

"The prisoner at the bar."

"I wonder now if you mean Bill Gimps?"

"Certainly. Do you know him?"

"Didn't I say we both married into the same family?"

"Yes; but do—you—know him?"

"Well, now, see here, Judge. Don't you know I'd be like to know my own brother-in-law?"

"Will you answer the question?"

"What question?"

"Do you know Bill Gimps?"

"Didn't I give him a pup five years ago?"

"Yes; but do you know him?"

"Well, now, see here Judge, I claim to be free born an' half white, an' do you 'spose I wouldn't have any more sense than to fooi away a dog on a man I don't know? No, sir-ee; I never got so blamed flush with dogs as to waste 'em like that. Know him? Of course I do; better'n I do the size of my own feet, or my ole woman's voice, and could'v told you so long ago if you'd only ast me. Know him at the bar? Why, blast it all, Judge, that's where I fust got acquainted with him, by his standin' treat, an' I never knowed a man, Judge, that was more certain to turn jack right where it was needed in a game of seven-up than him. You can go your pile on him for that every time and never get left. Yes, sir, I'd know Bill Gimps anywhere, even in meetin', though I don't 'spose I could ever make out how he got there. Know him? Yer-sir-ee-bob. I know him as well as I do when dinner time comes. Is that strong enough, Judge, or do you want me to projuce his note to show how much more I know him? I can do it if sich is law."

"That will do."

"Uh?"

"You may step down!"

"Down where?"

"Down stairs, you blockhead!"

Mrs. Mackay's Rose Dinner.

An American gentleman who has been spending the season in London, says that Mrs. Mackay gave there a series of dinner-parties which were noted as among the most elegant and tasteful entertainments of the hour. One of them was afterwards designated as the rose dinner. The table was transformed into a bed of roses, with just margin enough left for the plates and glasses of the guests. The flowers were all half blown and of delicate pale pink. Light was supplied by wax candles placed in large silver candelabra, each candle rising out of the heart of a rose. The menus were planted upon pale pink satin.

HEARD, THEN COUNTED.

A Story with a Moral to Suspicious Buyers of Eggs.

Old Mose, who sells eggs and chickens on the streets of Austin for a living, is as honest an old negro as ever lived, but he has got the habit of chatting familiarly with his customers, hence he frequently makes mistakes in counting out the eggs they buy. He carries his wares around in a small cart drawn by a diminutive donkey. He stopped in front of the residence of Mrs. Samuel Burton. The old lady herself came out to the gate to make the purchases.

"Have you got any eggs this morning, Uncle Mose?" she asked.

"Yes indeed, I has. Jess got in ten dozen from de kentry."

"Are they fresh?"

"I gua'ntee 'em. I knows dey am fresh jes de same as ef I had laid 'em myse'f."

"I'll take nine dozen. You can just count them into this basket."

"All right, mum." He counts, "One, two, free, foah, five, six, seben, eight, nine, ten. You kin rely on dem bein' fresh. How's your son coming on at de school? He mus' be mos' grown."

"Yes, Uncle Mose, he is a clerk in a bank at Galveston."

"Why, how ole am de boy?"

"He is eighteen."

"You don't tole me so. Eighteen and getting a salary already—eighteen (counting), nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-free, twenty-foah, twenty-five, and how's yer gal comin' on? She was most growd up de las' time I seed her."

"She is married and living in Dallas."

"Wall, I declar'. How de time scoots away! An' yo' say she has childruns? Why, how ole am de gal? She mus' be jess about—"

"Thirty-three."

"Am dat so? (counting), firty-free, firty-foah, firty-five, firty-seben, firty-eight, forty, forty-one, forty-two, forty-three. Hit am so singler dat you has sich ole childruns. I can't b'leeve you has grandchildruns. You don't look more den forty yeahs old yerself."

"Nonsense, old man, I see you want to flatter me. When a person gets to be fifty-three years old—"

"Fifty-free? I jess dun gwinter b'leeve hit—fifty-free, fifty-foah, fifty-five, fifty-six—I want you to pay tenshun when I counts de eggs, so dar'll be no mistake—fifty-nine, sixty, sixty-one, sixty-two, sixty-free, sixty-foah—Whew! Dis am a warm day. Dis am de time ob year when I feels I'se gettin ole myse'f. I ain't long for dis world. You comes from an ole family. When your fadder died he was sebenty years ole."

"Seventy-two."

"Dat's old, shuah. Sebenty-two, sebenty-free, sebenty-foah, sebenty-five, sebenty-six, sebenty-seben, sebenty-eight, sebenty-nine—and your mudder? She was one ob the noblest looking ladies I eber see. You reminds me ob her so much. She libbed to mos' a hundred. I bleebes she was done pass a centurion when she died."

"No, Uncle Mose; she was only 96 when she died."

"Den she warn't no chicken when she died. I know that—ninety-six, ninety-seben, ninety-eight, ninety-nine, one-hundred, one, two, free, foah, five, six, seben, eight—dar, 108 nice fresh eggs, jess nine dozen, and here am one mooh egg in case I discounted myse'f."

Old Mose went on his way rejoicing. A few days afterwards Mrs. Burton said to her husband:—

"I am afraid we will have to discharge Matilda. I am satisfied she steals the milk and eggs. I am positive about the eggs, for I bought them the day before yesterday, and now about half of them are gone. I stood right there and heard Old Mose count them myself, and there were nine dozen."—[Texas Siftings.

What Do You Suppose He Did?

A new minister over on the West Side was around during the week making the acquaintance of his parishioners. He called on Deacon Smith, and desiring to ascertain what business the deacon was in without seeming too curious, he concluded to get it in another way.

"Now, my little girl," he said to the four-year-old, "what is your name?"

"Sadie Smif, sir."

"Your papa goes down town every morning, I s'pose. Can you tell me what he does down town?"

"No, I tan't; but I heard ma tell him the other night if he did it any more she'd snatch him bald-headed. Didn't you, ma?"—[Chicago Herald.

When Vestryman Green bowed his head to read the responses of the Litany, last Sunday, he was very drowsy indeed, and he had repeated "Lord have mercy upon us, miserable sinners!" but three times when he fell fast asleep. His wife nudged him with her parasol without success. When the minister reached, "And now seventeenthly, my beloved brethren," Vestryman Green awoke, and, being unconscious of the lapse of time, responded in a sonorous and fervent voice: "Lord have mercy upon us, miserable sinners!"

A BANK HOLIDAY.—"Well, Jarvis, you've beaten your wife, you've had your own head broken, and your eyes blacked, and your front teeth knocked out and you spent the night in a police cell?" "Well, Sir John, it's a poor 'art as never relolces!"

SATURDAY, JANUARY 16..... 1886

GEORGE W. Tyler has been indicted by the Grand Jury of San Francisco county for felony. There are two persons now serving a five year's sentence each in San Quentin for complicity in the same offense for which Tyler is indicted. Now that Sharon is dead and Sarah Althea married to Judge Terry, it would be a fitting sequel to send George W. to San Quentin.

IT is claimed that many of the western senators and representatives are interested in silver mines and this accounts for their position in regard to silver currency. The fact, however, is not stated that some of the eastern congressmen are bankers or holders of bank stock, and consequentiy their antagonism to the silver dollar comes from self-interest and personal advantage.

THE Knights Templar's Conclave which was held in San Francisco two and a half years ago did more toward bringing capital and settlers to this State than anything that had ever been done before. Men who were present then had an opportunity of seeing the country and returned with their families and friends to make their homes permanently on the Coast. During the coming summer an encampment of the of the Graed Army of the Republic will be held in the same place; thousands of Eastern men will be in the State at that time; if the same effort be made on the part of our citizens to entertain them as on the fomer occasion the future growth of our State will be unrivalled.

SENATOR Morgan has introduced a bill to substitute silver dollars in part in place of the gold which the Secretary of the Treasury has set apart to redeem greenbacks with. The Morgan bill requires the Secretary to place to the credit of the reserve fund of $100,000,000 in gold now held for the redemption of greenbacks not to exceed $50,000,000 in standard dollars, and as silver is added to the fund gold is to be withdrawn orrespondingly in amount and convered into the treasury. This bill is simply intended to undo the work the Secretary of the Treasury took upon himself when he set apart $100,000,000 in gold for the redemption of legal tender. The act was an assumption of the law-making power on the Secretary's part, which will be properly rebuked by the passage of the Morgan bill. If such a rebuke should be administered future Secretaries may be a little more cautious about usurping legislative functions.

VERY frequently in San Francisco papers an article may be seen describing how some person has been fortunate enough to draw a big prize in the Louisiana State Lottery. These articles are run in with ordinary news matter, and not one person in a hundred who reads them will detect the small star affixed which marks them as advertisements. They are taken for what they purport to be, a simple matter of news. It is in fact but a scheme to inveigle the unwary into purchasing a ticket in the lottery. Though licensed by the State of Louisiana, this institution is but a gigantic imposition, and highly demoralizing in its effects. The tickets are purchased in a great measure by the young, which gives a taste for gambling, and keeps them under a false excitement, the result being baneful in the extreme. From their advertisement in the Picayune the benefit to the manipulators of this concern may be seen. 100,000 tickets are sold at $5 each making the total receipts $500,000; the sum of $265,000 is distributed in prizes, leaving a balance of $235,000. If all tickets are sold $235,000 is made clear; if not, those unsold are thrown in and drawn by the managers, the result being entirely to their satisfaction. As these drawings take place every month an immense amount of money is thus thrown into the State and easily explains why the authorities allow this nefarious business to be carried on. In the Call of January 10th there is one of these articles headed "The Big Lottery Prize". The article is set in the same type and printed with the ordinary news matter, there being nothing in it to indicate to the average news reader what it is intended for. If the people are to be gulled into throwing their money away on lotteries it should not be done through the instrumentality of those journals in which they place confidence. Certainly no man is idiot enough to read a paper that he knows will mislead him. If the Call and other journals that publish these articles will continue in this course they will breed a distrust that will surely be detrimental to their business interests. No parent would see his child a gambler, and most certainly will not place a publication in his hands that will make him one.

THE requirements of business for gold are constantly extending, the supply is steadly decreasing. But one thing is needed to put the whole business of the United States under control of a few great banking concerns, the demonetization of silver.

THE gold output of 1884 shows a decrease of two per cent. from the amount yielded in 1833, and nine per cent. of loss compared with 1882. A comparison of the gold product of 1884 with that of 1881 indicates a decline of thirteen per cent.

IT IS altogether likely that Gen. Crook will be superseded by Gen. Miles in Arizona; added to the presusre that is brought to bear on the President by the friends of Miles, the citizens of the Territory have presented petitions for the removal of Crook.

A PRICE of paper that would be of itself utterly worthless, may be made worth a dollar, or a thousand dollars, if issued as money by the Government. The price of silver in a dollar has an intrinsic value, and no one would question its value as a dollar if the Government did not try to depreciate it.

THE few who seek to rule the world by money power, claim for gold a superior value as coin, because it is not subject to fluctuations in value as silver is. The claim is not founded on fact, the Mining Review says: "A belief apparently prevails that gold differs from every other product and has a fixed and inherent value which never changes; but a little knowledge of financial history would remove this impression. Gold at the present time has a fixed value, a value fixed by legislation and that alone gives it the stability it apparently possesses. As recently as 1844 the Bank of England was required by Parliament to purchase all the gold offered, and pay for the same £3. 17s 9d. per standard ounce. This was a forced and fictitious value, as for nearly three hundred and fifty years the average price was only £3. 8s 5d. per ounce. The price of gold had varied from £2. 4s. 1d. to £3. 10s. per ounce, and during the whole period the amount of gold called one dollar never was worth as bullion the amount credited to it as currency. Since 1844 gold has maintained this extravagant value, and has consequently been free from fluctuation, but this argues no substantial character but is created by legislation solely. During this period of nearly three hundred and fifty years the silver constituting the silver dollar was never worth less than $1.08½ and at one time reached $1.53½. This silver has its intrinsic value has maintained its real worth through every vicissitude, while gold has shown constant fluctuation, and never reached its present fixed and fictitious valuation until the strong force of law gave the present standard value."

Prof. Simpson, of the University of Texas, takes the premium for absent-mindedness. He was sitting at his desk writing, a few nights ago, when one of his children entered: "What do you want? I can't be disturbed now." "I only want to say good-night." "Never mind now. To-morrow morning will do just as well." On another occasion a friend said to him: "Do you know that your friend Smith is dead?" "Is he, poor fellow? I am sorry to hear it." "Are you going to attend the funeral?" "Certainly; when is it?" "To-morrow morning at 10 o'clock." "I can't attend to-morrow, but I will be on hand the first fine day next week."—[Texas Siftings.

A preacher in southern Missouri, after sending his hat around among the brethren and fainly urging them to contribute, clasped his hands, raised his eyes, and said:—

"Lord, this is the toughest crowd I have ever found. I have preached in the Black Jack neighborhood, and have ridden the Red Range circuit, but this congregation occupies a place a little further from the giving spout than any people I ever saw. Amen."

Then turning to the sexton, he said: "I've got two gallons of old whisky stored away not far from here. As I don't use liquor myself, I am going to give it to some worthy man. Carry the hat around once more."

The hat came back full of silver. The preacher went into the woods to look for the whisky. Up to a few hours ago he had not returned.—[Drake's Magazine.

A New Yorker in looking for rooms for winter quarters, struck a good-looking landlady on Shawmut Avenue, and after terms were arranged for "board and lodging," remarked that he wanted something hot for supper, and was met with the reply they always had it. On taking his seat last evening, with a slim looking spread before him, he remarked to the girl that he expected something hot, when bridget said, "Fots the matter wid the tay?"—[Boston Globe.

"So you expect to go into the country, soon, Miss Gushington?" "Yes," she replied, "we are to visit Uncle James, and he has a delightful house, with the wide porch all covered with trellis vines and grape vines and bovines—I can scarcely wait for the time to start."

CANCEROUS GROWTH

A WONDERFUL OPERATION.

A Farmer in Westchester County, New York, Has a Cancer Torn Out.

L. G. Fairchild, a Westchester County, N. Y., farmer, about three months ago noticed a small red swelling upon his upper lip and classed it as a harmless pimple. It grew steadily, however, and became exceedingly painful. A physician examined it, diagnosed it as an ordinary boil, and after subjecting it to preliminary treatment, lanced it. It discharged a yellowish pus and bled freely. For a time the wound appeared to heal and the virulent indications subsided. The relief was only temporary, however, and, after a time, the inflamed surface began to increase and spread with alarming rapidity. In two weeks it had extended over the whole left cheek and the entire muscle upon that side of the face was affected. The local physician not being able to settle the nature of the difficulty, and as it did not succumb to the usual treatment of absorbents, the patient came to this city and entered the Hahnemann Hospital. The swelling in the cheek continued to increase in size until the cheek was about six inches thick. It was hard to the touch, except at a point under the left eye, where it was soft and spongy. Sharp, shooting pains radiated from the seat of the difficulty in the upper lip all over the cheek, being especially violent under the eye. The patient's face wore an anxious, expectant look, and the cheek gradually assumed a black appearance. In several places small pieces of bone could be felt where the jaw had become affected and had thrown off sharp splinters. After a careful examination the disease was diagnosed as a sarcoma, or cancerous growth of a malignant type. Internal treatment did not check the progress of the cancer, and the patient consented to risk a surgical operation, though he was told that the chances were all against him.

A week ago Mr. Fairchild was taken to the operating-room of the hospital, and laid upon the table. Dr. William Tod Helmuth, consulting surgeon of the hospital, took charge of the case. A cone containing ether was placed over the patient's nose, and in a few moments a loud snore indicated that the anæsthetic was complete. The instruments were in a large basin close by in an antiseptic solution of bi-chloride of mercury and carbolic acid. With a small knife the surgeon made an incision in the trachea, just above the chest. After the hemorrhage had been checked, a small tracheotomy tube was inserted in the windpipe, so that the patient could breathe through it while the main operation was being performed. To reduce the chances of a fatal termination it was necessary to pack the upper portion of the windpipe through the mouth, so as to prevent blood from flowing into the lungs. After the tube had been cleared of mucus, and was under the control of the respiratory organ, the patient's mouth was opened wide, and small sponges were placed under a pressure in the back part of the throat, until the passage into the lungs was completely obstructed. An incision was then made through the upper lip, along the left side of the nose and under the eye to the left ear. The skin upon the left cheek was then dissected, up from the muscular tissue, until a large flap was made, which, being turned back, exposed the cancerous growth. It was found to have involved all the bones in the cheek and upper jaw, and had altered their nature to such an extent that they could be bent under a slight pressure. A small saw was next employed, and the cheek bone near the nose, where it appeared to be sound and healthy, was severed. The bone under the eye was so soft that it offered no resistance, and the whole jaw and muscular tissue were raised. The fungus growth was found to have extended backward to the basiliar process of the occipital bone, and the operation assumed new complications. With the aid of a pair of bone forceps all the rough edges of bone were removed, until every visible portion appeared to be healthy. The cancer was drawn out from the cheek as far as possible, and a pair of specially constructed forceps were fastened to it, as close to the base as possible. A strong, steady pull was then applied to the forceps, and the cancer and its roots were drawn out, leaving a large section of quivering flesh. Blood spurted in every direction, and it became necessary to apply actual cautery to the wounded parts. After much difficulty the hemorrhage was controlled, and the wound, after every part of affected tissue had been removed, was thoroughly washed with an antiseptic solution. The other flap was then returned to its proper position and stitched fast to the adjoining parts. The operation lasted over three hours, and Mr. Fairchild was kept all the time under the influence of ether. He returned to consciousness slowly, and suffered greatly from the shock. It was feared that he would not rally after the large loss of blood, and there were indications of a collapse. He finally improved, however, so that the immediate danger of death was past. He has been growing stronger daily since the operation, and it is now believed that he will recover. The wound is rapidly healing, and his face will be but little disfigured.—[N. Y. Tribune.

Make Her Perennial.

Yes, the summer girl is unique. Without her, summer existence would be monotonously dull; with her, it is monotonously delightful. But there is something very singular about the summer girl. She disappears at the close of the season—as totally disappears as if she had dropped out of existence altogether. The autumn and the winter and the spring do not reproduce her type. —John S. McGee's team came down from Bishop Creek this week with a load of grain.

—Thus far there has not a partical of snow fallen in the valley this winter. It is hardly likely there will be any now.

—Parties coming from the other side report grain to be from twelve to eighteen inches high and growing very rapidly.

—One of the Mallory boys passed through Independence on Wednesday with a team loaded for the south end of the country.

—The suit of Groves versus Stubblefield was decided last Monday. The Jury gave a verdict in favor of Stubblefield, throwing the costs of the suit also upon Groves.

Arrangements are being made to give a "Little Folks Concert" in Independence some time in the near future. Further particulars will be published as they are made known.

—Smuggling is being carried on to considerable extent on the Mexican boundary line. The existence of the "free zone" is a circumstance peculiarly favorable to those engaged in the contraband trade.

FURNACE STARTED.—The furnace at Swansea was started up last Monday, and has been working well right along. Bullion began to flow in less than a day after the fires were lighted.

SERVICES.—There will be religious services at Camp Independence on Sunday next at 2.30 P. M. and at Independence in the evening at 7.30. All are invited to attend.

LODGE OFFICERS.—The following have been installed officers of Inyo Lodge, No. 301, I. O. O. F.; J. E. Shepherd, N. G; A. R. Conklin V. G; J. D. Blair R. S; A. Parker P. S; C. Mulholland Treas.

LEG BROKEN.—At the end of last week J. W. Muller, of Big Pine, had his leg broken by a horse falling upon him. Mr. Muller was riding the animal, when it slipped and fell upon him with the above result.

STOCK FOR SALE—The following stock is offered for sale, namely, 150 to 160 head of fine stock cattle. Also one fine stallion; one jack, weight 950 to 1000 pounds. For particulars apply to —Mr H. P. Cartier has completed his new building in Independence. Whether to attribute his thift to his being bachelor and consequently free from the cares and extravagances of a married life, or his desire to become a Benedict we do not know; but certain it is that he has one of the finest residences in the valley.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

MARRIED—On the morning of January 7th Judge David S. Terry and Sarah Althea Sharon were married at Stockton and have taken up thair residence there. Paul W. Bennett, of the law firm of Terry, Campbell & Bennett, made application for the marriage license; the lady was married under the name of Sarah Althea Sharon. Oh! Shade of Broderick! in what various ways a love of notoriety is confessed.

IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.—The first shipment of wheat ever made from Owens valley to Reno was sent off at the end of last week. Other shipments have since been made. This is a very important matter for the valley. The shipment of wheat from here is due to reduction in freight rates over the C. & C. railroad. New markets are constantly opening for the productions of Inyo county.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.—Would it not be as well to try and get up something here to celebrate this holiday? Though still six weeks distant some move should be made soon if anything is to be done. A private letter from Lone Pine states that, should we celebrate, a number would be present from that place. If the matter is taken hold of with a will there is no doubt but a very pleasant time could be had.

VERBUM SAT SAP.—Two people may be asked to discribe the characters of a community. One may answer the men are honest, courteous, intelligent, sober, and moral; in a word, that they are all men should be; and that the women are virtuous, gentle, kind and good. The other may say that the people are steeped in vice and immorality of every kind. Both may answer truly; each will be describing the character of his associates. When any one, in public or private speaks ill of a community, he at once betrays his own inclination to vice and his assocaition with vicious people.

A Lesson.

Speaking of the American Exposition at New Orleans the Picayune says: "A most important part of the California exhibit is the large and beautiful display of dried fruit.

"There are raisins, figs and prunes equal in appearance to any imported and of excellent quality, and these articles are produced in large quantities and with commendable cheapness. In addition to these there are dried apples, peaches, pears and dessicated berries of various sorts. Simple and economical apparatus has been contrived for drying all fruits on a large scale, and the industry, not only in Califor nia, but in Utah, Oregon and other States, has become one of the great importance.

"When it is known that the States along the Gulf coast produce in the greatest abundance a number of the semi-tropical fruits which are admirably adapted to being dried for a trade that embraces the entire country, one would naturally expect that such an opportunity would be eagerly embraced by the people. The fact however is far otherwise. Of the tons on tons of dried figs, raisins, citron and prunes sold in the New Orleans market, there is no evidence that any thing but the imported articles ever appeared in transactions that must amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars every season, while the native resources are wholly neglected.

California goes a long way towards supplying the Pacific coast trade with such articles of home production while the California wines are competing with the lower grades of French and German wines in every part of this continent.

"In the matter of dried fruits the people of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florda and Texas might well learn a lesson from California."

Salaries.

A Lone Pine taxpayer thinks the act by which Inyo county is made to pay thousands of dollars more to county officers than other counties having vastly more wealth and population, is far more in conflict with the constitution both in letter and spirit, than the act lately declared by the Supreme Court to be unconstitutional, and by which relief from the intollerable burden was sought. Every one who feels the smart of paying such extravagant salaries will agree with the Lone Piner. The same correspondent thinks the man who is sent to represent a people in a legislative body, and then misrepresent them, should be held responsible. This is true, but no way is known by which the misrepresentative can be made to foot the bills his carelessness, incapacity, or knavery may impose upon the people.

Lead Canyon Ore.

Last Monday return was had from the recent experimental shipment of ore from Lead Canyon, and the result exceeded expectation. There were three different lots of the ore. The first lot of 4726 pounds went 82.35 ounces silver per ton, and 58 per cent lead. Total value per ton $117.81. Second lot, 52-93 pounds, silver 72.58 ounces and 58½ per cent lead. Total value $109,27 per ton. Third lot, 651 pounds, silver 49.97 ounces and lead 64¼ per cent. Total value $93.06 per ton.

This result is so satisfactory that work on the mines will soon be extended and pushed vigorously. A new road across the Inyo Mountains from Mazurka canyon will be one of the first jobs undertaken. There is every indication of a big camp at Lead Canyon.

BURNED TO DEATH.

An Old Settler Of Inyo County Comes To A Tragic End.

Last Saturday morning about eight o'clock a cry of "fire" was heard, and P. P. Dow and Jerry Mairs rushed to the dwelling occupied by Mrs. Wallace. On entering the house the unfortunate woman was found lying on the floor behind the stove, with her clothing all on fire. Dow dragged her outside and Mairs ran for a bucket of water; when the fire was extinguished, it was found that the woman was terribly burned. From her knees to her neck, except around the right shoulder, she was burned to a crisp. The thighs had cracked open to the bone, exposing the fermoral artery; the flesh was roasted black, like overdone meat. Doctor Blair was called quickly as possible, but all he could do was administer such remedies as would make the woman insensible to pain. Indeed she appeared to be already nearly beyond pain. She lingered till about two o'clock in the afternoon, when she died. The deceased was one of the earliest settlers in Owens valley, and for many years was highly respected and warmly liked by all who knew her. She was a woman of great kindness of heat, and was always ready to give all the aid and service in her power to those who needed it. Of late years an unfortunate habit had become so strong upon her as to drag her down to ruin. On the night proceeding her death she had been drinking, and it is supposed she had fallen where she was found, behind the stove, her clothing caught fire, and being alone she was fatally burned before the fire was discovered. Her remains were buried at the Cemetry at Camp Independence last Monday.

THE GREAT REGULATOR

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

PURELY VEGETABLE.

Are You Bilious?

The Regulator never fails to cure. I most cheerfully recommend it to all who suffer from Bilious Attacks or any Disease caused by a disarranged state of the Liver.

KANSAS CITY, MO. W. R. BERNARD.

Do You Want Good Digestion?

I suffered intensely with Full Stomach, Headache, etc. A neighbor, who had taken Simmons Liver Regulator, told me it was a sure cure for my trouble. The first dose I took relieved me very much, and in one week's time I was as strong and hearty as I ever was. It is the best medicine I ever took for Dyspepsia.

RICHMOND, VA. H. G. CRENSHAW.

Do You Suffer from Constipation?

Testimony of HIRAM WARNER, Chief-Justice of Ga.: "I have used Simmons Liver Regulator for Constipation of my Bowels, caused by a temporary Derangement of the Liver, for the last three or four years, and always with decided benefit."

Have You Malaria?

I have had experience with Simmons Liver Regulator since 1865, and regard it as the greatest medicine of the times for diseases peculiar to malarial regions. So good a medicine deserves universal commendation.

REV. M. B. WHARTON,
Cor. Sec'y Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Safer and Better than Calomel!

I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator, which gave me relief, without any interruption to business.

Fun and Fancy.

A girl Mrs. it when she marries.

A Brooklyn spinster owns a parrot that whistles "See-Saw" in its lonely hours.

A single woman may be a very good grammarian and yet not be able to decline matrimony.

The man at the telephone says, "Hello!" but the man who sits down on a pin-point says just the reverse.

Some eastern poetess asks the conundrum: "Oh, where does beauty linger?" Our office hours are 8 to 6. —[Peck's Sun.

"What is this man charged with?" asked the judge. "With whisky, your honor," replied the sententious policeman.

When two girls meet they kiss. When two men meet they don't. This shows plainly who wants kissing the most.

An old proverb says: "All things come to him who can wait." If a man fees the waiter, some of the things will come to him much sooner.

A little Lawrence, Mass., girl who was in the habit of going into the woods to pick clematis, told her mother that if she found any "calamities" she would bring her some.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed." A friend in need certainly sticks closer than any other kind of a friend we are acquainted with. He generally wants to borrow a dollar or two, and he won't leave till he gets it.

Henrietta's gone to Vassar, gum, gum, gum!
Louise is at the singing school, hum, hum, hum!
Tom is in the melon patch, mum, mum, mum!
Bill is in the bar-room, rum, rum, rum!
Father's at the counting-room, sum, sum, sum!
Kate and Ned are all alone, yum, yum, yum!

"Mamma," said a small Toledo girl, during the frequent showers, "does God make it rain?"

"Yes, darling, the rain is God's tears."

"He must cry awful easy," cried the little one.

"Do you know, George," she said, as she looked tenderly into his handsome dark-brown eyes, "Mrs. Brown says all eyes were turned towards me when I entered the ball-room last night, and that I was the center of attraction during the entire evening?"

"I don't wonder at it at all, my dear. Mr. Brown informed me this morning that you had, by some mistake or other, touched your nose up with some of the paint you generally use on your cheeks."

It is rumored that Postmaster-General Vilas is going to institute a reform in postage stamps, so that the twos can be distinguished from the ones even in the darkest night. The mucilage on the twos will be flavored with vanilla and that on the ones with lemon.

A young married couple from Texas were doing Niagara Falls. They were being conducted under the Falls by a guide.

"You must take care now, for if you let your foot slip you will be lost."

"Jane, you go on ahead," said the man from Texas.

"Mrs. Smith is a very young appearing woman," remarked Mrs. Brown one morning at breakfast, referring to a middle-aged woman whose charm was her vivaciousness.

"She would be more young looking, mamma," put in Teddy, "if her head was chopped off."

This is an apple, large and round,
At the top of the barrel always found.

This is the apple, small and mean,
Always at the bottom seen.

If the government prevents the distribution of seeds, women will be deprived of the pleasure of planting a new variety of flower with a name several yards long, and after watching a couple of months for the plant to unfold its blossoms, discover that it is a "four-o'clock," or "lady-slipper," of which her garden is full.

An Ohio court has decided that the husband is the legal owner of the wife's clothes. If that isn't like an Ohio man. The minute the administration changes he looks around for something else that he can grab. Well, one comfort for the woman, the Ohio man may own his wife's clothes but he can't wear 'em. And she can —and frequently does—wear his.

In Kingston, N. Y., two little girls wished much for a baby, and having great faith in prayer, they took a basket, lined it with cotton and put it under the back piazza, and then each night prayed earnestly. As the baby did not come the children have lost faith. It has been hard for their parents to explain why the prayer was not answered.

A collection was taken up in a Kansas church recently, and when the hat reached the seat occupied by a lady, her daughter and little son, the two ladies found themselves without a cent of money, but young America reached over and deposited a cent in the hat and then whispered to his sister: "There, I just saved the family from being whitewashed."

Bromley—"I bought a little painting yesterday—quite a gem—cost me $200. Pretty steep, wasn't it?" Perkins—"Rather; still, not very steep. Your son-in-law, De Baggs, has a painting that must have cost him $2,000." "Good gracious! I never knew that. I must have a look at it." "Well, the next time you meet him take a good look at his nose."—[Philadelphia Call.

"You know Miss T——?" inquired a San Francisco dude of a lady friend. "Yes." "Well, that girl is so anxious to get married that she almost proposed to me the other evening." "She certainly must want a husband very bad."

THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind now in use adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the past TWO YEARS under a great variety of conditions, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month in the year. ONE of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or setters, making the machine worth MORE than its cost for this purpose alone.

BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

The Dyed Beard.

A man with a naturally pink or old gold beard, or one with a facial head of hair that has become bleached by the accumulated dews of years of piety, may command public regard, but when he dyes his beard, he ceases to be an object of human esteem. He falls from his pedestal and his chin disappears in the mire of popular sickness at the public stomach. He falls from his proud position as a favorite of curiosity to the ignoble condition of a walking emetic.

It is a mistake to attempt to set nature back twenty or thirty years or get ahead of it by ten or fifteen years by the use of tannic acid and nitre of silver in solution, and the man who does so is bound to sooner or later become an object of general irony. When on Saturday evening he emerges from the office of a hair-carpenter with a shining black beard and red or flaxen hair, the observant multitude cannot help thinking that his face is not in harmony with the rest of his head, and that one of these days his whiskers will be detected in some sort of mischief by the roach pasted down over his already narrow brow and be delivered up to justice. If a man has the misfortune to own a head of coal-black hair and a beard of shimmering moonlight, he is excusable for trying to average up his appearance, but when both his hair and beard are white with birth of long standing and he dopes his beard into rank antagonism with his complexion, he creates the same impression he would be likely to create if he were to borrow a set of stencils and print the words: "I am a blamed fool," in flaming letters across his bulging brow.

There is something deeply pathetic in the efforts of a callow youth to force the baccilli on his lip to germinate and bloom forth into a fiercely raging moustache. It always reminds me of the efforts of the sower to make seed grow in stony ground, and then he thinks his moustache has arrived when it is away down the road, and rubs some dye on the place where he expects it to locate, and in about two weeks, when it begins to scale off, he looks as if somebody had struck him on the snoot with a handful of freckles and stuck some of them fast. The deluded seeker after hair then shaves off his freckles and goes about smiling broadly and expecting people to remark upon his odd appearance, when he will proudly tell them that he has shaved off his moustache, and in about ten years they will discover that perhaps he did not lie to them in intimating that he had one.

When the full-grown man dyes his beard to make him look young, however, he becomes a standing rebuke to himself. It looks all right on Saturday evening, when he comes out of the shop where they rejuvenated him, but by Sunday evening there is a short section of white next to the skin on every hair, and in about twelve minutes, the young lady he is trying to deceive, will stroke his whiskers and examine them closely, and then get the sulks and go to flirting with the man at the window across the street, while he gets mad and feels neglected because she does not notice him when he winks at her.

He never for a moment thinks that his white eyebrows have an insincere look about them to which he calls her attention by winking, and when she holds him at arm's length at parting and laughs in his face when he says:—

"My darling, I am dying for a kiss," he cannot well avoid feeling that she is inclined to believe him.

It must make a man with an artificially colored beard feel peculiarly sad to hear the queen of his heart and angel of his soul, besides the life of his love and the sugar of his existence, remark as she runs her eye along the border of his beard:—

"My love, the best thing you can do is to hunt out a cool, sequestered spot and dye." It must rack his being with a fear that, while she may not wish to be entirely rid of him, she would prefer to have him come to her in the more attractive form of a consistent and well-behaved corpse. —[Through Mail Magazine.

"So you expect to go into the country, soon, Miss Gushington?" "Yes," she replied, "we are to visit Uncle James, and he has a delightful house, with the wide porch all covered with trellis vines and grape vines and bovines—I can scarcely wait for the time to start."

ABOUT ACTORS.

Ex-Rev. G. C. Miln Lectures on His Profession at Denver.

Let me say that all I don't know about acting and all I do know about managing has been acquired in the short period of three years. It is just three years on the 16th of next month since I first donned the sables of "Hamlet" and trod the boards as an actor. In those three years I have lived a century!

I have learned more of the exquisite charms and graces of our common human nature, more of the reliability and absolute probity of all persons connected with the so-called "show business," and more of the personal appearance of sheriffs' officers and constables than I should otherwise have learned during an ordinary mortal career. The stage is a great educator. It quickens the intellect, sharpens the senses, and adds to the legal acumen of the mind. Any man who can serve a year as a play actor and not know on sight the difference between a "garnishee summons" and a "writ of attachment," between a constable who means business and one who is fishing for fun, is, in the language of the sidewalk, "no good."

The first thing necessary to make a play actor is not genius, talent, intellect, industry, or earnest attention! Oh, no! The first essential thing is a manager! The beginning and the end of an actor's creed is this: "With all thy gettings get a manager! Give me a manager or give me death!" This is the one cry, the one sine qua non of our craft. A manager will supplement all deficiencies. If God has made one short a manager can make one tall. If endowed with a voice whose dissonance would shame a saw-mill, the true manager will make it soft as a lute, harmonious as the music of the heavenly spheres! If one has hitherto limped through life with but a modest endowment of brains, under the manipulation of a skillful manager he is transformed into an intellectual giant, and strides proudly along in company with Milton, Byron, Goethe, and Shakespeare, upon whom he sheds new luster by his "phenomenal" and marvelous ability. Rot!

Well, I chose a manager. He said I was a marvel, a transcendant genius, a revelation from the skies, and in three short months he left me—busted!

What I don't know about acting might fill a large library. But in the first two years I have learned that there was more rot palmed off on the public by so-called managers than I had before had any idea of. Managers are in the main to be classified as follows: First, those who recommend legs; and, second, those who recommend brains. A continent of space separates these two classes. The difference lies between ideas and adipose tissue, or between sawdust and intellect. The public that is after the former is not apt to appreciate the latter. Ergo, a man may be a tremendous success in recommending legs and know very little about brains. I know a manager of this kind who was called on to manage a young actor. For the first time in his life, probably, he was engaged in a respectable business. He had before this been employed in managing a low down variety, something, I believe, of the Adamless Eden order, of which, I believe, you know something in Denver. He then had a habit of saying about his star or the company, "If she goes at all she'll go big." It is sad to relate, but it is nevertheless true, that she didn't go at all. You see he was working on the wrong end of the gun. It shot himself, but it didn't strike the public.

There has been too much of this idea that it is wise to humbug the public. Mr. Barnum once said, you remember, that the public loves to be humbugged. This may in a certain sense be true. The public may like such humbugs as Mr. Barnum has sometimes given them. An original, bonafide, patent humbug may once in a while please the public, but I hold that it is a lie that the intelligent, sensible people like downright fraud and humbug. I hold that it is a lie to advertise goods for sale which you can't deliver. I remember of a case in Michigan of a manager who had picked up a poor creature named Lillian. I forget what her other name was. Lillian is a very pretty name, but I fear that the woman who bore it was neither very pretty or very talented. However, the town was soon ablaze with illuminated show bills which bore this announcement: "Nature made but one such a woman and broke the die in forming Lillian." But the public seemed to think that Nature should have broken the die before forming her.

It is a lie to say that the ordinary is phenomenal. It is a lie to say that an actor with but limited experience is an intellectual giant. May God deliver me from all such unmitigated and stupid effrontery in the future. The public wants to be treated honestly at the playhouse as in the bank or the counting-room. My aim as a player is to improve in my work from year to year and to establish a reputation as a painstaking, if not a great actor, which, of course, I nope to become some day. —[Denver News.

HAD MANY AILMENTS BUT COULDN'T GET A POLICY.

Representative of the Mutual Benefit Association Meets His Match.

He was an old man, and said he'd seen better times. I hoped he had; for as I was usually busy and didn't want any life insurance, if he would excuse me.

"Oh, yes," said he, "all right, young man; I'll drop in again." The next day he did "drop in," and sitting down on my desk, began:—"Nothing in the world, my young friend, will pay so large a per cent. on so little money invested as a policy in the Mutual Benefit Association, the most reliable and the only solid company on earth; capital over $7,000,000, and so prompt—why, I insured a man last week for $10,000, and the same day he was run over by a street car, so when I sent in the policy and premium, I just said, by way of a P. S., 'Run over by a horse car not an hour after being insured; better send on check, as he can't live; both legs cut off.' That very day I got a check payable to his heirs for $10,560. Dividend, my friend, was more than the premium, and don't you call this prompt? That man's widow got this check before he had been dead fifteen minutes."

"But," said I, "I have no wife, and don't want any life insurance, I tell you."

"The investment, my young friend, the investment. Look at the dividend. This may get $560 in one hour, you might say; and then you might have a wife some day. Now, do you want a policy in this company I know you do. I'm an old man, have had large and varied experience, and know you are just aching for one of these policies; only you are so extremely modest. Now, I'll just make out your application; it only costs you—let me see. How old are you?"

"Twenty-six, but—"

"Twenty-six—hum! Father living?"

"No."

"How old was he when he died?"

"Just twenty-seven years old."

"Twenty-seven, hey? What did he die of? Accident, I presume."

"No, sir; consumption."

"Consumption! You don't look consumptive."

"But I am consumptive, and—"

"Mother's living, I doubt not?"

"No, sir; she died at twenty eight."

"What was the cause of her death?"

"Insanity, sir, hereditary insanity; family's full of it. All my brothers, thirteen of us in all, died between twenty-four and twenty eight of the same disease. Dangerous, too, some of them; my oldest brother was taken about this time one day; he killed his partner, bookkeeper, three clerks and fourteen customers before they could secure him and——"

"You don't tell me! This is wonderful; you look like a strong, healthily man, likely to live fifty years. Was you ever sick?"

"Oh, yes; I've had inflammatory rheumatism, pneumonia, dysentery, small-pox, mumps, liver complaints, fits, corns, and—"

"Good heavens! And you want me to insure your life! Well, my company is a good company, willing to take an ordinary business risk but I must say I never knew them to insure a corpse. I'd like to accommodate you, young man; you seem anxious about it, and I feel interested in your family; but our surgeon wouldn't pass such an application. Good day."—[Toledo Blade.

He Married His Sweetheart's Sister.

The marriage of George Finley, the historian of ancient Greece, and for many years correspondent of the London Times at Athens, was attended by considerable romance. Finley had become attached to a beautiful American girl at Constantinople, and, as her family would never have consented to her marriage with the young Scotchman, determined to elope with her. A yacht of an English friend was to take the couple to Greece, and it was arranged that the young lady was to be got on board in a box prepared for the purpose. When the eventful moment came the girl became frightened and refused to allow herself to be placed in the box. Her sister, a girl equally lovely, thought it a pity that the romantic arrangement should not be taken advantage of, and entered herself the box in place of her sister. I suppose Finley must have been considerably surprised when the box was opened in the cabin of the yacht and not his sweetheart, but her sister, was revealed, dressed in midshipman's uniform. The brother of the young lady had discovered the affair and was quickly on board the yacht to demand explanation. Finley saw only one course before him. The girl had been compromised; he would marry her. The brother giving his consent, the marriage took place at once.

"Tommy, did you hear your mother call you?" "Course I did." "Then, why don't you go to her at once?" "Well, you see, she's nervous, and it'd shock her awful if I should go too sudden." —[Chicago Tribune.

HE TOOK HIS CHOICE.

AN AWKWARD PREDICAMENT.

Buffalo or Bear—Remarkable Hunt in Wyoming and Its More Remarkable Ending.

"Speaking of buffalo," said Mr. B. Gilpin, Jr., a well-known Colorado cattle man, to the reporter of the News, "the last herd I ever saw was a small one, consisting of less than twenty head, which my brother Frank and I encountered near Powder River, Washington Territory, in the fall of 1883. We were out prospecting for a good cattle range, and came upon the bisons near a wooded bluff, close to the river. Leaving our buckboard and four horses tied to a tree, we started after the noble game, quickly selecting a fine-looking bull, which we cut out of the herd and chased on foot as well as we could. Owing to the rough character of the ground, my brother and I soon became separated, Frank going on one side of a hill and I on the other, losing sight of each other for a few minutes. When I emerged on the other side I witnessed a strange transformation. The pursued had become the pursuer. My brother was running like a quarter horse, while the bull, with lowered horns, was rapidly closing up the gap between them. The situation looked critical, and I made the most haste possible to render what assistance I could to my fleeing brother. Before I could approach near enough to get a shot at the shaggy pursuer Frank suddenly disappeared in the mouth of a large cave, with the buffalo following, a good second. Their disappearance lasted but for a few moments. Just as I got opposite the cave the frightened beast emerged, and with a loud bellow plunged for the creek beyond, and, what was the most wonderful, Frank was seated on the back of the buffalo, with both hands enmeshed in his shaggy hair, holding on as for dear life, with blanched face and eyes starting from their sockets. The mad plunges of the beast, accompanied by its terrific roars, were perfectly frightful. Passing down the bank, it plunged into the stream, partly waded and partly swam across, then, rushing up the bank on the opposite side, through a clump of scrub oaks and willows, succeeded in dislodging Frank and landing him, bruised and bleeding, in the underbrush. Making my way to him as soon as possible, I relieved him of his awkward predicament and assisted him to rise.

"As soon as he recovered himself sufficiently to speak, he asked me for some brandy. Having a flask with me, I gave him some, and he revived considerably. 'That was a close shave,' he gasped as he renewed his attentions to the flask. 'What was it?' I asked. 'Well, you see, after I got separated from you at the hill, I took a short cut through a ravine, thinking to head of the buffalo and get a good shot. I succeeded in heading him off, but instead of getting a shot at him he turned upon me suddenly, and, fearing his horns, I ran along the edge of the bank, and seeing the mouth of the cave, dashed in, with the bull close behind me. I had proceeded but a few yards, however, before I saw before me what seemed to be two balls of fire, and was greeted with a horrible sound, which was a cross between a growl and a roar. I became suddenly aware that I was facing a huge cinnamon bear, which to my excited imagination, was a thousand times more terrible than the pursuing buffalo. Turning to go back, I found my recent enemy blocking my way of egress, and in the agony of the moment I chose the desperate alternative of mounting upon his back, my only thought being to escape from the bear. No sooner had I alighted on the beast than he turned swiftly and rushed out of the cave frightened, if anything, more than I was myself. You know the rest. I don't want another such experience, I can tell you.'

"We went back to our wagon and camped for the night, returning the next morning to the cave, where we concealed ourselves and waited some hours, until finally the bear came out of his hiding place. Seeing us, he made a desperate lunge toward the spot where we stood. I fired at him from my Winchester, wounding him in the breast. The shot seemed to anger him more, and it was not until I had nearly emptied the magazine of my rifle that he finally fell. Several shots from my brother's rifle soon finished him. We drove the wagon as close to the carcass as possible, loaded it on the vehicle with some difficulty, and took it to the nearest town. The bear weighed 575 pounds, and was one of the largest that has been killed in that portion of the country."

Mr. Gilpin, who related the story, is a well-known citizen of Colorado, whose veracity hitherto has been unquestioned.—[Chicago Herald.

"Why, Mr. Fogg," urged the landlady, "you are not eating anything. Come, now, try one of my nice biscuits." "Thank you, ma'am," replied Fogg, "but when I was a child I was told never to ask for anything I didn't see on the table." The landlady remarked to the servant, after tea, that she wondered what Mr. Fogg meant, something hateful, she'd be bound.—Boston Transcript.

AN IMPORTANT OFFICE

A Man Who Can Fill it Creditably.

Several names have already been offered of candidates for Governor at our next State election; but so far we have not seen any mention of candidates for the other State offices. The office of Governor is more conspicuous than any of the others, but in many respects is not of such real importance, nor do the duties of the office require near so much talent, learning and application as are needed to carry out the work of several other minor offices. The Secretary of State, so far as general public interests are concerned, is a far more important officer than the Governor and it ought to be the aim of all concerned to secure for this office a man of approved character and ability. Such a man is James A. Orr, of Plumas county. Mr. Orr was raised in the northern part of the State, and got the rudiments of education in the common schools. When a youth he was sent to college at Oakland, and acquired all the learning that could be gotten at that institution. After leaving college he went to Europe, where he traveled extensively, and received all the benefit that can be had from foreign travel.

After his return home from Europe, Mr. Orr applied himself to the study of law, and was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court in 1879. His law-studies were pursued under Creed Haymond, and he graduated from the office of that emminent lawyer. He has had experience in public life that go far toward fitting him for Secretary of State. He was Secretary of the State Senate during the administration of Governor Perkins, and in that very responsible and trying position gave the greatest satisfaction. Mr. Orr was chosen Secretary of the Republican State Convention of 1880, and his ability and courtesy were there so very conspicuous, that he has been chosen Secretary of every State Convention of the party since that time. He is held in the highest esteem by those who know him best; and as proof of this it may be stated that he now holds the office of County Clerk of Plumas for the fourth successive year. Long personal acquaintance with Mr. Orr, and full knowledge of his qualifications for the office of Secretary of State, prompts this mention of him for the office. He is already widely known to men who have taken part in State affairs, and the more widely he is known the more friends he makes. He would carry all the northern counties of the State, and would be a strong candidate everywhere. The State cannot produce a better candidate for the office of Secretary than James A. Orr of Plumas.

CALIFORNIA has few better men than Hon. J. D. Spencer, the lately appointed clerk of the Supreme Court. Mr. Spencer has been named as a Democrte Candidate for Governor, and from personal acquaintance we can say he would fill the office most worthily.

EX-GOVERNOR Begole, of Michigan, and a party of friends are about to make a visit to California. Two Pullman cars are expected to be filled by the party. C. D. Begole, of Lone Pine, is a nephew of the Governor; it is not improbable that some of the party may come down to take a look at Inyo county.

GREAT alarm exists in San Bernardino because the town is in danger of losing the water upon which its very existance depends. The water is gotten from artesian wells; but the sinking of other wells at Riverside, a place lower down the valley, is draining the wells of San Bernardino, and utter ruin is expected as the result. Big law suits are expected to ensue.

IN England there is one voter in every six and a half of the population. In the United States the proportion is one voter in every five and a half of the population. In Scotland the proportion is one voter in every seven and one fifth of the population, and in Ireland it is one in every ten and half of the population. The evident injustice done to Scotland and Ireland in the apportionment of representatives in Parliament will lead to a demand for further reform at an early day.

BEFORE the meeting of Congress the gold men appeared to have things all their own way. They kept up such a din that nothing else could be heard, and grave fears were entertained that the whole silver industry would be wiped out of existence. An entire change has come about; the voice of the people has been heard through faithful representatives notwithstanding that the Administration is committed to the demonetization of silver. Among these men it is evident that there is a stronger desire to do right than to promote mere party measures. Every good citizen will hail with delight the manifestation of such a spirit among public servants.

The Condition For Prosperity.

Increase of the quantity of money means acitvity in every branch of business, good prices for all kinds of farm produce and manufactured good, and good pay for all kinds of labor. Contraction of the currency means the reverse of all this. Probably at no time in the world's history was there such general prosperity as followed the discovery of gold in California and Australia. As stated by the Mining Record, in the eight years following these discoveries there was sent to Europe as much as $800,000,000 in gold, and in 1856 England alone imported $128,,218,000 in gold and silver. The influx of gold to the amount of $80,000,000 in so short a time gave an extraordinary stimulus to every department of European industry, trade and inter-State commerce. The production of iron, coal, and of woolen and cotton fabrics, was prodigiously augmented. English commerce—importations and exportations—which in 1848 had aggregated about $600,000,000, during 1856 footed up $1,400,000,000. Nor was the industrial effect less felt proportionately in France. Railway construction, which from 1852 to 1824 absorbed annually about $50,-000,000, in 1856 took as much as $104,-000,000. At the same date State and municipal bonds were eagerly taken to vast amounts in France; it was the same in Germany, and in fact all Europe. Indeed the whole civilized world, under the stimulous of Californian and Australian gold, seemed to have become a vast workshop—with all the peoples seeking to create and contribute to international commerce, the products which their special aptitudes and climates enabled them severally to produce most advantageously. This gold, with the vast amount of credit agencies to which it gave birth, at the same time magnetized, as it were, into extraordinary vitality, all the productive powers and forces of man, while giving unwonted facilities for their swift transportation and interchange in the markets of the world.

But these things are all well known and have frequently been dilated upon before. We fancy, however, that the other side of the subject has been little regarded or held in mind; that is to say, what must have been the present state of the world if California and Australia had not so happily and so opportunely yielded this vast sum of gold!

We invite attentive consideration of the reverse side of the brilliant; in sooth immeasurable results for humanity which are rightly to be ascribed to the prodigious amount of gold contributed by the placers of California and Australia in the third quarter of this century, namely, as much as $3,161,000,000. And we further ask our readers to pause and ponder what must happen should the commercial world, within the next year or two, be deprived of nearly as much specie money as California and Australia have supplied—for that is what the demonetization of silver and the establishment of a single specie basis of gold would actually amount to—and that and nothing short of it is what is aimed at so fatuously, so insensately by those who urge that the United States should practically degrade silver from the rank of a money metal by deciding to stop coining it for the reason that to add even so small an amount as 50 cents a year, per head of our people, to the small amount comparatively already coined of but $3.75, would involve the business and industry of this country in a financial cataclysm. To suspend silver would be tantamount to the early demonetization of the silver money already coined since 1878—with no other to take its place, and instead of averting would assure such a financial convulsion as was never seen on earth before.

So many Chinamen are thrown out of employment by the refusal of the public to buy goods made by them, or to employ them in any way, that San Francisco swarms with idle Chinese and the Chinese Companies are preparing to send large numbers back to China. This is the surest way to solve the Chinese problem.

THE daughter of Secretary Bayard was found dead in bed at her father's house, in Washington, last Saturday. The lady had been very much occupied in the entertainments of the season, and untimely hours and over exertion caused her death. At the hour her death was discovered she was expected to attend a reception at the White House. Life itself is surely too great a price to pay for the privilege of mixing in fashionable society.

AT an inquiry held in San Francisco to ascertain facts in connection with the employment of Chinese in making boots and shoes, one dealer said in the beginning he thought the employment of Chinese in the boot and shoe business was largely the fault of the whites. He remembered when white shoemakers were getting $40 a week striking for higher wages. This had prematurely forced the Chinese into the business. Since then the whites had learned better.

Good Testimony.

Our enemies themselves being witnesses, it is very evident that the continued coinage of silver is largely aiding and not hindering, as these argue, the prosperity of the country. A few days ago we received the usual Monthly Financial Circular issued by Henry Clews & Co., Bankers, in New York. Here it is stated that "There is an undeniable recovery not only of confidence but also of actual transactions in business at large in all sections of the country. Even in the West, which it might have been supposed would sufier from the short crop and low price of wheat, the tone of business is everywhere healthy, and the last season's purchases of that section in the Eastern States have probably been without precedent. The South has been benefited by a large cotton crop, and is feeling in many directions the stimulous of the investment of Northern capital in a variety of industrial enterprises. The manufacturing States are enjoying the benefit of enlarged orders and rising prices, and are generally anticipating a year of unusual prosperity. In brief, there is every indication that 1886 will prove to be the first of one of those series of years of prosperous activity and advancing prices which come and go with the regularity of the ebb and flow of the tide. * * * We have now $550,000,000 of gold in the country. This is nearly three times our stock of silver; and nearly four times the amount upon which we undertook to resume specie payments in 1879. In striking contrast to this preponderance of gold in the United States, the reserves of the Bank of France consist of 48½ per cent. silver, and those of the Bank of Germany include 47 per cent. silver; and yet those countries find no difficulty in maintaining the gold standard of payments. Such admissions as the foregoing from the opponents of silver coinage, show that their aims are selfish, and their arguments unsound. It is very hard to understand how any man in his right mind could make such admissions, and in the same breath urge the demonetization of silver.

A FEW Indians in a war dance will get worked up to such a pitch of enthusiasm, they will be so filled with ideas of their own importance, so deaf and blind to everything else but themselves and their glory and greatness, that they firmly believe they can whip all creation. It was just so with the gold men: the little tribe of gold bucks, listening only to their own whoops, had come to think that they had only to command and they would be obeyed; that laws would be made, altered, or ignored to suit their own selfish ends. They begin to realize how much they were mistaken; to discover that there are men and minds beyond Wall Street, and that others than bankers have rights and know how to protect them.

The Earliest Ballooning.

The ancient fable tells us that an old Greek Dædalus, and his son, Icarus, being captives in a tower, made to themselves wings, which they fastened to their arms and shoulders with wax. They flew away to freedom, but Icarus was ambitious, and flew too near the sun; the wax melted, the wings dropped, and the rash boy was drowned in the sea, so they called that sea the Icarian Sea.

To be sure, the story is only a fable. Men have not the muscular breast of the dove; even if they should fasten broad sails to their arms, they could not sustain themselves in the air by flopping their wings. Yet in the fable, we find the earnest desire which men have had to fly. They have it yet.

In 1772 soap-bubbles filled with hydrogen gas were found to rise, just as every chemical lecturer makes them do to this day. Two brothers named Montgolfier made the first balloon, at Avignon, in France. It was a globe about thirty-five feet in diameter, made of cloth, lined with paper, and open below. A fire was lighted beneath the opening, and when the hot air filled the bag, it became lighter than the surrounding air, and so rose.

Next they placed the fire in a wire basket, hung below the bag, so that the fire was carried up, and continued to warm the inclosed air. The balloon rose about a mile. Then they hung living animals in a basket below the fire; then in November, 1783, at Boulogne, Pilatre de Rozier had courage to make the first ascent and came back safely. Next hydrogen gas was used instead of heated air.

Rozier and another undertook to cross the sea into England. They made a double balloon, placing a bag of hydrogen above the bag of heated air. Before they had ascended very far the gas took fire, the machine was consumed almost instantly and the unfortunate voyagers, falling headlong, were dashed in pieces on the shore below.

The Proper Kind of Cake.

"I'm going to get married," said he, as he placed a hand upon the counter, "and I want a wedding cake."

"It is customary," said the pretty girl, "nowadays to have the materials of the cake harmonize with the calling of the bridgegroom. For a musician now we have an oat cake; for a man who has no calling and lives upon his friends, a sponge cake; for a newspaper paragrapher, spice cake, and so on. What is your calling, please?"

"I am a pugilist."

"Then you want a pound cake."—

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 23.....1886

—A few men have been put to work in the Chulula mine.

A new saloon building is nearly ready for occupancy at Keeler.

—John C. Eddy has put a few men to work in one of his mines at Riley.

—A new dwelling house is being built at Keeler and there is talk of a wedding there.

—Lasky has ten men at work in the Keynot mine; they are getting out good ore.

—Two carloads of ore were sent down from Elna to the Swansea furnace a few days ago.

—John Anton has leased the McEvoy mine and mill in Beveridge and will begin work in a few days.

—Dr. M. W. Parsons, the dentist, arrived at Bishop Creek at the end of last week. He will stay in the valley some weeks.

—The County Treasurer gives notice on another column that he is ready to pay bonds, and that interest ceases from this date.

—John Sellers, who was stabbed at Candelaria by a bar-keeper named G. R. Brown, has since died. Brown is under arrest.

—The deceased Rafael Diaz left a good deal of property, real and personal; but as far as yet known he had not made any will.

—The Committee appointed by the Pro-Silver Club to get up an entertainment, are busy with the work, and will have a good programme.

—At the Union mine, Cerro Gordo, Tom Boland has about the usual number of men employed. A good deal of ore from the mine is taken to the furnace at Swansea.

—So long as people will drink beer they had better have a good article and connoisseurs say that made at the Bishop Creek Brewery is as pure and good as beer can be made.

—Doctor Parsons will shortly be at Big Pine, Independence and Lone Pine. Parties who need his services as a dentist can leave their orders at any of the Post offices in the valley.

—Teams are steadily employed hauling ore from the Defiance mine, at Darwin, to Keeler. All of this ore is high grade; the low grade ore from the mine will be smelted at the furnace at Darwin.

—In early days there were no jails in Tulare county and prisoners were secured by chaining them to trees. Now it costs on an average $200 for every prisoner sent to jail and the Delta wants to return to the old chaining out plan.

—The Mono county Bank at Bodie suspended payment last week, and the Bank doors were closed. The decline of business at Bodie is given as the cause of suspension. It is expected that all claims against the Bank will be paid in full.

—We have got quite a number of letters lately from parties asking about land in Owens valley, and the writers say their attention was called to this region by articles published in the Call and credited to the Inyo Independent. The Call has done, and is doing, good work on the silver question, and as it is helping to make the resources of the county known, the people of Inyo should patronize it.

STORMY.—Last Tuesday was the stormiest day of the winter. On the previous evening snow began falling, but this changed to rain and all day Tuesday there was a steady downpour, filling the streams and wetting the whole country thoroughly. An immense amount of snow is piled up in the mountains ensuring plenty of water for next season.

TEMPERANCE EXPERIMENT.—Parties at Bishop Creek have leased a building formerly occupied as a saloon in order to make an experiment. A billiard table is retained, chess and chequers are introduced, periodicals and papers will be provided, and such other entertainments as may be deemed advisable. The object is to deprive every one of the excuse of going to saloons because they have nowhere else to go.

ORCHAND PLANTING.—A great deal of orchard planting is being done around Bishop Creek this season. At West Bishop and Bishop Station several new orchards have been set out, mostly with apple trees. In the town, Munzinger, Phillippay & Co. have set out five acres of apple orchard on their grounds, and other improvements are being made that will make the place one of the handsomest in the county.

YOUNG BLACKGUARDS.—A few evenings ago as a citizen of Independence was returning home, he was overtaken by two squaws close to town. The women were pursued by two young white blackguards, and were very much frightened, and asked the citizen for protection. This was readily given, and the two degraded young villains slunk off. One of them tried to hide his face, but the other was more shameless, and made no effort to conceal his identity. Both are known, but out of regard for their relatives their names will not be published at present. If any respectable citizen will come forward and enter a sworn complaint against these unclean dogs, a warrant will be issued for their arrest, and it will be seen how the law deals with such vermin.

NEW DITCH.

A Work That Will Bring a Large Body Of Land Under Cultivation.

A new Ditch Company has been formed at Bishop Creek. Much credit is due to the originators of this work, and the few who have bravely stuck to it, till it is now got into a practicable shape. The ditch will begin at a point about seven miles above the town; will be carried south across the valley above West Bishop, to the foot of the mountains, and then along the foot hills to a point not yet fixed. In the vicinity of Bishop Creek there is yet a great deal of unoccupied land. The following are close appoximations of the amounts in several contiguous townships. In Township 6. S. R. 32 East. 3500 acres of arable land. In Township 7. S. R. 32 East. 3500 acres In Township 6. S. R. 33. East 5000 acres. In Township 7. S. R. 33. East 3000 acres. All of the last described can be irrigated from the old Bishop Creek ditch, or from the Owens River Canal, the new ditch referred to above. The canal will have a capacity of 8000 inches, and will cover all the arable land in Townships 7 and 8 S. R. 33 East, as well as a great proportion of Townships 6 and 7 S. R. 32 East. Around the town of Bishop Creek is the best settled portion of Owens Valley, and yet in these four townships there is at least fifteen thousand acres of land open for settlement. All of this land will produce good crops; part of it is well suited to grain, and part to alfalfa. Much of it will be found to be good orchard land, particularly along the foot hills, and by proper selection of fruit trees suited to the soil and climate, fruit raising will be far more profitable than any other crop. Along Owens river southward, beyond Fish Springs, a distance of, say, twenty miles, there is a continuous belt of good land, the greater portion open for settlement, and all of it can be easily irrigated from the river. This upper portion of Owens valley has vast resources that only need development to make it a prosperous and rich country. More exact information is being prepared for early publication.

Our Marble Works.

Every one in Inyo county is interested in the success of the marble works at Swansea. The marble recently shipped to San Francisco was subject to all the usual tests to establish its character. It was proven beyond all doubt to be of the finest grain, and will take a beautiful polish. All other marble yet found in the State, has the defect that it will not "cope" well; that is, it will not split square with mallet and chisel, but will have a jagged or beveled edge. The Swansea marble copes straight and square always. The importance of our marble works may be judged from the following circumstance: The leading importers of Italian marble in San Francisco, are Musto & Co; Mr. Musto has written to his correspondents in Italy not to ship any more marble to San Francisco, as quite as good an article can be had from Inyo county at much less cost. The marble already taken out at Swansea was found close to the surface, and some of it had a little weather stain; more of it had a slight vapor stain. This defect is certainly only local and accidental, and will entirely disappear when greater depth is gained. Already there are many orders for marble, but none will be shipped till the quarry is opened more extensively, and till every trace of stain has disappeared, and a pure white marble can be shipped. Mr. Luce is very confident that a few weeks work will accomplish this result. He is also certain that the market for the marble will be so extensive, that in a very few years a town of at least five hundred inhabitants will grow up at the quarry. The supply is so extensive as to ensure plenty of marble for hundreds of years to come.

Bonds Sold

No better proof could be given that the resources of the county are now beginning to be understood by moneyed men than the fact that the county bonds have been taken at par in San Francisco. During the past year the same bonds were offered for sale and 95 percent was the highest offer that could be got. Last week the Treasurer sold $22.000 worth of the new bonds, and redeemed all of the old 10 percent bonds to the amount of $17,500. The Treasurer has also made the usual semi-annual settlement with the State Treasurer. The persistent efforts to make the resources of our county known are at length telling in its favor.

ANOTHER BIG DITCH.

A Work that Will Irrigate many Thousand acres Of Land.

For some weeks past Surveyor Joseph Seely has been engaged making a preliminary survey for the biggest irrigating ditch yet projected in the county. A few days ago he had got so far along with his work that he was entirely satisfied the ditch could be made without much trouble. Having ascertained this act, he made an appropriation of twenty five thousand inches of water, under a four inch pressure, and had his claim recorded. The ditch will begin at a point near Fish Spring hills; here a dam will be built in the river, and the water will be raised several feet. The ditch will follow around the hill, and be taken west toward the mountains, covering all of that large tract of fine land about Taboose and Black Rock. It will be kept as far west as possible, so as to reach that great body of land north of Camp Independence. Much of the land near the town of Independence, and from there to George's Creek, may be irrigated from the ditch. The entry on the Record proposes to carry the work six miles south of Lone Pine; this would give water to that large and fine body of land between the town and the lake, a tract that for its extent and excellence has no superior in the county. Before undertaking the survey, Mr. Seely was assured that if no very great difficulties were encountered, capital enough would be furnished to complete the ditch. He found the way easier than he had expected. The ditch will be sixty feet wide, and will carry a stream three feet deep. The making of this ditch will be of vast importance to the county. Once finished, there will be hundreds of homes where there is now not an inhabitant. A vast business would soon spring up all over the valley; those who are now poor would find themselves enriched by increase in the value of land; taxes would be reduced; first-class schools would be established; in a word, Inyo county would become one of the most prosperous and populous counties in the State.

AGED MAN DEAD.—Last Tuesday a very aged man died at Lone Pine. He was a Chilian, but we have not learned his name. For many years past he had lived with Eleutario Diaz, and was well cared for. His exact age is not known, but at the beginning of the century he was working as a packer in Chili, and at the time of his death must to have been about one hundred years old. When first known to the early white settlers of Owens valley he was a very old man then.

FOR SALE.—The undersigned being desirous of retiring from business, offers an old established business of thirteen years standing for sale. There is a general stock of merchandise, with store building and dwelling house. The whole of this, together with all accounts due, will be sold cheap for cash.

This is a splendid chance for a person desirous of engaging in business, and will be held open for ninety days.

SMASH UP.—Last Wednesday Mr. Stubblefield hitched a pair of horses to a light buggy, and just as he stepped into it the animals ran away. At the corner of Cnenot's store the rushing horses dashed into a large wagon and team that Frank Lawrence was driving up Maine Street. There was a bad smash up; Mr. Stublefield was pitched headlong out of the buggy among the struggling horses, and for an instant it appeared that he must be killed, but he sprang up as nimble as a cat, siezed the bridles and held the horses till help came. He was not much hurt; the buggy was wrecked, but no damage was done to the other team or wagon.

DIED.

DIAZ—At Lone Pine, January 17 1886, Rafael Diaz, aged 59 years.

—Rafael Diaz was a man of very pleasing manners, having all the courtesy and politeness of a well bred gentleman. No man could entertain visitors with more grace and kindness than Mr. Diaz always treated his guests at his home. By his skill and enterprise he did much to prove the fertility of Owens Valley and its peculiar suitability to producing the finest kinds of grapes for wine and raisin making. The effects of his labor in this direction will be more clearly seen as the country is developed. In a few years he converted a barren tract near Lone Pine into beautiful orchards and vineyards till at present it is the loveliest place in the county. A childless widow survives him. Last Monday his remains were followed to the grave by a large gathering of people.

Scientific Miscellany.

Two cases of mercurial poisoning from the use of fulminating caps in shooting-galleries have lately been reported. Such resorts should be well ventilated.

Two microscopists, Dr. Nussbaum and Dr. Gruber, have artificially multiplied infusoria by cutting them in halves, each half becoming a perfectly developed animal.

English physicians have expressed the opinion that the use of dynamite tends to produce apoplexy, several miners having fallen victims to the malady in one district.

The electric light has been successfully applied at Woolwich, England, to photographing the interior of cannon. Such pictures are expected to reveal the presence of flaws.

Ireland's first deep-sea exploring expedition was recently fitted out at the expense of the Royal Irish Academy, and has been at work in the Atlantic about 120 miles west of Cape Clear.

A Swedish engineer has produced a new explosive, which he calls "romite," and for which he claims great strength, cheapness, and impossibility of explosion except when ignited.

Professor Kaltenbach, of Giessen, has mentioned two instances in which immunity from contagious disease—imparted by an attack of the disorder—has been transferred from parent to offspring.

A prize of 3,000 francs has been offered by Bauon Leon de Lenval, of Nice, for the best instrument, on the principle of the microphone, for improving the hearing of partially-deaf persons, all entries to be made by December 31, 1887.

From statistics collected in the abattoirs of Munich and Augsburg, Strauss has found that not more than one calf in 100,000 is consumptive. The danger of conveying consumption with vaccine obtained from these animals is therefore slight.

Dr. Ernst Fuchs, author of a prize essay on blindness and its prevention, states that short-sightedness, which is increasing so alarmingly among reading people, is the cause of ten per cent of all cases of blindness of one eye, and that the immoderate use of tobacco gives rise to partial blindness.

Pneumonia.—Germain See, the French physiologist, has found that pneumonia may be epidemic, but that it is always due to a specific parasite, and never to cold. In this it differs from such other forms of acute inflammation as bronchitis or broncho pneumonia, in which cold is the first cause and microphytes play but a secondary role. Parasitic pneumonia has a regular and definite course, extending over not more than nine days.

Man's Ancestor.—De Mortillet declares that there is sufficient evidence to show that animals less intelligent than man, but more intelligent than existing apes, lived during the tertiary period of geology. The anthropethique, or ape-man, was an ancestral form of historic form whose skeleton has not yet been discovered. This assertion was made at the late Grenoble meeting of the French Association for the Advancement of Science, and from the discussion which followed it appears that the opinion is almost unanimously shared by the scientific men of France.

A Strange Foe to Pisciculture.—Mr. C. H. Murphy has reported to Professor Baird a remarkable slaughter of young trout which was witnessed in the Gunnison Valley, Colorado, the destroyers being mosquitoes. Occasionally a tiny trout was noticed to come to rest—possibly for more air—with its head level with the surface of the stream, when a mosquito would instantly alight and insert its proboscis into the fish's brain. In the space of half an hour some twenty trout were thus dispatched and their bodies sucked dry. Mr. Murray is satisfied that mosquitoes seriously diminish the supply of trout, if not of other varieties of fish.

Fixing the Land.—The dunes of Gascony, according to a recent report by the inspector of French Public Works cover a surface of more than 200,000 acres, and are more than 250 feet high and three or four miles wide. The fine sand composing them was formerly pushed constantly inland by the wind, covering fields and villages, and even burying churches up to their towers. Since 1780 the difficult task of fixing the sand hills by creating a growth of vegetation on them has been in progress, and has at length resulted in averting a great public danger and forming a fine forest. The formation of new dunes is prevented by the building of a wooden palisade, against which the sea raises so steep a bank that no sand can be blown over the incline.

"So you would like to obtain employment in my office, would you?" "Yes, sir, if you please." "Well, I don't know. What recommendations have you?" "Oh, plenty of them. I am a college graduate." "College graduate, are you? H'm. Well, young man, I don't think I have any place for you, but you might apply two doors up the street. They hire baseball players there."—[Boston Post.

"I'm getting dreadful fat, my dear," said a husband to his wife; "I must get a set of dumb-bells and practice with them." "Why not do as Mr. Smith did when he was getting so fat?" "What did he do?" "Broke up housekeeping and went to live in a boarding-house."—[Boston Courier.

THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind in use adapted to all classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the past TWO YEARS under a great variety of conditions, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month in a year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold dust that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its cost for this purpose alone.

BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

Letter from Lincoln.

The Times-Democrat is indebted to Hon. Michael Hahn for the following letter from President Lincoln. It is probably now published for the first time. It gives an insight into political affairs in this State in the critical period of the late war.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, Aug. 5, 1863.

MY DEAR GENERAL BANKS:—Being a poor correspondent is the only apology I offer for not having sooner tendered my thanks for your very successful and very valuable military operations this year. The final stroke in opening the Mississippi River should and I think never will be forgotten.

Recent events in Mexico, I think, render early action in Texas more important than ever. I expect, however, the general-in-chief will address you more fully upon this subject.

Governor Boutwell read me to-day that part of your letter to him which relates to Louisiana affairs. While I very well know what I would be glad for Louisiana to do, it is quite a different thing for me to assume direction of the matter. I would be glad for her to make a new constitution, recognizing the emancipation proclamation, and adopting emancipation in those parts of the State to which the proclamation does not apply; and while she is at it I think it would not be objectionable for her to adopt some practical system by which the two races could gradually lift themselves out of their old relation to each other, and both come out better prepared for the new. Education for the young blacks should be included in the plan. After all the power or element of "contract" may be sufficient for this probationary period, and by its simplicity and flexibility may be the better.

As an anti-slavery man, I have a motive to desire emancipation which pro-slavery men do not have; but even they have strong enough reason to thus place themselves again under the shield of the union, and to thus perpetually hedge against the recurrence of the scenes through which we are now passing.

Governor Shepley has informed me that Mr. Durant is now taking a registry, with a view to the election of a constitutional convention of Louisiana. This, to me, appears proper. If such a convention were to ask my views, I could present little else than what I now say to you. I think the thing should be pushed forward, so that, if possible, its mature work may reach here by the meeting of Congress.

For my own part, I think I shall not in any event retract the emancipation proclamation, nor, as executive, ever return to slavery any person who is free by that proclamation or by any of the acts of Congress.

If Louisiana shall send members to Congress, their admission to seats will depend, as you know, upon the respective houses and not upon the President.

If these views can be of any advantage in giving shape and impetus to action there, I shall be glad for you to use them prudently for that object. Of course, you will confer with intelligent and trusty citizens of the State, among whom I would suggest Messrs. Flanders, Hahn and Durant, and to each of whom I now think I may send copies of this letter. Still, it is perhaps better not to make the letter generally public.

Yours very truly,
A. LINCOLN.

On the back of the copy was indorsed the following in President Lincoln's own handwriting:—

Hon. Michael Hahn: The within is a copy of a letter to General Banks. Please observe my directions to him. Do not mention the paragraph about Mexico.

A. LINCOLN.

August 6, 1863.

What Was Before.

A gentleman who was habitually guilty of liberties with the Queen's English was returned as a member for a colonial parliament. Delighted with the importance of his new position, he rose on the first chance that offered to make his maiden speech. "Gentlemen," he said, by way of introduction, "what 'ave we be ore the 'ouse to-night?" "I think we have 'h' before 'ouse, gentlemen," was the prompt reply of a member of the opposition.

GONE FOREVER.

No More Do We See the Pumpkin Pies of Old.

A subscriber writes to his favorite journal asking how to make the same kind of pumpkin pies that were made when he was a boy, and eaten on Thanksgiving day. We regret to chill his desire for knowledge, says Puck, but it is our duty to do so. They can't be made. They don't grow the same kind of pumpkins now. The sun never shines down on the old cornfield the same way it did thirty odd years ago.

There has come a sort of change over the climate that scientists all recognize, and that bears a polysyllable name that he wouldn't understand any better than we do. If he doesn't believe it, let him walk out, some summer afternoon, between the towering rows of nodding corn stalks, and note the difference. It is hotter than it used to be, and not half so invigorating. Then, the soil has changed, too. It sticks to his boots in a way that was unknown to his bare feet in those days of the very long ago. The pumpkins are still there, we suppose. Market reports and the columns of country newspapers still chronicle their growth and the enormous sizes they attain, as of yore; but the flavor that has gone as irretrievably as the mud pie which used to turn their brown sides up to the sun when all of us were young. The pumpkins of the present day are squashlike in taste, thin, watery, and unsatisfactory. The crust of the pie is hard, soggy and indigestible.

The flour and the ovens are changed, too. And, although this is an age of progress, the art of pie-making has not kept up with its fellow arts in the march of improvement. Perhaps this is owing to the introduction of the stove, and the abolition of the old-fashioned brick oven. There was something about those old brick ovens that gave the pie-crust a flakiness and tenderness which is noticeable in modern pies principally by its absence.

No, the old-fashioned pumpkin pie has passed away. It belongs to a bygone age. In its place we have machine-made pies, put up by the gross and carted around in wagons. The only way for our knowledge-thirsting friend to taste again those viands of the past is for him to seat himself beside his grate some fall evening, light his pipe, close his eyes and dream of the old farmhouse among the hills and the Thanksgiving dinner of his boyhood, when his grandmother presided over the table, and the pumpkin pie came on in a tin dish, square at the corners, and deep enough to hold ten dozen of the pie plates of the present day. This may not satisfy his hunger and sustain life, but it is the only way that the man of the present can ever hope to taste the pumpkin pie of the boy of the past generation.

Not a New Story.

A business man on the third floor of a building on Griswold Street bought a ton of coal the other day, and when a boy came up to ask him for the job of elevating the chestnut, he asked the youth to take a chair, and then said:—

"My boy, you should start right in entering upon the path of life."

"Yes, sir—that's what maw says."

"I was a poor boy—a very poor boy myself at your age."

"Yes, sir—I don't doubt it, you wore ragged clothes and didn't have half enough to eat."

"Ahem—yes. I felt that I would have to make my own future, and I decided to start out right. In the town where I lived there was a five-story building."

"Yes, sir, and there were offices way up on the top floor, and no elevator?"

"Just so, my boy."

"And a man who had an office on the top floor bought a ton of coal, and you asked him for the job of hacking it up?"

"Exactly."

"It was worth fifty cents, but he offered you a quarter, and rather than lose the job you accepted it. The man took a notion to you, secured you a place in an office, and you are to-day rich, respected, and likely to be sent to Washington as a United States Senator. I know the story like a book."

"You do! Why, where did you ever hear it before?"

"Twenty times over right on this very street. I tumbled to it after carrying up two tons, and you fellers can't wallop me again?"

"Why, my son, I——"

"It's all right, mister; but my terms are fifty cents spot cash or no haggling. Powerful funny things that all you chaps who have bin poor and worked up to riches want a penniless crib to work for half cash and half fatty!"

The occupant of the office said that he would reserve the job for some boy with a meek and humble disposition.

Fresh evidences of the tremendous energy of the great Krakatoa eruption in Java continue to be brought forward. Rev. Philip Neale, late British chaplain at Batavia, now mentions finding immense blocks of coral rock—one of them weighing at least fifty tons—which must have been torn from their ocean bed and swept several miles inland by the gigantic tidal wave in Sunda Straits.

John M'Cullough's Joke.

When ladies would leave him alone, which was not often, John was a good comrade and a bon vivant. He liked above all things a practical joke. A couple of years ago he struck a great friendship with President Arthur and his set in Washington, and was the life of the table at all the diplomatic stag parties. About that time Gus Williams was blossoming out from the variety to the regular stage, and had acquired considerable reputation as a general raconteur of funny conceits and sprightly after-dinner wit.

McCullough who had suffered from several practical jokes played on him by the Dutch comedian, determined to take him down and nip his reputation in the bud. He took John T. Raymond, Jim Collier, and the political coterie of Washington into his confidence, and the game was perfected.

The President gave a little dinner party, and, among others, Gus Williams was invited. It was impressed on him that he was celebrated at the White House as a very funny fellow, and he was expected to keep the table in a roar. He said nothing, but secretly laid himself out to do it. He reported at the dinner table with a choice budget of original witticisms, which he was sure could not fail to make a great effect when he got a chance to fire them off.

The dinner passed very merrily, but whenever Williams attempted to get off a joke he was sure to be interrupted by either McCullough or Raymond before the point of the joke could be brought out. At last, however, there was a lull, and he couldn't be stayed off any longer. He began a story. The whole party listened with great gravity. The was proceeded in his best style, working it up to the laughing point. The story was a good one, but they all preserved their equanimity and listened without a smile. When the climax came and the joker stopped there was a dead silence.

"Well, what then?" asked McCullough after a painful pause.

"That's all of the story," replied Williams, sadly.

The tragedian gave him a pitying look, and exchanging glances with the other actors, changed the subject.

Later the wit took heart again and tried on a new story, but the result was the same, and Williams noticed that the whole party cast looks of pity and astonishment at him. He grew secretly mad and desperate at this, and tried frequently, but still in vain, to make a point. Not a laugh did he get that night.

Afterward, on the way home, McCullough talked with him in a fatherly way.

"You made a terrific exhibition of yourself to-night, my boy," said he. "You need rest, and you'll take it if you are wise. Your brain is going. There's too much strain on it, inventing jokes for years for your performances." He insisted on seeing the joker home and tucking him in bed, and then sent three doctors to him, at his own expense, to the great discomfiture of the funny man.—[Chicago Tribune.

Human Electrotypes.

M. Kergovatz, a chemist of Brest, has proposed a new method of disposing of the human body after death, which he considers preferable in every way to either burial or cremation. His system is an antiseptic one, much simpler and less expensive than the old process of embalming, and is nothing more than a new galvanoplastic application. The body is coated with a conducting substance, such as plumbago, or it is bathed with a solution of nitrate of silver, the after decomposition of which, under the influence of sunlight, leaves a finely divided deposit of metallic silver. It is then placed in a bath of copper sulphate, and connected for electrolysis with several cells of gravity or other battery of constant current. The result is that the body is encased in a skin of copper, which prevents further change or chemical action. If desired, this may again be plated with gold or silver, according to the taste or wealth of the friends of the dead. M. Kergovatz has employed the process eleven times on human subjects, and on many animals, and states that in all cases it was perfectly satisfactory. In spite, however, of his warm recommendation, the idea is repulsive. It seems a mockery to give permanence to the temple when all that once made it valuable is gone.—[Scientific American.

A BEAR-SLAYER.

An Arctic Cape Named after the Hunter from Albany.

Further particulars have been received by the Journal relative to the thrilling adventures of Mr. James MacNaughton, of Albany, in the Hudson Bay region. Mr. MacNaughton was the assistant of Dr. Bell, the Director of the geological survey. He had several exciting bear and walrus hunting experiences, and for his skill and courage in attacking brain Mr. MacNaughton was nicknamed the "bear slayer" by his colleagues during the expedition. He killed three enormous bears. The first was dispatched without causing much excitement. The second was killed by a well-drawn bead at fully five hundred yards. The ball penetrated the base of the skull.

But the third victim was killed after a most exciting hunt, in which the "bear slayer" and one of the sailors of the famous Arctic ship Alert had a narrow escape from death. They were interrupted by the appearance of two bears while engaged in making a survey of Deer Island at the west end of Hudson Strait. The "bear slayer" and the sailor were perched upon a rock from which they could not recede, when the wounded and infuriated brutes rushed wildly upon them.

The men took in the situation at a glance and chose the only alternative, and fought for mastery for their lives. They were hurled hotly from their retreat by the huge animals. Although the other members of the party saw and understood their perilous position they could not come to their relief. Mr. MacNaughton and his brave companion were fast waning under the powerful blows of the monsters. The bears were also weakening from loss of blood, but still continued in the aggressive. The quadrupeds were finally dispatched by a well-directed shot from Mr. MacNaughton's rifle and from a blow from an ax in the hands of his friend.

Mr. MacNaughton subsequently presented the sailor who had exhibited such intrepidity in the "great bear fight," as the event was afterward called on the ship, with his watch and chain in recognition of his bravery. Mr. MacNaughton will bring back the skin of the bear as a trophy. The spot where the memorable combat occurred has been named by the commander of the expedition Cape MacNaughton in honor of the thrilling event. The same day that Mr. MacNaughton had the desperate battle with the bear another of these ferocious animals attempted to board the steam launch after being wounded.

Mr. MacNaughton had sent a bullet plowing through the ponderous shoulders of the great bear, when the brute sprang upon the side of the launch and nearly capsized it with its weight. The bear afterward swam ashore at the base of a cliff. Dr. Bell climbed to the top of the precipice and dashed down a bowlder upon its head, crushing its brains out. This bear was estimated to weigh from 1,500 to 1,700 pounds. The party had many exciting walrus hunts. But owing to the thickness of their hides much difficulty was experienced in slaying the animals. Two walruses, each weighing over a ton, were fished up and towed ashore after being shot.—[Albany (New York) Journal.

Soldiers' Sleeping Places.

Speaking of queer sleeping places—when we were quartered in Little Washington one company was quartered in a brick warehouse, and the whole upper part was divided into immensely big bins containing corn all shelled. We found it quite a soft bed, only when once laid down in any position you made quite a mould of your body in the yielding mass of corn, and frequently on waking up in the morning I would find myself at an angle of forty-five degrees, my head down, nearly buried in the corn, and my left or right arm buried to the shoulder. It was not so comfortable after all. I have tried a bed of mud, with my head against the trunk of a tree and the water trickling down my neck (it rained at that time) and two or three inches of water around me. I never recollect getting cold or suffering any serious discomfort resulting from exposure to dampness or rain, or mud beds, or anything of that kind. A fellow can get used to almost anything. If our clothes were wet, build a fire, if we could; if not, stir about and dry them that way.—[Recollections of a Private, in Boston Bulletin.

Tears.

Crocodile tears are things of ancient history, and tears produced with the aid of onions are equally well known; but it has remained for modern science to find a way to produce onion tears without betraying the presence of the aggressive onion itself. In fact, the aggressive onion need not be present at all. An essential oil is extracted from it which has all the tear-compelling qualities of the solid vegetable itself. One drop of this oil on a handkerchief is good for one flood of tears, two drops produce a persistent fit of sobbing, and three drops an appearance of utter abandonment to consuming grief.—[Philadelphia Times.

VACANT LAND.

The Amount of Land Open for Entry in Owens Valley.

As stated in last week's issue of this paper, an examination of the official maps of the County Surveyor show that in four townships about, and including that in which Bishop Creek stands, there is yet open for entry fifteen thousand acres of land. A further examination of the maps has been made, and the following are the amounts of land these show to be vacant in the other townships of Owens valley.

In Township 7, S. R. 34 East, M. D. M. there is but about 800 acres fit for cultivation and open for entry.

In Township	7	S, R 33 E,	6400 acres
"	7	S, R 32 E,	2000 "
"	8	S, R 33 E,	6400 "
"	8	S, R 34 E,	3200 "
"	9	S, R 34 E,	640 "
"	10	S, R 34 E,	2500 "
"	11	S, R 34 E,	1300 "
"	12	S, R 35 E,	2600 "
"	12	S, R 34 E,	5500 "
"	14	S, R 36 E,	8500 "
"	13	S, R 35 E,	2000 "
"	13	S, R 35 E·	5000 "
"	14	S, R 35 E,	2500 "
"	15	S, R 36 E,	9000 "
"	15	S, R 35 E,	2000 "
"	16	S, R 36 E,	6400 "

Add to the foregoing the fifteen thousand acres in the vicinity of Bishop Creek, and the total amount of land open for settement in Owens valley, is found to be 81,900 acres. In these estimates no account is made of any lands but those lying out in the open valley, and that may be irrigated from Owens river. Along the foot hills of the mountains are many small tracts additional, where homes might be made. About half of the entire area is covered by sage brush, the remainder being grassy plains. About ten miles north of Independence is a tract of swamp land, about two thousand acres in extent. This could be readily drained. There are no other obstacles in the way of the reclamation of all the rest of the land, save making ditches to convey the water of Owens river upon them,

SMALL FARMS.

No other region in the State has superior advantages for making small farms. The soil and climate are suited in a remarkable degree to making raisins. On a forty acre lot, one half planted with raisins grapes and other fruits, and the remainder kept for alfalfa, vegetables and so forth, an industrious man could support a family handsomely, and save plenty of money. In the near future hundreds of intelligent men will come here who will engage in this business. and will teach the present settlers in the valley such lessons as will astonish them. A citizen of Bishop Creek, who is now in Los Angeles, writing to a friend at Independence, says Owens valley offers vastly superior advantages to settlers over what can be found in that region, and asserts if these advantages were more widely known, there would be a rush of eastern settlers here at once.

Silver Notes.

In Germany the farmers, and working people generally, are making urgent applies to the Government for the remonetization of silver.

The gold men are quite confounded by the powerful opposition to their schemes in Congress. They have given up all hope of corrupting or bullying a majority of Senators and Representatives to favor their aims, but rely upon the President to veto any acts that may be passed in favor of silver coinage.

Now that the people have shown themselves stronger in Congress than the bankers, no stop should be made till the national bank circulation is destroyed. These institutions are exercising a privilege that should never be allowed to any private concern; the issuing of money should be the exclusive act of the people themselves, through their duly authorized agents.

Great business depression prevails in England. At a meeting held recently in London, an Ex-Governor of the Bank of England said he believed that the Royal Commission on the depressed condition of trade in Great Britain would report that the present condition of the silver question had an important bearing on the depression. The meeting resolved to form a gold and silver league on a popular basis.

The Sleep of Fishes.—Experiments on the sleep of fishes have been made in London by Mr. W. August Carter. He has found that the fresh-water fishes observed—the roach, dace, gudgeon, carp, tench, minnow, and catfish—sleep periodically like terrestrial animals. The same is true of some marine fishes—such as the wrasse, conger eel, dory, dogfish, wrasse bass, and all species of flat fish—but the goldfish, pike, and angler fish do not appear to sleep at all, though they rest periodically. COMMUNICATION.

Bishop Creek, Jan. 26, 1886.

Again in the columns of the Register, we see the matter of the county bonds referred to, with a brief recapitulation of the reasons why they should have been disposed of at a loss of ten per cent to the county, which the Register even now asserts would not be in violation of law, though "Supervisor Harger and others opposed the sale for that or other reasons." Your humble servant among others approved the sale in his feeble way for the reasons, first, that it was in violation of the law, and second, that it was an injustice to the county. These, it appears to your correspondent, were also Mr. Hargers reasons "for opposing the sale, or give away, and while I would be ready, at all times to give Mr. Harger credit for as much sincerity as any of his opponents; I see no necessity for any apology for his faithful efforts to maintain and enforce the law which had been raised by the legislature as a barrier to protect the rights of the county from such invasions: while a contrary course, private or official, might require a more careful explanation. Section 4049 of the Political Code provides as follows; "Whenever bonds issued under this chapter shall be duly executed, numbered consecutively, and sealed, they shall be delivered to the county Treasurer and his receipt taken therefor, and he shall stand charged on his official bond with all bonds delivered to him, and the proceeds thereof, and he shall sell the same or exchange them under the direction of the Board of Supervisors on the best available terms for any legal indebtedness of the county outstanding on the first day of January, 1880, but in neither case for a less sum than the face value of the bonds, and all interest accrued on them at the date of such sale or exchange."

By the foregoing it will be seen that any deficiency in the amount received by the Treasurer would be a charge against his official bond, and further, that he, and he alone, is authorized to sell them under the direction of the Board of Supervisors.

The terms and form of the bonds may be seen in Sec. 4048, Political Code, but the succeeding section provides that the Treasurer must receive full face value, with the interest accrued at the date of the sale or exchange, and which fully answer the doubts propounded by the Register.

While we all cheerfully acknowledge the ability and fidelity of the county Treasurer as a public offier, your humble servant fails to see wherein Mr. Hardy's "Tact" has won for the county even the sum of one dollar; as he could not in any case have taken one dollar less, and has only obtained on her behalf what the law declares she shall have. Suppose we take the feather, or some other feather, and place it in Mr. Hardy's cap for so faithfully opposing the ruinous rates of discount contended for by another, and preventing the loss that the county would thus have sustained, as well as the violation of law; we should then, have a "Plumed Knight" of our own, and one who we might say, has justly earned the decoration.

The outcome of the transaction shows plainly that "Supervisor Harger and others" were right in the premises, and had it not been for the protracted discussion of the matter, wherein it was attempted to show that the ten per cent discount would be highly beneficial, and the best the county could do, it might not have been necessary for Mr. Hardy to have made the trip to San Francisco "on his own expense" to dispose of the bonds of a perfectly solvent county at par-Purchasers dont generally offer more than those interested represent their securities to be worth; but in this case they became aware of the fact that the parties in interest were altogether too generous. CITIZEN.

Noses and Ears.

What the astrologers a large nose was always a sign of much character of some kind, but what was determined by other characteristic marks. A Roman nose was a sign of a courageous temper and a disposition to face and overcome difficulties, while a more strongly aquiline nose was an indication of rapacity; the idea being evidently borrowed from the similarity of this description of beak to that of the eagle, the most rapacious of birds. The snub-nose showed little character but much temper, while the Greek nose, even, straight and regular, was a sign of the temperament of the owner. Large nostrils indicated good lungs, health and long life, while swelling nostrils showed a warlike spirit and fire. A very sharp nose was considered an indication of a busybody, while a bluntness at the end of this member was an outward sign of the possessor's mental lack of acuteness. Large ears were always bad, the similarity between their owner and the donkey being supposed to extend further than the ears, while small ears were always good. The lobe of the ear passing insensibly into the cheek was a sure sign of a thief and a liar, while an exceedingly sharp division between the two indicated honesty and candor. Thick ears meant thick brains, while thin, delicate ears declared their possessor to be a man of refined intelligence.

In the well-known game of "hop-scotch" Mr. J. W. Crombie reads a curious page of the history of past ages. A form of the game was known to Pliny, and seems to have been changed by the early Christians into an illustration of their belief, the figure representing their idea of the shape of heaven, and the divisions showing the progressive states to be passed by the soul in its flight to paradise.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 30.....1886

—Dr. Parsons, the dentist, will be at Independence on Monday.

—Last Monday an Indian boy was run over by a wagon at Lone Pine, and had a leg broken. He is at the county Hospital.

—Full programmes for the parties at Lone Pine and Keeler, to be given on Washington's birthday, will be published next week.

—Francisco Serrano is the name of the aged man who died at Lone Pine last week. There is clear proof that his age was over a hundred years.

—Bishop Creek has that wonder, a good barber who can work and not talk. All who go once to the neat little shop of Jacob Koch will call again.

Wells Barnes and Tom Kehoe went to the White Hill mine last Tuesday, and have resumed work. Nothing had been done at the mine since the holidays.

—Mr. Walker, of the United States Land Office, at Bodie, will please except thanks for a copy of the Report of the Commissioner of the general Land Office at Washington.

—Reports come from San Bernardino county that immensely rich mines have just been struck in Providence Mountains. The ledges are large and very rich, assaying from $30 to $600 per ton. Three ounces of gold was taken from two pounds of rock, and over fifty locations have been made.

—Tax payers make bitter complaint of the condition of a mile or two of the road near George's Creek. In fact for a short distance the road is now almost impassable for any kind of conveyance. A very little levying up would remove the difficulty. With that single exception the road from Independence to Lone Pine never was in better order than at present.

—Many people in Inyo county know the big Blacksmith who used to work for Frank Shaw up at Dobe Meadows, and later at Bishop Creek. It is also well known to many that this man was taken with rheumatism in the neck, that his head was twisted on one side for several weeks, that he suffered terribly all this time, and got no relief till he made copious applications of St. Jacobs oil, and that this cured him.

—The people of Truckee have got rid of the Chinese, a large number of whom were employed there in the lumber mills, and in the forests around. Only one Firm refused to discharge Chinese, Sisson, Crocker & Co., but a rigid system of boycotting soon brought them to terms, they discharged every Chinaman in their employ, and promised never to employ another.

CONCERT POSTPONED.—Programmes are already printed and distributed for a concert to be given at Independence this evening. Mr. Spangler has decided to postpone the concert till next Thursday evening.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

SHELTERED.—Owens valley appears to be the only part of the whole State that escaped serious damage by the storms of last week. Reports of destruction of property by floods and high winds are very general over the whole State, except here. An abundant and welcome rain was all the storm that we experienced; our immunity from such visitations is due to the great mountain ranges by which Owens valley is sheltered.

BALL AT KEELER.—On Washington's birthday the event will be celebrated at Keeler by a ball. Last year Mr. and Mrs. Barnes took that occassion to bring about a meeting of their friends, and the party was so pleasant that they are induced to repeat it this year The ball will be given only with a view to have at least one meeting in the year of friends, and not with the least intention of seeking profit. A cordial welcome will be given to all who may attend. See the advertisement on another column.

Contemptible, But Not Contempt.

Recently some citizens of Mono county ventured to criticise certain acts of the Superior Judge of that county. His Honor issued warrants of arrest against Harry Boon, one of the Supervisors, and Attorney C. A. Schuman. These men were arrested, and applied to the Supreme Court for a release on a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Hunt held that criticism is not contempt, and ordered their release. Judge Briggs, of Mono, is a very aged man, and it is charitable to think that his understanding, perhaps never very strong, is now filling entirely.

Some Snow.

They had some snow up at Bodie last week. The Evening Miner says; "Snow 14 feet deep on Mill street, between Maine and Mono.

The late and existing storms are beyond doubt the severest that have ever visited this region since its settlement by the whites."

With grass and alfalfa growing and farmers busy plowing here in Owens valley, it is hard for us to realize that there is such severe weather in the next county.

Damage At Los Angeles.

The storm of last week did great damage at Los Angeles. This is the fourth severe flood recorded in that city in twenty-four years, and is the most destructive of all. The Los Angeles river, swollen by the heavy rains of Sunday and Monday, became an irresistable torrent, swept away bridges and inundated a large portion of the southern part of the city. About 2000 acres of land devoted to homes, orchards and vineyards were flooded. The water rose two feet higher than the flood of February, 1884. A number of buildings were swept away entirely and others were undermined and collapsed. Mrs. Kate Lytle, while escaping from her house by wading waist deep in water, was knocked over by a portion of a floating building and drowned. Theresa Whitney, an eight-year-old girl, while being rescued by Deputy Sheriff Auguirre, was carried away by the strong current and drowned. The damage to bridges, railroads and private property is roughly estimated at $60,000.

A Good Woman Dead.

In the death of Mrs. Bell last Thursday, a good woman ceased to bless the earth with her presence. Of her it can be most truthfully said that "None knew her but to love her, none named her but to bless." A sweet temper, a kind heart, very pleasing manners, a desire to see every one happy, and ceasless efforts to make so all who came in contact with her, these were the traits of character that won for her not only friendship, but even the warm love of all who knew her. Her heart was so kind, her manners so agreeable, that even friends of recent date entertained for her a strength of affection seldom acquired till after years of close intimacy. The feelings of the whole community are deeply stirred by the death of this excellent woman. Seven children mourn the death of one of the best of mothers, the eldest a girl, aged about fourteen years. Her husband, Mr. A. N. Bell, is so sunk in affliction as to be an object of pity. All who know them sympathize with the grief stricken family.

A Great Need.

Two boys, aged respective twelve and fourteen years, were lately sent to San Quentin prison for five years. One was convicted of stealing a gun, and the other of stealing money; both were from San Jose. Judge Belden, who sent these children to prison, regretted that this was the only course open to him, in order to separate them from evil associates till better habits should be formed. A State Reform School is very much needed. It is a reproach to the whole State, when a humane and wise Judge has no other alternative than to send little boys to an institution filled with the most hardened and desperate criminals, in order to separate them from bad associates.

Celebration at Lone Pine.

The birthday of Washington will be celebrated at Lone Pine by a ball. This entertainment will be given by the ladies of Lone Pine, the object being to raise a little money for school improvements. So worthy an object will certainly secure the attendence of every one who can possibly go there. Read the advertisement published on another column.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 30 1886

Christopher Columbus.

Probably few people have been more successful in the discovering line than Christopher Columbus. Living as he did in a day when a great many things were still in an undiscovered state, the horizon was filled with golden opportunities for a man possessed of Mr. C's pluck and ambition. His life at first was filled with rebuffs and disappointments, but at last he grew to be a man of importance in his own profession, and people who wanted anything discovered would always bring it to him rather than take it elsewhere.

And yet the life of Columbus was a stormy one. Though he discovered a continent wherein a millionaire attracts no attention, he himself was very poor. Though he rescued from barbarism a broad and beautiful land in whose metropolis the theft of less than half a million of dollars is regarded as petty larceny, Chris himself often went to bed hungry. It is not singular that the gray eyed and gentle Columbus should have added a hemisphere to the history of our globe a hemisphere, too, where pie is a common thing, not only on Sunday, but throughout the week, and yet that he should have gone down to his grave pieless!

Such is the history of progress in all ages and in all lines of thought and investigation. Such is the meager reward of the pioneer in new fields of action. I presume that America to-day has a larger pie era than any other land in which the Cockney English language is spoken. Right here where millions of native born Americans dwell, many of whom are ashamed of the fact that they were born here and which shame is entirely mutual between the goddess of Liberty and themselves, we have a style of pie that no other land can boast of.

From the bleak and acid dried apple pie of Maine to the irrigated mince pie of the blue Pacific, all along down the line of igneous, volcanic and stratified pie, America, the land of the freedom bird, with the high instep to his nose, leads the world.

Other lands may point with undissembled pride to their polygamy and their cholera, but we reck not. Our polygamy here is still in its infancy and our leprosy has had the disadvantage of a cold, backward spring, but look at our pie.

Throughout a long and disastrous war, sometimes referred to as a fratricidal war, during which this fair land was drenched in blood, and also during which aforesaid war numerous frightful blunders were made which are fast coming to the surface—through the courtesy of participants in said war who have patiently waited for those who blundered to die off, and now admit that said participants who are dead did blunder exceedingly throughout all this long and deadly struggle for the supremacy of liberty and right—as I was about to say when my mind began to wobble, the American pie has shone forth resplendent in the full glare of a noonday sun or beneath the pale green of the electric light, and she stands forth proudly to-day with her undying loyalty to dyspepsia untrammeled and her deep and deadly gastric antipathy still fiercely burning in her breast.

That is the proud history of American pie. Powers, principalities, kingdoms and hand-made dynasties may crumble, but the republican form of pie does not crumble. Tyranny may totter on its throne, but the American pie does not totter. Not a tot. No foreign threat has ever been able to make our common chicken pie quail. I do not say this because it is smart; I simply say it to fill up.

But would it not do Columbus good to come among us to-day and look over our free institutions? Would it not please him to ride over this continent which has been rescued by his presence of mind from the thraldom of barbarism and forked over to the genial and refining influences of prohibition and pie?

America fills no mean niche in the great history of nations, and if you listen carefully for a few moments you will hear some American, with his mouth full of pie, make that remark. The American is always frank and perfectly free to state that no other country can approach this one. We allow no little two for a-quarter monarchy to excell us in the size of our failures or in the calm and self poised deliberation with which we erect a monument to the glory of a worthy citizen who is dead, and therefore politically useless.

The careful student of the career of Columbus will find much in these lines that he has not yet seen. He will realize when he comes to read this little sketch the pains and the trouble and the research necessary before such an article on the life and work of Columbus could be written, and he will thank me for it; but it is not for that that I have done it. It is a pleasure for me to hunt up and arrange historical and biographical data in a pleasing form for the student and savant. I am only too glad to please and gratify the student and the savant. I was that way myself once and I know how to sympathize with them.

BILL NYE.

P. S.—I neglected to state that Columbus was a married man. Still he did not murmur or repine.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the past TWO YEARS under a great variety of conditions, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Fans at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Fans being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month or two years. One of the most valuable features is VENTILATION. It saves all the smelting gold that is ever lost in the bottoms, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its cost for this purpose alone.

An Arctic Thanksgiving.

The next Thanksgiving, one year later, we spent on our sledge journey returning to Hudson Bay, which we spoke of as "home," from the islands in the Arctic Ocean near the mouth of Back's Great Fish River. The last Thursday in November found us crossing a broad peninsula passing from one large arm of the Arctic Sea to another, where the Back's River empties, and which we were extremely anxious to reach. That day we came upon a river some sixty to seventy paces broad, and it was named Thanksgiving River to commemorate the event.

It was of a great deal of importance to us to know just which way it flowed, for should its waters run eastward, all we would have to do would be to sledge along its icy covering, and it would take us by an easy grade to Back's River. Usually the Esquimaux can tell which way the current of a frozen river trends by lying flat on the ice, and placing the face close to it, and turning the eyes alternately to the right and left, or up and down stream, sighting along the level ice; but although two of the keenest-sighted of the Esquimaux young men tried this plan on several parts of Thanksgiving River, they gave it up in despair, shaking their heads, and informing me that if the ice was off the river so that we could see the water flowing it would be a very sluggish current. The only way to settle the matter would be to dig through the ice, some five or six feet thick, and sink a pole in the ice-well, first on one side and then on the other, until the force of the current, however sluggish, would carry it across to the other side, and determine the direction of the current.

This cutting an ice-well is very interesting and is done with two instruments, each on the end of a long pole. The first is a chisel, a sharpened spike, a bayonet, or any such instrument, with which the native cuts a hole about a foot deep in the ice and probably a foot and a half wide. This chopped ice made by the ice-chisel is then scooped out by a sort of ladle made of musk ox horn on the end of another pole, and this alternation of cutting and scooping is kept up, digging out from six to twelve inches each time, until the water is reached six or seven feet below. The farthest I ever saw them dig an ice-well to get to fresh water was eight feet and a half.

After we had dug a well about a foot and a half in diameter, I put down the scoop beyond the bottom of the ice on the western side, and there it remained; then on the eastern side, and it lazily floated over to the west, which showed that the current flowed that way, or in the direction from which we had been coming. It was a great disappointment to us, and a river that we could hardly be thankful for; so it was abandoned next day.

Our Thanksgiving dinner that day was nothing but riendeer meat, the same as any other day, for the good and sufficient reason that we had nothing else. For breakfast we had three or four pounds of boilded reindeer meat, drinking the soup afterward. For lunch while traveling we had raw frozen reindeer cut in chunks about half as big as one's hand, and then beaten into brashy shreds with the back of the hatchet. For dinner, as soon as the snow-house was finished, we had the same frozen meat, and a hot dinner of boiled meat and soup about an hour after. Now that the intensely cold winter weather of the Arctic was coming rapidly toward us, we ate large quantities of reindeer fat to help us keep warm, oftentimes as much in quantity as the meat itself. Just about this Thanksgiving we were living on reduced rations, however, for we had but little reindeer meat, and could not see our way clear to Back's Great Fish River, where we could procure fish. Our poor dogs! they had even less to be thankful for than we, as they were being fed only about once a week.—[Lieut. Schwatka, in Harpers' Young People.

AIR-FOOD OF PLANTS.—The experiments of Prof. W. O. Atwater have shown that contrary to the general opinion of chemists, plants assimilate nitrogen from the air. While they take up the greatest quantity when abundantly supplied from the soil, fully one-half the total nitrogen acquired by well-fed plants is drawn from the atmosphere.

WHOLESALE HANGING.

Ninety-Three Chinese Pirates Suspended at One Time.

"Yes, I suppose three at a time is quite a fair hanging," remarked a retired old salt who had circumnavigated the globe seven times and whose home had been on the briny for thirty-six years—"quite a fair hanging, that is, in a retail way—but it ain't a circumstance to the wholesale send-off I witnessed once in China. A cigar? Thanks—don't care if I do," said the ancient mariner, and lighting it he took a few pulls at the weed and his memory and settled himself in his chair to relate the following tale to a Daily News reporter:—

"It was along about '67 that I shipped in the German bark La Mona, bound from Bombay to Shanghai. We stopped on the way at Hue, where we took on board a party of twenty-three Chinese merchants. They had been to Hue to dispose of their goods, and were returning to Hong Kong with their proceeds. All went well until off the Island of Hainan, when we got becalmed and lay floating around under the tropical air without a breath of air.

"Along about 3 in the afternoon our lookout descried a sail, which soon developed into a fleet of sixteen Chinese junks, whose decks, upon a nearer approach, could be seen covered with men, which told us without need of a flag that they were pirates. Thinking ourselves lost, as we were unarmed, but determined to hang on to life as long as possible, we all made for between the decks and stowed ourselves away in the cargo. We soon heard the junks come alongside, the trampling of feet overhead, the nailing down of the hatches, a dull, grating noise, and all was still.

"Presently we could hear the rush of water, the pirates having scuttled the bark by boring—which accounted for the grating—intending to drown us like rats in a trap. We made a rush for the hatch, but could not move it. We succeeded, however, in breaking through the bulkhead that led to the forecastle, and reached the deck. The pirates had taken the Chinese passengers and all of our boats except a leaky one, which, after a hasty patching, we jumped into, lowered away, and pulled for the shore, only a mile off. There we were met by a howling mob, who caught, beat us, and, stripping us of every stitch of clothing, drove us out of the village, so that we were obliged to tramp, with the rays of the burning sun blistering our backs, about five miles to the Town of Hainan, on the other side of the island. We went directly to the house of the American Consul, who received us kindly, furnished us with clothing, listened to our story, and sent for the captain of the United States steamer Ashenlot, which was lying in the harbor.

"He took us on board, steamed up to Hong Kong, sent us to the hospital, and in company with the United States steamer Piscataqua went back to Hainan, raided the village in which we had been so ill-treated, and which turned out to be the pirates' stronghold, captured about 500 Chinamen and brought them back to Hong Kong, sent them ashore, and had them file past me and my mates for identification. We picked out ninety-three of them, who were taken back on board the vessels.

"The next morning while sitting on the hospital piazza, which overlooked the harbor, we heard the sunrise gun, the shrill whistle of the boatswain, saw the ensigns fly to the peaks, and the next moment, as if by magic, from the yard-arms of the two men-of-war hung the ninety-three Chinamen. There they hung for half an hour, swaying in the breeze, a terrible example to evil-doers, when they were lowered and the bodies given to their friends.

"There ain't any such hangings nowadays," concluded the old tar, "but I never want to see such a sight again. It makes my blood creep every time I think of it, and I shall never forget it till my dying day."—[Chicago News.

We've Got 'Em.

"We've got 'em!" shouted one of the best amateur first basemen in Detroit as he entered his home last evening and before his wife had had time to realize that he was not intoxicated he reiterated: "We've got 'em!"

"Got whom?" asked Mrs. I. B.

"The 'Big Four.'"

"What big four? Whose big four?"

"The Buffaloes."

"Who's got 'em?"

"We have! the Detroits!"

"What for?"

"To keep 'em over winter and work 'em next summer," remarked the husband somewhat annoyed by his wife's failure to grasp the situation and enthuse at once.

Later in the evening the wife was overheard explaining to a lady visitor that her husband was considerably excited and deeply interested over a new enterprise or experiment which he had engaged in. They were going to winter a lot of buffaloes with a view to working them next summer after the fashion of working oxen.

How Not to Drown.

Four years ago I was floating in the surf at Atlantic City, gazing up into the sky and thinking only of its beauties, when feeling somewhat tired, I essayed to stand up, but failed for the excellent reason that I had nothing to stand on. I had, without noticing it, floated out beyond my depth. I am a very indifferent swimmer and make it a rule not to venture into the water where I cannot secure a foothold when I need one. Yet I found myself, not through any foolish venturesomeness, beyond the furthest line of bathers. Of course I immediately struck out for shore. After swimming until I felt thoroughly exhausted I found that I had made very little progress, and I also discovered that the bottom of the ocean was too far beneath me to be of any practical benefit as a basis of traveling. Now what would you do under such circumstances? Shout for help, you say. Exactly. That is, I suppose, what any well-conditioned, sensible human being would do, and yet I found myself actually ashamed to do it. I was positively morally weak enough to permit a consideration of what my fellow-man would think of me to overpower the natural sense of self-preservation. I fancied that I might be laughed at for crying for assistance before I was actually sinking beneath the waves, and so I struggled on until a sudden convulsive of twitching in the calf of my left leg told me that I had a cramp. Then I shouted, "Help!" quite lustily and shouted thrice. Nobody heard me and nobody paid any attention to me. Thanks to my good fortune, however, I remained perfectly cool, else I would not be talking to you now. I was able to recognize on the shore the faces of people I knew, and, although I experienced no sense of fear, I felt fully satisfied that I would never see them again.

Now, by all recognized rules and regulations, in such cases made and provided, the events of my entire life should have passed before me in instantaneous review. I'll guarantee that you never read a novel but what, when the hero or villain is sinking beneath the waves, he thinks with lightning-like rapidity, of every act in his career. "And as Reginald felt the cruel waters closing above him, all the deeds of his life, both good and bad, passed before him as though a panorama was being moved by some magic hand." That is about the way it generally reads, you know, and that is what should have happened to me. But I am iconoclastic and cruel enough to say that I had no such experience. I found that my mind was absorbed with but one thought, to the exclusion of all other sensations. I thought of absolutely nothing but of getting ashore as soon as possible. After my first unheeded cries for help I felt ashamed to call again, but made another effort at swimming. In my cramped condition I found this fruitless, and so I again cried out for assistance, but kept perfectly still in the water while I did it. Had I struggled I would have lost breath, and with it my life. My last shout was heard. I saw a sudden excitement on the beach. I saw men point their arms toward me. I saw others run into the water. I saw a man bring a coil of rope. I could identify the individuals who were doing these things. I watched them coming toward me and simply endeavored to keep as quiet as possible. In this way I managed to keep afloat until they got to me and dragged me to shore.

What I wish to demonstrate is that the very poorest swimmer among you is perfectly safe in the water if he only keeps cool and does not struggle when nothing is to be gained by such efforts.—[Philadelphia News.

An Awful Calamity.

"What is the matter?"

"Wife dun dead, honey."

"I am very sorry to hear that and I assure you that you have my sympathy."

"A man loses a good friend when his wife dies."

"Dat he do, honey; dat he do. I has found 'dat out ter my sor', let me tell yer, an' now my good days is all gone."

"What was the matter with your wife?"

"I dunno, honey. She tuck sick one night an' she died de naixt chenin'. It wuz er awful blow on me, fur dat 'oman wuz earnin' fifteen dollars ebery munf. LET US SEE.

The matter of the County Bonds is again being discussed, and much credit is claimed for the County Treasurer for effecting a sale of a part of the bonds at their par value. Let us see into the matter a little. Last Spring the Treasurer was very urgent upon the Supervisors to permit him to sell the bonds at ten per cent. discount. We refrained rom any discussion of the matter at hat time because we knew, what the Treasurer did not appear to know, that an express provision of law absolutely prohibited any such sacrifice of the interests of the county; that not a dollar of the bonds would ever be flung away so recklessly, and that it was a mere waste of breath to discuss such a proposition at all. We knew that when the resources of the county should become better known in financial centers there would be no trouble to find buyers for the bonds, and bent every energy to make these resources known. The sale of the bonds at par is the result. But even this sale is nothing to be proud of. It is very clear that the County Treasurer is utterly ignorant of the fact that bonds no way superior to those of Inyo county so far as security goes, and bearing from four and a half to five per cent. interest, command in New York a premium of from fifteen to twenty per cent. Even in our own State, where money has always been dearer than on the Atlantic Coast, bonds of other counties, no whit better secured than our own, sell readily on much better terms than the Treasurer got for ours. The Los Angeles Express, of January 23d, has the following:

"But an era of prosperity has come, and now bonds amounting to $437,000 and having nine years yet to run, at 7 per cent., have been refunded in San Francisco at 4½ per cent., Mr. Hellman, the negociator, assuring the holders that they could accept that rate or take the cash as they preferred, there being plenty of capital and abundance of confidence in the security to enable the county to obtain all the money required at that low rate. The Bank of California offered to loan Los Angeles money to refund her indebtedness at 4½, and the San Francisco holders of the bonds, finding that they could get no more, finally consented to receive the rate offered. The difference in interest will amount to $10,000 per annum or a total of $90,000 in nine years."

Here are bonds bearing the same rate of interest as our own, and yet the holders, rather than surrender them for cash, prefer to keep them, though in the future four and a half per cent. is all they shall be paid. No citizen of Inyo county will dare to say the bonds of Los Angeles are any better secured than our own. Instead of crowning the Treasurer with the head gear of a "plumed knight," a far more fitting decoration would be the cap and bells of a very different character. It is bad enough that heavy taxes should be imposed to pay extravagant salaries for a very trifling amount of work; it is worse when that work is done in such a way as to be an injury to the county; it is not to be endured in silence when every effort is made to extort praise for conduct that even fair Charity herself must regard as no better than sheer stupidity. Such action as urging to sell the bonds of the county at the heavy discount of ten per cent. has delayed the investment of capital in other enterprises that would be of great public benefit. Supervisor Harger is really entitled to praise for his common sense and sturdy integrity in opposing the sacrifice of the bonds, even if the sacrifice was forbidden by law.

THE Tory ministry of England has been compelled to resign, and Mr. Gladstone is once more called to the head of affairs. Toryism, with all its aristocratic prejudices and bitter opposition to needed reforms, is a thing of the past in England. With recent great additions to the popular strength in Parliament, it is no longer possible for a priviledged class to rule the country, and mold legislation to suit their own ends, and perpetuate the abuse of their power. The return of Mr. Gladstone to office is favorable to the cause of freedom for Ireland, and an evidence of the influence of Irishmen in Parliament.

A MOVEMENT is on foot in New York to head off the gold bugs. It is proposed to establish in New York, with a capital of $2,000,000, a bank in which no discrimination shall be made against silver, and wherein money of that metal will be treated the same as other currency of a par value. It is expected that such a bank will meet a popular want, and that it will draw to its counters the business of all New Yorkers not directly interested in the maintenance of a single gold standard.

—A letter from Darwin states that Eddy has struck rich gold ore at Slate Range. Samples of the ore brought in to Darwin are very rich.

—The engagement is announced of Miss Lillie Harris, daughter of Mr. I. Harris, to Mr. H. Harris of San Francisco. Mr. H. Harris is a merchant in that city.

—Molcolm McLeod was killed on Januray 28, in the King Mine, at Calico. The deceased was known by the name of "Scotty;" he was aged fifty-three years.

—The Defiance mine is showing up better than ever, and with every advance made the ore body increases in magnitude. Mitchell's teams are steadily employed hauling ore from the mine to Keeler.

—Mrs. Bayard, wife of Secretary Bayard, died at Washington last Sunday. The death of Mrs. Bayard is attributed to the shock occasioned by the sudden death of her daughter only two weeks before.

—There is a strong probability that the election of Mr. Payne, of Ohio, to the United States Senate will be declared to have been procured by fraud and bribery, and that his seat in the Senate will be declared vacant.

—All Taxpayers, whether they have paid or not, should carefully examine the Delinquent Tax List, as errors are likely to occur, which, if not attended to in time, will cause considerable inconvenience to property-owners.

—Sunday School will comence hereafter at 11 o'clock a. m. Mr. Spangler will organize a class of young gentlemen and ladies for the study of old Testament history. Preaching at Fort Independence at half past two next Sunday and at the usual hour in Independence.

—The entertainment given by the Pro-Silver Club last Tuesday evening was very successful. The Court House was filled by the audience, and the whole programme was received with much applause. The singing of Miss Elsie Eibeshutz is deserving of especial praise, and got it.

—Andrew Peterson, the man who shot Sylvester Rowe at Bodie, was examined last week before a Justice of Peace and discharged from custody, the evidence showing that the shooting of Sylvester Rowe was accidental, and that the defendant had no intent to commit any crime whatsoever.

—Quite a number of people came all the way from Bishop Creek, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Bell last Sunday. Among the number were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bourland; John Clarke, Louis Munsinger; P. W. Forbes, Esq; Mrs. Sallie Bell and many others. From Big Pine, Lone Pine and other distant points, the attendence was large.

—The citizens of Sacramento county, of all classes, professional men, merchants, artisans, farmers and laborers, have organized themselves into an Association, to obtain relief from the evils of Chinese immigration. They believe that somebody must start a movement to unify the people of the State. Accordingly, a State Convention has been called to meet at Sacramento, March 10th, 1886. Inyo county is entitled to one delegate; somebody should be sent.

FOR STOCKTON.—A medical examination was held at Independence last Wednesday on John Brisco and a Chinaman named Joe. Both were declared insane and will be taken to Stockton.

BE SURE TO ATTEND.—Attention is invited to the notice published on another column of a call for a meeting to be held at Independence, on Tuesday, February 16th, to organize a ditch company. This is a matter of very great importance and all interested are urgently requested to attend.

GENTLE CREATURES.—The Chinese have been celebrating their New Year this week. Here at Independence the gentle creatures started in with the customary fusilade of fire crackers, and then seized their knives and began carving each other up. The Sheriff went and separated them before any were killed.

WHITE LABOR PREFERRED.—The Lyon county Times says: "About 100 white men were employed by the C. & C. Railroad Company this week repairing the washouts on the road. There were but two or three Chinese employed. The bloated corporation actually gave the preference to white men and filled Dayton's saloons and boarding houses full for two or three nights, notwithstanding the argument by some that none but Chinese would be employed. Superintendent Yerington has always claimed that he preferred white labor, and this instance shows decidedly that he means what he says.

STOCK FOT SALE—The following stock is offered for sale, namely, 150 to 160 head of fine stock cattle. Also one fine stallion; one jack, weight 950 to 1000 pounds. For particulars apply to People Not Wanted.

Only a miser, an ignoramous or a beggar, will write for important information, and ask such questions as would require a long letter to answer and yet not send even a postage stamp to place upon a letter in reply. We receive by each mail large numbers of letters from all over the United States, asking about land in Owens valley. We endeavor to answer each one of these letters, and give full information in every case. Many inquirers write on postal cards, others send letters, but do not enclose stamps for a reply. We are willing to give time and labor, but cannot afford to spend fifteen dollars or more each month for postage stamps. We dont want misers, fools or beggars to come to Owens valley, and in future will take no notice of letters of inquiry, unless accompanied by postage stamps for reply.

White People Wanted.

At the request of Hotel Keepers, Mine Managers, and other business men, and many house keepers, notice is hereby given that at least fifty white cooks can find employment here in Inyo county. These people all earnestly desire to get rid of Chinese, and will do so as rapidly as other help can be found to take their places. Fair wages will be paid to sober, civil and reliable while help. Negroes will be employed at once in preference to Chinese; the people want to get rid of these pests. San Francisco and lower country papers please notice.

Personal Mention.

Miss Emma McMurry is in town visiting with Mrs. Moore.

Mr. Isaac Harris returned from San Francisco last Monday.

Doctor Summers was at Independence most of the week.

Dr. Parsons is at Independence and will go to Lone Pine and Keeler soon.

Mrs. Boland came up from Lone Pine last Monday, and stayed in town most of the week.

Postponed.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes give notice to their friends that their proposed party on February 22nd will be postponed till March 17th. Being in hearty sympathy with the object of the party to be given at Lone Pine on February 22nd, they would not have their conflict with that.

What's in a Name?

Shakespeare says What's in a name? a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." The healing power of St. Jacobs Oil does not, of course, lie in its name; but that name has virtually become a household word all over the world, because when men hear it, they recognize it as the conqueror of pain.

DAMAGE.—Considerable damage was done to the C. & C. road by the storm of last week in the neighborhood of Dayton. The Lyon county Times says: "At 6 o'clock in the evening the stream of water coming down Eldorado canyon was so great that it filled the culvert on the C. & C. road just across the big bridge. It was thought by some that the trestle would stand, but the large boulders that were hurled against the bents soon loosened them and the water washed them away. At eleven o'clock the entire structure was gone and the embankment of the railroad washed away within two hundred feet of the large railroad bridge. The train from the South was stopped in Churchill canyon by a long and deep washout and in attempting to return to Wabuska found that another portion of the track had been carried away since it had come over it; therefore it was stalled between two breaks in the road. It is not known exactly what the damage to the road will amount to, but it will certainly be many thousands of dollars."

VERY CREDITABLE.—The entertainmont gotten up by Rev. Mr. Spangler was very creditable to all concerned. Indeed it is wounderful how he could take twenty four children and train them to do so well in such short time. The Church was filled to overflowing by a well pleased and appreciative audience. So far as music was concerned, the one feature of the entertainment was the singing of Mr. Barrows, which was a treat the audience heartly enjoyed and as heartily applauded. The little ones did remarkably well.

MINING REPORT.— Superintendent's Office Modoc Con. Mining Co., Lookout, Inyo Co. Cal., February 2, 1886. J. W. PEW, SEC., Dear Sir:—The ore body in Lookout is still opening up From foot to hanging there is four and one-half feet of clean ore. Daily output, five tons. Am compelled to work six hour shifts on account of bad air, heat and dust. The usual amount of high grade ore is being extracted from No. 3 Con. and South Lookout. Will start furnace as soon as sufficient material is on hand. Thirteen miners employed. Very Respectfully Yours,

FRANK FITZGERALD, Lessee.

ROUGH TRIP.—Mr. Conklin and family had a rough trip to Los Angeles. They were detained three days at Newhall by storm, and from there in the trip was full of peril. Twice the wheel horses were mired to their backs, and twice the whole team had to swim the Los Angeles river. All at last reached the city in safety.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

Possibilities in a Word.

A gentleman who was away from home, was writing to his wife from the office of a hotel, when he paused a moment in his occupation and looked perplexed; then he touched the arm of another traveler sitting near him in a timid, deprecating way.

"Excuse me, sir," he said courteously, "but I am puzzled how to spell a word I desire to write," and he pronounced it carefully.

"Don't mention it," responded the other with the heartiness of good-fellowship. I rather flatter myself that spelling is my strong point. E-x-t-a-see—there! Glad to accommodate you."

"Thank you," said the gentleman who was writing the letter, "my wife is so particular, that I am ashamed of my poor spelling, as it constantly annoys her. I can tackle ordinary words easy enough, but those uplex-spring-back-action, double and twist throwers, are too much for me," and he resumed his letter with a relieved look.

"Pardon me," remarked a gentleman, who had been dozing in his chair, "but I think there is a slight mistake in orthography here. I have always spelled that word e-x-t-a-c-y."

"Gentlemen," said a clerical-looking man coming forward, "I am a professor in a college and am positive that the letter x is not in the word at all. It is spelled 'e-c-s-t-a-c-y.'"

"Say! ain't you fellers all wrong?" inquired a long-legged traveler, who had been listening earnestly to the discussion. "I teach spellin' schule winters, out in Arkansaw, and I've allus spelt that thare word 'eggstazy.' Ef that don't spell it, what do it spell then?"

The bewildered traveler concluded that perhaps it would be as well to spell the word in his own way, and so wrote to his wife that no pen could describe his e-k-s-t-a-c-e on receiving a letter from her.

All of which methods of spelling the word, differ from Mr. Noah Webster's.

Same Man.

Some time ago a confidential clerk in the employ of a firm in Indiana skipped the gutter with several thousand dollars in ready cash. While it was determined to hunt him down at all hazards, the firm did not feel like wasting a great deal of money in so doing. A one-horse country detective was therefore employed, and after a while he traced his man to Detroit. The detective didn't propose to share any of the glory with the Detroit officers, and he slid around for a week before he learned that his man was in Windsor. Then he went over there, still working on the quiet, and a nice young man at one of the hotels informed him that the defaulter had just gone to Toronto, but would be back in a few days. The pair became fast friends, and the nice young man had his daily drinks and cigars, at the detective's expense. The two came over to Detroit, and attended the theater, and had good times, and it was the opinion of the officer, that he never met such a nice young man. Finally, a night or two ago, as they landed from the boat on the other side, the detective inquired:—

"You must be an agent of some sort?"

"Oh, no," was the reply, "I am simply traveling for pleasure."

"Where do you live when at home?"

"In Indiana."

"Why, I'm from Indiana!"

"Yes, you told me so the first day."

"Whereabouts in Indiana?"

"Vincennes."

"Good gracious! but my home is only three miles from Vincennes."

"Yes, I know."

"What did you do in Vincennes?"

"Clerked for Lath & Shingles."

"What! Why, that is the very firm that was robbed!"

"Yes, I know," was the placid reply.

"And your name is—what?" queried the detective.

"William Green!"

"Great Scots! but you are the chap who stole the money!" howled the officer.

"Yes, certainly! What are you going to do about it?" camly replied the nice young man, as he lighted another fifteen center.—[Detroit Free Press.

The Prince of Wales.

His lot is not without trials. Nobody in the kingdom is harder worked or undergoes more fatigue of a certain wearing sort than the Prince and Princess of Wales, and in a less degree the other members of reigning family. They are not only deprived of all privacy, not only always in the world, and before the world, always attended by persons of consequence and exposed to comment and criticism from fastidious tastes, and censorious tongues, but they are dragged from one ceremony to another, from a gallery to a hospital, from a levee to a procession, from a dinner to a ball, till life must often become a weariness. Yet they must never fail to keep an engagement, and they are bound always to display the especial "politeness of kings"—punctuality. They must be civil when they are worn out, and gracious when they are sleepy; they must remember the names, and faces of the thousands to whom their recognition is an honor; for all this is their trade. They are trained to it from childhood. They do remember people; they are punctual and polite; all of which should be borne in mind for them, when people carp and criticise. The Prince is personally popular, among those who surround him closest. THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

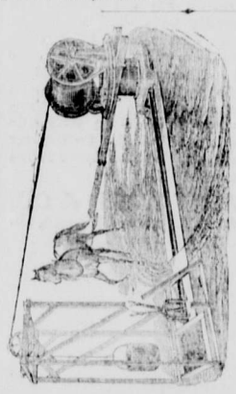
Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine in use for the reduction of the kind, and is adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the past TWO YEARS and in every one, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month in a year. One of the most valuable features is AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its cost for this purpose alone.



BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

Joe Berliner's Memory.

Joe Berliner, an errand boy in the employ of a hat manufacturer of Philadelphia, has a curious and prodigious memory. There are over 375 fire alarms boxes in this city and about 5,000 fires have occurred within the past four years. Joe Berliner knows the location of every box and the date of every one of the 5,000 fires. He not only can tell the date, but he is able to give the exact minute the alarm was struck and what fire companies went to it. About four years ago he walked into Mr. James' establishment and applied for work. He was asked what reference he had, and he answered: "My mother." He was employed as an errand boy and has occupied that position ever since. Joe cannot read and on most subjects he is not particularly bright, but when it comes to anything about fires he is a prodigy.

He is also a walking hat-store directory and knows the address of every hatter in Philadelphia. Joe was visited at his employer's place on Saturday and put through an examination that would have frightened a civil service applicant into a fit. He seemed to rather enjoy it and did not make a slip. Joe is about 20 years old and a rather queer looking fellow. The shape of his head is remarkable. His forehead is very low, narrow, and receding. His eyes are bright and intelligent and his face wears a pleasant, good-natured expression. He laughed as he answered the questions put to him and seemed to thoroughly enjoy his catechism. Number after number was given him from the printed list of fire alarm boxes, and as quickly as the number of a box left the lips of the speaker, Joe would name the street where the box is located.

"Forty-two, Joe?" would be asked.

"Shur's lane and Main Street, Manayunk," would come quick as a flash.

"Three fifty-eight?"

"Sixty-third and Vine. It was never pulled there, though. It used to be at Front and Leland Avenue, but was moved."

"Three fifty-five?"

"There ain't such a box. There's three fifty-four; that's at Mount Airy and Main Streets. It rang at ten minutes of 9 o'clock last Monday morning. Hadn't been pulled before for a year."

This sort of conversation was kept up for three-quarters of an hour, but Joe never hesitated in his answers. He would also give the numbers of the engines that went to each fire, how many alarms were struck, the extent of the fire as learned from the firemen and any incidents of note connected with it. He was as well informed about false alarms as he was about the fires.

His answers were verified at the Insurance Patrol station on Arch Street, above Fifth. The firemen all know him there. They call him Jo-Jo. Every day he stops in at the station to look at the horses and inspect the patrol wagons. The men ask him all sorts of questions about fires and try to catch him in a wrong answer, but they never succeed. When he is not busy at his employer's store he amuses himself by pulling off his coat, lying down and getting some one to call out the number. Then he jumps up, shouts the location of the station whose number has been given and goes rushing down the store, pulling on his coat on the way, as he has seen the firemen do. He attended a night school about a year ago for just four nights. On the fourth night an engine passed the school-house on the way to a fire, and Joe was following that engine in less than ten seconds. He never went to school again.

When his employer makes out his customers' bills he keeps Joe in the office. As soon as the name of a hat firm is called, Joe gives the address and so saves the trouble of hunting it up. Mr. James says he is perfectly honest and faithful and is as good an errand boy as he ever saw.—[Philadelphia Times.

SHE WAS BEAUTIFUL.

The Colonel Tells How and When He Met Her.

They were sitting spinning yarns in the law office of Cox & Grider the other afternoon. The conversation had turned upon the subject of beautiful women, and where the handsomest women were to be found. There was a great diversity of opinion expressed, the majority stoutly maintaining, of course, that the girl par excellence was not to be seen outside the glorious sovereignty of old Kentucky.

"Gentlemen," remarked the old Colonel, who had been appealed to for his views of the situation, "the most perfect figure and prettiest face I ever saw were in the wilds of Arkansaw. A party of us were out hunting, over in the swamps between the White and Arkansaw Rivers. Toward sunset we came to a deep and muddy bayou, which we knew at a glance it would be impossible to ford. On the opposite shore a canoe of the 'dug-out' pattern indigenous to the country was moored. Away behind the trees a blue wreath of smoke curled quietly heavenward, marking the place where some settler had built his cabin in the lonely waste.

"After a series of yells from our guide that would have reflected credit on a Comanche brave about to take the war path, a woman glided down to the bank on the other side, gracefully seated herself in the canoe, and commenced paddling toward us with strong, swift strokes. As she neared the place where we were standing, we all saw she was young—not more than nineteen—and with a face of surpassing loveliness. Her complexion was of that perfect brunette type only to be found in those whose ancestors for many generations have lived beneath the sunny skies; her cheeks had the indescribable tint so often seen on the sun-kissed side of a ripe peach; her mouth was exquisite, with pouting lips like twin cherries; her hair floated down her back in silken, shining wavelets nearly to the ground; and her eyes! ah, gentlemen, how shall I describe the midnight splendor or the transcendent glories to be seen in the liquid depths of those dark orbs?

"As she stepped lightly out on the bank and stood holding the 'dug-out' for us to get into," continued the old gentleman, "she displayed the most ravishingly perfect figure I ever beheld. She was dressed in the single cotton garment, fashioned out of coarse 'factory,' which is worn by the females of her class in those distant wilds. It had evidently been made a year or two before, for she had outgrown it to such an extent that it imperfectly performed the duties for which it had been constructed. It revealed a bust with which in artistic outlines the famous Venus di Medici could not compare. The short skirt permitted a glimpse of her ankles, that were absolutely faultless, and——"

"I have a book here, gentlemen, which I should like to show you, if you will permit me," said a dapper little fellow, stepping briskly in.

He was met with a howl of dissent from the Major and the Judge and the Captain and the old 'Squire, so wild and fierce that he never stopped running until he was down the stairs.

"Go on, Colonel; oh, go on!" was the unanimous demand of his listeners. The old Judge stepped quietly over, closed the door, and locked it, remarking, his American heart would be dadbinged if he proposed that story would be interrupted any more, if the Court knew herself, or words to that effect.

"I don't know that I have any more to tell," was the reply.

"Colonel," solemnly said the venerable Major, "if you leave that peerless girl standing there holding a canoe on the bank of that muddy bayou, I'll hold you personally responsible—I will, as sure as there is a God in Heaven."

"We didn't leave her there," responded the Colonel. "She paddled us across the stream, and when we asked what she charged, she said: 'Oh, nuthin', I reckon; pop went a b'ar huntin' this mawnin', and took all the terbacker with him; ef one o' you fellers'll give me a chaw I'll call it squar.' We gave her a chaw and went on about our business. I never saw her again."

"I believe you're a liar," vociferated the Judge as he unlocked the door; "an infernal old bald-headed liar.

"So do I," chimed in each of his listeners as they passed out and followed the irate leader down the stairs to the street below.

The question of which State produces the most beautiful women is still before the house.—[Louisville Courier-Journal.

Where Camphor Comes From.

While only 225 miles long and 85 wide, the Island of Formosa, just conquered by the French, is very valuable for its richness in animal and vegetable life. One of its products is camphor, of which it is the world's chief source of supply, although the tree (laurus camphora) also grows in Borneo, Sumatra, Japan and China. The camphor is distilled from finely cut wood in gently heated crucibles, the vapors being condensed upon a net-work of rice stems.

In a Western town a handsome young man was discovered to be a woman, and a local paper heads an item in reference to it "A Good Man Gone."

Theories about Tobacco.

In spite of the opposition encountered by our protest against cigarette smoking, which, it will be remembered, first raised the question about this form of the use of tobacco, it is now generally admitted that we were right and our opponent wrong in the matter. The rapid consumption of the finely-shreded leaves very close to the mouth has been proved to render the practice of smoking cigarettes peculiarly objectionable. Moreover, it has been shown that, although the use of a tube and the provision of a plug of cotton will lessen the evil, they do not wholly deprive the cigarette of its objectionable qualities. We are not, as is well known, advocates of the disuse of tobacco. If moderately and wisely employed it is a valuable sedative to the nerves, and has an especially soothing influence in the majority of instances. There are, however, certain properties of the tobacco smoke which ought to be more generally understood. It is unquestionably in some way a special sedative to the heart's action. We are not in the least surprised to find it stated that a considerable proportion of the boys medically examined for the United States navy are rejected on the score of "weakness of the heart," and that this should be attributed to the habit of smoking cigarettes. As we pointed out when first directing attention to the subject, the sphygmograph shows a peculiar influence to be exerted by the smoking of tobacco, particularly in the form of cigarettes, on the pulse, partly due to the depression of the heart's action and partly to the loss of vasomotor tone in the arteries. Those practitioners who do not habitually use the sphygmograph in their daily work, but content themselves with simply feeling the pulse with the fingers, may not be aware of this fact. It is a fact, nevertheless. To the sedative action of the tobacco on the heart may possibly be due that agreeable sense of quietude and of "cooling" which is commonly experienced when smoking in the heat of summer.

The points for which we are now especially anxious to call consideration are these: 1. The influence of tobacco is apparently cumulative. A warning sense of excess in the use of tobacco generally comes too late. The pipe, cigar, or cigarette may be laid aside, but the depressing or nauseating effect increase for some time. Nevertheless there is no valid reason to suppose tobacco or nicotine does not actually accumulate. 2. Excitation of the nerve centers, as by oxidation, seems to intensify the effects of tobacco when once taken into the system. On going out into the air and breathing quickly the characteristic sensations are nearly always for a time aggravated. 3. A cigar or cigarette smoked through a fine tube is generally "stronger" in its influence than the same smoked without a tube. These three results of observation and experiment seem to suggest the conclusion that the action of tobacco is topical as regards the nerves, the afferent radicles being first acted upon, and when these are brought under its influence the centers being affected from the periphery. In short, we incline to think tobacco is not absorbed, or if it be, its action is not due to absorbtion, but that it operates as a peripheral sedative, like cocaine, and produces its general effects, as cocoa stops the sense of hunger, by numbing the nerves of the stomach, the central effects being secondary, and to some extent reflex. It is worth while to pursue this subject further. We incline to think that tobacco may be found to have as yet unsuspected value therapeutically, if we can only arrive at a correct notion of the precise manner in which its effects are produced, and then determine how to use it. Great good would result from the recognition of tobacco as a drug, if only because then its abuses could be restrained. In the old days, before chloroform and other anæsthetics were discovered, the use of tobacco as a potent sedative to relax the muscles in dislocations and to facilitate the reduction of herniæ was a clumsy expedient. It was speedily abandoned when better stupefying agents were provided. It would, however, have been wiser to investigate the action of the agent more closely instead of throwing it wholly aside.—[London Lancet.

He Forgot Himself.

A well known, in fact a prominent, citizen of Portland, now deceased, was twice married, and had a large family of children by each wife. A short time ago two of the children by the first wife went to the cemetery to visit their parents' graves. The first wife's children were named Oliver, John, Abbie, and Anna, and John and Abbie were the two survivors who were making the visit. "There" said Abbie, pointing to the mounds, "are father's and mother's graves; Oliver's is on father's right and Anna's on mother's left." The brother, pulling his moustache and trying to take it in, replied, "father's, mother's, Oliver's, and Anna's; yes, I see, but I thought there was a John." When he came to a realizing sense of the situation he begged his sister not to give him away. How it was found out we have no idea.—[Portland (Me.) Press

BURDETTE DISCOURSETH.

The Classes of People You Meet Upon the Trains.

Now there abideth on the railway car, and travels up and down the land therein, the citizen whose name is Legion, William H. H. Legion, of Legionville, Legion County, and this is the manner of man he is:—

One of him talketh politics. From the time he getteth upon the train until he steppeth off he talketh the local politics of Deddangon County into the weary ears of the stranger from farther India, who knoweth about American politics far less than the pig at the corn pen knoweth about the new star in Andromeda.

And another of him is the man who gets carried by. Never a train yet run upon wheels that did not carry some man by. The brakeman, with the rich tenor voice, opens the front door and shrieks, in ear-splitting falsetto, "Wood lawn! Wood lawn!" Then the brakeman, with the deep bass voice, opens the rear door and roars, "Wood lawn! Wood lawn!" The train boy goes down the aisle with his books and apples and squeaks, "Woodlawnwoodlawn." Finally enters the conductor, who says, in tones of impressive dignity and official authority, "Wood lawn; Wood lawn." The train stops. The passenger raises a window and looks out at the village. Ten miles farther on the brakeman with the tenor voice opens the door, a cinder flies down his throat and chokes his utterance, he gasps feebly and inarticulately, "Winsherunchun." The astonished passenger springs to his feet. "Winchester junction!" he howls; "why in the name of goodness didn't you tell me when we came to Woodlawn? Now I can't get home till to-morrow morning! I'll report you for neglecting to call out stations; see if I don't!"

And there is the man who gets off the train every time it stops, rushes down the platform, gets in everybody's way, forces his way into the waiting-room while everybody else is trying to get out, peers into the ticket offices, always wants to know, "Where the mischief is the telegraph operator?" Never reads a telegram; never knows what to say if the operator is at his post; always peeps into the baggage car to see if he can discover his own trunk, which was put on ten hours and 250 miles ago; gets thumped with trunks and pinched by trucks; gets deeper in the way every time he tries to get out of it; never sees anybody he knows on the whole trip and would be amazed if he did, and rides in his seat so little of the time that it doesn't pay him to claim it when he sees any one else in it, although that is the only time he wants it.

And there is the man who is familiar with all the train men: he calls the conductor "George," and the brakemen "Johnny," and addresses the waiters at the dining station by their first names. If, however, he speaks to a fellow-passenger, he calls him, "Say, you." He stops the conductor when that official is the busiest to ask him about brakeman on freight trains of whom the conductor had never heard, nor any other man, possibly. He calls the length of the car to the newsboy, to know when we pass "ninety-seven," and if "Bill Stunt is runnin' her to-day?" His withering contempt for passengers is something immeasurably painful to the unhappy people who are obliged to travel. This man, whom you have often met, has two or three origins. He usually travels on a trip pass, and used to sweep out the general offices when the regularly ordained janitor had to take the superintendent's place. He isn't a railroad man, but he'd give both his legs if he could make people think he is.

There are two men in a seat near the stove exchanging recipes for rheumatism and other ills to which human flesh is heir. One of them had the "janders" all last spring. They "come onto" him just as he was getting over a spell of "neuralagy" and left him just in time for two weeks' "rassel with lumbago in the spine in the back." That isn't what ails him now, though. It's this "miasma in his system" and the things he has been and is yet taking for it are numerous enough and various enough to kill off a county almshouse. The other man had "a malignant tumor" on his hip all winter, and the only thing his doctor could do with it was to throw him into a "bronchial fever," the effects of which were still painfully apparent in chilblains and "execrated sore throat." Every time he "swollers" he'd "druther die'n swoller agin." So these two sufferers while away weary hours telling each other infallible cures for all the things the other man has.

And then there are four other people on the train; they are on every train that ever turned a wheel—the two young married people who have just been married, and the omnipresent other two young people, the two who want to be married.

Carlyle as a School-master.

Jonathan Findlay, now a resident of Montreal, Canada, was more than sixty years ago a pupil of Carlyle's, who, Mr. Findlay says, was a cruel tyrant, ruling a class of trembling boys with a rod of iron. He was rough and uncouth in his appearance and no one suspected that within him were the elements of a great and successful writer.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL
SATURDAY, MARCH 6, ...1886

It would appear that a majority of English Statesmen concede the justice of Home Rule for Ireland. The great question left to decide is what form it shall take. The only opponents of Home Rule are religious bigots, haughty aristocrats, jealous of class privilege, and those who hate all liberal and progressive ideas. The enemies of Irish freedom belong to a past age, its friends to the living present.

THE persistent, peaceful efforts now making all over the Pacific Coast to get rid of the Chinese will do more to remove the plague than all the efforts that could be made in Congress. When we have driven the Chinese out of the State by refusing to employ them in any capacity, or to buy any article of their production, then Congress might be induced to pass some effective measure for their exclusion when it is no longer needed.

The Exhaustion of the Public Domain.

We think the facts stated in an article in the January (1886) number of the North American Review, entitled "Landlordism in America," demand the grave and careful consideration of all who have believed in the possibilities of a better government on this continent than any yet attained in Europe. The Scientific American says:

It will be a matter of almost startling surprise to most people, and to many who are much better informed than the average, that out of 25,560,000 acres "of arable public lands, which could be cultivated without irrigation or other artificial appliances," possessed by the government in 1879, not more than 5,000,000 acres remain.

But this rapid absorption of the land would not be so serious a matter—in fact, would be a subject of congratulation—had the fertile regions so rapidly taken up passed into the hands of industrious farmers in plots of 160 acres, as the government originally intended. Unfortunately, this is not the case.

It seems almost that the gospel of greed has taken fatal possession of the people of this country. The tricks, subterfuges, and frauds by which laws intended to be beneficent have been wrested from their purpose—for instance, the timber culture, pre-emption, and desert laws—and made to play into the hands of unscrupulous speculation; the laxity of public administration, the careless and unscrupulous legislation by which territory large enough for an empire has been made over to irresponsible corporations, form a chapter in American history which will not shed a halo of glory upon our institutions in future ages; and all the more will this darken the page, since we had the example of Rome, England, and Germany to warn, and that of France to instruct us, both as to the danger of the absorption of small holdings by land monopolists and the creation of a class of tenant farmers, and the value to a nation of a rural population of actual owners of small farms.

The author of the article shows from the census that five years ago "the total number of persons engaged in agriculture was 7,670,493, of which only 2,984,306 are registered as the nominal owners of their holdings." The rest are "tenants paying rent to landlords, or agricultural laborers." It is well known that the next census will show a large increase in the number of tenant farmers. Contrast this with the status of France, which, with a population of 12,000,000 less than that of the United States, has 5,000,000 rural proprietors holding less than 20 acres apiece and working their holdings with their own hands, and 2,000,000 proprietors of holdings of more than 20 acres apiece. An array of most important facts besides those to which we have directed especial attention are presented; but the most un-American feature of the entire business is the obtaining through indirect methods of large tracts of land by foreigners who do not reside in the country, and some of whom do not even pay taxes here, these lands being let out to tenants with all the pleasant features of landlordism in England and Ireland.

One notable instance is cited—that of an "Irishman who has earned an unpleasant notoriety as a landlord in his own country." This man owns over 80,000 acres of land, 40,000 acres being in one county, and derives over $1,000,000 cash rental from the estate, which is sent to him to spend in England, where he resides. The tenants are required in their leases to pay the taxes on the property occupied by them.

We cannot give space to further comments upon the important and timely publication of these facts and figures, which show, however surprising the statement may be, that America possesses now the largest class of tenant farmers of any existing nation.

Iritable Temper.

Moroseness and despondency, dyspepsia, constipation, piles and debility are commonly due to a morbid liver. These ailments are readily removed and cured by Simmons Liver Regulator—a purely vegetable tonic, cathartic and alterative.

Alden's Cyclopedia of Universal Literature.

This work is the outcome of many years of planning and preparation. It will be an almost indispensable work of reference for every library, large or small, a trustworthy guide to what is most worth knowing of the literature of all ages and all nations. Occupying a dozen or more volumes, and yet issued at a price so low as to be within the reach of all, a familiarity with its contents will constitute a liberal education to a degree that can be claimed for few other works in existence. Dr. Lossing, the eminent historian and author, says of it; "I am strongly impressed with the great intrinsic value of the work as a popular educator in a high department of learning. The plan is admirable. Combining as it does a personal knowledge of an author with specimens of his or her best literary productions, gives it an inestimable power for good among the people." The work is being published in parts of 160 pages each, paper covers, at the price of 15 cents, also in very handsome cloth-bound volumes, gilt tops, 480 pages, for 60 cents. The parts can be exchanged for bound volume at any time. Five parts are now ready, also the first bound volume; volume two will be issued in March. The publisher's 132-page illustrated catalogue of standard books may be had for 4 cents, or condensed 16-page catalogue, free. John B. Alden Publisher, New York.

Notes on Science and Industry.

Bisulphide of carbon, M. Pasture thinks, will become the most efficacious of all antiseptics, as it is also the cheapest, costing but a fraction of a penny per pound in large quantity. It is likewise the best insecticide known, and for this purpose may, it is thought, be useful for preserving wood-work in tropical countries. Some idea of the use it is already put to may be gathered from the fact, as stated, that more than 8,000,000 pounds of the substance are used annually to check the ravages of phylloxera. Carbon bisulphide, as produced, though an extremely offensive compound in respect to odor, is capable of complete purification.

The fact is mentioned that sponge is one of the most valuable materials for filtering for distilled water—the operation going on with great rapidity, while the product is remarkably clear. Distilled water, when filtered through paper, soon exhibits a sediment which is never formed when filtered through sponge. The improved apparatus, as described, consists of a bottle with an opening near the bottom, from which descends a bent glass tube, with a perforated rubber stopper at each end bearing a narrower glass tube. The wide tube contains one or two long strips of fine sponge that have been cleaned with diluted hydrochloric acid and then dried.

Comparative tests of the granites of New England and Minnesota, instituted by Professor Winchell, with a view to determine their crushing strength, exhibit some surprising differences. The pieces employed for this purpose were two-inch cubes unpolished, and, crushed between wooden cushions, the average strength of twenty specimens of Minnesota granite was found to be 93,272 pounds, or 23,318 pounds per square inch; crushed between steel plates, the average strength was 104,800 pounds, or 26,200 pounds to the square inch of surface. The average obtained for the same number of specimens of New England granite was 59,736 pounds, or 14,756 pounds per square inch. The age of Minnesota granites is archæn; that of New England granites is not definitely known.

Among the compositions for cementing iron, one that will resist heat and water, according to a German paper, is a combination of ten parts lime, five of iron filings, two of vinegar, and three of water; for objects which have to be heated, one hundred parts of iron filings, fifty of clay, ten of common salt, and twenty of quartz sand; for fastening iron to stone, the composition may consist of ten parts of fine iron filings, thirty parts plaster of Paris, and one-half part sal ammoniac, these to be mixed to a fluid paste with weak vinegar, and applied at once; for a cement for iron cisterns, the finest iron filings are to be mixed with vinegar, this being allowed to stand until it becomes brown, and the mass is then pressed into the joints very closely and firmly.

A very simple, though somewhat expensive arrangement of telephone wires has been introduced in a Glasgow merchant's office, by which, it is stated, the annoyances of induction are prevented. The office is connected with the proprietor's dwelling house, some thirty miles distant, by a private line. To prevent disturbance from the induction of other wires, he employs a return wire, and the wires are simply arranged in a spiral or helical form, as follows: Suppose each post to be provided with four insulators, arranged at the four angles of a square, the sending wire is attached to insulator 1 on the first post, 2 on the second, 3 on the third, 4 on the fourth, 1 on the fifth, and so on. The return wire is attached to the insulators at the opposite corners of the square, or what would correspond to that position, thus forming the helix.

The Waters of Utah.

There is a pool in Utah only a foot deep, and situated at a high altitude, that refuses to freeze even in the severest winters. There is another that mysteriously replenishes itself with half-grown trout. One stream, though clear as crystal to the eye, and tasteless, stains all vegetation it flows over a deep brown. A warm spring near Salt Lake City is the strongest sulphur water in the world. A hot spring a few miles off, with waters so hot that you can hardly put your hands into them, and as bright as diamonds, is one of the most remarkable combinations of chemicals ever analyzed.

Some interesting particulars are given by M. Escalle, director of the important works at Tamaris, in regard to the employment of blocks of compressed coal, in lieu of coke, for blast furnaces. With the ores of the country, which are argilo-silicious and small, the quantity of compressed fuel employed is 20 per cent, but with those of Motka or Pilhals it reaches regularly 30 per cent. It has been found that by the use of these blocks a much higher temperature of hot blast is obtained, and that the proportion of combustible consumed—coke and compressed coal included—per ton of pig iron produced is less than with coke alone. M. Escalle attributes this result to the quantity of water, 1½ per cent, contained in the compressed coal blocks used by him, as well as to the nature of the volatile matters. It appears that the volume of gas obtained per ton of the compressed fuel, at these works, was some 7,620 feet.

The improved kind of explosive recently brought to notice in foreign journals, and known as cocoa powder, is said to possess such superior value for many purposes that it has been introduced in the famous Krupp factory. It is asserted that, with equal pressure, this substance gives greater velocity to a ball than can be attained with ordinary powder, while its smoke is found to be less dense and to clear off more quickly. It is brown, or, rather, chocolate colored. In sundry tests about one-seventh less of it was required than of the ordinary kind of powder to produce given results. The merit which is specially advanced in its favor is, briefly, that of beginning its combustion moderately and steadily, and then, when the projectile has started through the bore, burning with great rapidity, and with, of course, tremendous impelling force. The method of preparation and the cost as compared with other explosives is not stated.

Thomas James, of Gainesville, Fla., is the father of fifty-four children, thirty-three of whom are living. Old bachelors look upon him as a terrible example.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, MARCH 6.....1886

—Assessor Irwin has started out to make the county assessment.

—A car load of cattle was shipped from Rawson's ranch to Belleville a few days ago.

—About ten men are at work prospecting in the Ygnacio mine, Cerro Gordo.

—The school at George's Creek has been closed: the term of six months having ended.

—The remains of Edward A. Gifford were buried at the Odd Follows cemetery at Independence yesterday.

—The ball at Keeler comes off a week from next Wednesday. Quite a number will go from Independence.

—Beef by the quarter at reasonable rates at the butcher shop, Independence. Nothing but first class cattle are slaughtered.

—If the people of Owens valley were not taxed so heavily to pay extravagant salaries, they could afford to invest more money in building ditches.

—Poultry raising ought to be a profitable business in Owens valley. Eggs are in great demand at 25 to 30 cents a dozen: chickens are in demand at five to six dollars a dozen.

—Last Monday a man named Frank Agnew was killed in the Douglass mill at Dayton. He was caught by a revolving shaft, and had been whirled around for some time before being discovered. The body was badly torn.

—Parties who came in from Beveridge at the beginning of the week report from three to five feet of snow on the Inyo mountains. The prospect for a good water season is good.

—It is reported that at least 700 Knights Templars of California will go to the triennial Conclave at St. Louis next September. It is reported that the round trip tickets will not cost to exceed $80.

—Part of the lumber for the new mill at Panamint has been delayed beyond Darwin by snow on the mountains. The roads will be open again in a few days when hauling will be resumed. Teams will soon start for Mojave to bring in roofing and machinery for the mill.

—Captain Keeler has been lecturing in San Francisco on the resources and scenery of Inyo county. The lectures are illustrated by stereoscopic views, particularly of the region about Mount Whitney. The San Francisco papers make very favorable comments on the lectures.

—The trial of James C. Brown, for killing B. J. Shay on October 23 of last year, when Shay was sitting at dinner at the Nevada Restaurant, in San Francisco, with Mrs. Brown and a friend, was concluded by the jury returning a verdict of not guilty. Mr. Reddy defended Brown on his trial.

—An Iowa legislator proposes to make a law that when a man applies for a marriage license he shall satisfy the Clerk that he is able to support a wife and children. To this should be added a provision, that every man who can support a wife and children should be compelled to marry.

—A great railroad war now in progress offers a good opportunity to promote immigration into the State. It is announced that one of the great railroads interested in transcontinental traffic has reduced first-class fares from the Missouri River to San Francisco to $30, and third-class, or imigrant to $20.

—Quite a party were at Independence from Lone Pine last Wednesday, to attend a law suit. The case is between Max Cohn, as assignee of E. Cohn & Company, and S. T. Preston. The case was called in the Justice's Court, and by consent of both parties was set for trial on Monday, April 5th at 10 o'clock, a. m.

—Inyo county is now being frequently mentioned in Pacific Coast and Eastern newspapers as a region offering great attractions to settlers. As the great resources of the county become better known, more consideration will be given to the matter and beyond any doubt there will be a rush of people here soon.

—Mr. E. A. Gifford, who died at Taboose Ranch last Thursday, formerly lived at Quincy, Illinois, but was a native of New York. He came to Owens valley in the hope of gaining improved health, but was too long a victim of consumption to be cured. He leaves a widow and two daughters, one of them married.

—A cold snap set in at the beginning of the week, that checked the blooming out of fruit trees. Several nights thin ice formed on water in shallow pools. This was the coldest weather of the winter. No material damage was done to fruit trees. This cold snap is regarded rather as an advantage than otherwise, as it will hold back the fruit blossoms till there is less liability to injury from frost.

—The minister at Independence is a scholarly man, a good preacher, heart-and devoted to his holy work, and earnestly desires to promote the temporal welfare of the people, as well as to lead them to eternal happiness. No matter how much people may differ in opinion about creeds or dogmas, all may join together in prayer and praise to Almighty God, and by so joining will be better, and the happier. Old and young should attend the services conducted by Mr. Spangler.

Self Preservation.

The people in Carson are in earnest about getting rid of the Chinese. A large meeting was held last Saturday evening to discuss the matter. The Virginia Enterprise says:

The Anti-Chinese meeting held in Carson Saturday evening was very fully attended and a lively interest manifested. The Index of Saturday morning said: "There has been so very much balderdash indulged in at the Anti-Chinese meetings that folks are getting tired of attending, but this evening there will be sensible talks by responsible men." The Index prognosticated correctly. The meeting was addressed by Hon. C. F. McGlashan, of the Truckee Republican, who made a lengthy and very practically sensible speech on the subject, which was attentively listened to throughout. The speaker mentioned a talk he had with Yerington & Bliss, and told the meeting how they had authorized him to state that their firm would employ no Chinamen in their business, and that the only ones they now employed were six cooks, and their places would be given to white men if they could be procured. At the close of Mr. McGlashan's remarks a vote of thanks and three cheers and a tiger were given, and three cheers were also proposed for Yerington & Bliss, which were given with a will.

What The Canal Will Do.

Surveyor Seeley estimates that the projected canal from Charlie's Butte will irrigate about forty-eight thousand acres of land. Much of this is the best land in Owens valley. The soil is varied, part of it would be best suited to grain, part to alfalfa, and much of it would be admirably suited to orchards and vineyards. None of the land is more than four or five miles distant from the Carson & Colorado railroad. Thousands of acres of this land is yet unlocated, it belongs to the Government, and only awaits actual settlers to be converted into fruitful fields, orchards and vineyards. Not only the unlocated lands, but all the land in the valley already held by actual settlers would be increased in value to a vast extent. This canal is the most important work of the kind ever projected in Inyo county. Every citizen of the county is directly interested in the success of the undertaking, its completion will benefit all, more especially those who already own land.

The Marble Works.

At the marble works Mr. Luce is pushing his preparations as rapidly as possible to open up the quarry extensively. A new boarding house is now well along toward completion: when this is finished twenty-five men will at once be put to work, and more force will be added as new ground is opened up. Already there is quite an air of activity at Swansea.

A Mothers Fears.

E. W. C.—We know that many children have died from the use of cough mixtures containing morphia or opium. But the new remedy—Red Star Cough Cure—is entirely vegetable and harmless, and eminent physicians testify as to its currative powers.

A RELIABLE HOUSE.—Attention is invited to the advertisement of Weinstock & Lubin, of Sacramento. This firm is well and favorably known all over the Pacific Coast. Everything that they advertise to do will be carried out with scrupulous fidelity. So honorable are they in all their dealings that from a small beginning they have in a few years built up a business where they employ over one hundred and fifty clerks. Orders may be sent with the perfect confidence that they will be filled to the very letter.

LIKE A SWINDLE.—During the past two weeks we have received several letters making inquiries about parties who advertised in the San Francisco Chronicle to sell lands in Owens Valley. The lands were offered at a dollar and and a half an acre, fifty cents down and the balance in three years. This is evidently a swindle. Not an acre of located land in Owens Valley would be sold for the price stated, and of course the unlocated land belongs to the Government and is open to settlement by actual settlers. There is room enough in Owens Valley for large numbers of settlers, but no one should give the least attention to advertisements for the sale of lands at nominal prices. The authorities should take the matter in hand and find out who the parties are who make such attempts at swindling innocent people.

INYO COUNTY MARBLE.—Thursday's San Francisco Bulletin says; "The discovery of extensive marble quarries in Inyo county promises to be very valuable. A company has located 120 acres, and the depth of the bed seems from the outcroppings to be almost unlimited. The quality varies in different strata from common building material to the finest statuary marble. At present the Vermont quarries furnish the most available supply of marble for full-size statues. The Italian quarries have been so exhaustively worked that large blocks of pure quality are obtained with difficulty. The importations of European marble into the United States are valued at about $1,000,000 annually of which about one-half comes from Italy, The owners of the Inyo quarry expect not only to supplant foreign statuary marble in our markets, but to export it. If their property half meets their expectations, it will be an important addition to the resources of the State. The statuary marble of the Carrara quarries of Italy, though formerly but a very small part of the product in bulk, far exceeds all the rest in value, and the supply of that quality in Inyo is thought to be practically unlimited."

A BIG LAWSUIT.

A Little Army of Complainants and An Equal Number of Defendants.

The iniatiatory steps have been taken to begin the biggest civil suit ever tried in Inyo county. The complainants are R. C. Broder and six other Broders including John Broder; Phine B. Templeton, G. W. Brady, Thomas G. Beasley, J. C. Irwin, Abraham Parr, J. W. McMurry, the Bank of Visalia, J. D. Blair and W. A. Greenly. The defendants are A. R. Conklin, Mollie Conklin, O. I. Mairs, M. Coffey, Mary McKewen, Thomas Boyce, John O'Brian, John O. Parker, Isaac Harris and Nathan Rhine, L. Tietzin, Cerro Gordo Freighting Company, Thomas Webb, G. W. Smalley and a lot of John Does. The complaint goes on to give a history of the insolvency and property of John Broder and then Plaintiffs pray judgment and decree of the Court as follows:

1.—That the deed from W. A. Greenly, Assignee of John Broder, to A. R. Conklin hereinbefore set out, was a trust deed, and did not convey any beneficial interest in the property therein described to A. R. Conklin otherwise than in trust for the creditors of said insolvent, John Broder, according to the terms of the agreement between said A. R. Conklin and said creditors as herein above set forth.

2.—That the defendants, A. R. and Mollie Conklin, hold the title to all the real property herein before described solely in trust for said creditors and the payment of their several claims against the estate of said insolvent, John Broder.

3.—That said defendant, A. R. Conklin, be required to make full discovery of all and singular, his acts and doings as Trustee aforesaid, with interest thereon, from the date of its receipt, and that he be held accountable and chargeable with the sum so found due from him, and the same applied to the pay ment of the several claims of the Plaintiffs.

4.—That the real property herein before described be sold in such manner as may be most advantageous, and the proceeds thereof be applied to the payment of the several claims of Plaintiffs.

5.—That an injunction be issued under the seal of this Court restraining and enjoining the defendants from selling, disposing of or encumbering the aforesaid real property or any part thereof until the final determination of this case.

6.—That a receiver be appointed to take possession and charge of said real property, and to manage, control and conduct the same, and to collect the rents, issues and profits thereof until the final determination of the case.

7.—That Plaintiffs have such other and further relief as may be meet, equitable and proper in the premises, together with judgement for their costs.

R. S. MINER, Att'y for Plaintiffs.

Langhorne & Miller, Eugene R. Garber, J. W. P. Laird, Counsel.

This case involves property and values to a large amount; it is likely to occupy a long time in the trial and is sure to furnish work enough for a number of lawyers for a considerable time.

SWANSEA FURNACE

The run at the Swansea furnace was finished last Friday. Mr. Gorman says the report of the results of the run as published in last week's issue was substantially correct. More material is being collected at the furnace for another run. The result of the run just made was very satisfactory to all concerned. A good many men were employed, and a large amount of money was put in circulation.

PREACHING.—Rev. J. M. Spangler will preach to-morrow at Camp Independence at 2:30 o'clock, and at Iedependence at 7:30 in the evening.

BIG TURKEYS.—Mr. C. Steward of Big Pine has a fine lot of bronze turkeys. Two of these fowls aged nine months, weigh forty-four pounds, the male bird weighs 28 pounds, the female 16. These are hard to beat.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area seeded to alfalfa.

RELEASED.—The young man King charged with killing an Indian, was released on a writ of habeas corpus. He is now entirely free unless indicted by the Grand Jury. The Superior Court held that the evidence offered was not sufficient to hold the young man for murder.

THE CANAL.—A second meeting was held at the Court House last Saturday for the organization of a canal company to take water from Owens river for irrigating purposes. Articles of incorporation were submitted and adopted, the committee to prepare By Laws reported progress and asked for further time; other committees reported upon work done by them, and the meeting adjourned till this afternoon. A large amount of the stock has been subscribed for.

BETTER EVIDENCE.—Love of liquor by Indians is satirically mentioned as evidence of their advance in the ways of civilization. But there are better evidences than this; a day or two ago an old squaw with a basket work head dress, a rabbit skin garment, face like shriveled parchment, and hands like a tarantula, went into the butcher shop at Independence and asked for a roast of beef; she got it, paid the coin for it, and was as particular about the cut as any fine lady could be.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Stainburn were up from Lone Pine on Thursday.

T. G. Beasely, of Big Pine, was at Independence a few days this week.

Messrs. Jas. A. Stainburn and J. G. Dodge were up from Lone Pine on last Monday.

Thomas H. Williams, formerly Attorney General of the State, died at San Francisco last Sunday.

Mr. R. S. Miner, of Bridgeport, arrived at Independence at the end of last week on law business.

Mrs. Baker, of Big Pine, made a visit of some days duration with Mrs. Moore at Independence this week.

Mr. John S. Gorman arrived home at the beginning of the week. He will stay some weeks before going back to resume work at the furnace. He is now planting a large number of fruit trees and making other improvements at his home at Camp Independence.

DIED.

GIFFORD.—At Taboose Ranch, March 3 1886 Edward A. Gifford, aged 49 years.

MILLS.—At Camp Independence, Feb. 28 1886, Charles C. Mills, a native of New York, aged about 62 years.

A STORY

Chapter I.

In the year 1874, a small Dry Goods and Clothing Store was started in Sacramento, Cal. Both in size, and in the variety of the goods kept it was not different from thousands of other stores. But in aims and principles it was different.

Briefly stated, these principles were "One Price. No Deviation. No Misrepresentation. All customers treated alike. The same goods and same price to out of town customers as to city trade."

Chapter II.

It will be understood at a glance that such a system, regularly enforced protects the interests of all customers, whether young or old experienced or inexperienced; whether dealing in person or dealing through the mails.

People were quick to see its merits. Trade began to grow. Soon it was discovered that this store kept not only thoroughly reliable goods, but that its prices were lower than those of all other merchants.

Then trade grew faster and faster. People from afar heard of the store and sent hundreds of miles that they might benefit by its goods and prices. They knew they would be served as justly and as well, as if in Sacramento to buy for themselves. And they were right.

Chapter III.

That one store soon gathered about it a large family of other stores, all connected by arches and passage ways. It also greatly increased its assortment of goods, till now it keeps under one vast roof nearly a hundred distinct lines of goods. Its main salesroom is one hundred feet wide by one hundred and twenty feet deep, and is partially lighted by a glass dome forty feet high. Cosily furnished Waiting and Reading rooms are provided for the free use of visitors. The store employs from one hundred and fifty to one hundred and sixty clerks, and has buyers constantly in the Eastern and Western Markets. It is the Largest General Retail Establishment West of the Rocky Mountains.

Chapter IV.

The Mail Order business of this store now extends to every town and hamlet on the Coast. It is greatly facilitated by means of a large Illustrated Catalogue, which, together with any samples that may be desired, is sent free to any address. The catalogue is a finely printed book, with over eleven hundred illustrations, and full information about goods and how to order. Those who desire it should address Weinstock & Lubin, Sacramento, Cal.

Conclusion.

In the world of business as in the world of physics, nothing happens by chance. Success is the result of merit. The rapid growth and large trade of this House shows there is a something in its goods, something in its styles, something in its prices, something in its methods, not obtainable elsewhere. To thoughtful minds but one conclusion is possible—that it will pay those who have never dealt with this store to at least give it a trial.

FISHING FOR FROGS.

An Inhabitant of the Neck Tells How It Is Done.

A frog sat still on the bank of the brook,
With half-shut eyes;
His face wore a most judicial look,
So very wise.
He spread his jaws and he sang alone
A lay of the fall in a mournful tone,
A "Necker" knocked him low with a stone,
Defunct he lies.

"What have you got there, birds?" asked a reporter of a typical Necker whom he heard singing this little ditty up near the Farmers' Market. The man carried a small basket, full of what looked like birds.

"Now, them's frogs," said the man. "Going to sell 'em to a dealer in game up here on Market Street."

"How do I ketch 'em?"

"Well, there's different ways of ketching them, and I'll try to tell you how it's done. People think we go flinging red flannel on the end of a line into the creeks and ponds, whether we know or not that there's frogs there, but we don't. It is only them fellers that come down from the city to go 'froging' for sport that bother with the red flannel and hook; we have quicker ways than that. We ketch them in four different ways. In the spring, when they first come out from their winter's sleep, we go around among the ponds and ditches down in the Neck and take with us a scoop-net on a pole about twelve feet long. When they first come out, you know they are kinder stupid and slow in their motions, and we just slip the scoop-net under them and haul them in, sometimes two or three at a time.

"When they get a little warm sun on them they get a little too lively to be scooped in that way, and then we take to 'clubbing' them. On a hot day they just float on the top of the water, basking in the warm sun, and when they are spawning you can see plenty of them with their green heads above the water, and a fellow that knows how can knock over dozens of them in an hour or two. Some froggers use a thin club from 6 to 8 feet long. I generally use a barrel stave. That kills 'em neatly, without smashing them up too much. After they've got done spawning, they hide away and are very quick to jump when they hear a noise, but a good frogger can get his work in on them by sneaking up on them, and, whenever he sees a greenbacker, hitting it a whack that lays him out stiff. Them's only the big ones from last year that we catch up to that time. About September we begin to catch the little fellows that have been spawned in the spring. They can easily be caught in the grass while on their way from one pond to another in search of a spring in which to take up their winter quarters. They are knocked over by dozen every day down in the Neck. That's the kind I've got here in the basket. Me and Chippy Nippers, that lives in an old boat-house down by the Gray's Ferry Bridge, and George Simpson killed eighteen dozen of 'em yesterday afternoon. Next month the frogs will make their beds in the mud on the bottom and along the sides of the ponds and ditches.

"To catch them then we have to dig them out. We take a rake that has teeth on both sides of the bar, and a net back of the teeth like a bag, and we drag it through the mud, and as they lay only an inch or two under the mud, we pull two or three out at every haul.

"We go 'hand' fishing for them, too. I mean by that that we wade into the shallow water and feel with our hands down into the holes in the mud, and pull them out from their hiding-places, and we turn up the over-hanging sods at the edges of the ditches and pick up the frogs that are lying underneath.

"How do I know where to find them? Why, I watch the ponds and ditches in spawning time, and whenever I see the spawn in the water I know that there will be plenty of frogs there. Sometimes I git fooled though. If I see a ditch with plenty of spawn or young frogs in it, I say to myself, 'I'm a goin' to git them when they go to the bottom in the fall,' but when I go fur them I don't ketch one. They've all skipped off to some spring water to lay up for the winter. They get out and travel on rainy days, feeding as they keep a hoppin' till they find what they want. They are great travelers, and it makes me laugh when I hear that they've had a shower of frogs out West or somewhere else. The dumb fools don't know that it's a travelin' colony of frogs on a hunt for winter quarters. I've ketched them travelin' along a railroad track, and I've even ketched nice ones travelin' up into the city.

"When I have from twenty to thirty dozen caught, a fair day's work, I skin them and clean them. I cut a slit in the skin about the middle of the back, slip a finger of each hand into the slit and pull in opposite directions, and the skin comes off just like a glove. I then slit them open with a knife and take the insides out, run a stick through their legs and bring them to the city in bunches of about a dozen. I consider from twenty-five to thirty dozen a good day's catch. For the little ones I get from 20 to 30 cents a dozen, and for the big fellows from 75 cents to $1 a dozen.

"Before my time they used to sell only the hind legs, but ever since I began froggin' we sell the whole body. Yes, it's hard and wet work, but there's plenty of fun in it, too. You haven't got any chewing tobacco with you, have you? Thanks. Come down some day and go froggin' with me. Good-day." — [Philadelphia News.

"Good gracious," said the hen when she discovered a porcelain egg on the nest, "I shall be a bricklayer next."—[Boston Bulletin.

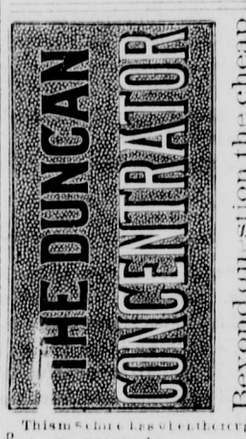
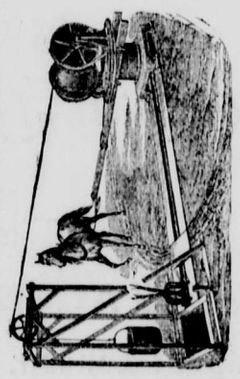
CELALNEOUS.



Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind in use adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the past TWO YEARS and gives RESULTS, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month of a year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its cost for each stamp.



BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

A Diagnosis by Five Doctors.

As an illustration of the old saying that "Doctors will differ," the following is related by a Jersey City physician of unquestioned veracity: In the course of a lecture which he was delivering before a number of physicians, among whom were several old practitioners, he had brought in by the mother a child six months old, which he stated was suffering from a very peculiar affection, one seldom seen in this country, and he requested five of the physicians present each separately to diagnose the case. The first gave it as his medical belief that the child was suffering from incipient pneumonia; the second, after examination, pronounced it incipient diphtheria; the third staked his reputation upon its being peritonitis, the fourth called it magrasmus, while the fifth fell back upon the medical Godsend "malaria." When they had each made a carefulexamination, the lecturer said:

"Well, gentlemen, have you anything farther to say in regard to the case?" "Nothing more than has been already said," was the reply from each. "Well," said he, taking the little one and holding it up before them, "this is a child that has never had a day's sickness since its birth. It is the most perfectly healthy child that I have ever seen." Comment is useless.—[N. Y. Star.

Petroleum V. Nasby.

I have not seen Nasby in New York for some months. There's an odd fellow for you. He can work harder and steadier, both at a demijohn and a typewriter, than any "litterary feller" in the country. He never travels without both the articles mentioned as his side companions. His method is to hire a whole section in a Puliman, have the curtains drawn and the tables set up, and proceed to business with a typewriter on top of the table and the jug underneath. He takes a drink to a page, and his eagerness for the jug makes him rush off a page at a very lively gait. Nasby's face looks like the moon before a storm, and his garments look like a second-hand store after a cyclone. He thinks whisky is Heaven's best gift to man. For some years past he has been traveling abroad, getting material for a history of the world. It will be sold by the cord. He has made a great deal of money, and through prudently buying his liquor at wholesale and selling it to himself at retail he has amassed a fortune by saving the balance. He is short, fat and fifty, and he smokes five-cent cigars when he gets seven of them for a quarter.—[John Swinton.

Anxious to Lose a Leg.

An Atlanta Constitution reporter walked to a cell door at the station house last night and called a boy to the door. Henry Austin is a small ten-year-old shoe-shiner. He eats, sleeps, and works on the streets, and as far as everybody has known heretofore has no kith or kin. He was crying piteously when he pushed his nose through the iron bars.

"What's the trouble, Henry?" asked the reporter.

"I want to go home. Ma's sick and ain't got any one to wait on her."

"What are you in for?"

"I ain't done nothing. A policeman arrested me 'cause I was riding on the central road passenger train."

"But didn't you tell Mr. Buchanan that you wanted a leg cut off?"

"Yes, sir, I told him that."

"Why do you want a leg cut off?"

"'Cause I wants money. Ma's sick, and I can't get work. Didn't Jim Brooks, the bootblack, get $1,500 when the train cut his leg off? Yes, he did; Mr. Hoke Smith got it for him. And then didn't Lem White get nearly as much for losing a leg, too? I just thought if the train would cut one of my legs off Mr. Hoke Smith could get $5,000 for me, too. I didn't know that it's anybody's business if I want to have a leg cut off, and they just arrested me for nothing."

"If you wanted to lose a leg that bad why didn't you lay down and let the train run over you? Why did you jump off and on?"

"Oh, no, boss; that would never have done. If I'd laid down and let the train run over me on purpose, I'd get no money. But if it had been an accident I'd a got something."

THE COUNTRY LAWYER.

Beginning and End of a Suit About a Pig

[illegible]ated justice. You could see that, says the New York Sun, in his eyes afar off. He didn't want a little bit of justice weighed out in a gingerly manner and done up in coarse brown paper, but he wanted justice by the carload and at wholesale rates. He hitched his old white horse and dilapidated buggy in front of the drug store, mounted the stairs running up outside to the second story, and his eyes brightened as they rested on the tin sign on the door: "George Boxem, Attorney-at-law." The lawyer was in, so were a $2.00 desk, two fifteen cent chairs, a huge cupsidor, and a rusty stove.

"Morning."

"Morning."

"I'm Jim White, sir. Live out by Gray's Corners. Bought the Tomkins farm, you know."

"Ah!"

"Skinner jines farms with me. His steers get into my corn. I want damages, but he laughs at me. I turn my hogs into his 'tater patch."

"Good! I like a man of spunk."

"And he kills one of 'em."

"What!"

"He kills a hog worth $2.00."

"You don't say! Well, that man ought to be made to understand that he doesn't own this county. What an outrage! Have you demanded pay?"

"Oh, yes, and he said he'd like to shoot me."

"Is it possible? Why he is a dangerous man, very dangerous."

"I came to you if—if—"

"Why, of course, you have the best kind of a case against him, and it is your duty to push it."

"Yes, I want justice, but how—how much will—"

"Oh, the cost will be nothing. Just leave me $5.00 as a retainer, and we'll make Skinner sweat. I haven't heard of such an outrage for years. He probably reasons that you are chicken-hearted and afraid of him."

"Well he'll find that the Whites have as much grit as the Skinners."

"And as much money to law with?"

"You bet!"

"That's the talk! We'll make him a very sick man. Your case appeals to me a citizen as well as lawyer. Now, we'll secure a warrant as a starter."

Skinner visits the other lawyer in the same village, and the conversation is about the same. White gets a warrant for Skinner, and Skinner gets a warrant for White.

First year—Two adjournments, a disagreement, twenty four days' lost time, and a cash expense of $58 to each farmer.

Second year—Three trials, one disagreement, four adjournments, one appeal, and a cash expense of $150 to each farmer. Time lost, thirty-five days.

Third year—Two trials, two appeals, two decisions, and two farms pass into the hands of two lawyers.

An Experience on the Train.

"Just to think of it," he growled, with disgust written on every line of his face. "I was coming out of St. Louis the other day, and, the car being crowded, I gave half my seat to a demure little widow."

"How do you know she was a widow?"

"She told me so. She said she was awfully afraid of being robbed, and knowing by my face that I was an honest man she wanted me to take charge of her portemonnaie until we reached Chicago."

"And you did?"

"Am I not a fool? Yes I did, and as she passed it over, sweetly said: "'There's exactly $90 in it.'

"We rode into Chicago without leaving our seats. As we ran in the city I handed her the purse. She opened it and counted the money.

"'Why there isn't but $50 here!' said she, as she looked up at me.

"But I haven't taken any.

"'Well I am $40 short, as you see. Perhaps you can explain to the police.'"

"And what did you do?"

"I gave her the $40, of course Please kick me a few hundred times."—[New York Star.

Settled Him.

The bullying manner of the German students is proverbial, as is also their mania for dueling. It was at Heidelburg that a quiet citizen leaving the cars said to a swaggering student:

"Sir, you are crowding me! Keep back a little bit, sir!"

The student turned fiercely and said in a loud tone: "Do you not like it? Well, sir, I am at your service whenever you please!"

"Oh thank you," said the traveler; "your offer is very kind, and you may carry my valise to the hotel for me."

The student fled amid shouts of laughter.—[Heidelburg Zeitung.

A Quick Response.

A new London boy, with a milk pitcher in hand, fell headlong down the back stairs. He had regained his feet and was brushing the dirt from his clothes when his mother appeared at the head of the stairs and asked: "Did you break the pitcher?" "No, I didn't; but I will," was the quick response. And he did.—[Hartford Times.

An Englishman's Novel Theory.

An Englishman who spent some years in the Arctic region propounds a theory of the origin of vegetation and animal life in this sphere so entirely new that it may even account for the "growth" of the Topsy of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He says he collected a small quantity of cosmic dust, which, scientists generally agree, sifts down through the atmosphere through space. He planted a pea in this. It did not germinate, but a beautiful fern, of a species entirely unlike anything known to botanists, sprang up out of the dust. The gentleman, whose name is Carleton, contends that the seed, with the dust, dropped off some other planet, and has come to the conclusion that some of, if not all, the varieties of our plants and animal species may be traced to the same origin.

The Eskimo's Appetite.

The Eskimo seem to have a convenient appetite; they can go without food for long periods, or eat five or six times a day, just as they happen to have it. They are improvident of food and do not begin to lay in their winter supply oftentimes until it is too late, when they suffer from lack of it and appeal to the Governor, who obliges them to give him a tithing, which is left in reserve. It is said that were it not for this supervision during severe winters, the natives would soon become extinct from starvation. I have never seen a native eat more than what I estimated as five pounds of seal meat and blubber at a meal, though I have read of ten or fifteen pounds being a not unusual consumption at one sitting. They eat but twice a day as a regular habit, before going to bed and almost as soon as they wake. From my limited observation, I would say that an adult consumes about eight pounds of solid food a day, subject to variations, according to the amount of exercise and the external temperature, the small quantities of tea, coffee and flour consumed at a meal scarcely require mention as factors in the food supply. The natives live in a temperature with a yearly average closely bordering on zero Fahrenheit. Their food is almost wholly animal. They are provided with small skin boats or kyaks, which are very light, but of great strength, and can be transported with great facility over the ice to open water. These boats have the javelin or spear as a part of the outfit, and the Eskimo from early youth is trained to manage the kyak and throw the spear, so that they become exceedingly expert, and it is seldom that the hunter goes out in season without returning with his game. The Eskimo, on seeing a seal come to the surface for air, will, with the stroke of the paddle, approach his kyak as near as possible; when the seal disappears beneath the surface, a few quiet, rapid strokes put the kyak directly over the spot, then with his javelin poised he waits for the seal to reappear; should the head show itself above water within a distance of ten or fifteen feet, their aim is almost unerring. After the seal is struck, the head of the javelin is slipped off, and to it are attached about six fathoms of line, on to which a large bladder float is tied. The line and bladder are immediately cast into the water, and the seal carries them off until he is exhausted, then the line is hauled in and the seal at the end quietly dispatched with a small knife; not always quietly, however, for a large seal when wounded will often show fight, and wreck the kyak. The loss of life attending the hunt is quite considerable, as the frail skin boats are oftentimes cut through by the ice or swamped in rough water; the hands of the hunter are necessarily exposed, and many of them suffer from them being frozen during severe weather. They procure their fish by dexterously using a short line and attaching a small ivory hook to it. They bob this up and down through a hole in the ice, and the unsuspecing fish that bite are thrown out on the ice; they have no system of netting.—[Dr. E. H. Green, in Medical News.

Underclothing.

Says Dr. Wm. Hammond: "The chief object of underclothing is the retention of the natural heat of the body in such a way that low temperatures and sudden changes will not affect the surface. Several years ago I performed some experiments which went to show beyond any doubt that silk is below wool in its power to prevent the loss of heat from the body, and very little superior to cotton. Indeed, nothing is in this respect preferable to wool, and of this material all underclothing meant for winter use should be made. In summer a mixture of wool and cotton, called merino, may be worn, but even in very hot weather silk is not desirable, for it is not such a ready absorber of the perspiration as wool, and allows the body to be kept in a state not very remote from that known as parboiled. Wool, however, taking up, as it does, the moistures from the body, exposes it to the atmosphere, or is evaporated, and, the process being a cooling one, keeps the skin from being overheated. No underclothing should ever be so thick as to prevent free passage of the cutaneous excretions and the atmospheric air. The skin requires ventilation as do the lungs. Chamois-skin undergarments, "perforated" or unperforated, are abominations.

A SPECIMEN CASE.

Mrs. Yerger's Trouble with Her Colored Servant.

Mrs. Yerger advertised for a colored servant, and Matilda Jackson, fresh from the cotton fields, applied for the position.

"So you want to hire out, do you?"

"Yes, mum."

"I'll give you ten dollars a month to do the cooking, washing and ironing."

"Dat's mighty little money for a heap of hard work," replied Matilda.

"Well, I'll give you ten dollars a month and clothe you."

"G'way! Youse jokin."

"No I'm not. I'll agree to clothe you. You will not have to clothe yourself at all."

"Dat's the bes' offer I'se had in a long time. You is a lady, you is. You treats de cullud folks like dey was somebody, you does."

Matilda went to work that afternoon. Her work was done very well, and Mrs. Yerger thought she had a treasure.

Before Matilda retired for the night Mrs. Yerger said to her:—

Matilda we will want breakfast on the table by seven o'clock."

"All right, mum."

Next morning Col. Yerger said to his wife:—

"I don't hear the new darkey making any fuss in the kitchen. I don't believe she is up yet, and it is past seven o'clock already."

"I'll go and see what is the matter with her. Perhaps she is sick," said Mrs. Yerger, dressing herself hastily, and going to the door of the servant's room, she knocked loudly at the door.

"Who's dar?" said Matilda.

"I am here." said Mrs. Yerger.

"Come right in, mum. I'se been waitin' for ye foah de las' hour."

Mrs. Yerger did so, and discovered that Matilda had not yet spurned her drowsy couch.

"Why didn't you get up long ago and cook breakfast? It's past seven o'clock," said Mrs. Yerger, indignantly.

"I done tole yer why I didn't get up."

"No you didn't."

"Yes I did. I tole yer I was waitin' fer you ter come in heah and keep your promise."

"What promise?"

"Yer promised me ten dollars a mumf, and ter clofe me. What's de use of me gittin' out of bed ef you ain't heah ter put the clofes on me pusson? I'se been ready ter be dressed for de last hour. Dar's my clofes on de char by de windy."

Matilda put on her own clothes that morning, and as she shook the dust of the Yerger mansion off her large and generous feet, she was heard to say:

"Dat's de way all dem white wimmims is. Dey promise yer and promise yer, but when hit comes to keeping dar promises der ain't dar."

Superior to the Intensely Glaring Electric Arc Light.

Euston Station, in London, is lighted by a new light which seems to possess many advantages. Ordinary coal gas, mixed in about the proportion of one to eight of common air, is supplied under the usual gas-service pressure to burners over which are placed caps of platinum wire gauze. The mixture when lighted, burns without flame around this cap, which is raised to a brilliant white heat by the combustion. The light is perfectly steady, there being no flame, and is not affected by wind or rain. More than twice as much light is obtained with a given consumption of gas as by the old system. Twenty burners replace 50 of the old kind, and satisfactorily light a platform 900 feet long.

On Mount Washington.

A peculiarity of Mount Washington, due to its rarified atmosphere, is the fact that it takes longer time, and, of course, more fuel to do the cooking. You order a hard boiled egg at the Summit House, and it must cook just twice as long as at the Crawford. Meat keeps here a long time without spoiling. Putrefaction is so slow that yonder lies the body of a lamented dog, who died months ago, but is as well preserved as if stuffed with sugar of lead. The successor of this dead dog is a splendid animal of Great Saint Bernard, weighing 150 pounds.

Winter in the signal station on Mount Washington must be a serious business. Water will freeze hard by a red hot stove. There are six men in the signal station. One of them in mid-winter goes down the mountain on snow-shoes, picking his day, but it is often a week before he can get a day to return in. The highest wind recorded on the summit is 186 miles an hour, and the lowest temperature is fifty-five degrees below zero, or eighty seven degrees below freezing. The signal station wires come up on the railway trestle. The wires on the posts are removed in the fall, as the accumulation of frosts on them would break them.—[Lewiston Journal.

How to Test Butter.

"There is," says the Scientific American, "a qualitative test for butter so simple that any housewife can put it into successful practice. A clean piece of white paper is smeared with a little of the suspected butter. The paper is then rolled up and set on fire. If the butter is pure the smell of the burning paper is rather pleasant; but the odor is distinctly tallowy if the 'butter' is made wholly or in part of animal fats."

THE Bridgeport Chronicle Union says: "For the Assembly it is conceded that Inyo is entitled to the selection of a candidate for that position, and in the selection of its nominee, it is to be hoped one will be selected who is not connected with any of the cliques that have the credit of running that county. While this is an "off" year for the Democracy, it is not desireable that the Republicans should make fools of themselves, as they have in the past, but should rely upon their Democratic friends doing so."

A Literary Curiosity.

The Glasse of Time, in the First and Second Age. Divinely Handled by Thomas Peyton, of Lincolnes Inne, Gent. Seen and Allowed. London: Printed by Bernard Alsop for Lawrence Chapman, and to be sold at his shop over against Staple Inne, 1620. Now reprinted in a neat volume, Long Primer type, bound in fine cloth, gilt top, beveled boards. Price 50 cents.

The quaint poem, of the title page of which the above is a transcript, appeared nearly half a century earlier than "Paradise Lost," and it is intrinsically probable that it would have fallen under the eye of Milton; in any case there are striking points of resemblance between the two poems and many have supposed Milton's immortal work to have been inspired by the former. Only two copies of the work are known to be in existence previous to the issue of the present edition, one being in the British Museum, and the other in the Bodleian Library, Oxford. The copy in the British Museum was purchased at a noted sale of old books in 1819 by Baron Holland, who noted upon a blank leaf that it cost him 21*l.* 17*s.* 6*d*, (about $110). Some years ago a gentleman of Virginia, Mr. J. L. Peyton, sprung from the old English family of that name, made an accurate transcript of the copy in the British Museum, preserving even the quaint spelling, punctuation, capitalizing and italicizing of the original. This present edition is printed without alteration. Apart from its presumed connection with "Paradise Lost" the poem has very considerable merits of its own, and is in every way a literary curiosity. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York.

An article in La Nature effectually disposes of the recently assumed method of producing hydrogen by the decomposition of acidulated water by dynamo-electric machines. The impracticability of such a process is shown by supposing a perfect dynamo—that is, a machine capable of converting all the work of a motor into electrical energy, and also a perfect voltameter, having no resistance and using all the current in producing electrolysis of the water. Under these circumstances of theoretically perfect conditions, a horse power developed by a steam engine will in an hour decompose exactly 166 grains of water, and set at liberty 185 grams of hydrogen, measuring 296 liters, or 7.27 cubic feet. Assuming that practically the chemical action realy utilized by the voltameter represents 70 per cent of the total energy, it follows that a horse power can only produce thirteen grams, or 146 liters of hydrogen per hour; the production, therefore, of a cubic meter of hydrogen per hour would necessitate the total energy of about seven horse power.

An ingenious kind of hand weaving machine or loom has been invented in Germany, by means of which silk, wool, yarn, cords, strips of fabric, etc., can be woven into pieces that may be applied to various useful purposes in the household. In using this machine the warp threads are first arranged parallel either on the backs of two chairs or secured to the knobs of two doors. The warp threads are then passed through the heddles, arranged on a suitable frame, and the ends of the warp threads are tied together and fastened to the back of the chair upon which the person operating the loom sits, and the other ends of the threads are held in a suitable clamp on the table. The heddle frame or comb is raised by means of the left hand, whereby the threads are separated, and then the shuttle is passed through the warp threads, the latter are shifted, the shuttle passed through in the inverse direction, and so on.

What He Regretted Most.

A Texas clergyman endeavored to console the last hours of a dying man.

"What is it that you regret most taking leave of?" he asked.

"My life, parson."

Picked Up at Sea.

A lady at Faulkner, Mass., has a cockatoo which has a notable history. She had accompanied her husband, a sea captain, on a voyage to India, and stopped at the island where the bird was purchased. It had been washed by the tidal wave from its home and was picked up for dead by a Javanese boatman far out at sea. The man was loth to part with it at first, but an extra sum of money soon caused him to relent, and the bird is now an accomplished talker both in Dutch and English.

Scientific Miscellany.

Much fluorine is contained by the teeth of fossils, and very little by those of recent animals.

The eye in males has been found by Mr. E. L. Nichols to be more sensitive to red, yellow, and green, than in females, but less sensitive to blue.

Some persons have a defect of smell analogous to color-blindness, according to Dr. Carl Seiler. In one case violets smell like garlic, everything else smelling normally.

The most extensive region of heavy rainfall in the British Islands is reported by Mr. A. Buchan to be the West Highlands of Scotland, where the annual fall is over 80 inches, and at Glencoe has exceeded 128 inches.

Four Arctic expeditions are already projected in Europe for next year. Of these one will be sent out by Holland, one by Denmark, and two by Portugal. The Russian Islands will be visited by all, but the Danish will specially explore the Kara Sea.

Traces of a prehistoric race have been discovered in Jamaica by Mr. R. G. Haliburton. From the skulls obtained he judges that they were people of great natural intelligence, and he finds reason for believing that their habits were peaceful and industrious.

The importance of fostering scientific research is recognized by the republic of Mexico, which has established a Scientific Commission, composed of the most learned men of the country, and designed to make investigations in every department of human knowledge. It is making extensive collections of all the natural products of Mexico.

Successful experiments have been made in joining and restoring the functions of divided nerves, even nerves of different functions being used to replace those partially destroyed. It is thought that even sight and hearing may be restored, after injury to the nerves on which they depend, by bringing other nerves into service by artificial union.

THE PYROPHORE.—Several specimens of the Mexican pyrophore were lately exhibited to the Paris Academy of Sciences as a remarkable novelty. These insects are about an inch long, and emit a light like that of a glow-worm or a fire-fly, but vastly more brilliant. The Indians of Mexico are said to keep them for a light at night, and Mexican ladies wear them as ornaments in the hair. By feeding them on sugar-cane they may be kept alive a long time.

THE INFLUENCE OF WEEDS.—From comparative experiments, Prof. E. Wollny, the German investigator, has shown the effect of weeds upon the productive power of plants. Both quantity and quality of the crops were seriously affected by allowing the weeds to grow, the injury being the greater the more slowly the plants were developed. Peas and summer rape suffered least; beans, maize, and potatoes were injured to the extent of 45 to 66 per cent; and beets showed a loss of 97 per cent.

EARTHQUAKE-RESISTING FOUNDATIONS.—The earthquake committee of the British Association has described experiments made in Japan—the home of earthquakes—in placing a house upon rollers resting upon the foundation. With ten-inch iron balls the earthquake shock was made less sudden, but the building was easily moved by the wind. Smaller balls were tried, until finally the structure rested on a handful of quarter-inch iron shot placed upon each of the supporting pillars. By this arrangement the effect of earthquakes is greatly mitigated without exposing the house to danger from the wind.

NATURE'S OXIDIZER.—Ozone, supposed to be a very active form of oxygen, has been thought to exert so benificial an influence that an increase in the atmosphere's proportion—which rarely averages more than one part in 700,000—has been hailed as a token of a particularly healthful climatic state. Flowering plants—especially the odorous kinds—and scented foliage have been pronounced of hygienic value because they generate ozone. A rather surprising announcement, therefore, is that of Dr. Daniel Draper's supposed discovery that ozone produces pneumonia, but it seems quite probable that the gas which so powerfully destroys organic impurities may be proven by further research to act as an irritant of the lungs.

Mr. Bacon told me a pleasant story characteristic of his famous father. Dr. Bacon was entertaining a company of friends at his home one day, when suddenly a hand was thrust familiarly under his face and a somewhat ostentatious individual insisted on shaking as a preliminary to a metaphysical discussion. Dr. Bacon showed his astonishment, but the caller was not to be abashed.

"You do not know me, sir," quoth the stranger adding with grandiloquence, while a dozen guests stood aghast. "I, sir, am no less a man than Daniel Pratt—Daniel Pratt, sir, the great American traveler!"

"Oh," said Dr. Bacon.

"Yes, sir," recited Mr. Pratt more fervently still, "yes, sir; the great American traveler."

"All right," was the placid comment; "travel."

Daniel did.—[Peck's Sun.

Equal to Fire Clay.

You can't destroy a false set of teeth in the retort of a crematory. This I deem one victory of art over nature. Our own teeth we can reduce to ashes with the rest of the body, but false teeth and gold plate hold their own. Silver plates or any other substance used by dentists will disappear, but 4,000 degrees of heat have been turned on artificial teeth without destroying them, and the gold rivets in the teeth after that heat has been applied will also be found intact.—[Crematory Expert.

An exchange asks, "What is the hottest place in the United States?" We reply, without the slightest hesitation, a hornet's nest.—[Burlington Free Press.

Long Distance Telephoning.

There is no practical limit to long distance telephoning. If it wasn't for induction, you could run a wire across the continent and talk through it. An invention that would do away with induction would be worth a good deal. The Bell Telephone Company has a standing offer of $1,000,000 for a perfect device of this kind.

A correspondent asks: "If a man gets one cent the first day of a month, and he is to get it doubled every day for thirty-one days, how much will he have coming for the thirty-first day?" The amount to be paid for the thirty-first day's wages would be over $10,000,000. The total amount to be paid for the entire thirty-one days would be over $20,000,000.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY MARCH 13.....1886

—The Stockholders of the Mono Bank have settled up all claims against the concern and closed it up.

—The capital stock of the Owens Valley Canal and Irrigation Company is $250,000, in 25,000 shares at $10 each.

—George Story is just finishing up a run of eighty tons of ore from the Poleta mine at the Maxim Mill. So far as can yet be seen the yield is satisfactory.

—The proposed party at Keeler next Wednesday evening will certainly be a success. A new hall has been erected to dance in that is roomy and comfortable, and Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will do all in their power to secure the enjoyment of their guests.

—Parties who have come from Darwin within a few days say there is not the least doubt that Frank Fitzgerald has quite a snug fortune in sight at the mine at Lookout. Everyone who knows "Little Fitz" will be pleased to hear of his success; he certainly deserves it.

—The future prosperity of Aurora is now past doubt; a newspaper has been started there. The new publication is called the Star, and if the paper is kept up to the standard of the first number it will be worthy of the name. May the new Star continue to grow till all others shall pale their ineffectual fires in presence of its light.

HOME SEEKERS.—Read the advertisement of the International Immigrant Union elsewhere. The Manager for the Union, Mr. Martin, has just returned to San Francisco from Owens Valley and can give full ond accurate information to intending settlers.

HANGED.—On Thursday of last week Clarence Gray was hanged at Winnemucca Nevada. Gray had committed murder. For many weeks he had pretended to be insane; physicians examined him about a week before the time set for his execution; one of these thought he was insane, the three others thought him sane. On being informed that the Board of Pardons had refused to interfere Gray admitted that he had been pretending insanity.

THE RAILROAD.—It is confidently expected that Mono county will have direct rail-communication with San Francisco and the East within two years, the California and Nevada Company having resumed work to connect with the Denver & Rio Grande narrow-gauge. Senator Fair being largely interested in the former, and having been granted the right of way through Oakland to tide water, is a guarantee that the road will be vigorously pushed across the mountains. The South Pacific Road is a part of the Denver-Rio Grande system.

FINE STOCK.—The most famous and valuable breed of cattle ever produced is that known as the "Duchess family." In 1873 a sale of these cattle was made when fourteen of these animals were sold for $262,400, an average of $18,743 each. A young bull of this remarkable stock has lately been received by Mr. W. L. Hunter from the Fort Churchill ranch, Nevada. In future years the influence of this fine animal is sure to be most beneficial upon the stock of Owens Valley. Farmers should call at Mr. Hunter's ranch at Georges Creek and examine this bull.

SCHOOL REPORT.—School at Union District closed February 26. Whole number of days attendance, 1433; whole number of days absence, 74; percentage of attendance, 95; total number enrolled, 15. The above is for the entire term of Six months taught during the present school year. The attendance was very good during the term, to which fact may be attributed the rapid advancement of the pupils. No teacher could desire more appreciative parents than those residing in this district. The attitude of the entire community toward me has ever been that of kindness and encouragement. It is more a pleasure than a task to serve such a community. Respectfully,

C. HAMPTON, Teacher.

A GREAT RELIEF.—For the past three years I have been suffering from cancer on the lip, which lately assumed a malignant form and caused me much pain and suffering. I applied to Dr. Middleton, of Bishop Creek, for relief, although my ailment is considered by many as incurable he, by a preparation of his own, extracted the cancer root and branch, giving me the most complete relief, and I believe effected a radical cure. I make this statement that all may know where relief may be found as well as in gratitude for my deliverance from that loathsome and what is generally considered fatal malady. I have the cancer preserved in my possession that all may see and judge for themselves. S. H. SPRATT, Teel's Marsh, Esmeralda Co. Nev.

OUR PASTOR.—This community will be credit to itself and be gainer in every way by supporting our Pastor and his family comfortably. When farmers are coming to town it is easy to throw into the wagon a sack of potatoes, a ham, a flitch of bacon, a box of eggs, or some other article they have in plenty. These things will serve the Pastor and his family quite as well as money. The servant of God and man is ever ready as minister to his fellow creatures, whether it be to sprinkle the waters of regeneration on the infant, unite happy lovers in the holy bands of matrimony, or pay the last tribute of respect to those who have done with life. Throw something in the wagon for the preacher when you come to town.

Mining Items.

MODOCK CON.

LOOKOUT, March 7 1886.

J. W. PEW, SEC.:—The drift started on the 1st inst. to tap ore body broke into same yesterday. Three feet of good ore. This drift taps the ore body fifty-five feet below the discovery level. Am stoping from discovery level and taking out seven tons per day from stope. Resumed drifting on ore body yesterday. Face of drift all in ore. As soon as lower drift is in one hundred feet I will sink and raise to make air connection, which will facilitate working very much. All men on upper level are working six hour shifts and on lower level eight hour shifts. The late snow storm has delayed teaming at least fifteen days. Daily output from mine is eleven tons. Respectfully,

FRANK FITZGERALD, Lessee.

DEFIANCE.

The Defiance continues to show up well. The main drift is now in one hundred and fifty feet on the ore body; from this level a winze is now down sixty feet in solid ore. There is also an upraise of seventy feet to another level; this is also all in ore and from the head of the upraise drifts have been run in opposite directions opening the ore body to about the same extent as the lower level. There is no sign of failure of the ledge in any of the workings thus far. It may continue to extend downward and in the direction of the drifts for a long distance. But even now there is a large and valuable ore body in sight.

Pay-day Festivities.

The hearts of the old-timers were gladdened last Wednesday evening by a revival of the lively times incident to the pay-days of yore. In Candelaria Hall a grand sparring exhibition was given for the benefit of Alf. Walker, ex-champion feather-weight of England The main interest centered in the set-to between Walker and John Barry, of the Bank Exchange, in which the latter proved himself superior to the ex-champion. Several lesser lights showed themselves no mean exponents of the pugilistic art and the exhibition was voted a thorough success. At the same time an old-fashioned dance was being held at Robson's saloon, where the boys and girls enjoyed themselves hugely. At Ed. Dowd's Thespits reigned supreme. King Faro held forth at Malloy's Edwards and Driscol's and poker could be found everywhere. The day and night passed off harmoniously enough to justify the Daily Report heading, "Candelaria no longer tough."—True Fissure.

Rich Strike.

A very rich strike is reported in the Fortuna mine at Bodie. The Free Press says: "The new "find" is at the 700-level of the Mono, on the Fortuna vein, 110 feet south of the Bodie line. The vein is unmistakeable in its character of quartz, although the proportions of gold and silver vary greatly therein. A crosscut 20 feet east and nearly opposite the west crosscut described in our last report with all its developments, first discloses the ore. The ledge has been drifted upon 20 feet and crosscut at a point sixty feet to the north. Thus opened, the vein, which runs from six to twelve inches in width, shows a body of ore of indefinite depth and extent southerly. Outside the streaks and bunches of enormously rich ore the ledge assays $100 per ton.

Insane.

During the past three years W. A. Bolinger has been operating in mines at Chrysopolis, ten miles north of Independence. About three weeks ago he came to Independence, and a few days afterward it was noticed that his mind was unsettled. He continued to get worse, and last Wednesday Judge Hannah held an examination and Bolinger was adjudged to be insane. Dr. Stevenson left Independence with him next morning for Stockton. The relatives of the unfortunate man were kept duly informed of his condition, and of the steps being taken to send him to Stockton, and approved of all that was done.

Senator Miller Dead.

The telegraph announced the death of United States Senator John S. Miller at Washington, last Wednesday. Senator Miller had been ill for some months, and his death was not unexpected. It now lies with Governor Stoneman to appoint some one to fill the unexpired term of the dead Senator. Of course some promient Democrat will be chosen.

A MURDER.—On Wednesday of last week a Chinaman was murdered near Belleville. The murderer had first shot his victim and then dragged the body some distance and placed it across the rails of the C. & C. railroad about a mile and a half below the town. When the train came along darkness had already set in; the engineer saw what appeared to be a pile of rags on the track but not till he was within a few feet of it and when it was too late to stop the train. The engine and cars passed over the body tearing it all to pieces. At the Coroner's inquest the discovery was made that a charge of buckshot had been fired into the man in the region of the heart. It is supposed that robbery was the object of the murder.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area seeded to alfalfa.

Lands For the Landless.

No other region in the State is attracting so much attention at the present time as Owens valley. From all over the United States inquiries are pouring in, asking for information about the soil, climate, production, market amount of land open for settlement, water privileges, and so fourth. Recently advertisements have appeared in several newspapers in San Francisco to the effect that thousands of acres of land could be had in Owens valley for a dollar and a half an acre. These advertisements are published by the International Immigrant Union. Mr. W. H. Martin, Manager for the Union, was at Independence at the beginning of the week; he says his work consists in looking up suitable lands for settlers, and placing the settlers thereon. The Government price for the land is a dollar and a quarter an acre; he aids the settler in finding the land and making his location, and the Union is permitted to charge a quarter of a dollar an acre as compensation for the labor and expense incurred in finding the locations, advertising, traveling, and so forth. Mr Martin has already placed several prosperous colonies, among the best known of these being Lampoc in California, and Snake River, in Idaho. He is quite familiar with all the lands of the Pacific Coast, but says that no where else has he seen a more desireable or more advantageous region for settlers than Owens valley. He has issued a circular in which he says: "There is a body of land (about 100,000 acres) lying along Owens River and near the railroad which can be secured under the "Desert Land Act," and irrigated by the canals now under construction. The land, according to the report of Professor Hilgard, of the University of California, is rich, and will produce anything that can be raised in any part of California, except oranges, limes etc The Union proposes to select tracts of land for settlers of 640 acres each or less, at a $1,50 per acre, payable 50 cents per acre cash and $1 per acre in three years. The Union pays to the United States Government $1.25 per acre, and the remaining 25 cents per acre is applied toward expense of procuring settlers upon said land and making the necessary arrangements for the irrigation of said land. Any man or woman, married or single, of legal age, citizen of the United States, can obtain 640 acres of land. Water will be supplied each settler in quantities suited Shares of stock in the Canal Company will be supplied each settler at $10 each. Each share entitles the stock-holders to a perpetual water right of two inches water, miner's measurement. A party owning 25 shares equal to fifty inches of water will have sufficient water, with careful management, to irrigate his entire farm."

WATER.

The canal referred to by Mr. Martin is the "Owens Valley Canal and Water Company," This Company has been lately organized, articles of incorporation have been filed with the Secretary of State, and work is now progressing on the canal. Shares will be sold to parties who settle on lands along the line of the canan; these shares will make the holders actual owners in the canal, and will secure a perpetual water right.

ANOTHER BIG LOCATION.

Last Saturday Mr. L. F. J. Wrinkle came to Independence, and filed with the County Recorder a location of thirty thousand inches of water to be taken from Owens River. This water is to be taken upon a tract of land on the east side of the river, stretching from above Independence Station southward toward Owens Lake. About twenty thousand acres of land will be put in course of reclamation for the present, but this can be increased to three times that amount. The land will be sold to settlers. Samples of the soil from the east side of the river have been carefully analyzed by Prof. Hilgard, and found to be of excellent quality. These various works will soon fill up the Valley with people whose industry and thrift will make Inyo one of the most prosperous counties of the State.

Personal Mention.

Manuel Diaz was in town yesterday.

John Anton and Mike Lasky were up from Lone Pine on Thursday.

Frank Silva came up From Darwin on Tuesday and remained till Friday.

Mr. L. F. J. Wrinkle of Virginia City was at Independence during the early part of the week.

Mr. N. G. Fairmrn arrived at Independence from Panamint at the end of last week and stayed in town several days attending to business matters.

Mr. Duncan McDougall, of San Francisco, arrived at Independence last Monday and stayed until to-day. He came with the view of purchasing land.

Mr. W. H. Martin, manager for the International Immigrant Union, was at Independence at the beginning of the week. He was looking over Owens Valley with a view to the location of settlers.

DIED.—Dick Glenn, whom old Inyoites will remember as a stage driver in this county, died at Boise City on the evening of March 1st, from hemorrhage of the lungs brought on by a cold he had contracted while driving stage on the Winnemucca route. He was buried by stage drivers and friends, who testified the greatest respect for the memory of the deceased.

DO YOU WALTZ?

These Are the Latest Suggestions From High Authority.

If the observation of social waltzing in New York and Europe, for more than forty years, proves anything whatever, it is that the method of holding, which is prescribed below, is to-day, as at the beginning, adopted by all who may be noticeable for refined manners and movement. The gentleman approaches the lady, offering his left hand—one who is au fait will at the same time make a slight inclination to bow. The lady places her right hand in that of the gentleman, who then extends his right arm in a direct line to the side, the forearm bent so as to form an acute angle. In this angle the lady will place herself, with the center line of the person opposite the line of the gentleman's right side, both persons on parallel lines, not forming an angle. In this position each will be looking over the other's right shoulder, and by the lady turning her head slightly to the left the effect of the group will be greatly improved, and prevent all possibility of taking each other's breath, which is rarely pleasant, and in the case of a young man directly from the use of a meerschaum is "positively horrid," as many ladies have remarked. The lady, if not too short, places her left hand, hooked, upon the gentleman's right shoulder, the finger appearing in front. The right hand of the gentleman should rest very gently upon the lady's back, as near the waist as possible, so as not to remove the upper pressure of the elbow directly under the lady's shoulder, as this is the lady's support and must be held with sure but gentle firmness. The hand on the back should rest very lightly, and on every possible occasion should be slightly raised so that the air may pass between, as in some cases the close contact induces perspiration and may leave its mark upon the lady's dress. Both persons should be slightly bent forward from the hips upward, so that the shoulders may be only three or four inches apart, the distance increasing downward; this leaves both parties free in their limbs, so that any contact of person or knees may be so avoided, and should be so avoided as a most serious mistake. The gentleman's left hand, holding the lady's right, should be extended downward in a line with the body, the hands three or four inches distant from the person, the arms forming a gentle curve from the shoulder downward. No weight is placed upon this arm; all the guiding and changes must be governed by the elbow under the lady's arm. It will be found that this grouping will be perfectly modest in appearance, no more contact of person occurring than in a lady taking a gentleman's arm for walking. In conclusion, let it be remembered that purity of thought and action may be as conspicuous in waltzing as in any other situation of life; that the gross waltz grossly, the vicious viciously, the refined and innocent innocently and in a refined manner.—[Allen Dodworth's "Dancing and Its Relations to Social Life."

Gambling in Washington.

An old-time gambler was seated in the lobby of Willard's Hotel, an evening or two ago. He looked the perfect picture of misery, as he said to some acquaintances: "Washington isn't what it used to be, my boys. The law has killed gambling here, and when I say that I don't mean that you can't gamble if you want to. There are a few 'brace games' of faro still running on the quiet, and you won't have much difficulty in finding a pretty stiff game of poker going on, that is if you are looking after that style of amusement; but what I mean is that the gamblers are giving Washington the go-by. It isn't the same town that it was ten years ago, when Johnny Chamberlin kept one of the most elegant sporting resorts ever opened in this country. Ah, there was a game for you! I saw a man lose thirteen $1,000 notes there one evening at roulette with so many turns of the wheel. He made a big fuss over it afterwards, and I believe they paid him back a portion and kept the rest. Speaking about roulette reminds me of one of the slickest tricks that I ever saw in a gambling place. I had charge of the roulette table, and the only person playing was a newspaper man who was as sharp as lightning and considerably quicker. I didn't know him as well then, or I never would have taken my eyes off from him. He had a number of bets placed, and the little ball was bobbing up and down. Just as it was about to settle I stooped to pick up a chip that had fallen from the table. I give you my word, gentlemen, that my eye wasn't off from the board more than a second, but that was plenty of time for the newspaper chap. When I looked again there was a fifty dollar note on the winning number. I looked at him and he looked at me. He was as unconcerned as you please. I said to him that I declined to pay, but he wouldn't be bluffed, and he actually skinned me out of $1,750. That had nerve though. He told me afterwards that it was my business to watch the play, and if I didn't I must stand the consequences. He said he knew I would skin him if I got the chance, and that he was on the same lay himself. It taught me a good lesson, and now if I am dealing I believe that the roof might fall in and I wouldn't take my eyes off from the table."—[Towle's letter to Boston Traveller.

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind in use. Adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for TWO YEARS and is GUARANTEED to give more EXTRAORDINARY results for the advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Ferris at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of OVER 25 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Ferris being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month of a year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, plates or setts, making the machine worth FOUR times its cost for this purpose.

George Washington on His Travels

A few days ago a stranger stopped for the night at a village hotel in Iowa, and, as he wrote the name of "George Washington" on the register, he remarked to the landlord:—

"You have probably heard of me?"

"N—o—a, can't say that I have."

"What? Never heard of Washington?"

"No. I know lots of folks, but they are named Jones, Brown, Smith, or something of that sort. What's your partickler lay?"

"Why, I'm the Father of My Country."

"Yes. Well, that's all right and perfectly respectable, I suppose. Our rates are a dollar a day, and you won't find any bugs in the bed."

Next morning as the stranger went to settle his bill, the landlord seemed a bit embarrassed and said:—

"I was a-telling the family last night that you was George Washington. My boy said as how he had read about you in his school books."

"Yes, I'm the man."

"I went and hunted up the reader, and I see you fit the British."

"I did."

"And finally licked 'em?"

"Yes sir."

"Wall, that was real good in you. About a mile up the road I've got the nicest lot of turnips in the State of Iowa. If the stage will stop for you, you can pull all you can eat, but, if you knock any rails off the fence please put 'em back again. George Washington, eh! I'll write that name down so as to remember it."—[Chicago News.

Two Thoughts of a House Owner.

Deacon White (who is a property owner and runs a real estate agency) —"Good morning, Deacon Black."

Deacon Black—"Good morning. I thought I would drop in and ask you how you liked the new minister yesterday. Fine sermon, wasn't it?"

D. W.—"Excellent. Never heard a better. He is a very eloquent man and is very happy in the selection of his subjects."

D. B.—"Remarkably so. Sermons on subjects that touch the sympathies are better for us all than the discussion of points of doctrine."

D. W.—"Certainly. What could be happier than his subject yesterday: 'Suffer little children to come unto me?' How tenderly he spoke of the little ones! I declare it melted my heart to hear him—"

(Enter a lady who has business with Deacon W.)

D. W.—"Well, ma'am, what can I do for you?"

Lady—"Have you got any houses to let?"

D. W.—"Yes'm."

L. "I am looking 'round to find a good house at a reasonable rent."

D. W.—"Have you any children?"

L.—"Yes."

D. W.—"Then I can't let you have a house. Don't want any children in my houses."

Lady takes her leave and the deacons resume their conversation on the sermon.—[Boston Courier.

Things Taken Out of Season.

Why in the world we enjoy things out of their season is one of the mysteries of life. Just because they are out of season probably, and so chime in with the general contrariness of our nature. But what a mistake it is! Who that revels in jacqueminot roses and strawberries now will enjoy them in all their "true inwardness" when they really belong here? Where is the pleasure of watching each opening leaf and bud when already our whole being is satisfied with the perfect flower? It is just like (only different) seeing the end of a play before the curtain draws up, or knowing the catastrophe of a life before the first chapter is read.—[N. Y. Express.

IN-DOOR DECORATIONS.

Carpets, Screens, Paper Hangings, Mouldings, etc.

Furniture supplies remarkable instances of changes of taste. Up to half a century ago antique furniture in England among the rich was relegated to the store-houses and the garret, and even now some fine examples are obtainable in the houses of the peasantry.

A picturesque effect is induced by draping upper portion of portraits with Indian silk, with deep fringes.

Parlor screens are introduced that are arranged to slide downwards and so disappear from sight.

It is to be remembered in selecting wall papers that light papers often appear much more intense on being hung, owing to reflection from the opposite wall, especially near the corners.

An appropriate frame and one much admired for water color drawings is flat and with blue ground, on which, leaving wide interspaces, raised leaves, stalks, flowers and fruit, in bronze and gilt are scattered in a somewhat informal fashion.

Plain small moulded surfaces will usually look all the better for being in two tints of the same color.

The apparent size of mouldings is increased by color enrichment, as these multiply detail. Unbroken horizontal lines in cornice add to the seeming length of the continuity. Strongly marked vertical divisions that baffle the eye in an attempt to count them increase apparent breadth, and flutings on the corona of a cornice, dentils and medallions make the extent of surface appear greater, as suggestive of the subdivisions it is capable of containing.

It would appear to be a decided error to adopt flower pots with aggressive colors brilliantly glazed, as they seriously detract from the charm of the plants, the intensity of the reflected light overpowering these.

The low-backed chair, low-set and broad, and with back of heavily-carved hardwood, reaching but halfway to the shoulders of the sitter, has become a verity.

Classic ornaments are adapted for library chairs; tea or coffee plants or masques of Ceres, Bacchus or Comus for card tables used as breakfast tables; designs from mythological history for library and writing tables; broad ornaments, as the bread tree and its fruit forms or the hop plant, for dining table; the moresque or foliage fruit and flowers for drawing room tables.

Ornamental forms of wood covered with velvet plush, that serve for wall ornaments, in shapes of anchors, crosses, stars, etc., have center adorned with bouquets in artificial flowers, and where space allows a small silver thermometer in silver case is inserted.

Mounted fans in brilliant colors and with mirrored centers set on carved stand, are used for displaying portrait photographs fixed in hidden and shallow paper pockets behind the curved upper edge. This rainbow arrangement has a good effect.

If the prospect from windows be not very good a little pale amber and very faint blue or green stained glass can be arranged in a neat frame and made to fit over and cover the other glass.—[Decorator and Furnisher.

The Blessings of Wealth.

Two tramps whose clothes were as ragged and tattered as clothes ever get to be, while sitting behind a fence, discussing some cold victuals, were heard to say:—

"I wish I was rich."

"What would you do? Buy up the Legislature and run for the U. S. Senate, or would you take a trip around the world in your yacht?"

"No, that's not what I would do. I don't care to awe people."

"Maybe if you were rich you would do just nothing at all."

"Yes, I'd do that part of the time but I have another reason for wanting to be rich."

"Start a daily paper in a one horse town?"

"No I wouldn't be a fool if I was rich. I'd want to enjoy my wealth. If I were rich I could wear old clothes without having people call me a tramp and make remarks about my slovenliness. There is more solid comfort in that than anything else."—[Texas Siftings.

A Sinful Strain.

Mrs. Spilkins, a fashionable Austin lady, was very much shocked last Sunday afternoon by the strains of an operatic air that came from a piano in the adjoining house. She remarked:—

"How wicked it is to play such music on Sunday."

"Why, that is the identically same tune I heard in church last Sunday," said Col. Spilkins.

"That's a different thing. We were all dressed up and in church then."—[Siftings.

A Beautiful Moth.

"The Tineida epigraphia," writes Alphonse Karr, "is the smallest of all moths, being two lines wide when its wings are outspread; but how magnificently it is attired! It is robed in gold and silver, and on the silvery gauze of its upper wings is traced in letters of gold an inscription which no one has yet succeeded in deciphering, though I fancy I can read it thus: Maximus in minimus Deus (God is greatest in his smallest works)."

A. T. Stewart's Dinners.

The late A. T. Stewart, although a childless man himself, was a firm and steadfast believer in sociable Sunday dinners, forming weekly reunions of his friends, keeping up his circle of acquaintances and making him "feel, once a week," as he used to say, "like a family man." From the time he moved into his marble palace on Fifth Avenue, the Stewart Sunday dinner was the main feature of the week, and probably the Stewart Sunday dinner was the one finest dinner in every respect given that day in New York. Stewart, who was the greatest master in the world of the art of "detail," saw to all the details of these dinners himself. So that they were absolutely perfect. He had the best cook, steward, etc., that money could procure, yet he personally superintended them all; he left nothing to chance.

He seldom attempted big dinner parties, because he found by experience—as everybody else will find who makes the trial—that where there are so many guests, there are sure to be some bores, or some who do not assimilate and get along with the rest. So, as a rule, he confined his invitations to a dinner to ten or twelve, and spent as much time and money on their entertainment as if there were a hundred.

The millionaire claimed to be as good a judge of wines as he was of pictures, and he certainly spent enormous sums successfully on both. He employed one traveling agent in Europe, who did nothing but supply him with choice wines. The choicer and the more expensive the wines his agent selected, the higher was the salary this favored agent received. Thus it was a mutually satisfactory arrangement, and on several occasions Stewart actually got the inside track of European dukes and princes and got wines that they had endeavored to secure in vain. This would tickle the old man greatly, and his lucky wine man would receive by the next steamer some substantial token of his employer's satisfaction.

One day, a red letter in the great merchant's calendar, he received an invoice of the world-famous wine known as "Prince Metternich's blue seal," a wine he had set his heart upon for years, but in vain. It took a great deal to move A. T. Stewart out of his regular routine. A panic wouldn't have done it, but this "blue seal" did. With a smile of supreme self-satisfaction, the Napoleon of trade went with his wine to his palace and enjoyed an hour's bliss in the constant contemplation, and an occasional sip, of his treasure.

Stewart was a very abstemious man, even in wine. He valued it for quality. He did not gorge in quantity. He set an example of temperance, even at his own magnificent dinners. But his delight in looking at his wine, and feeling he owned it, was greater than the delirious joy of the most confirmed toper. And his next remittance to his wine agent contained $2,000 extra as an appreciation of his services in securing this prize.

To be offered a sip of this Metternich "blue seal" was to be shown a special mark of favor, and it was a sure sign that the recipient of the courtesy stood high in the rich man's esteem.

The millionaire had special glasses for this special wine, glasses very costly, very exquisite, and very small. He poured out the wine into these glasses with his own hand, and, small as the glasses were, he hardly ever quite filled them.

At one Stewart Sunday dinner a little episode occurred which cost the man who made a somewhat pointed remark, about $50,000. An English banker was invited by Stewart to his tables, and the millionaire poured out the blue seal. The Englishman quaffed down what there was of it at a gulp, in a careless manner, quite at contrast with the solemn style in which Stewart had poured it out. "Ah, you have tasted this wine before," remarked the somewhat chagrined American merchant. "Oh, yes," repied the English banker, "and in larger glasses." Stewart smiled faintly at the somewhat brusque remark, but that Englishman did not smile when Stewart stopped negotiations with his banking house then pending, and transferred his favors to a rival London house.

The last Sunday dinner at the Stewart palace was a memorable one, Lord Mandeville was there, Hon. John Bigelow, and Pierrepoint Edwards, Judge Hilton, of course, and eight other gentlemen besides the host, Mrs. Stewart being absent. One of the gentlemen invited, being taken sick, sent his regrets, and thus, to Hilton's annoyance and Stewart's absolute dread, there were just thirteen sat down at table. Hilton offered to leave so as to reduce the number to twelve. But Stewart and the rest would not spare him. No one else could be asked to leave. Stewart couldn't leave himself, and so, with a strange foreboding the millionaire poured out the blue seal for his guests. Eight days later the millionaire lay dead in a chamber near the dining room, and the blue seal has not been poured out since. —[N. Y. Mercury.

"Tommy, did you hear your mother call you?" "Course I did." "Then, why don't you go to her at once?" "Well, you see, she's nervous, and it'd shock her awful if I should go too sudden." —[Chicago Tribune.

Sad, but Can't be Helped.

A certain ring of half a dozen men have for the past year been in the habit of meeting at a certain Detroit drug store every evening to tell stories and indulge in gossip, and the way they have hung on each time has been a terrible trial to the druggist. The other day, after a severe struggle with himself, he tackled one of the coterie about it, explaining:

"Of course I don't want to hurt your feelings, but seems to me you could break up an hour earlier."

"Oh, no offense whatever," was the reply, "but I'll tell you what the trouble is. If we could all go out together it would be all right, but if one gets up and starts off the rest all talk about him."

"How?"

"Well, if the Colonel goes out, the door has hardly closed on him before somebody remarks that it is curious how he got his title as he was in Canada all through the war. If the judge follows him some one says he doesn't know any more about law than a hog does of playing the piano. If I go out, some one hints that I had to leave Indiana for setting my grocery on fire, and so it goes. You see how embarrassing it is?"

"I'll fix it after this," replied the druggist after a little reflection, and that night, as ten o'clock struck, a boy came in and announced a big fire down town. The gang went out in a body, and although the report was false not one returned. The next night the boy announced an accident around the corner, and the next he had a stabbing affair near by. The gang soon tumbled to the racket, and now, as the clock strikes ten, every man rises to his feet and they go out together. This places all on an equal footing, and there is only one sad thought connected with the scheme. It is that the druggist and his clerk, who must perforce be left behind, will slander and abuse the whole gang as soon as their backs are turned.—[Free Press.

Improving on His Wife's Method.

There is in this city a young Benedict who is so unfortunate as to be wedded to a lady of rare beauty and attractiveness. Now this young Benedict had in all respects proved a model husband, and had acquitted himself so faithfully on all occasions that his wife had confidence in him, and willingly intrusted the most sacred and important duties to his charge. So fully, indeed, did she trust him on Wednesday last she started for the country to have a week's visit with a friend, and the last word to him before starting—having consigned the baby to the tender mercies of the nurse—were: "Georgie, promise me to take good care of Fido. Don't let him overeat himself, and, above all, bathe him regularly. You'll find the bath-tub in the parlor, the towels are in the linen-press, and his comb and brushes are in the left hand corner of my right-hand bureau drawer, and the cologne is on the shelf above. And be sure when you've finished to wrap him in his blanket and put him in the sunshine to dry, and if he ever catches cold telegraph me." So saying, she printed one last impassioned kiss on Fido's nose, tearfully delivered him to her husband's arms, stepped into the carriage and was gone. On Thursday and Friday Georgie implicitly carried out the parting instructions of his absent wife. He bathed Fido, cologned Fido, brushed, combed, and dried Fido. But yesterday morning when the scribe passed by their residence he heard wild yelpings and ki-yi-ings proceeding from the yard. Stepping up to the fence, he looked over and saw an unusually fat pug, now tumbling on the ground, now turning somersaults in the air, and frantically yelping all the while. Some few yards off stood Georgie with his hands in his pockets and a smile of sweet contentment on his face. He was bathing Fido. He had chained him to a post and turned the hose on him.—[Buffalo Courier.

The Nude in Art.

Some columns of letters have been printed recently in the London Times on the subject of nude art in the Royal Academy exhibitions, of which there has been a great increase in late years. "A British Matron" begun the controversy, and some of the letters have been spirited and original. Jerome K. Jerome writes: "I quite agree with your correspondent, 'A British Matron,' that the human form is a disgrace to decency, and that it ought never to be seen in its natural state. But 'A British Matron' does not go far enough in my humble judgment. She censures the painters, who merely copy nature. It is God Almighty who is to blame in this matter for having created such an indelicate object."

THE anti-Chinese meeting at Sacramento shows more clearly than anything that has lately been done, how fully determined the people of the Pacific Coast are to get rid of the Chinese. The antipathy to the Chinese is so deep seated, and the movement to get relieved of their disagreeable presence is so wide spread, as to prove conclusively if any more proof were needed, that the white race and the Chinese can never live side by side in peace, except as master and slave. It cost too much to get rid of one system of slavery in this country, to permit the establishment of another.

The politicians and office seekers are working the anti-Chinese movement for all it is worth. Even prominent candidates for the high offices of Governor and United States Senator are crowding to the front as leaders in the movement, hoping thereby to gain the end of their ambition.

A Public Loss.

Prof. H. G. Hanks, of the State Mining Bureau, has decided to resign from his office. He has been forced to this course by the neglect of the Legistature to provide sufficient funds for the support of the Bureau. It betrays gross ignorance on the part of a large number of members of the Legislature, when this institution, that is of immense benefit, not only to the mining interests of the State, but to farming and manufacturing interests as well, is left to perish for lack of a few thousand dollars for its support.

How to Bring Conviction.

To a stranger from the eastern States or from Europe, sage-brush land presents a very uninviting appearance. Such a person can hardly be made to believe that land on which there is nothing to be seen but this miserable looking shrub, could ever be made to produce anything else. The sight of a small tract of land producing heavy crops of hay or grain, or thriving young fruit trees, would do more to convince inexperienced people of the value of sage-brush land than whole volumes written on the subject. A few small tracts of land could be put in cultivation along the line of the C. & C. railroad, in Owens Valley, at a very moderate expense. Forty acres would be quite enough in each tract to demonstrate the quality of the soil. The improvements could easily be protected by locating the land under the Desert Land Act, and the proof thus given of the value of the land will ensure the speedy sale of the tracts at a large profit on the outlay. Parties who have permanent interests in the Valley might do well to consider this matter carefully.

Some interesting particulars are given by M. Escalle, director of the important works at Tamaris, in regard to the employment of blocks of compressed coal, in lieu of coke, for blast furnaces. With the ores of the country, which are argilo-silicious and small, the quantity of compressed fuel employed is 20 per cent, but with those of Motka or Pilhals it reaches regularly 30 per cent. It has been found that by the use of these blocks a much higher temperature of hot blast is obtained, and that the proportion of combustible consumed—coke and compressed coal included—per ton of pig iron produced is less than with coke alone. M. Escalle attributes this result to the quantity of water, 1½ per cent, contained in the compressed coal blocks used by him, as well as to the nature of the volatile matters. It appears that the volume of gas obtained per ton of the compressed fuel, at these works, was some 7,620 feet.

The improved kind of explosive recently brought to notice in foreign journals, and known as cocoa powder, is said to possess such superior value for many purposes that it has been introduced in the famous Krupp factory. It is asserted that, with equal pressure, this substance gives greater velocity to a ball than can be attained with ordinary powder, while its smoke is found to be less dense and to clear off more quickly. It is brown, or, rather, chocolate colored. In sundry tests about one-seventh less of it was required than of the ordinary kind of powder to produce given results. The merit which is specially advanced in its favor is, briefly, that of beginning its combustion moderately and steadily, and then, when the projectile has started through the bore, burning with great rapidity, and with, of course, tremendous impelling force. The method of preparation and the cost as compared with other explosives is not stated.

Carlyle as a School-master.

Jonathan Findlay, now a resident of Montreal, Canada, was more than sixty years ago a pupil of Carlyle's, who, Mr. Findlay says, was a cruel tyrant, ruling a class of trembling boys with a rod of iron. He was rough and uncouth in his appearance and no one suspected that within him were the elements of a great and successful writer.

AIR-FOOD OF PLANTS.—The experiments of Prof. W. O. Atwater have shown that contrary to the general opinion of chemists, plants assimilate nitrogen from the air. While they take up the greatest quantity when abundantly supplied from the soil, fully one-half the total nitrogen acquired by well-fed plants is drawn from the atmosphere.

THE GOLDEN EAGLE.

Written for the Independent by an old Pioneer.

OLANCHA, Inyo Co. Cal.,
March 16, 1885.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT. — "Distance lends enchantment to the view." This quotation is suggested from having read the following in an article in the Golden Days published at Philadelphia by Jas. Elverson:

"Not long ago Captain Keeler, of Virginia City, Nevada, was hunting in Inyo county, California, when he was tempted to climb to the summit of Mt. Whitney, in full view from his camp. So, after hard labor and many perils he reached the top. At the very summit there is a flat space like a marble roof, and this space is broad enough for a regiment of soldiers to encamp upon. 'Looking down from the apex,' says Captain Keeler, 'thrilled me and brought a shudder over me. Right at my feet was a perpendicular fall of 4,000 feet down to the lake that looked like a spot of silver. Now, when you creep up to the edge to look off this awful steep, the very flesh seems to crawl on your bones. It is truly startling to look into some of the yawning chasms surrounding this grand elevation, nearly three miles above the sea! The whole valley appeared more like the sea than the earth. Far, far down the mountain side flew a bird that looked like a fly—a mere speck; but, when seen through a telescope, this fly proved to be a golden eagle with a young deer in its talons.'"

The above sets me to thinking and prompts me to say that it does seem strange that parties (tourists and lecturers) who visit Mt. Whitney have fail to describe that wonderful bird, the Golden Eagle, found in no other part of the world, I believe. And that it should fall to my lot to describe that proud, beautiful, grand and magnificent bird. I, in company with several others from various sections, with the old pioneer, Charley Begole, as guide, had the pleasure of a trip to grand old Mt Whitney, and it may interest your readers to know what we saw at that great height. Many in the valley at the present time recollect the grand preparations made for our tour. Well, suffice it to say, that after seven days hard climbing about noon we arrived (the most of us) on a beautiful plateau thickly covered with grasses, mosses, and the most fragrant and lovely flowers that were ever seen. We were now on the very summit of Mt. Whitney, and how astonished we were you can imagine to find this noble old Mount dressed in all the gorgeous beauty of a tropical climate, and it on the 13th day of January; after a short rest we ventured to the edge of its precipice by crawling upon our hands and knees, and what a peculiar sensation; it began about the center of gravity and seemed trying to pull the body over; but after awhile this wore off and we were enabled to see the wonders of the Mount. After looking for some moments at the fathomless depths below, some one discovered that on each of the prominent crags 2,000 feet beneath us and they were numerous—was perched what appeared a large bird; our spy glasses or telescopes were soon brought to bear upon them and we found them to be almost as big the "Roc" that Sinbad found; and what lovely plumage! all the hues of the rainbow, with bars of gold mounting parallel with his back, and a band of silver fifteen inches wide running around his neck; his fan like tail, which stood erect like a peacock's when strutting, was fully fifteen feet across and twenty feet high, and surpassing in elegance any description I have ever read of the Birds of Paradise. Whilst we were admiring the birds we heard a noise as of distant wind, which grew stronger and stronger until there came to our view one of these magnificent birds; it was the general verdict that he was fifty feet from tip to tip. We could see that he held something in his mammoth claws; after alighting we could plainly perceive that he held a deer and that it was still alive. Some one proposed to drop a rock over and frighten him so as to see the deer fall; it was done; my eyes, what a noise! the wind from their wings was a perfect hurricane; every hat belonging to the party could be seen making for a calmer country. We now could see a rest at two young ones; one of the party—young man from Sonoma—proposed that if we could procure ropes he would go down and secure the young one. We dispatched a Mexican to Lone Pine for rope and on his return we threw another stone to frighten off the birds. The rope was fastened to a long jagged crag that extended in the opposite way from where we stood and then the fearful descent began; we let him down slowly and at last he arrived at the nest but was fully twenty feet from the nest and would have to swing himself in. He swung to and fro for some time but finally lodged safely at the nest, and soon had one of the birds tied to the end of the rope; we had not pulled more than fifty feet when, oh, horror of horrors! the rope broke near our hands and disappeared from view. As soon as we regained our senses the Mexican was sent for more rope; by the time we had gotten him started it was night; not a soul in the party thought once of sleep, but with one accord placed himself as near the edge of the precipice as safety would allow and sat crouched waiting for the first dawn of day to encourage the young man as much as possible. It was the longest night I ever experienced; we could hear the birds returning to their nests; as soon as day light began to make its faintest streaks every man could be seen peering over the cliff in hopes to get a glimpse of our unlucky companion, but the whole canyon was filled with fog until about 8 o'clock when the sun dispelled it; but alas, our friend was not there; we felt that poor boy had breathed his last. We started sorrowfully down the mountain side and after threading our way for about two miles we came to a narrow ridge that led off toward Lone Pine creek; following it brought us immediately below the eagle's nest, and just on the edge of that seething, surging, turbulent stream we found what remained of our companion. We found a skull lying close to the edge of the creek, but gracious! it looked as though it had been bleaching for years and was as smooth as though it had been placed in a lathe and polished with great care, therefore all agreed that it could not be his skull; however, we carried it to Lone Pine with us and on examination Dr. Walker recognized it by a tooth he had filled but a few weeks before. Tom Beland has the tooth to this day, and Pap Walker still retains the skull. As we were working our way down the creek one of the party saw a deer lying on a drift in the creek; we fished him out and he looked like an ox. Charley Begole told of the large deer and of the eagle claw marks on him; some one in town doubted Charley's story, and, Begole like, he hitched up four horses, took two men and brought down the deer. We weighed it, and would you believe it? it weighed thirteen hundred and twenty-six pounds. (This is gross) Well, Mr. Editor, I do not wish to engross too much of your valuable paper, so will close; but if ever I catch you up in the mountains I can prove what I've told, and many citizens of Lone Pine can confirm the weight of the deer.

Yours &c.,

SATURDAY MARCH 20.....1886

—S. G. Gregg has sold his ranch at Alvord to Messrs. Collins and Sanger.

—Jack Wilson is getting out ore at Darwin that carries copper, silver and gold. He will ship two car loads to San Francisco in a few days.

—Last Monday George Story cleaned up at the Maxim mill from a run of 80 tons of ore from the Poleta mine. There was a fair margin left over expenses, but nothing very big.

—Mr. J. R. Eldred has bought a house and lot at the north end of Bishop Creek. Himself and family moved into their new home last Monday.

—From Snow Canyon and Slate Range J. C. Eddy has lately been making shipments of bullion. Since the beginning of the present year Mr. Eddy has been very successful in mining.

—The school term at Independence ended last Muesday. Mr. Peeler has proved to be a successful teacher, and his reengagement to teach during the next term, would, we believe, give general satisfaction.

—Frank Silva is getting out ore at Darwin that will pay well. Parties who visited the mine very recently say he has a large body of ore in sight. About two car loads are reported to be on the dump that will be shipped to San Francisco in a few days.

—No injury worth mention has been done to fruit in the lower end of the valley. Only a few apricots, and peaches that do not ripen till late in the fall, sustained the least damage. Apples, pears, all of the peach crop with the above exception and all other fruits, are not injured in the least.

—A. O. Collins and G. Sanger of Bakersfield, Kern county, arrived at Independence at the end of last week. Messrs. Collins and Sanger own a great deal of stock, horses, cattle and sheep; they intend to locate land in Owens Valley and settle here. In fact they have already located three sections of land-640 acres each, on the east side of the river-south of Big Pine station, and are now making a ditch to carry water on to the land.

BOOT AND SHOE SHOP.—A. J. Davis has opened a boot and shoe shop on Maine Street, Independence, next the printiing office. Mr. Davis is a very skilful workman, and will take especial pains to give satisfaction to all patrons.

PAINFUL INJURY.—Last Saturday Mr. R. Hilton of Round valley sustained a painful injury. When driving between Pleasant valley and Bishop Creek he was thrown from his buggy, and his collar bone was broken. His son was with him, and stopped the team in time to prevent further damage. Mr. Hilton is improving as well as could be expected.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for ale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

AGUE WANTED.—A case of ague in Owens Valley can be disposed of at a high premium. We want a case of home made ague as a rare curiosity. A party at Santa Cruz who contemplates coming to Owens valley, writes that he has been informed that should he come here he must make up his mind to shake with the ague six months in every year. After diligent inquiry among the oldest settlers in the neighborhood of Independence, we have failed to find one who ever saw a case of ague in the valley, unless it might be persons who had contracted the disease in some of the counties west of the mountains and came here to get cured, which they very quickly did.

INCORPORATED.—The Owens valley Canal and Irrigation Company is now incorporated. The certificate of incorporation was received from the Secretary of State last Monday. The capital stock of the Company is $250,000, in 25,000 shares at ten dollars each. Each share represents one inch of water in the canal, and the holder of each certificate of stock will be entitled to the use for all time of as many inches of water as number of shares stated in the certificate. The officers of the Company for the present year are John Alexander, President; George H. Hardy, Secretary; C. Mulholland, Treasurer; the Directors are O. I. Mairs, J. White Smith, John Alexander, Arthur Tanner, George H. Hardy, C. Mulholland.

Death of Duncan Campbell

BIG PINE, March 16, 1886.

Another of the defenders of our country gathered among the great multitude who risked their all in the glorious cause for the freedom and union of our whole country. Duncan Campbell enlisted under the Flag of the union as a common soldier, and was at different times promoted to positions of honor, and financial responsibilities which he filled with credtt to himself and his country. Through the exposure incident to such a life and position his health was so undermined that step by step he has reached the final Home of all. He leaves a young wife and child to mourn his loss. A large concourse of friends followed his remains sadly to their last resting place. Dr. M. W. Parsons, in the absense of a Minister read very appropiate selections from the bible.

Inyo Academy.

An esteemed correspondent at Bishop Creek writes as follows: "The Inyo Academy is starting out in fine style, and is certain to be a success. Mr. Logan is just the man to make it such. Those attending the school are very much pleased with his method of teaching, and the parents and guardians of pupils not less so. A gratifying change is already noticable among the young people, as an effect of the establishment of the school. Instead of running about the streets they are at home, busily engaged on their studies, laying the foundation for that mental improvement that will show itself later.

The number of students that entered when the school was first opened was thirty-two; there has been a steady increase till now the number is fifty seven, and more contemplate entering. The Trustees now see plainly that an academy building must be erected without delay, in order to accomodate the steadily increasing number of students. At the present time the pupils scarcely have standing room wherein to go through their recitations, and classes have to be divided to make room. Some desks have been put into the M. E. Church, and a number of the pupils study and recite there: the remainder study and recite in the parsonage. Mr. Logan has engaged Miss E. K. Yaney as assistant teacher, her engagement at West Bishop having ended last week. The pupils and their parents in West Bishop district evidently regret very much to lose Miss Yaney." G.

Shooting at Keeler.

Last Thursday morning Mike Curry shot Jim Kearney at Keeler. Curry discharged a shot gun at Kearney, wounding him in the left shoulder; the wound was not serious. The difficulty that led to the shooting began at Darwin. In settling up some business with Mr. C. Anthony and Mr. J. Wilson, it is alleged that Curry had shown a disposition to deal unfairly with both parties. All of these were at Keeler on Wednesday evening. Mr. Anthony and Curry met in the bar-room of the hotel and resumed a discussion of the matter. Curry used abusive language, and while he was doing so Mr. Wilson entered the room; a part of the talk was at once directed at him, but had not proceeded far when he got soundly cuffed. The matter rested there till next morning, when Curry was seen going around with a shot gun in his hands. No one paid much attention to him, as he was not considered likely to use the gun, and he was walking around with it in his hands when the train left. Kearney had not yet been mixed up in the affair in any way, but soon after the departure of the train the men met with the result stated.

More Law Suits.

At the end of last week C. H. Paterson, Deputy United States Marshall, arrived at Independence from San Francisco. He served papers on R. S. Miner and Frank Silva in a suit in equity, to be tried in the United States Circuit Court at San Francisco. This suit is brought at the instance of the Southern Development Company of Nevada, and is for the recovery of a certificate of deposit given by Wells Fargo & Co., for $7500 The certificate is now deposited with the Clerk of the United States Circuit Court, pending the issue of the trial.

On the same day that the Deputy Marshall arrived at Independence, Mr. Miner had already filed a complaint against the Southern Development Company, alleging false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, and claiming fifty thousand dollars damages.

The series of lawsuits between these parties promises to wind up like the battle of the Kilkeny cats; at the end of that famous scrimmage there was nothing of the contestants left but the tails.

What has been Will Be.

There are men now living in the counties west of the mountains who are homeless and landless, yet remember well when they could have become possessed of thousands of acres of land. They scorned to take possession of the land, regarding it as being utterly worthless, but on the same tracts there are now fine fertile fields, fruitful orchards, vineyards, and beautiful homes. What has been will be; the experience of the counties of the great San Joaquin valley will be repeated in Owens valley. Warned by past experience, men from those counties are now locating lands in Owens valley, with the intention of making permanent homes. Here, as there, the time is coming, and is not far off, when many will curse their own folly in not securing land enough to make a good home when they had an opportunity. None so hard to serve, or so difficult to persuade to their own good, as the stupid and ignorant.

Saint Ireland's Day.

Saint Patrick's day was celebrated in glorious style at Keeler. From Bishop Creek, Big Pine, Independence and Lone Pine, large deputations went down by rail. From Darwin, Lookout, Cerro Gordo and all the mining camps in the south end of the valley, the "boys" were out in force. It was the biggest gathering, and the gayest night, ever seen at Keeler. McMurry's new hall afforded ample accommodation for the dancers: there was a fine orchestra, and dancing was kept up till daylight. Fun and frolic kept every one on the keen jump from start to finish, and the rising sun never beamed upon a company that parted with greater reluctence. All present were highly pleased with the pains taken by Mr. and Mrs. Barnes to provide for their comfort and entertainment.

Personal Mention.

S. G. Gregg was down from Big Pine last Monday.

Mr. T. C. Boland, of Keeler, was at Independence last Monday.

Mrs. Johnson and Miss Ida McCall were up from Lone Pine last Saturday.

Mr. J. Jones, of Big Pine, was at Independence at the begining of the week.

Mr. I. P. Yaney will leave on Saturday for New York, to be gone some months.

Mrs. Barbara Koch and family will leave on Saturday morning for the east where she will remain some time.

Mr. N. T. Piper, of Oasis, Mono county, was at Independence last Monday, for the first time in twenty months.

J. C. Eddy, Frank Fitzgerald and J. W. Murphy came up from Darwin to Independence last Thursday, and stayed in town a few days.

Mrs. Bourland and her sister, Miss Hattie Burger left Bishop Creek last Tuesday on a trip to New York. They expect to be gone some months.

Miss May Shepherd left home last Wednesday morning, on her way to make a visit to her grandmother at Stockton. She is likely to stay some months.

Mrs. Barnes, daughter of Judge Wayland, left Bishop Creek for San Francisco last Monday. She has been bedridden during ten months, and goes for medical treatment.

Messrs Collins and Sanger left Independence yesterday morning on the way back to Kern county. They will shortly return to Owens valley, bringing with cattle and horses.

Miss Maggie Conklin and her brother, Norman Conklin, arrived at Independence last Wednesday from Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Conklin have gone to San Francisco, but are expected home soon.

Miss Minnie Tompson returned home last Monday, her school at Bishop Station being closed for the season. The patrons of the school express high satisfaction with Miss Tompson as a teacher.

The American Mocking-Bird.

While the mocking-bird is not showy in appearance, its well-shaped form and graceful motions make it an attractive household pet, aside from its singing qualities. Birds of average size measure nine and one-half inches in length, with an expanse of wing of thirteen inches. The upper part of the head, neck, and back is a dark brownish-ash; the wings and tail are nearly black; the primary feathers are white, the first and second rows of coverts tipped with white; the two outer feathers are wholly white; the others, except the middle ones, tipped with white. The neck, breast, and under parts are a cloudy white, while the iris is of a yellowish cream color, the bill black and the base of the lower mandible whitish. The legs and feet are black and stoutly formed. The male and female are similar in appearance, but may be readily distinguished, as the white on the wings of the female is not so clear as on the male bird, and extends over only seven or eight of the primaries; the black on the wing is also not so deep, being of a brownish shade. To rear the young by hand much care is required, and on an average fifty per cent die. They are principally fed on meal worms, boiled beets, carrots, cabbage, and the yolk of a hard-boiled egg. The pastor of the African M. E. Church, on Broadway, Galveston, Texas, is the owner of one of the most wonderful songsters in the State, which sings almost entirely through the spring, summer, and autumn nights, imitating to perfection the pipe of the canary, the mellow whistle of the cardinal, the wild song of the thrush, the shrill scream of the eagle, the mourning of the dove, the crow of the cock, the cackle of the hens, the quarreling of cats, and the grunting of pigs. The reverend owner of the bird raised it from a fledgling, and says "no money will buy it."—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Enforced Honesty.

Mrs. Peterby caught Matilda Snowball, her servant, stealing, several consecutive times.

"Now I've caught you again. You seem to be a natural born thief."

"Yes, mum, but Ise had a run of bad luck ob late."

"What I want to know is how it comes that in your recommendation from the lady you lived with last, she says you never stole from her. Did she lie about it?"

"No, mum, she toles de troof."

"Have you then become dishonest since you came to me?"

"No, mum, I allers stole when I had a chance."

"I suppose she kept everything locked up."

"No, mum, she was de wife ob one dese newspaper men, and dar wasn't nuffin in de house wuff stealing. Dey am owin' me a mumf's wages yit."

A Michigan Milk Punch.

"Yaw," said the passenger from Michigan, as he straightened up and jammed the cork in and wiped his lips, "yer right, stranger, that's purty quick likker. It sarches out the right spot tarnal quick. It's right smart lively likker, that is, but it can't hold a candle to some milk punch I've had on my farm out to the oak clearings near Jonesville."

"I thought milk punch was a mild drink?"

"Mebbie 'tis the way city folks makes it; mebbie tis. But 'tain't with us; no, siree.. I wish it was. The last time I milked that old black and white cow of mine she up with her off leg and gave the pail an' me a milk punch that knocked both of us inter the middle of next week."—[Chicago Herald.

Eating and Working.

"Do you know," said M. Alphonse Daudet, the most popular of living French novelists, to an interviewer recently, "that when I wrote the 'Nabob' I worked twenty hours every day. One becomes intoxicated with work, and I found that my digestion was much better if I ate while I worked. I always took my meals to my writing table, and the result was invariably satisfactory. You know that if you go to bed immediately after eating, the digestion will accomplish itself during sleep. The same with writing. Commence immediately after you have swallowed your food. Don't wait for digestion, or you will feel heavy and incapable. I can assure you that this physiological law has been a veritable godsend to me."

A Strong Proof of Affection.

First dude—"You think that she loves you then?"

Second dude—"I'm—aw—positive of it, my deah boy."

First dude—"What makes you positive?"

Second dude—"She has named her poodle after me, my deah boy, and if that isn't a strong proof of a young lady's affection then I'm no judge of the deah eweachahs, that's all."—[Boston Courier.

A Milder Definition.

Lawyer—"Now you know the man isn't veracious, do you not?"

Witness—"I wouldn't like to say so, sir."

Lawyer—"Why not? A milder way of stating it would suit you better, perhaps?"

Witness—"Just so. I wouldn't like to decide as to his veracity; but I know that he is decidedly unhistorical."—[Philadelphia Call.

"Good gracious," said the hen when she discovered a porcelain egg on the nest, "I shall be a bricklayer next."—[Boston Bulletin.

THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind ever applied to all grades and classes of ores.

The machine illustrated is fully fortified by PATENTS, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month of the year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the fine gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its entire purchase price.

BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the staff, and is capable of carrying 600 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

The Burglar's Christmas Eve.

Tony Flash could scarcely remember when he was an honest man. He didn't think, indeed, he had ever been anything but a thief ever since he was a boy. But he never liked to think about his boyhood. He swore terribly if anybody spoke about his mother to him.

And so midnight, this Christmas eve, found him engaged in his professional duty of "cracking a crib." He was in a house that belonged to and was occupied by another citizen. That citizen and his family were sleeping the sleep of unsuspecting innocence. But Tony Flash did not waste the lone, starry hours in sleep, love. That was just when he made his best time, right on the midnight stretch. He had been pretty thoroughly through the citizen's house, and his canvas bag was full of swag, silver spoons and tea things, silk dresses, costly furs, some watches and little articles of escritoire and bijouterie and such little parterre. He is about ready to depart, but pauses near the fireplace, wondering if he had not better step into an adjoining bedroom, and knock the party who is snoring in the head before (s)he wakens some of the family. The bell in the spire of Saint Mammon's tolls twelve.

What was there in the vibrant tones of the midnight bell that fell upon the burglar's callous heart like a voice from long ago? Something that awakened echoes long silent; something that touched a chord long years unresponsive. His hand trembled. "What's this?" he whispered to himself. "Am I a woman?" His eyes fell upon a row of wrinkled, dimpled little stockings hanging beside the fireplace. The shape of the little feet was still there, though the stockings bulged and bunched with the little toys thrust in them. The robber looked at them. "This is Christmas eve," he said under his breath, "I had forgotten." Ay, long years had he forgotten, but it all comes to him now. He presses his brawny hand upon his heart to still its beating, and his eyes are chained to the little stockings. In the next chamber he can hear the soft breathing of the little ones who, in sweet, childish confidence, had hung them there. He was once a child himself, innocent as they; had he forgotten it? He had children of his own, young and fair as they. Did he forget them? His heart gave a bound like like a frightened hare. His little ones! In that moment he passed through a bath of fire.

"Good enough," he muttered hoarsely, "just the thing for the kids."

And with one quick movement of his muscular arm the robber swept the whole line of stockings into his treasury pack, and, hurrying noiselessly down-stairs, stepped lightly over the prostrate figure of a vigilant policeman asleep on the front stoop, and disappeared in the direction of his favorite fence.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

Touched His Tender Spot.

"Well, that beats me," exclaimed a sour-looking passenger to a subdued sort of a man, who sit in front of him; "just listen to the jaw of that woman across the aisle. If I had a wife like that I would get a divorce in two weeks."

"Do you think it would be possible?"

"Possible! You bet; I'm a lawyer, and I'd find a way to do it so quick it would make her head swim."

"Do you mean it?" inquired the subdued looking man, earnestly.

"Of course. But what's that to you!"

"To me, stranger? Ah, were it nothing! She is my wife."

Black Hen's Eggs.

"Two dozen black hen's eggs," said an old woman, addressing a grocer.

"Black hen's eggs!" exclaimed he; "I don't know a black hen's egg from any other colored chicken's."

"Troth, then, I do," said the woman.

"Then go and pick them out yourself," he replied, pointing to a large basket of eggs.

The woman did so, and picked out two dozen of the largest eggs in the basket.—[New York Commercial Advertiser.

THE YEAR'S BEGINNING.

Why Does the Year Begin on the First of January?

Why does our year commence on the first of January, is a question easily asked, but which comparatively few are able to answer. "It marks no division of time nor any event in the world's history which would give it much distinction. The winter solstice—that is, when the sun appears to reach its greatest declension, or farthest point south of the equator—occurs December 22, nine days before the new year begins. The summer solstice, another natural division of time, on June 22, a point nearly as far removed from the new year as the calendar permits. The natural divisions of time which suggest themselves at once to the practical observer are the winter and summer solstices and the vernal and autumnal equinoxes, periods at which the days and nights have equal length or their greatest difference. These having been neglected, the moon's phases would seem to have been most likely to have been fixed upon. But Imperial Cæsar, who in 46, B. C. gave us our new year, governed by caprice or reasons of the most temporary duration, departed from the former Roman system of reckoning the year from the winter solstice and made the commencement on January 1 for no better reason than the desire to inaugurate his reform with a new moon.

"The Cæsarian system, devised by the aid of Losigenses, constituted the ordinary year of 365 days, and the fourth or extraordinary year of 366. The subdivision of the year into months was similar to the present system. This division of time, though imperfect, is still practiced in Russia. The error was in giving the year 365¼ days, which is too much by 11 minutes. Pope Gregory XIII. ordered October 5, 1582, to be called the 15th, and that all centurial years which are not multiples of 400 years should not be leap years, which omission of three leap years in every 400 years gives the civil year an average length of 365 days, 5 hours, 49 minutes and 12 seconds, which still exceeds the true solar year by the fraction of a second, which amounts to a day only in 3,866 years. The present, or Gregorian system, is used by all Christendom, except Russia. It was adopted by England in 1762, and by France in 1564.

"Prior to the reformation of the calendar by Julius Cæsar, and many centuries afterward, the methods of dividing time were various, complicated and imperfect. The moon was the planet which influenced and governed most nations, and gave rise to universal variances between the natural and civil year. The religious feasts of the Christian Church are still regulated by the moon. The Council of Nice provided that Easter, the central point by which all other days in the church calendar are fixed, should fall on the first Sunday after the first full moon occurring on or after March 21. The complex method of making these lunar periods correspond with the civil year is evidence enough of the difficulty of arranging any system for the computation of time by the 'inconstant moon.' Our week and month are not natural divisions of time, though some ingenious efforts have been made to trace some connection between natural phenomena and the period of seven days."—[Exchange.

Neglected Duty.

The body of a man who had drowned himself was taken from the water by a policeman.

"Does anybody know anything about this man?" asked the policeman of some urchins present.

"We seed him just as he came up for the last time, but we forgot to ask him what his name was," said one of the boys.

Exhaustive.

Biggles.—"I suppose you have read that work by my friend Scribbler on the 'Transmutation of Mud'?"

De Jones.—"Oh, yes; I read it causually."

Biggles.—"Didn't you find it a very exhaustive work?"

De Jones.—"I should say so. Went to sleep before I finished the first chapter."—[The Rambler.

Taking Counsel.

A little girl, aged 9, called her father to her bedside the other evening. "Papa," said the little diplomat, "I want to ask your advice."

"Well, my little dear, what is it about?"

"What do you think it would be best to give me on my birthday?"—[Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.

How to Pronounce "Mikado."

How do you pronounce Mikado? This historian has heard the following seven distinct and separate styles:—

Me-kar-dough.
Mick-add-oo.
My-kay-dough.
Mike-ah-dough.
Mike-ah-doo.
Mike-a-do.
Me-cad-der.

The correct expression, of course, is "Mih-kah-dough," laying an equal stress on each syllable. To philologists this will be what is technically known as a "chestnut."—[Boston Record.

A western exchange says that there are 269 furnaces in blast, turning out 90,000 tons of pig per week. What with patent hen hatchers, celluloid egg companies and concerns for blasting pigs it would seem that the farmers of this land were strongly in need of protection.—[The Albanian.

"That's strange" muttered Mr. Dobbin, as he laid away his newspaper. "What's strange?" asked his good wife, making him get up while she dusted the chair under him. "Why, the Mikado of Japan never wears a garment that has been washed." "The nasty heathen!"—[Chicago News.

They had looked over the splendid dwelling and grounds, and were about to depart, when one of the ladies said: "Well, Mrs. Blank, we heartily congratulate you upon the possession of such a beautiful home. I suppose the deed is in your name?" "Oh, no, no! My husband did think of that at the start, but afterwards came to the conclusion that we would hold it together. It isn't so much trouble to mortgage it that way, you know."—[Wall Street News.

Can we explain English politics to you, Lorenzo? Bless you, yes, in five lines. You know England is governed by a queen? Yes. And you know the little land of Dahomey is governed by a king? Yes. Well, when it comes to governing, the king of Dahomey is about ten times more of a king than the queen of England is a queen. But you say you can't see that there is much explanation of English politics in that? Well, of course not, There are not much English politics to explain.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

Overlooked That Point.

An Irishman standing amid the crowd of passengers that was gathered on the deck of an ocean steamer as it was nearing the Irish coast recently, pointed with pride to the flocks of gulls that circled about the ship, remarking that thy were Irish gulls.

"I guess not," exclaimed an American at his elbow, "or they would never be following an English ship."—[New York Tribune.

HIS WIFE KNEW IT.

Experience of a Drunkard Who Suddenly Broke the Habit.

There is a retired cobbler living in this place, writes an Angelica, N. Y., correspondent, who deserves the respect of his country men for moral courage.

Ten years ago he was, and had been for a long time, a confirmed inebriate—not a periodical spreer, but a genuine soaker, warranted not to draw sober breath from sun to sun. Occasionally the fumes of the whisky with which he plied himself would clear away from his befogged brain, and at such times his mental equilibrium would wrestle with the problem of total or even partial abstinence, to be utterly wrecked at the sight of his haunts or the first faint call of his system for the stimulant which long use had rendered peremptory.

One day, however, a halt was called, and this is the way he tells of it:—

"I was on my way to the barn, when I saw a small snake in my path, I kicked it with my boot, when it turned out to be a bit of crooked twig, which I snapped in my hand and threw away. I thought nothing more of the matter until I reached the barn, when directly before me, a second snake twisted across the boards. With a quick spring I seized it, and it proved to be a whiplash. A sudden horrible fear made me faint and weak. I sat down on the lower rung of the ladder leading to the loft and wiped the cold sweat from my forehead.

"'Snakes, by Jericho!' I exclaimed. 'That means business.'

"Then I stared straight across at a cornstalk that soon began slowly to wriggle and curve. With bursting eyeballs and all the strength of mind I possessed, I forced that corn-stalk back from the animal to the vegetable kingdom, and then I staggered feebly out into the open air. I leaned against the fence, and, for fear I should see more of those horrible twisting things, I clung to a post and closed my eyes.

"'Time is called, Jim,' I said to myself. 'Whisky and you part company to-day;' and, soberer than I had been for many months, though with no more strength than a baby, I managed to get back to the house.

"There was a light, though! I didn't tell my wife, for I had made a good many promises that hadn't held water, and I thought I'd go it alone for awhile. I got up in the morning after a terrible night with the thirst of a chased fox upon me. Water wouldn't quench it, and I tried milk. I crept into the milk room, slipped a straw into the edge of a cream-covered pan, and sucked out the milk until only the cream was left, lowered smooth and unbroken to the bottom. Then I tackled another and another, until the fierce craving was somewhat dulled. It was a household mystery what became of the milk. No cat could lap it, my wife said, and leave the sides and cream untouched, and where did it go?

"I let them talk, for the struggle was too sore and fearful to be spoken of, and I went on drinking the milk.

"The road from my house to my shop lay by the groggery. When I left my gate in the morning I took the road, and on a dead run, as if pursued, I made the distance. I ran hard all the way home to dinner, and back after that meal, never, in fact, trusting myself to walk, or even take the sidewalk, for months. The cure was slow. I keep all the brakes hard set yet. A single glass of hard cider would undo the work of all these years, but you can bet that glass doesn't touch my lips while the memory of those little crawling reptiles stays with me."

"And did your wife finally learn what became of the milk?" he was asked.

"Yes," and his voice broke. "I told her on her death-bed."

"Jim, dear," she said, when I had finished, with her hand clasped in mine—"Jim, dear, I knew it all the time."

Pre-Raphaelite.

Some of our greatest painters never went abroad. A study of the old masters is of value and assistance to aspiring young artists. Whatever the result may be, it will do no harm, and to some few it will be a revelation and a guide to great success. The student has a chance to mould a style of his own after he has become familiar with that of the old masters. Without a style the originality of a painter loses much of its force. The pre-Raphaelite painters always put in a picture what they thought ought to be there. For instance, in a perspective view, if a tree was actually indistinct and the leaves shadowy and uncertain, the pre-Raphaelite put it in distinctly in every detail any way. After Raphael came the school of impressionists. Its members pursued the opposite plan and put in a picture only what was actually seen. In other words, a fidelity to nature as instructed by the eyes. This is considered the true method now, and will, in my opinion, continue to be until the end of time.

It is the man who cannot raise the wind who does the most blowing.—[Merchant Traveler.

Paying Tribute to the Memory of a Distingushed Neighbor.

The following article on the death of Gen. John F. Miller is taken from the Napa Register of March 10th.

Pursuant to announcement a citizens meeting was held at the Court House yesterday afternoon to take some action on the death of Gen. Jno. F. Miller. Hon. C. Hartson was made its Chairman and Geo. T. Smith its Secretary. The chair having stated the object of the meeting, on motion a Committee on Resolutions, consisting of Messrs. Geo. E. Goodman, H. H. Knapp, R. H. Sterling and G. H. Francis was appointed. The Committee retired to deliberate, and in the mean time Messrs. S. E. Holden and Thos. Earl delivered short and eloquent addresses elogizing the name of Miller. For and in behalf of the Committee Mr. Francis then read the following resolutions:

"In the belief that honest tribute to the dead is profitable service to the living, we assembled to weave garlands of green about the honored and much-loved name of Gen. John F. Miller.

He has passed on the eternal camping ground where the great white-robed soldiery of many deadly and dearly won battle-field now silently rest.

The flag we all honor droops to-day over the prostrate form of the soldier-statesman who drew his sword and shed his blood in its defense.

The man of simple dignity, sincere word and courageous action, whom we were wont to call neighbor and friend, has joined that distinguished company and innumerable host, where, in immortal registry, shines out brightly the names of Lincoln, Garfield, Grant, Meade, McClelland, McPherson and Hancock.

Had we a right to question Him whose ways are not our ways, and who doeth all things well, we would murmur at this short allotment of a life so full of usefulness. But it is rather ours to bow in humble submission to His will and be grateful for the rich legacy of noble deeds that is left us.

"The measure of life is not length, but honesty," and in considering the career of the man whose memory we have assembled to honor, that sentiment maysafely be given prominence. Therefore, be it.

Resolved, That we, who knew the rare qualities of his private life, and are not unmindful of the valued services rendered by him in public station, sincerely mourn his early demise.

Resolved, That in condoling with the bereft widow and ever dear daughter, ours is the fullest and most tender sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family of the deceased.

Respectfully submitted,
Geo. E. Goodman.
H. H. Knapp.
R. H. Sterling,
G. M. Francis,
Committeee.

Hon. C. Hartson then spoke as follows:

Fellow Citizens;—We meet to-day to commemorate the virtues and deplore the loss of a friend, a neighbor, a patrot and a noble Senator, General John F. Miller.

We most painfully feel this loss here, amongst his earliest acquaintances, in the place to which he was the most strongly attached, his established home, the place where he formed his earliest friendships and where he first undertook in earnest to solve the problem of life.

It was here in Napa that he began the practical cultivation of those parts and the development of that character that have ripened into a manhood of exalted, honors and enduring fame.

He came to Napa in the Spring of 1853 with an ardent nature and a future sparkling with hopes—which in life have been realized.

He devoted nearly two years to the practice of law in Napa and then selected Benicia as a more ample field for his rapidly unfolding talents.

The press has already given the incidents of his life so fully, and are so well known to the audience, that I will not repeat them.

I met General Miller on his arrival at Napa, as the place was small and the advent of all new comers was known. An early friendship was formed that has remained warm and strong through the mutations of more than thirty years.

In his youth, as in advanced age, he always presented himself as he was, the plain, true and unostentatious, noble man.

His thoughts were expressed without redundancy of words, clearly, concisely and vigorously. As in life, so in speech he rejected all show and ornament.

General Miller's life has closed when he was comparatively young, but he has lived long enough and has accomplished enough, in private life and in public life, in peace and war, to connect his name most honorably with the history of his country for all time.

Notwithstanding he has lived in an heroic age, yet for simplicity of manners, for purity and perfection of character, for acts of justice, generosity and humanity, and for benefactions to his friends and mankind, and for a noble life, he is assigned a high place in the the pantheon of America's honored heroes.

There were happily blended in his nature great good sense, great natural abilities, great physical and moral courage and great ambition, all tempered by a soul full of kindness, sympathy and charity.

The breadth and strength of his mind have been strikingly exhibited at the bar, for he was an able and successful lawyer; in trade and commerce, for he was a successful business man; in the halls of Congress, for he was a legislator of great wisdom and power, and in field of battle, for he was a fearless soldier and great commander.

We can all, with the deepest pathos, join in the tributes of respect and esteem and most sincerely deplore his loss for he was one of the Nation's heroes and benefactors, and our common friend.

"Peace to thy gentle shade and endless rest,
Blest in thy genius, in thy love too, blest."

We shall be permitted no more to see our noble friend, pale and careworn and haggard, as when a few months ago he departed from his home for his post of duty and honor, but we shall permitted to contemplate him, guarding the land he helped to redeem, with the rose of Heaven on his cheek and with his eye radiant with celestial fire.

He needs no cold marble to perpetuate his name and virtues. He sleeps on a Nation's heart and is embalmed in a Nation's love. His name is entered on the roll of heroes in the imperishable records of a grateful county. Its freedom is in his epitaph. And its happiness and prosperity are his everlasting memorial.

The railroad war and consequent low rates of fare are bringing large numbers of people into the State from the East. Some of these come only to see the country and to visit friends, but very many will stay and become permanent settlers.

The Alta argues that Governor Stoneman should appoint George Hearst to the place made vacant in the United States Senate by the death of Senator Miller. As Mr. Hearst received the vote of his party in the Legislature for election to the office, the Alta says the Governor would be carrying out the expressed wish of the party by making this appointment.

The great law of nature, the law of self preservation, takes precedence of all statutory enactments or treaties. It is in obedience to this law of self preservation that the working men of the Pacific coast are opposed to the further influx of Chinese, and desire to get rid of those already here. Where the Chinese workmen gain a foothold, the white workmen are driven out; the latter will not, and should not, submit to this. This is not a matter of sentiment, it is a matter of life or death; white working people and Chinese cannot live together on the Pacific Coast; one of the two races will displace the other. If the white race would remain they must resort to every means short of unlawful violence to drive out the other. If the struggle is kept up the sympathies of a large majority of working people in the East will be warm for their brethern on the Pacific coast, then Congress will pass such laws as may be asked for; but the real work of getting rid of the plague will be already done.

For Attorney General.—The San Francisco Spirit Of The Times, among a long list of republican candidates for nomination for various State offices, gives the name of A. R. Conklin Esq. of Independence, as a candidate for the nomination for Attorney General. Mr. Conklin is a lawyer of large experience and of ripe learning in his profession, and would no doubt make an able Attorney General. The same paper names Chancellor Hartson, of Napa, as a candidate for the nomination for Governor. The State has no better man for that high office.

Physicians have Found out.

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive subcutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact, which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarail fever, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

Notes on Science and Industry.

An English writer urges the importance of building all dwelling houses, of the medium class, upon the plan of affording not only the requisite warmth for the rooms, but of furnishing at the same time a constant supply of hot water to the tenants. With the ordinary methods of heating by hot water, it is not intended that any of the circulating water be withdrawn, nor would it be pure if withdrawn. As a practical convenient resort, therefore, the cylinder system comes in play, as the water can at any time be withdrawn from the pipes, and the circulating water can be as pure as possible. The cylinder is always kept full, and as the water heats it courses along through the heating coils, which, however, can be fitted with stop cocks should the heating not be required. By this system there is no possibility of any explosion of the boiler, as the latter holds but a few quarts of water, and the cylinder cannot possibly suffer from the effects of frost. In this arrangement, the only fire that requires attention is the one in the basement, and this is to be fitted up with a slow combustion furnace.

It is due to the enterprise of an Italian astronomer that the work of a special series of observations has been undertaken, with the view of settling the point whether any change is possible in the position of the earth's axis, no actual proof existing, as yet, that such a change has ever taken place. Two stations have been selected for this purpose, nearly in the same latitude, but a long distance apart, as by this arrangement the same stars are near the zenith, and observations can be made upon the same stars, thus greatly promoting the accuracy of the work. The latitudes of the two observatories are to be determined with the utmost accuracy possible, with the aid of the best appliances of modern astronomy, and, after an interval of fifty years, the observations are to be repeated under similar conditions. It is assumed that if, under such circumstances, any change in latitude is observed, the question may be considered as settled.

A remarkable explosion which occurred in Germany shows the force possessed by dust. A sack of flour, falling down stairs, opened and scattered the contents in a cloud through the lower room, where a burning gas flame set fire to the dust, causing an explosion which lifted a part of the roof of the mill and broke almost all the windows. Remarking upon this, the Milling World thinks that there can be no doubt that the majority of dust explosions are like mine disasters, due to open lights, and as this danger can be practically avoided by the use of the incandescent electric lights, there really seems to be no valid reason why the system should not be introduced more generally, as those establishments which have used it express themselves in its favor; no matter how carefully other lights are guarded, an absolute safety, as long as the globes are intact, is offered only by the incandescent lamps, where the atmosphere or the dust has no access whatever to the flame.

Not up in Costumes.

It is said that the Catholic clergymen at Montreal have issued a proclamation against ladies wearing tuques at church. Perhaps "proclamation" is not the correct word; may be it should be ukase or quo warranto. Now if some noble duque in the Protestant church could only induce ladies to hang their hats up in the hall during services it would be a long step toward reform. As to tuques, a duque through Webster fails to find the word. It must be a Kanuck word, not found in duques.

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Scotland, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 100 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."

JOHN R. DODGE, JR., jeweler, Normal, Ill., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. It is the best machine ever invented by man. 2d. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy ours for $1000."

—Currie, who shot Kearney, is in jail; the District Attorney has charged him with an assult with a deadly weapon, with intent to committ murder. He will be brought up for examination next Tuesday.

—During the present week potatoes have been selling at three cents a pound at Independence. Butter has been shipped from San Francisco. This is not creditable to the intelligence and thrift of the farmers of a region that could produce enough potatoes and butter to feed the whole State.

—Tom Bradley was considered a lucky man when he sold the Lapanta mine, near Hawthorne, for thirty-five thousand dollars. Report says that he dropped dead in San Francisco last week. A fool may stumble upon a fortune, but it requires an unusual amount of good, hard sense, to make a right use of money suddenly gained.

—Parties in Nebraska write for information about Owens valley. Quite a number intend to come to San Francisco, to the meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic, and they say they will not go back to Nebraska. All of these correspondents complain bitterly of the terrible winters where they now are, and say they want to find homes in the genial climate of California. There is room for many of them in Owens valley.

DIVINE SERVICE.—Rev. J. Spangler will preach at Camp Independence at half past two o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and at Independence at half past seven in the evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

REMEMBER THE LAW.— There is a law providing for the destruction of fruit pests, and a failure to comply with that law is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine. Every one who has growing fruit trees, many or few, should attend to them in time, and do all in their power to destroy insect pests.

—Through Congressman Markham we have received several packages of choice varieties of tobacco seeds from the Agricultural Department of the United States. Parties who desire to experiment with tobacco raising in Owens Valley will be supplied free of cost by calling at the office of the INYO INDEPENDENT.

DYING.—Last Thursday Mrs. Walter, of Camp Independence, got word that her sister, Mrs. Pishon, whose home is in San Bernardino county was dying. Mr. and Mrs. Walter started immediately in the hope of seeing Mrs. Pishon before her death. They are now on the way toward Mojave, taking that route as quicker than by Reno.

UNCLEAN FRUIT TREES.—Fruit trees received at Independence during the past week are found to be badly infested with insect pests. A very large amount of tree planting is being done this Spring, and unless extreme care is taken to plant only clean trees the whole valley will be polluted with pests for years to come, if indeed they can ever be got rid of.

BADLY BRUISED.—At the beginning of the week Frank Lawrence was unloading a lot of fence posts near town. Frank was on top of the load when the team started to run; he made a dash to catch the lines and fell down among the horses. One of the animals stepped on his breast, he rolled over and another one kicked him on the back. He was badly scratched and bruised, but is able to be around.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area seeded to alfalfa.

STOCK HOLDERS' MEETING.—On another column will be found a notice to stock holders of the Owens Valley Canal and Irrigation Company, said meeting to be held on Monday evening, April 5th. This is a very important matter and every one interested should attend. A set of by-laws has been prepared for submission to the meeting; these are now in charge of Mr. Hunter, who will show them for examination by any one at the office of the County Clerk, from now till the day of the meeting.

Bishop Creek Notes.

Miss Annie Malone is attending the Inyo Academy at Bishop Creek. Miss Malone joined the Academy at the end of her school term at Warm Springs; other young teachers of the county would do well to follow her wise example, their efficiency as teachers would be very greatly increased, and their services would be in greater demand.

County Surveyor Seely was at Bishop Creek most of last week, and all of this completing the final survey for the Bishop Creek Canal.

The first fruit blossoms of the season at Bishop Creek were injured by the frosts, but no damage has been done to any of the later blooming fruits. Farmers there are busy putting in their grain crops.

The Good Templars lodge is reported to be prospering gloriously. New members are constantly joining. The meetings of the Lodge are largely attended, the exercises being of a very interesting character. The want of a good public library begins to be felt, but there is hope that the want may be supplied within reasonable time.

Mr. Logan is thoroughly liked in his dual capacity of preacher and teacher. His sermons are awakening the people to a livelier interest in religion.

An Old Mine Resurected.

About twenty years ago there was quite a mining excitement at Chrysopolis ten miles north of Independence station. Some rich gold rock was found, a mill was built, and a good deal of work was done in mining. Those were times of inflated ideas, miners expected to make fortunes in a few weeks, or months at farthest, and unles they got large gains immediately, their claims were abandoned. Rock that would not pay at least a hundred and fifty dollars a ton was regarded as worthless. These were the ideas of the men who opened the Oro Fino mine at Chrysopolis; they were disappointed by not making fortunes at once, got disgusted and quit and the mine was abandoned.

Some time ago the property came into possession of Harris & Rhine, of Independence. About three weeks ago an arrangement was made with two miners named Wilcox and Manton, by which they were to reopen the mine and prospect it. Very liberal terms and all necessary financial aid was given them, and already they have opened up what has every appearance of being a large and valuable ore body. The ledge is full six feet wide, and at least twelve inches of this is quite high grade ore. More men have been put to work in the mine, which has been re-named the "Hope:" ore is being got out rapidly, and the Maxim mill will be set to work upon it soon.

Anniversary Celebration,

The 67th anniversary of the establishment of Odd Fellowship in the United States occurs on the 26th of April. The anniversary will be celebrated in Independence by a grand ball given under the auspicies of Lodge No 301. This Lodge has recently established a cemetery, and it is the intention to make it such a place as not only the order, but every citizen of the county will be proud of. Tickets for this ball will be sold at three dollars each, and if any profit is left from the sale it will be applied to the improvement of the cemetery. It is hoped and believed that the members of the Order, and the public generally, will give liberal patronage to this affair. A full programme will be published next week.

Prefers Cheaper Land

No other branch of farming is now attracting so many people to engage in it as fruit raising. The high price of land suitable for the business is causing eager search for cheaper land, and the excellence of the fruits of Owens valley is turning the attention of many people in this direction. A party at Pasadeno, Los Angeles county writes as follows; "I thought five years ago that raising fruit here would pay, but when improved land will sell from five hundred to a thousand dollars per acre, it is better to sell and get cheaper land for fruit. There are several parties here who talk of going up to your country, and are eager to learn all they can in regard to it."

A LOVELY SPOT.—During the past week Mr. S. D. Thurston has been at work laying water pipe into the Odd Fellows cemetery. Hydrants will be placed at convenient distances in the cemetery so that every part can be easily irrigated. Every encouragement will be given for the planting of flowers and ornamental shrubbery, and due care will be taken to preserve the whole from damage of any kind. It is the intention of the Odd Fellows to make this the loveliest place in the county. Parties who intend to buy lots in the cemetery should make early application, blank deeds have been procured and will be made out immediately on receipt of the purchase money. The price of lots is governed by locations, but all are placed at a very reasonable figure.

Personal Mention.

Mr. N. G. Fairman left Independence for Panamint on last Friday morning. He bought a fine mule team while here, that he took back with him.

Miss Minnie Thomsen left Independence last Tuesday morning, for San Francisco. She intends to make a round of visits in the lower country.

Crit Hampton came to Independence last Wednesday, to put himself in the care of Dr. Stevenson, he being sick. We hope to see Crit all right again in a few days.

George T. Hawley, of San Francisco, arrived at Keeler last week. He stayed till Thursday, looking after his mining interests at Keeler and Cerro Gordo, when he returned north.

Jack Wilson came up from Keeler with James Kearney last Saturday, and stayed with him at Independence several days, doing all in his power for the comfort and cure of the injured man.

Chas. McMurry and White Smith have been fitting up their teams in town this ween preparatory to starting on a trip to Mojave for material for the new mill at Paniment.

Dr. Stevenson returned from Stockton last Wednesday, whither he had gone taking W. Bolinger to the Asylum. When he left Stockton, Bolinger had improved in bodily health, but his mind was quite unsettled. The Doctor saw J. W. Smith at the Asylum. Smith recognized him readily, and expressed great pleasure at seeing him. The poor man is at times quite consious of his condition, but has strong hope of his recovery; he sent kind regards to all friends in Inyo county. The Doctor says George Gill is very successful in the practice of law at Stockton, and is rapidly growing into a good business.

RECOVERED HIS HEARING—During the past twenty years Mr. J. J. Moore, Under-Sheriff of this county, has been partially deaf. Of late years the infirmity had been getting worse, and had become so bad that in order to make him hear in conversation the person speaking would have to shout loudly. Last Sunday Mr. Moore directed his wife to take a syringe and inject warm water, containing bi-carbonate of soda, into his ear. Mrs. Moore then continued the application for about half an hour, when Mr. Moore felt something give way inside of his ear; a few more injections were made, when a lump of matter about the size of a grain of corn was brought in sight, and Mrs. Moore removed it with a hair pin. The same treatment was then applied to the other ear, and with precisely the same result. Mr. Moore can now hear almost as well as he ever did, and is very happy in consequence.

TO A YOUNG MAN.

A Battered Humorist Tells a Lot Of Superfluous Advice.

My son, there are just two things in this world that I don't know about, and you have just asked me about one of them. I don't know why there is trouble and sorrow and toil and poverty and sickness and death in this beautiful world. I used to know, when I was much younger, but I find that as I grow older, I don't know a great deal more than I used to know. I don't know why the best people seem to have all the suffering and the great sinners have all the fun. I don't know why innocent men suffer for the wickedness of guilty men. I don't know why the man who cast the faulty column in Pemberton mills wasn't crushed when the mills went down. I can't see why my neck should be broken in a railroad accident because a train dispatcher sends out a wrong order or a signal man goes to sleep. I don't see why my neighbor should be cursed with ill health and suffering just because his grandfather was a rollicking, hard-drinking old profligate. I can't see why I should have neuralgia just when I want to feel at my best. I can't understand why Lincoln died and Davis lives. I don't know why some people starve while worse people founder. Well, you say, wouldn't it be pleasanter if all these crooked things were straightened out? Yes, oh, yes. And wouldn't I run things a little better if I had the running of them? Ye-e- hold on a minute--ye --I don't know, really, that I want to try. There are several things to consider, when you sit down to run a universe. True if I managed things, I could make several improvements at once. I would never again have the neuralgia, for one thing; my boots would not run over at the heels like an italic d; my pantaloons would not work up, nor bag at the knees, and my collars would not climb the back of my neck, and my moustache wouldn't keep waxed like a bristle at one end and fray out like a satin ribbon at the other, and--but there are some other things to look after. The little matter of day and night I think I might manage for a week, may be, but there would be an eclipse to look after, an occasional rain, some snow, or a late spring or early autumn, or a capricious harvest time to manage, there are certain movements of the sun and other planets that have rather delicate relations with the earth--come to think of it, my boy, have never yet been able to control my own personal neuralgia. Now, you are very kind, but I will most respectfully decline the appointment. I find on looking into the varied and trying duties connected with the office, that my bodily and mental strength would not stand the great tax that would be laid upon them. While I am in the heartiest accord with the administration, and wish to give it, and to the extent of my poor ability do give it my most earnest support and encouragement, yet I much prefer to do this in my capacity as a private citizen.—[Burdette.

Going into Pittsburgh at Night.

A great yellowish white speck low down in the distant horizon ahead is the first sight one sees of Pittsburgh. That speck is a flame forty or fifty feet long and half as wide. It is the advertisement of a gentleman's furnishing-goods store on Smithfield Street, the Broadway of Pittsburgh. The enterprising brothers who keep the store had a figure of "Liberty Enlightening the World" in the corner of their great new building, and when natural gas invaded the city they took the cumbersome Bartholdian imitation of a fire-brand in her hand, substituted twenty feet of gas-pipe for it, tapped the main in the middle of the street, and now they send a man up a ladder every night, and he lights a match and raises it to the pipe--and, bang! a section of the city is lighted as no electric light ever began to light any part of outdoors. And there over the city this great balloon-shaped blaze sways and pulsates in the wind all night roaring like a giant's furnace. Just so the river side is illuminated by two great flames that jut from ordinary little tubes sticking out of Du Quesne Heights. It is wonderful to see the wind catch one of these masses of flame and wrestle with it and bear it down and roll it over and bite great yellow and white pieces from it and fling it away, patches of fire that look as if they were going to float along and keep their shape awhile as whiffs of steam do, but instantly they are gone. This natural gas carries no odor with it. You cannot detect its presence even when the air is laden with it. It leaks from the mains in the Pittsburgh streets, and, finding a vein of sand, penetrates to the cellars of near houses. Several times it has happened that a resident has gone down in the cellar of his house to look for something, has lighted a match there, and has seemed to become the center of a convulsion of nature which has wrecked all the windows, cracked the walls, and blown the doors off their hinges. In some of the mills and in the lot where the new jail is going up, the gas jets burn forever. There is at least one town or city in this region where in the street lights are never put out, because it would be a waste of money to hire a lamplighter after the original lighting.—[New York Sun.

"Why, no!" said the minister in astonishment; "why do you ask?"

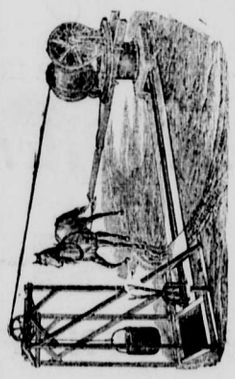
MISCELALNEOUS.

THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind in use, adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has certainly yielded more than TWO YEARS and a half of continuous, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month or a year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its entire price alone.



BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

Fish-Spearing Through the Ice.

About thirty years ago, I was stranded by the severe winter weather, which put a stop to navigation, at the old army station of Green Bay, now a flourishing city in the great State of Wisconsin, at the mouth of the Fox River, at the southwestern extremity of a long arm of Lake Michigan. I had frequently noticed on Fox River a curious lot of black dots on the ice, in the retired nooks and coves along the farther shore. "What are they?" I asked; and the invariable reply was: "They are Indians fishing." This puzzled me still more, and I resolved to investigate. So one day I crossed the frozen river, and, approaching one of those mysterious black dots, found it to be apparently only a bundle in a blanket, scarcely large enough to contain a human form. But, looking closer, I could see, first from one bundle and then from another, the quick motion of a pole, or spear-handle, bobbing up and down. A word, a touch, even a gentle push, only called out a grunt in reply, but at last one bundle did stretch itself into a bright young Indian brave with wondering and wonderful eyes peering at me from under a mop of black and glossy hair. A little tobacco, a little pantomime, and a little broken English succeeded in making him understand that I wished to know how he carried on his fishing under that funny heap.

Then I saw it all. Seated, Turk fashion, on the border of his blanket, which he could thus draw up so as to entirely envelop himself in it, he was completely in the dark, so far as the daylight was concerned; and, thus enshrouded, he was hovering over a round hole in the ice, about eighteen inches in diameter. A small tripod of birch sticks erected over the hole helped to hold up the blanket and steady a spear, which, with a delicate handle nine or ten feet long, was held in the right hand, the tines resting on the edge of the hole, and the end of the pole sticking through anopening in the blanket above. From the other hand dropped into the water a string on the end of which was a rude wooden decoy-fish, small enough to represent bait to the unsuspecting perch or pickerel which should spy it. This decoy was loaded so as to sink slowly, and was so moved and maneuvered as to imitate the motions of a living fish.

Crawling under the blanket with my Indian friend, I was surprised at the distinctness and the beauty with which everything could be seen by the subdued light that came through the ice. The bottom of the river, six or eight feet below us, was clearly visible, and seemed barely four feet away. The grasses, vegetable growths, and spots of pebbly bottom formed curious little vistas and recesses, in some of which dreamily floated a school of perch and smaller fish. Each little air bubble sparkled like a gem, and the eye delighted in tracing and watching the mystery of beautiful water formations, where every crevice seemed a little fairy world, with changing lights or shadows made by the sunlight through the transparent ice.

Suddenly, from somewhere—I could not tell where, it seemed to come by magic—a large "dory," or "moon-eyed pike," appeared on the river bottom. The watchful Indian slowly raised the decoy-bait toward the surface, the larger fish following it with interested and puzzled eyes. There was a sudden movement of the spear; down it darted; its sharp prongs pierced the unsuspecting pike, which was speedily drawn up and thrown wriggling on the ice. Then the blanket was re-adjusted, and the fishing was resumed. My bright young Indian friend said he could catch from twenty to thirty pounds of fish in an afternoon in this manner, and sometimes could even secure double that quantity.—[J. O. Koorbach, in St. Nicholas.

A Woman's Discernment.

Easy-go husband—"I think, my dear, that Mr. D'Orsy is a good match for Miranda."

Keen-sighted wife—"No, he isn't. His means are exceedingly limited."

"Why, how in the world did you discover that?"

"I heard him say that diamonds are vulgar. His criticism wasn't prompted by a refixed taste, but by his inability to purchase any."

STRANGE VISIONS.

Remarkable Outbreak of Religious Enthusiasm.

A remarkable outbreak of religious hallucination occurred at San Salvador, Bahamas Island, this year. About January last a report was out that a young girl had seen visions and was under some influence not belonging to this world. Her excitement soon communicated itself to others, and in the course of a few weeks some twenty young girls were affected. They then organized religious meetings, and much excitement was caused.

I went once to see what took place at these meetings. About fifty people sat round in a room singing, clapping hands, and stamping the feet, keeping time to a kind of monotonic chant. The girls who saw visions were standing in the center, sometimes walking up and down. They had a vacant kind of stare. Gradually the singing quickened, until at last it became fast and furious. Then the girls would dance, shout, and bark like dogs.

After twenty minutes of this they would fall down with a shriek. Their struggles, cries, and foaming at the mouth were dreadful to see, and in many cases it took four or five men to hold them still. After the fit was over they would lie exhausted for about one hour, then, when they came to, they gave very detailed accounts of the visions they had seen. A great deal of these visions was, of course, nonsense, but one thing was remarkable—they spoke of people doing things many miles away from the place. Upon inquiry it was found in some cases that what they had seen corresponded exactly with the events.

One most remarkable feature in this outbreak was that it was not confined to one spot. Almost simultaneously in every settlement on the island (the island is forty-five miles long and twelve broad in places) similar outbreaks occurred. Girls living at distances of five or ten miles from the scene of the "shouting meetings," as they were called, would be seized. Being seized with kind of frenzy, they would run, as if by inspiration, to the spot where the rest were assembled, no matter how far.

Most of those attacked with the fits were people who belonged to the Baptist society. Consequently their visions were not of the Madonna, but of the distinctive predestination doctrines of their sect. Very glowing accounts were given of the various punishments and tortures reserved for the wicked in hell, and they were most liberal in dispensing these punishments among their friends.

Up and down the island about 400 or 500 people were seized, and it was at first thought it was a kind of epidemic of hysteria. In a few cases girls of highly respectable character were seized, and, although they did not see visions, yet for weeks they would have fits daily, and such was their superhuman strength that I have seen a young girl of 16 struggle out of the grasp of four strong men. The outbreak lasted from January to July, and at one time it was feared that it would lead to serious consequences, for all the people who gave credence to the visions neglected work and abandoned themselves to holding meetings day and night for singing, shouting, barking, and listening to accounts of the visions seen.

In the daytime, especially on Sundays, they had processions with banners. This led to some bad feeling, and in a few cases the law had to be appealed to in the interests of peace. It was a singular thing that, although they organized themselves into a sect, and all who disbelieved in the visions were "heretics," yet they showed the utmost courtesy and good-will toward the church, but toward their own particular denomination and the various other sects they displayed great animosity. The excitement has died out now, and they have ceased to exist as a sect. P. BARROW MATTHEWS,
Rector, San Salvador, Nassau Diocese.

Chess Champions.

Steinitz and Zukertort, who are playing a chess match in New York, have hosts of friends and admirers who think that each is the champion of the world. Zukertort was born at Riga, Russia, in 1842; Steinitz was born in Prague in 1836. The two men have met before on many occasions with varying results. At the London tournament of 1872 Stienitz was first, Blackburn second, and Zukertort third. In the same year in a match between the two, Steinitz won seven games, Zukertort one, drawn four. At the Vienna tournament of 1882 Zukertort's personal score with Steinitz was one game won and one game drawn. At the London tournament of 1883 Zukertort won the first prize and Steinitz the second. Zukertort's most famous achievement was in beating the three winners of the Vienna tournament of 1882. Stienitz has been playing in chess tournaments ever since 1859. At the Vienna tournament of 1873 he made the grandest run on record, winning sixteen games in succession.

On the Railroad in Spain.

Cars of all grades in France are cushioned and warmed in winter, not as comfortably as in America, but with Chauferestes, which are heated and placed in the cars at certain stations. It is as cold or colder in the central and northern parts of Spain, but no such comfortable devices seem to have been thought of. But your opportunities for seeing all classes are good—the chattering Andalusian, the gaily costumed Catalonian, the coarse Castilian and the voluble female traveler. The Spanish woman of the lower classes is extremely talkative. She has opinions and never hesitates to express them loudly, no matter if she is the only one of her sex present and the car contains thirty or forty men of all positions in life. She is usually accompanied by a great many bundles, or at least the one particular bundle of wearing apparel tied up in a handkerchief. She is no more, as a rule, unkind than she is unsociable. She is supplied with eatables, and she is apt to offer you a bit of her dried sausage and a piece of bread, not forgetting to offer you an extremely primitive knife to cut it with.

To wash down this somewhat dry portion red wines are not lacking. They are carried in pig skin bottles, some of which have a cup arranged about the cork. You remove the cork, tilt and press the skin and the cup fills. You empty it and hand it back to the owner, who takes a draught himself, wipes the neck with his hand or on his sleeve, and either restores it to its basket or sends it on a hospitable pilgrimage about the car, whence it returns with its quart or two, or three quarts, of contents diminished and with flabby sides. Occasionally there is music, either with or without a guitar, which is often the Spaniard's traveling companion. The playing is almost always fair, often excellent: the singing never. Irving was wonderfully pleased with the musical efforts of the Andalusians, but they sing no better than the other Spaniards. It is much the same from the Pyrenees on the Catalonian side to Malaga, and up through Central Spain to Hendaya on the Bay of Biscay. Not one really pleasing melody can be heard in going the entire distance. Spanish national music comprises a few strains of an indescribable minor character, having the same compass running through the same variations, and ending with the same fantastic cadence. The peasant in the railroad car suddenly bursts out with the full tide of it, no matter who are about him and not thinking it possible that he can disturb any one. No one seems to mind it. It is taken as a matter of course. Perhaps others join in, and then there is a howl like a chorus of wild animals in a menagerie. In the meantime the skin bottles have become nearly empty and the crowd has become full. Everybody who is not singing is talking, and as there is not a musical speaking or singing voice in Spain, the combination of sounds cannot be described.

Care of the Hands.

There are simple means by which the hands may be kept in a presentable condition, as the use of glycerine or honey after washing them and a little bran or oatmeal to be used sometimes instead of soap. Wearing gloves when the work is rough or dirty is quite admissible. Ladies who have rough, coarse hands should rub them with cold cream at night and may wear loose gloves. Should the hands become hard and horny, treat them with pumicestone and lemon. Lemon is always good for the hands; it cleanses them as well as soap and makes them soft.

You should clean the nails with a brush, if necessary, but it is better to rub the fingers and nails with the half of a lemon, thrusting the fingers into it and turning until the nails are perfectly clean. Lemon will likewise prevent the skin at the root of the nails from growing upward. Use cold cream and gloves at night, which will keep the nails soft and prevent them from cracking.

Game in the New York Market.

Buffalo meat seems to have entirely run out. It was never popular and rarely paid freight expenses. It was usually dark and blood-clouded, and few people except the gentlemen with iron jaws who officiate at the side-shows could masticate it. Venison has been scarce this season. Shippers have been discouraged from sending it as freely as they might have done if cold weather had set in early. The legal prevention of its sale after January 1 has also tended to keep down supplies. Black bear frequently comes in from the Adirondack region and other parts of this State. It usually retails at twenty-five cents a pound. The flesh is said not to be inferior to rich pork. The opossum, whose excellence has been sounded for ages by plantation bards with song and banjo, has become a regular item in the game list. They come principally from Ohio and New Jersey and sell at twenty-five and fifty cents each. Rabbits and hares are fine this season.—[New York Tribune.

A Belgian treats textile fabrics with an alcoholic solution of the green tar of the birch, which he expects to render them almost indestructible.

PLEA FOR THE PRESS.

The Sharp Criticisms of Chronic Fault-Finders.

Lately, indiscriminate abuse of the press has become the fashion. Those who have fallen into the habit are, like near-sighted people, deliberately breaking their own glasses. A newspaper requires the expenditure of more money and more brains than any other enterprise, and none receives fewer thanks. It is easy enough for the would-be critic, lolling by day in his comfortable armchair in his club, to condemn, without regard to facts, the results of a night's mental toil of many bright men. How many merchants or professional men could correctly review in the space of a few hours the politics of two continents, the intricate questions of European diplomacy, the debates of Congress and legislative bodies at home and abroad, and all that transpires in the courts, in society, in the churches, on the railways and the seas? Traffic, the weather, science, explorations, wars, local affairs in endless variety, all come within the scope of a well equipped paper. Its managers are also obliged to consider business details and expediency, and to superintend the reportorial and typographical departments. To accomplish all this without committing errors would be superhuman—impossible.

Champions of charities, laborers of love, unceasingly exposing shams and encouraging enterprise, the better part of newspaper men are the most constant in teaching right. They are home missionaries, disseminators of wisdom, professors in a universal college, tirelessly toiling towards the lights on the summits of perfection.

Reporters have the lion's share of abuse. Their lot is often a hard one. Few people take into consideration the temptations that beset these gatherers of news and the difficulties that they must encounter. Poorly paid, over-worked night toilers, these beginners in journalism as a rule have to pass through a bitter apprenticeship. Boys of all work, the strain put on them is tremendous. Little recognition is vouchsafed them from without, however excellent their labor, when faulty blame is not stinted. Their range reaches from the palace to the slums, from hell to Heaven; they are everywhere looked upon with suspicion. Is it strange, then, with so many obstacles in their way, that they sometimes make mistakes? It is wonderful that they commit so few. Despite all these disadvantages, despite all the condemnation that is heaped upon them, reporters are a band of talented, sprightly, generous men of spirit, mostly straightforward, quick to resent insult, and grateful for kindness. No profession embraces so large a proportion of tyros with intellectual grasp. Many are the uncrowned heroes on the staff of our daily papers, youths burning with inspiration, melting their candles at both ends, lacking the appreciation which is their due, often dying early, ofttimes sinking unknown in the quicksands of metropolitan life.

The political position of newspapers is also apt to be misjudged. If strongly partisan, the editors are charged with interested motives, if non-partisan, with lack of conviction. Why should you be less fair to them than to your neighbors, whose opinions you are ready to respect and whose motives you do not impugn?

Demands for an "ideal" newspaper are perpetually dinned in editors' ears. Their appreciation of the need of improvement is keener than that of the public, but they are powerless. They have experience and know that this need must await a civil millennium. When civilization shall have reached the highest perfection, then the ideal daily newspaper, as still the true reflex of life, will become both profitable and possible. Attempt after attempt has thus far failed, mainly for lack of pecuniary assistance and moral support from the moneyed classes who are pronest to criticise. The struggles of the New York Nation and the Chicago Current are warnings to all practical men to avoid launching into similiar enterprises to be found in "ideal" newspapers. These sheets are fit examples of the difficulties that purely intellectual newspapers have to meet. How greatly are these difficulties increased by the infinite variety and the ten-fold expenses of metropolitan dailies!

The grandest mission conceivable belongs to the newspaper. With inadequate financial or moral encouragement the press keeps apace with the times, in fact, keeps ahead of them. Always a grade better than its surroundings, the best type of American newspaper will surely fulfill its high mission, the enlightenment of mankind, and the realization of the brightest dreams of all true disciples of progress.—[Chicago Tribune.

A hygienic journal recommends sweeping, if properly done, as one of the very best kinds of exercise for women. Now, if some genius will invent a species of tennis that may be played with brooms, he will be a benefactor of society.—[New York Graphic.

SATURDAY, APRIL 3 1886

THE Treasury department is forced to admit that the opposition to silver coinage comes only from capitalists, not from the great mass of the people. Those who handle millions want gold but the poor are better served by having silver money for their daily wants. The Mining Review says; "The Treasurer of the United States shows in his report to Congress, recently made, that there has been, during the month of March, considerable improvement in the circulation of silver dollars which is rapidly increasing. The change and activity are attributed to the withdrawal of the one and two dollar bills. As a matter of fact, we are confident that there has never been a time when the total amount of silver dollars coined might not have been kept in active circulation if there had been no discrimination made against this currency. The fact that the people willingly exchanged gold to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars for silver certificates redeemable in standard dollars is strong evidence of the feeling of the people generally in regard to the matter, and the strong and decided opposition in Congress to any attempt to infringe even upon the present insufficient and unjust laws in regard to silver coinage confirms the popular sentiment, that is decided in favor of silver currency and its unrestricted circulation.

The existing legislation in regard to the transportation and coinage of silver places it at a disadvantage when compared with the facilities afforded to gold, and discourages instead of stimulating the production and coinage of silver. Indications point to a reaction before a fatal mistake is made, and if it should come the nation may be congratulated on its escape from a calamity, the disastrous consequences of which cannot now be estimated. Recent dispatches report bills introduced into the English Parliament asking for a commission to consider plans for the extension of the use of silver currency. Germany is also agitating the same question, all showing the impossibility, after thorough trial under the most favorable circumstances, of ignoring silver as a prominent factor of national currency. It is well, indeed, if the treasury department of this industrial and producing nation at last comprehends the necessity for removing the restrictions hitherto laid upon the circulation of silver, resulting in a movement as astonishing as it is satisfactory. The increase in circulation, according to the Treasurer's report, from March 1st to March 10th, was $477,961 in ten days, or an average daily increase of $47,752.

IT is estimated that not less than one million working men are now idle in the United States. This would be an annual loss to the business and productive industry of the country of not less than six hundred million dollars. It is worth notice in this connection, that a reliable New York newspaper estimates that the enormous sum of about four hundred millions of dollars now lies idle in banks and vaults in and near that city.

IT is reported that the illness of Secretary Manning will cause his permanent retirement from the Cabinet. It would promote greater harmony in the Democratic party if the President would appoint a successor to Mr. Manning who would be less at variance with the majority in Congress on the silver question.

An Important Anti-Chinese Decision.

In the month of February, 1885, the Chinese were driven away from Eureka, Humboldt county. Last July fifty six Chinamen began a suit in the United States Circuit Court, at San Francisco, to recover $132,000 from the city of Eureka. Of this amount $75,000 was claimed for injuries to property and $57,000 for being driven from the city and for loss of business. The case was called in the Circuit Court last week. Judge Buck, of Humboldt, appeared for the defendant, and moved to strike from the complaint all damages claimed for driving the Chinese away and for loss of business. Judge Sawyer granted this motion and ordered all claims stricken out except those for injuries to property. As no property was molested or injured, this action of the Court virtually disposes of this important case in favor of the city of Eureka. This decision establishes the fact that the Courts will not compel any community to pay damages to Chinese who may be driven out by a popular upraising. Of course if property were injured or destroyed by the people when getting rid of the Chinese the Courts would allow reasonable damages.

How One Man Makes Literature Pay.

A reporter of the New York Times called upon a man who makes literature a trade (not a profession), lately, and was let into some trade secrets. Said "Apollo," as the Times writer calls him:—

"I'll tell you about the expansion process. I have a friend named Mat, who once wrote an article for a leading magazine, which, to avoid a row with the editor, I shall call Old Hundred. The editor accepted the article and then sent for Mat. He told the author that his article was too long, and asked him to cut it down. Mat promptly answered that there were three pages dealing with a special branch of the subject which might be taken out of the article without injuring it. The editor agreed with the contributor, and the pages were returned to their author. They were pages of print, not manuscript, you know, containing three thousand words. Mat took them home, wrote an introduction to them, and sold them to a literary weekly for a good price. Then some months afterward he took the article from the weekly up to the editor of Old Hundred and proposed to him to expand the article into a suitable length for the magazine. The editor agreed, and Mat made about six thousand words out of his three thousand, rewriting the whole thing, and sold it over again. He thus made about $160 out of the paper, which, in its original form, would have been worth just $100."

"You surprise me, Apollo."

"I thought I should. But I'm not through with you yet."

"What? Is there more?"

"Yes; I am going to tell you about the patent reversible poem act."

"What on earth is that?"

"That is my great speciality. 'Sweet are the uses of adversity,' and it was in the days of my adversity that I conceived this scheme, which I have not the moral courage to abandon in this, the time of my prosperity. It's a miserable world, you know, as the Mikado remarks, and virtue is triumphant only in theatrical performances. The patent reversible poem first occurred to me thus: I was walking along in the country one day and I saw an old house. I went up and looked in at the window. There was apparently not a soul in the place. The fire was out and an empty chair stood by the hearth. I took out my note book and jotted down the ideas that occurred to me, and when I went home I wrote a pathetic poem about the deserted homestead. I sent it to a magazine and it was, in professional language, 'bounced.' I sent it to another, and another, until it had been rejected by every magazine and literary paper in the country.

"Then I scratched my head and did a little thinking. I looked at the poem hopelessly. Then my mind went back to the old house, and it occurred to me by some curious freak of thought that my pathetic poem would have been nipped in the bud if the farmer had been at home and had set his dog on me. The next moment I picked up a pen, wrote an introductory stanza describing the poet looking in at the window of the old house and writing his poem. Then I gave the poem in full, and added a stanza describing the stealthy approach of the farmer with a club around the corner of the house and the subsequent demolition of the poet. I sent the thing to the editor of a humorous paper. It was accepted. I received $5 for it and became a regular contributor to the paper."

"That was a good move."

"Yes, but I once beat that all hollow."

"How was that?"

"I wrote a piece of comic verse, built on a common plan—that of making three or four serious stanzas and winding up with an unexpected humorous ending. I took it to the editor of the same humorous journal. He read it and said it was too good to be used as a mere piece of buffoonery. So I took it home, knocked off the comic ending, and finished with a stanza of concentrated pathos. I sold that poem to a leading American magazine."

"Apollo! you're a genius!"

"Thanks, don't mention it. We literary fellows don't know so much about financiering as some people in Wall Street, but I fancy we know how to work our business for all it is worth."—[Exchange.

"Who" and "What?"

Commodore Vanderbilt, who married a tavern keeper's maid, was sitting on the piazza of a Saratoga hotel, beside his daughter, who was arrayed in silks and diamonds, when an uncouth, poorly-dressed old chap came along, and saluting Vanderbilt with, "Hello! Commodore, how are you to-day!" came on the piazza and shook hands with him. The daughter drew her elegant dress hastily aside at his approach, as if in fear of contamination, with a look of utter disdain. After the aged visitor had chatted a moment and passed on, the daughter said: "Why, papa, how could you recognize that dingy old man in this public place!" "Bless your heart, dear," said the commodore, "he used to buy beer of your mother before you were born." This smart rap on the knuckles of a snobbish instinct might be taken to heart by a great many people who regard it as utterly beneath them to treat with ordinary decency persons who happen to belong to the same station in life that their own parents belonged to, before riches came to gild the dress. Society often makes an ass of itself by asking, "Who is he?" instead of "What is he?"—[Chicago Saturday Herald.

One of life's trials. "And why do you think that my love is not genuine?" asked the young lawyer, excitedly. "Because you are my beau, Gus," she answered in legal tender tones. And then she ran away so fast that he could not counterfeit.—[Boston Post.

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.
JOHN C. EVANS, Scotland, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 100 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any estimate that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost as more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."
JOHN R. DODGE, JR., jeweler, Nokomis, Ill., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. It is the best machine ever invented by man. 2d. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy ours for $1000."
I will ship a sample to those desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best washer in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Pays capable agents big money. Write for particulars.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY APRIL 3 .....1886.

—Corned beef, best quality, at the butcher shop Independence.

—Harris & Rhine have just unpacked a large shipment of groceries and general merchandise.

—All should go to church; righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.

—A force of about forty experienced quarrymen is expected to arrive at the marble quarry in a few days.

—A good deal of land is being taken up by locators in various parts of the valley and settlers' cabins are getting numerous.

—Last Thursday morning half a dozen men went up from Independence to Chrysopolis to word on Mr. Bolinger's mines. James McCormick, Daly and Bush were among the number.

—On Wednesday evening next Rev. J. M. Spangler will deliver a lecture on Chili at the Court House. This lecture will certainly prove very interesting. All are invited to attend, admitance free.

—In an answer to inquiries we would say; "All land where sage-brush grows must be irrigated to produce crops of any kind, grains, grasses, fruits or vegetables. All such lands are subject to entry under the "desert land" or homestead Acts."

—The so called "measles" in pork is the ova of the tapeworm that infests human beings. When "measley" pork is eaten, unless the tapeworm germ is destroyed by thorough cooking, the party who eat it will have tapeworms. Salting and smoking pork does not destroy the parasite; hams and bacon may be as dangerous to eat as fresh pork.

—It is reported that a branch railroad will be built from Hawthorne to the Lapanta mine. The length of the branch will be about twelve miles. The building of this piece of road would do much to promote the development of the country in the neighborhood of the Lapanta mine; it is already proven that there is a very promising field there for mining.

—There are good passes and wagon roads across the Sierra Mountains into Owens valley from the west. The most traveled are by way of Sonora, to Mono Lake on the north; and from Visalia through Walker's Pass on the South. The former will not be opened before the middle or end of May; the latter is open at all seasons. The distance through the range is about eighty miles at either point.

—Fruit pests may be held in check now by a little care, and the application of proper remedies. A few weeks hence the pests will be so far matured as to be beyond all control for this season. One foul tree will pollute a whole neighborhood. Most fruit pests burrow in the ground at a certain stage of their existence: it is therefore the greatest folly to think that they are destroyed by trampling them in the ground; to do this is actually to aid the insect rather than to injure it.

—Two weeks ago a miner named M. M. Rumley brought into Mariposa $6,000 worth of gold, the result of one day's work on a claim near that place. A few days afterward he brought in $3,000 more. The Herald says up to the day of the strike Rumley had worked ten months and three weeks, and in all that time he had made but $30. The ground where the strike was made has every appearance of containing a large amount of gold. The strike has stirred up quite an excitement.

DIVINE SERVICE.—Rev. J. Spangler will preach on Sunday at Camp Independence, at half past two o'clock in the afternoon, and at Independence at half past seven in the evening. All are invited to attend.

HOTEL REOPENED.—The Lone Pine House at Lone Pine, which was shut up for several months, has been reopened by Mr. C. Levy. C. Levy is an experienced and popular hotel-keeper, and will run the house in a way to please all patrons.

CHANGE OF TIME.—A change of time has been made in the arrival and departure of trains on the C. & C. road, the change taking place on Thursday last. All north bound trains will leave half an hour earlier that before, and all south bound trains will arrive half an hour later.

A THRIVING CALF.—A calf of the shorthorn breed on the Churchill ranch is making rapid growth. On the day the calf was five months old he weighed five hundred and twenty-five pounds; and on the last twelve days of the time he gained forty-seven pounds, an increase in weight of nearly four pounds each day.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for ale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

Apply to
HARRIS & RHINE.

YGNACIO MINE.—For months past Mr. George T. Hawley has had, and still has, a force of men at work prospecting the Ygnacio mine, at Cerro Gordo. The mine is now so far developed as to put beyond question the fact that it is a valuable property. The Ygnacio will soon be making a valuable addition to the bullion output of Inyo County. About fourteen men are now employed at the mine.

Curry Examined.

Last Tuesday Curry was brought up before Superior Judge Hannah, and examined for commitment for shooting James Kearney at Keeler, on March 18th. District Attorney Laird appeared for the people, and R. S. Miner Esq. defended Curry. Many witnesses were called, but much of the testimony was not very direct. Several witnesses testified that Kearney had been following up Curry for some time before the shooting, and trying to get his gun away from him. Curry himself testified, and it was not denied, that he had repeatedly warned Kearney to keep away. Curry further testified that he believed it was intended to get his gun away from him and then beat him unmercifully, if not kill him outright. When the gun was discharged Kearney was advancing upon him. This was corobated by other witnesses. On Thursday the case was submitted to the Court, and Judge Hannah at once discharged Curry from custody, beleiving that a Jury would not convict him on the testimony offered.

Improvements.

Mr. Robinson has planted out an addition to his orchard; he now has seventeen acres set with fruit trees, the majority of them being choice varieties of apples. He will make further additions as quickly as possible. In a very short time he will have more income from fruit than from all other productions of his ranch combined.

Mr. Hunter has cleared up several acres of sage brush land on his farm at Georges Creek and has set out an orchard. The ground is well suited to fruit raising and in three or four years the trees will all be bearing.

Mr. John S. Gorman has been pushing improvements rapidly all the spring on his farm at Camp Independence, much of the work is setting out fruit trees. In a very short time Mr. Gorman will have not only a lovely but a valuable place.

New Edition of Settler's Guide.

Henry N. Copp, the land-lawyer of Washington, has just issued the tenth edition of his Settlers Guide. It is an indispensable book for all who are, or expect to be, interested in public land. Settlers will save money by purchasing it, and all who expect to take up land should get posted on the several laws under which land can be entered. A chapter, illustrated with numerous cuts, shows how to tell township, section, and quarter-section corners, and explains the system of surveys. It gives Commissioner Sparks orders and several late decisions and instructions, and full information about the homestead, preemption, timber culture, desert land, and other laws. The price of the book is only 25 cents.

FROM LEAD TO GOLD.—For some time past two miners, Reynolds and Treglown, have been working a lead and silver bearing claim just south of the Eclipse. A fews days ago the lead vein pinched out, but just under it the men struck a gold vein that is quite rich. An incline has been put down over twenty feet on the new find and it holds of the same character as far as yet seen. Stoping has been begun and a lot of the ore will be taken out for milling.

A MUCH NEEDED OFFICER.—New orchards are being planted so rapidly and the old ones are being so much improved that in a year or two fruit raising will be the leading business in Inyo county. Already some of our farmers derive the principal part of the income from fruit. It is now a matter of the first importance to guard against the introduction and spread of insect pests. This matter has been unwisely neglected, and as a result of this neglect we have the wooly aphis and red spider. These pests have not yet spread very widely, but if proper care is not taken to destroy them we have enough to polute the whole valley and ruin our rising fruit business. Some men are so ignorant and some so indolent that unless compelled they will not take the necessary precautions to save their own and their neighbor's trees from destruction. There is a law compelling people to destroy fruit pests, and provision is made for an officer to enforce the law; we ought to have such an officer with the least possible delay.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Israel Luce arrived at the marble quarry last Wednesday from Sacramento.

Charley Anthony came up from Darwin last Tuesday, and stayed at Independence a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes were up from Keeler last Tuesday. They were summoned as witnesses on the examination of Curry for shooting Kearney.

Mr. William McCown left Independence last Saturday morning for Fresno county; he has rented his farm at Warm Springs and expects to be gone all summer.

Wells Barnes came down from the White Hill mine last Sunday. He says the mine is looking as well as usual; they are getting out ore and a shipment will be made in a few days.

Mr. William Barrows arrived home from San Francisco last Wednesday. He was in the city several weeks under medical treatment, and is now fully restored to good health.

H. M. Yerington, Mr. Bliss of Carson, and Mr. Tobey of Hawthorne, and Mr. R. J. Laws, were at Keeler at the beginning of the week. Mr. Yerington was down on business connected with the C. & C. road.

HOPE MINE.—The Hope might now with safety be called the Certainty. During the past week the mine has shown up a ledge that is a big thing. Mr. Harris was up at the mine last Wednesday; he says there is seventy feet of backs in the finest looking body of ore he has ever seen in the county. The vein is about four feet wide, and from twelve to thirteen inches of this runs away up in gold. The strike is setting others to work at Chrysopolis.

PAID UP.—When Mr. W. A. Bolinger was taken ill there was considerable money due to miners for wages. Mr. Chambers, of the Ontario mine, Utah, who is brother-in-law to Mr. Bolinger, sent on a sum of money to Mr. Eibeshutz to pay these claims. There was not quite enough, but Mr. Eibeshutz, who is always ready to help miners, advanced what was wanting and paid every claim in full. There is no doubt but that Mr. Chambers will settle every just claim against Mr. Bolinger.

STOCK RAISING.—John Shepherd is rapidly extending his stock of horses and mules, and is giving most of his time to breeding and raising these animals. About two weeks ago he received a band of fine young mares, from which he expects to raise mule colts. His farm is remarkably well suited to this business as it produces the finest hay, has excellent and extensive pasturage, and an abundance of pure water. Mr. Shepherd has just finished building corrals where the animals can be managed with ease and safety.

EXTENDING ACCOMODATION.—For some time past the travel and general business at Keeler has been increasing to such an extent that additional hotel accommodation is an absolute necessity. Mr. Barnes has nearly finished an addition to his hotel that contains eight bed rooms; these are all nice apartments, and will be finished with everything necessary to comfort. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes spare no pains or expense to accommodate their guests, and are deservedly popular hotel keepers.

SEEDS.—Through Congressman Markham we have received packages of seeds from the U. S. Department of Agriculture. These seeds include corn, cabbage, onion, squash, peas, beans, carrot, lettuce, watermelon, musk melon etc. All are choice varieties. Reliable parties will be supplied with packages of these seeds, by calling at the office of the INYO INDEPENDENT. It is the intention and aim of the Department of Agriculture to have these seeds fairly tried as to their suitability to soil and climate in all parts of the United States, and parties receiving them are earnestly requested to keep a record of the date of planting and maturity, and of the yield, as closely as this can be ascertained.

TAKE HOLD.—Every member of the order of Odd Fellows in Inyo county will be expected to take hold with a will, and work for the success of the coming anniversary celebration at Independence. The public will give a generous response to any reasonable appeal on behalf of the cemetery, and if the members of the order will bestir themselves, substantial aid can be got to provide such improvements there as will make the place a credit to the whole country. Already the Lodge at Independence has done much to beautify the cemetery, but much remains to be done. Members of the Order should be careful to explain that the cemetery is not for the exclusive use of Odd Fellows, but may become the last resting place of others also.

TRYING TO FIND IT.

These children have often run to the post office to mail their parents letters addressed to "Weinstock and Lubin, Sacramento," and quite as often have they hailed with delight, the arrival of the goods which came in return. Indeed, the prettiest and best clothes they have, came from that store. And so, with childish curiosity, they are trying to find on the globe, where Sacramento is.

If they were older, we could easily explain that Sacramento is situated near the center of that vast area of land west of the Rocky Mountains, and which extends North and South to the borders of the United States. Thus it is a natural distributing point for merchandise going to all parts of the coast. People who send to Sacramento for their goods generally make a large saving in time, as well as in express and freight charges.

But what shall we answer the children?

Well —— that Sacramento is a growing and thriving city and the capital of California. It abounds in interesting sights, but few are more so, than this same store of which we have been speaking. And such a store! Such bewildering displays of goods! Such lofty ceilings—some full forty feet high! A hundred and fifty or sixty clerks as busy as bees! And such a queer railroad——built high in the air, and carrying money and parcels to all parts of the store as fast as a boy can run! But one of the best things about the whole store is that a little child can buy to as good advantage as an old and experienced trader. ALL CUSTOMERS ARE TREATED ALIKE. The man in Montana who orders a dollar's worth of merchandise, gets the SAME goods and the SAME prices as if he bought in person.

Thus, because the store aims to be scrupulously just in its dealings with absent customers,—because its goods are of the most desirable character and sits prices low—it does an extensive Mail Order business with thousands of people whom it has never seen!

This method of trade is made easy, practical and satisfactory by means of a large Illustrated Catalogue, which is sent free to any address.

When customers order they know in advance just what they are going to get. If for any reason goods are not as ordered, they can be returned at the expense of the House. Thus, out-of-town buyers, in sending to this store, have everything to gain and nothing to lose.

FULL OF ROMANCE.

Miss Meade's Three Marriages and What Each Brought.

The pardon of T. J. McAfee, alias Gerald Moore, by Governor Hubbard, of Minnesota, recalls to a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat the remarkably romantic life of Moore's wife, the Countess von Mutzenbach, for marrying whom Moore was convicted of bigamy. The Countess von Mutzenbach was the daughter of the late Commodore Meade and a niece of General Meade, who commanded the Federal forces at the battle of Gettysburg. When a young girl and moving in exclusive society she met Charles K. Landis, founder of the city of Vineland, N. J.

Mr. Landis was only thirty-four years old, but was one of the most prosperous and best-known business men in southern New Jersey. He became a suitor for the hand of Miss Meade, but was opposed by the father, who said the great and insurmountable objection was his age, but did not say whether Mr. Landis was too old or too young. Mr. Landis concluded that this subterfuge was to cover other reasons, but as Miss Meade was under age she could not be legally married under the laws of New Jersey without her parents' consent. Miss Meade's older brother was taken into the secret and he and Mr. Landis engaged board and lodging for Commodore Meade in the Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum, where, in spite of the Commodore's terrible rage, he was confined for several months. Miss Meade was left without any legal guardian, and, in company with her older brother to represent the good-will of the family, she went with Mr. Landis before a minister and they were pronounced husband and wife. In a few months the Commodore was released from the asylum. Under the statutes the marriage could have been pronounced null and void, the minister fined $300, if the old Commodore could prove that the object of his confinement was to get him out of the way for the wedding, but Mr. Landis headed him off by having a bill passed by both houses of the Legislature entitled "A bill to Legalize the Marriage of Charles K. Landis and Elvira Meade."

New troubles arose for Mr. Landis. He was attacked by a country editor, named Uriah Caruth, who had some falling out with him. Mrs. Landis was seized with hysterical fits about this time and Caruth made allusions to her condition in a way that aroused Mr. Landis' anger and, seeking out the editor, he shot him in the head. In spite of the assertions of the doctors that Caruth would die the editor began to get well and was arranging to settle with Mr. Landis for a money consideration instead of prosecuting him, when Caruth suddenly had a relapse in New York City and died. Mr. Landis was admitted to $50,000 bail, and as public opinion was with him he was acquitted of the charge of murder. While Mr. Landis was in jail enemies attempted to have him removed from the Postmastership of Vineland, which he had held for several years. When the committee that went to Washington called upon General Grant he asked them to accompany him to the Auditor's room of the Post-office Department. Here the General requested the Auditor to look up the accounts of the Postmaster at Vineland, N. J. The Auditor did as he was bidden and in a few moments announced that his accounts were square and correct in every particular.

"But," said the committee, "he is in jail, charged with murder."

"I understand the case," said the General, with a merry twinkle in his eye. "The only charge against him is that of shooting an editor, and I do not consider the charge sufficient to justify me in making any change. Good-day, gentlemen," and Landis remained Postmaster for two years longer, when he resigned of his own accord.

Disagreements arose later in life between Mr. and Mrs. Landis and they were divorced and she went abroad. In the city of Nice she met Count von Mutzenbach and again became a bride. Soon Count von Mutzenbach died. His death was beyond doubt due to natural causes and was a matter of sincere sorrow and affliction to the bereaved widow. A very remarkable fact with this Count, and a very rare thing among "counts" who marry American women, was that he actually possessed some property, and his widow was reported to have had a legacy of ten thousand dollars a year left her, to be paid as long as she should remain a widow. After her husband's death she returned to America and on the steamer she met and became acquainted with McAfee. It seems to have been a case of love at first sight. But there was an obstacle in the way of their marrying, McAfee already having a wife, whom he had just left in Ireland and whom he had promised to send for in a very short time. This wife was in Ireland and the loving pair were in America. It was decided to ignore the Irish wife's existence, as well as her marital rights, and the lovers proceeded to make the widow of the Count a second Mrs. McAfee.

Scarcely had they married when they accidentally met the brother of Mrs. McAfee No 1 on the streets of New York, and, though they fled to St. Paul, they could not escape, and conviction for bigamy followed. McAfee was engaged in business under the name of Gerald Moore. His Countess wife was waiting for him when he was released.—[New York World.

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind in use adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the last TWO YEARS and a great many mines, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month of the year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than its cost for this purpose alone.

BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

He Ceased to Carry Pistols.

The charge of Judge Branham, of Georgia, to the grand jury was strikingly forcible. In regard to breaking up the practice of carrying concealed weapons, he gave an illustration that came under his observation while practicing attorney in Rome in this State. He had a clerk in his office who was in the habit of carrying a derringer pistol in each of his vest pockets. This he tried to persuade the clerk not to do, but he was persistent in his purpose. A client made a remark to the clerk after he (Branham) had lost his case, that he made no effort to do his duty in the matter. On accosting the client about it he denied making the statement.

The clerk and the client and Judge Branham all met in the law office, when the clerk wanted to know of the client if he denied making the aforesaid remark. The client emphatically denied it, when the clerk, who was seated at a table, writing, looked up and simply remarked: "Well, you lied; that's all." The client, a large, muscular fellow, picked up the tongs and was intending to brain the clerk, when the aforesaid clerk placed his fingers in his vest pocket and pulled out a derringer, and, without getting up from his seat, rested his hand on the table and exclaimed: "You put down those tongs!"

The man very prudently put down the tongs. When he had left, the clerk said to Judge Branham: "You have always insisted that I should not carry a pistol, as I would have no need of it. Now, suppose that I hadn't had that weapon, that fellow would have killed me with those tongs." "Not at all probable," replied Judge Branham. "Why?" interrogated the surprised clerk. "Because," replied Judge Branham, "if you had been without a pistol you would not have called the fellow a liar." This was a revelation to the clerk, and he abandoned the practice of carrying concealed weapons.—[Atlantic Constitution.

A HOUSE OF HORRORS.

Terrible Experience of Some Travelers in the San Juan.

In the Southern portion of the State, in what is now known as Archuleta County, is one of the finest natural parks in the world. Magnificent pines lifting their proud heads 200 or more feet in the air extend for miles in every direction, with the imposing Needle Mountains for a background. The peculiarity of this park is that there is no underbrush beneath the trees, and the greensward extending as far as the eye can reach makes vistas of sylvan loveliness through which the eye could rove for hours. Far in the depth of this ideal forest was a cabin, by whom erected or for what purpose is a little uncertain, but possibly it was merely intended as a shelter for hunters of deer and elk, many of which are yet found in this magnificent forest. In the early summer of 1880 a party of surveyors on their way to the San Jaun, whose wonderful mineral resources were just becoming better known, and about which many stories, reading like fairy tales, were told to excite the covetousness of adventurous spirits throughout the country, struck a trail through the timber and arrived at the lonely cabin [illegible] before nightfall. The party consisted of the four surveyors and two miners, named Tom and [illegible] Fulton, on their way to the Needle Mountain mines.

As a beautiful little stream trickled over the rocks hard by, pouring its cool liquid fresh from the mountain snows, anon running like a silver thread over the emerald earth, then leaping over some tiny precipice in a beautiful cascade, the travelers resolved to camp there for the night, and accordingly a frugal supper was cooked and eaten, the blankets spread on the floor of the cabin, and the arrangements for the night completed. The surveyors retired early, but the Fultons sat up for a long time, engaged in conversation. Tom was an old miner who had prospected in the San Juan some years before, but his brother Jim had only just arrived from his native State of Massachusetts, having been written for by his brother, whose glowing accounts of the country induced Jim to leave his employments in the East and join his fortunes with those of his more experienced brother.

The night was a beautiful one, the moonlight flittering through the tall trees like tiny shafts of silver, and both men, as they sat there smoking, were strongly impressed with nature's quiet grandeur. "I tell you, Jim," said the elder brother, "this is a beautiful country, but some terrible things have been done in it and many a poor man has lost his life. Why, it was only a little over a year ago, on my first trip to the Needles, that somewhere in this very timber a cruel murder was committed and the whole country was aroused and pursuit made of the murderer, who was followed clear to the mountains, caught, brought back and hung to a tall tree just in front of the cabin where the deed was done, and, which was something like this one. The murder was peculiarly atrocious, a man's mining partner having been slain by him in the cabin where they were both sleeping."

After some other reminiscences of mining camps and frontier life, the brothers retired.

It was perhaps midnight when a horrible, blood-curdling cry was heard ringing through the cabin and far out into the forest, where it was echoed again and again on the night air. Instantly the sleepers were awake, and, sitting up, saw a terrible scene enacted in the center of the cabin and only a few feet distant. Two men were struggling on the floor, and presently the larger and more powerful getting his antagonist under him, plunged a knife into his heart. The weird scene, lit up by some supernatural means, lasted but a few moments; the light died out and all was again still, save the heavy breathing of the frightened men, who were still looking with staring eyes at the spot where the tragedy had been enacted.

"It was big Dan and his victim and the cabin is haunted," said Tom in a husky whisper. "Let's get out of this." In a moment the horrified party were out on the green with their "traps." Not a sound was heard except the mournful cry of a whip-poor-will, and the soughing of wind in the tall branches of the trees. While they were deliberating outside the cabin as to the next step to be taken, one of them exclaimed in a startled voice: "Look, what is that hanging there?" The now thoroughly frightened men looked up, and on the tall branch of a tree distinctly saw swinging to and fro in the faint moonlight the body of a man hanging. This last sight at once determined their future course, and it was only the work of a few moments to pack up blankets and baggage and start through the forest, with only the one desire to put the greatest distance in the shortest space of time between themselves and the ghostly charnel-house of terrors they had just left. Their story was told in all of the camps which they afterward visited, and the haunted cabin still stands in the beautiful woodland glen, shunned, especially at night-fall, by all travelers on the way coming from and going to the hills.—[Denver (Col.) News.

Where They Go to.

"It wasn't three days ago that I put three penholders and three blotting pads on this desk, and not one is to be found now."

It was a post-office official and he referred to the writing-desk in the corridor.

"What becomes of 'em?" asked the reporter.

"Stolen."

"You don't mean to say that we have people mean enough to steal a half-penny blotting pad?"

"But I do. I see a dozen cases of it a week."

"Who are the thieves?"

"Women, mostly. And when it isn't a woman it's a business man. Now, I'm going to stock up the desk again, and you hang around here for awhile and see what you can see."

Three penholders, each supplied with a new pen, and three fresh pads of blotting paper were laid out, and the watcher took his seat on a window-sill. In about five minutes a young man with a brisk air rushed up to the desk, directed a postal card, and knocked one of the penholders off on the floor as he rushed out. The next comer was also a man, and he picked up the pen, directed a letter with it, gave a quick glance around him and pocketed one of the blotters. The third was a woman, who put on her glasses, wrote a postal, and coolly pocketed a penholder. Then a boy lounged up and stole another; and between two business men who used the other pen the second blotter was pocketed. This left only one penholder and one blotter. After seven or eight people had used them, a woman with widow's weeds on directed a mourning envelope, stamped it and rolled the penholder up in the pad and pocketed both, regardless of who might be watching. She was not yet out of the building when a man rushed up to the desk, found nothing to write with, and pounded the walnut with his fist and growled out:—

"I'll be hanged if I wouldn't like to twist that postmaster's neck! This shows how little care a public official has for the convenience of the public!"—[Detroit Free Press.

Picking Out Good Oranges.

To very many an orange is an orange, the only variation distinguishable being in size and corresponding price, while those who know the difference between "Florida," "Seville" and "Messina" oranges are considered experts. The "Florida Catechism" tells us better than that. We learn from it that there are "over thirty" varieties of sweet oranges, not to mention the "natural" stock, which is a larger and handsomer fruit than the sweet orange, and is excellent for orangeade and marmalade, but being very sour, is seldom shipped North. The medium sizes are apt to be the choicest, and "probably the very sweetest orange that is marketed is the rusty-coated and rather ill-looking orange, which might be considered inferior by an amateur." Furthermore: "The way to detect oranges is to 'heft' them in your hands; pick out the thin-skinned, heavy fruit and you are all right." The light-weight fruit is apt to be juiceless, a condition caused either by a slight freezing while on the tree, or, more probably, by the poverty of the soil in which it grew.

All this applies to the sweet oranges. The "kid glove" oranges are grown in Florida from two stocks, brought, respectfully, from China and Tangiers. Hence they are called Mandarin and Tangerine oranges. Both are small, the skin is loose and easily removed, and the sections fall apart so readily that a lady can eat one without soiling her gloves—hence the name.

Some other interesting bits of information may be picked out from this "Catechism." It is not generally known, for instance, that "an orange that is entirely dead ripe in December will hang on the tree until March, and is ready at any time to be picked and shipped;" while so far from deteriorating, "the longer they hang on the trees the sweeter they grow," and Florida oranges, purchased in February and March, are, therefore, apt to be better than those procured early in the season. Again, the notion that, to know what an orange is really like, one must go where the oranges grow, appears to be a popular fallacy, as we are told that "the orange picked from the tree is no riper or better than the orange on the fruit stall in the North."—[Philadelphia Inquirer.

Sound Reasoning.

Uncle Isom was whitewashing an old, dilapidated house on Whitehall Street yesterday. The interior had a ghostly appearance, and a gentleman said to the old negro:—

"Isom, ain't you afraid of ghosts?"

"No, sah; dat I ain't, young master," was the reply, as the old man's face looked up with a smile.

"You are not."

"No, sah. Dar ar no ghosts."

"How do you know?"

"Ca'se, sah, when a person dies dey goes to Heaben or purgatory, one or de udder."

"Yes."

"And ef dey goes to purgatory dey can't get away; and if dey goes to Heaben dey don't want to get away an' cum back a scollopin' 'round dis world. I'se too ole fer to let dat kind er mesmerisin' bizness bodder me."

A Brutal Conductor.

"I can't let this girl travel over this road on that half-fare ticket," said the new conductor to the widow Flapjack.

"Why not? what is the matter with my little girl?"

"She is no child. She is more than half grown."

"Well, if that don't beat everything then I'll give it up. Here poor little Mamie has been traveling over this road on a child's ticket for the last ten years, and now all at once you say she is no child. That's a new way to worry the traveling public."

She paid full fare, and then the diminutive girl in the corner pulled herself out, so to speak, like a marine telescope.—[Texas Siftings.

BEER DISEASES.

How Pasteur Discovered a Remedy for the Malady.

During the terrible days of the supremacy of the Commune in Paris, at the end of the Franco-German war, Pasteur was occupied in the laboratory of M. Duclaux, at Clermont-Ferrand, in studying the diseases of beer with a view to attempt to raise French beer to the higher standard of the German brewers. Beer is naturally more prone to disease than wine, on account of the comparatively large quantity of gummy and saccharine matters which it contains in a state favorable to rapid decay. When the fermentation of the wort of beer sets in at the high temperature to which it is raised in mashing, the liquid requires to be rapidly cooled. So long as it remains between the temperatures of 77° and 95° of Fahrenheit's scale it is peculiarly liable to be attacked by the injurious ferments proper to acetic, lactic, and butvric acids. If the must of beer were spontaneousiy fermented, like the must of grape juice, an acid of putrid liquid would invariably be produced in the place of beer. In the old process of what is technically know as high fermentation, which is also the one that is still employed with the bitter beers and pale ales of England, the fermenting liquid was kept in barrels, at a temperature ranging from 64° to 68° Fahrenheit. In the process of "low fermentation," which is more generally employed by the brewers of Germany and France, a slow fermentation is established at a lower temperature, during which the yeast settles down to the bottom of the tubs and casks. The wort is then transferred to open tubs, and the fermentation is carried on at a temperature as low as 43° Fahrenheit, which is maintained by means of floating cylinders filled with ice for from ten to twenty days. This low fermentation beer is principally prepared in the winter season, and is preserved in ice caves until the summer. The cost of its production is on this account comparatively high. Twenty-two gallons of the beer require something like two hundred weight of ice for their maturation. The wort of beer, after it has been raised to the boiling point, may be kept indefinitely if it be mixed only with pure yeast, and if it be preserved from contamination with extraneous germs that are diffused through the air. The beers fermented and kept at low temperatures to some extent fulfill this condition. By the employment of ice the brewer is able to meet the demands of a long period of consumption without any great risk of contamination by accidental impurities. But Pasteur has introduced an additional safeguard, even more sure than the low temperature fermentation. He has taught the brewers to bottle the beer when the fermentation is approximately complete, and then to expose the bottles for a short time to a temperature ranging between 122° and 131° Fahrenheit. By this management all extraneous germs of undesirable ferments are killed, and the beer consequently remains sound for long periods of time. This is essentially the practice which is now pursued upon a very large scale, and which is familiarly known as the Pasteurization of beer. In addition to the adoption of this process, the principle chiefly insisted upon by Pasteur is that the wort shall be protected while cooling from all organisms accidentally floating in the air, and that the leaven used for the wort shall be absolutely pure and itself free from contaminating organisms. At the recent exhibition of Amsterdam, M. Vellen, of Marseilles, showed bottles half full of a perfectly clear beer which had been tapped at the opening of the exhibition and left in this exposed state to prove the keeping powers of the liquid. This was beer which had been subjected to Pasteur's method of preservation.—[Edinburg Review.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL
SATURDAY, APRIL 10.....1886

THE Federal District Judges in this State are construing the law so as to throw the greatest obstacles in the way of getting rid of the Chinese.

IT is conceded that the career of Mr. Manning as Secretary of the Treasury is ended. Ex-Senator Thurman, of Ohio, is strongly recommended as successor to Mr. Manning, and his appointment would give great satisfaction all over the United States, except to the gold men of New York. This objection ought to be a strong recommendation for the appointment of Mr. Thurman.

WHEN white working people agree not to have any dealings with China men the Courts call it "conspiracy," and Eastern people denounce the act as "un-American." When soulless corporations and selfish rich men employ Chinamen and make beggars and tramps of their white fellow creatures, they are defended on the ground that personal freedom must not be interfered with. It is all wrong for the poor to act in concert for self protection, but all right for the rich to increase their gains that way.

ALTHOUGH invisible to the naked eye there are at present three comets in the heavens which may be observed with the aid of telescopes. One of them, discovered last year by Mr. Brooks, is about to disappear; but the other two are gradually increasing in brilliancy, and will probably offer a most imposing spectacle to the naked eye in the western sky for several weeks from the third week in April. They will be approaching each other for some time, taking their common course toward the north pole of the firmament until about April 30, when one will reverse its path sinking finally below the northwestern horizon.

THE productio of raisins in California has largely increased of late; the crop of last year was not less than twice the size of any previous crop. But even with this increase the production of California barely reaches one tenth of the amount consumed in the United States each year. No other region in the State is better suited to the growth and cure of raisins than Owens valley. Beyond any doubt a large and profitable business could be built up in the valley in the production of raisins. The grapes grow finely, the berries being large and very sweet, while the dry air and bright sunshine are just the right conditions for curing the raisin.

BEING repelled from evil or attracted by good are but different ways of attaining a higher and nobler condition of life. But it is easier, surer, swifter, better, to reach the desired elevation by marching with smiling face and flashing eyes turned toward the good, than to stumble backward from the evil. The public teacher makes a grave and serious mistake who tries to make his hearers better by constantly describing to them the ugliness of sin, rather than the beauty of virtue and holiness. The poet spake the truth who said of vice that

"When seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace."

Nothing is more certain to remove the disgust and horror caused in a sensitive mind by vice, than a too frequent sight or hearing of its practice. By frequent contemplation of either, vice becomes less disgusting and virtue more attractive. Surely, then, it becomes the duty of a public teacher to dwell more upon the latter than upon the former. John and Paul failed not to denounce sin, but the delight of both was to describe the beauty and joy of holy living. In the greatest sermon ever preached on earth the word "blessed" occurs frequently, while "cursed" appears not at all, and the last injection is, not an admonition to hate sin, ut "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

Scientific Miscellany.

A ruined city, hitherto entirely unknown, has been discovered in the province of Adana, Asia Minor.

Prof. Bakhuyzen, of the Leiden observatory, finds reason for believing that a part of the planetary surface of Mars is liquid.

A German geographer and statistician, Dr. A. Fischer, estimates that an annual slaughter of 40,000 elephants is necessary to supply the ivory exported from Africa.

The first archæopteryx, the fossil remains of the oldest known bird, which seems to form the "connecting link" beween birds and reptiles, was discovered in the lithographic slate of Solenhofen in 1861. Another specimen recently found in the same locality, has been sold for $5,000 to the Berlin Museum.

A remarkable variation has been observed in the stature of the inhabitants of France. If a line be drawn diagonally across the country from Manche to Lyons the people to the northeast of the division have an average height of 5 feet 6.6 inches, while those on the southwest side average only 5 feet 4.6 inches.

PROLIFIC WEEDS.—A botanist has attempted to estimate the number of seeds found upon some of the most obnoxious weeds of this country. For shepherd's purse he makes the number 37,500 per plant; dandelion, 12,108; wild pepper grass, 18,400; wheat thief, 7,000; common thistle, 65,367; camomile, 15,920; butter weed, 8,587; rag weed, 4,366; common purslane, 388,800; common plantain, 42,200; burdock, 38,068.

QUALITIES OF WOODS.—Prof. Sargent finds that the strongest wood in the United States is the nutmeg hickory of the Arkansaw region, and that the weakest is the West Indian birch. The most elastic is the tamarack, the white or shellbark hickory being far below it. The least elastic and the lowest in specific gravity is the wood of the Ficus aurea. The highest specific gravity—upon which in general depends value as fuel—is attained by the bluewood of Texas.

HOW COASTS HAVE FORMED.—In a paper on the history of the development of coasts, a German geologist, Dr. Fischer, reaches the conclusion that where coasts have been formed by the erosive action of waves and streams, terraces and flat surfaces are the prevailing characteristics, with semicircular bays of small radius on terraced coasts and large radius on flat coasts. Where other features exist, they are mainly attributed to subterranean movements and comparatively recent changes in the level of the land, some modifying effects having of course been wrought by the sea.

APPARENT DISTANCE OF SUN AND MOON.—To determine how far off the moon actually appears from the eye the late Mons. Plateau devised an ingenious experiment, which may be repeated by any person. Looking steadily at the full moon a few moments, he turned suddenly round toward a wall, and noted the size of the dark accidental or complimentary image when projected on the wall. When, by moving forward or backward, this spectral image is made to assume the size of the real moon, it must appear to be the same distance from the observer's eye; and Mons. Plateau found his distance from the wall to be about fifty-six yards. In a similar manner Mons. Stroobant proved the sun's apparent distance to be about fifty-three yards.

BIRTH OF THE MICROSCOPE.—The origin of the microscope, that most important instrument of modern research, is lost in the mists of antiquity. A rock crystal lens and a microscopic engraving were unearthed by Layard at Nineveh, and many of the gems in the British museum could not possibly have been cut by their ancient engravers with unassisted sight. Later evidence of the use of water-filled glass globes as magnifying and burning glasses is furnished by Pliny, Seneca and Plutarch. Alhazen, the Arabian, made known in Europe the magnifying power of lenses about the eleventh century. It is generally believed that the first microscope with double glass was invented by Jansen, in 1590, although Roger Bacon is credited with a previous invention at Oxford in the thirteenth century.

EXTENT AND VELOCITY OF STORMS.—Prof. E. Loomis finds that in the United States a low pressure area, with only one system of cyclonic winds, frequently has a diameter of 1,600 miles, and that cyclones over the Atlantic frequently have diameters of 2,000 miles. Widespread areas of low barometer, having several centers of cyclonic action, may have a diameter of 6,000 miles or may even form a belt extending nearly, if not quite, round the globe between the parallels of 40 and 50 degrees north latitude. On the other hand, tropical cyclones are often only 500 miles, or even less, in diameter. In the United States, the signal service records for thirteen years show that the average rate of progress of storms for the year is 28.4 miles per hour, rising to the maximum, 34.2 miles, in February, and falling to the minimum, 22.6 miles, in August. In Europe storms travel much more slowly, the mean rate of progress during the five years ending 1880 being 16.7 miles, reaching the maximum of 19 miles in October, and falling to the minimum of 14 miles in August.

A Pawnbroker's Notion.

There is said to be a tradition that the first man who goes into a pawnshop of a Monday morning is never permitted to leave without buying what he wants. Pawnbrokers have a superstition that if they don't sell to the first customer who comes in on Monday they will have bad luck all the week. And this has become a rule with people who patronize pawnshops. A man got a $40 overcoat last winter for $6 because he went into a pawnbroker's the first man on Monday and asked to look at some overcoats.

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.
JOHN C. EVANS, Stoutland, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 100 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much moneyas it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."
JOHN R. DODGE, JR., jeweler, Normal, Ill., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. It is the best machine ever invented by man. 2d. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy ours for gold."
I will ship a sample to those desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best washer in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Pays capable agents big money. Write for particulars.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY APRIL 10.....1886.

—George Story is ready to begin workat the Maxim mill on a run of ore from the Poleta mine.

—Quite a number of quarrymen went down on the train last Wednesday to work at the marble quarry.

—A shipment of fifteen tons of ore from the Brown Monster mine was made yesterday. The ore was sent to Selby & Co., San Francisco.

ALL DISTRIBUTED.—The seeds received from the United States Agricultural Department, through Congressman Markham, have all been distributed.

—Charles Gruber, a well known citizen of Dayton, Nevada, died last week. He died suddenly, and it is believed the cause of death was rheumatism of the heart.

—General Bidwell and other fruit growers in the Sacramento valley are reported to be discharging Chinese as fast as white people can be got to take their places.

—A family living at Susanville Lassen county, have been infected with that fearful parasite, trichinae spiralis. The infection was caugh by eating sausage made from pork containing the parasite.

—Tickets for the Odd Fellows Ball at Independence on the 26th, can be had from Frank Fitzgerald at Lookout, Tom Crough, Darwin, John Barnes, Keeler, Dan Crough, Lone Pine, Joseph Schalten, Big Pine, R. J. Eldred, Bishop Creek, and at all business houses at Independence.

—John Barlow appeared before Judge Hannah at the beginning of the week, to make final proof on his farm at Bishop Creek. Since settling on the land Mr. Barlow has worked so industriously that the place looks like an old settled farm. Good buildings, well fenced and cultivated fields, good horses and cattle, are the evidences of what an industrious man can do in Owens valley in a very few years. His Honor, the Judge, said it was a pleasure to take the testimony offered by witnesses for Mr. Barlow.

MEN WANTED.—Men who really want work are invited to read the notice of Mr. Fitzgerald, given on another column.

PREACHING.—Religious services will be held to-morrow (Sunday) at Camp Independence at 2 o'clock p. m., and at Independence at 7:30 in the evening.

SCHOOL. — School at Independence will be opened by Rev. Mr. Spangler, on next Monday, April 13th. Mr. Spangler is an experienced teacher, and no parent should miss the opportunity of having children profit by his ability.

ERROR.—A statement made in last week's issue that a number of men had gone from Independence to work on Bolinger's mines at Chryopolis, was incorrect, the men went to work on the Hope mine, belonging to Harris & Rhine.

STATE LINE MINE.—Gold bullion to the value of $4,000 arrived at Carson a few days ago from the State Line Mine, being the result of ten days run of the forty-stamp mill. There is said to be 200,000 tons of the pay ore in sight, and the prospects of the mine are very flattering.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorably located and has good water privilege. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area seeded to alfalfa.

Apply to
HARRIS & RHINE.
Independence.

SOCIAL CLUB.—Last Saturday evening some of the settlers at Camp Independence met at the school house for the purpose of organizing a social club. The object of the club will be to discuss matters of general interest and to promote sociability in the neighborhood. It was regretted that the time had been too brief to give a general notice of the meeting. The next meeting will be held at the same place on Saturday, April 20, at 7 o'clock p. m. All are invited to attend.

INTERESTING LECTURE.—Last Wednesday evening Rev J. M. Spangler lectured in the Court House to a good audience. The subject was "The Kingdom of Chili," and as the lecturer had lived in the country several years he was well prepared to speak about it. The lecture dealt with the past history of the country, and also with its present condition. The social habits, the religion, laws and customs of the people; the educational institutions, the amusements and business of the country, were all treated in a way that deeply interested the audience, all of whom would gladly listen to Mr. Spangler again upon the same subject. The lecture is well worthy of repetition.

THINKS WELL OF IT—The Carson Index says: "Judge Leonard returned last evening from a trip out on the Carson and Colorado railroad, with H. M. Yerington, D. L. Bliss, W. D. Tobey and Mr. Dinsmore, of Boston. The Judge relates to us that he saw very much of interest in the course of the 300 miles of travel to the end of the road and back. He was especially interested in observing the great Inyo marble deposits, and thinks when opened in good shape they will hardly be excelled in the world for the quality of stone. The quantity is, of course, enormous. He was pleased with the apparent resources of the Owens River Valley and the mineral riches which are here and there destined to be tributary to the line of commerce and travel along the railroad."

Bishop Creek Notes.

The weather for the past two weeks has been exceedingly breezy, so much so as to make some of the smaller ones among us fearful of being blown away. The cold nights during the same time have given rise to a fear that all the fruit blossoms already out will be killed. Winter seems unwilling to depart, and it now looks as if we would find him lingering in the lap of May.

Mr. Lydell, who had charge of Mr. Duun's blacksmith shop for some months while the latter was absent, leaves on Monday with his family for Fresno county, where they expect to make their home. In company with these Mr. Garland and family will start for the same county, and with the same intention.

Assessor Irwin is here again, making his annual round among us to find how much we own, or will own up to.

Mrs. S. Bell, late of Big Pine, has opened a store here, and ladies who wish to buy a good and cheap article will be perfectly satisfied if they buy from her. She has a general assortment of millinery, and all kinds of fancy articles.

The people of this place have all gone cranky about fishing since the season opened, at least the male portion have; but as yet I have not heard of even one good mess of trout being caught. Perhaps the ladies will have better luck when they take the rod in hand. But before the female portion of the community shall venture farther than the front gate the weather will have to be improved. By the way, there has not been much indulgence of late in the joys of "swinging on the gate;" but with the return of more favorable conditions that delightful exercise will no doubt be resumed with greater zest than ever.

Irrigation.

No other question now before the people of this State is of so much importance as that of irrigation. Upon a wise settlement of this matter the prosperity of the State will in great measure depend. The present state of the law governing the use of water from streams is very unsatisfactory, and should be remedied as speedily as possible. Bills were introduced at the last session of the Legislature, that would have remedied most of the existing evil, but as he Rural Press says, failed through the ignorance of the members of the Legislature. It is important that measures should be undertaken to secure a better understanding of these matters. It is necessary that the coming Legislature should act upon the subject and enact laws which shall meet the needs of the people and the growth of the State. The subjects were brought before the last Legislature and a strong effort made to secure legislation but without effect. Much of the difficulty laid in the ignorance of many of the legislators whose lives have been cast beside city walks rather than beside running streams. By beginning early this year it is hoped that men can be elected who have clear ideas upon the subject and can be trusted to legislate intelligently.

Law of Trespass.

An important decision in the matter of trespass was recently made by the State Supreme Court. The case was originally brought in Santa Clara county for damage done by cattle to crop growing on unenclosed land. The plaintiff was awarded damages as claimed. The Defendant appealed to the Supreme Court, and in its decision the Court says: "It is very evident from this that in 1882, when the trespasses complained of here were committed, the owner of land in Santa Clara county was not required to fence it against his neighbors cattle, and that if the owner of cattle allowed them to stray upon another's land and do damage, he at once became liable for the damage done, whether the land was fenced or not.

As we find no error in the action of the court below, the judgment ard order should be affirmed. BELCHER, C. C.

We concur; SEARLS, C.,
FOOTE, C.

For the reasons given in the foregoing opinion the judgment and order are affirmed.

BY THE COURT.

Personal Mention.

L. W. Lee, a well known citizen of Reno, died last week of appoplexy.

Mat McDonald came in from Darwin last Tuesday, and will stay in town a week or two.

Mr. Edward Luce came up to Independence on Sunday from Swansea, and returned home Monday.

Mr. H. Hamilton came up from Keeler on Sunday, to Independence, and made his friends a short visit.

Mr. Israel Luce came up from the marble quarry to Independence last Saturday, and stayed till Monday. He was having some repairs made on machinery.

W. A. Greenley was in town at the middle of the week. He says there is not much doing in the Deep Spring country but expects there will be quite a lively season in the mines over there.

Dan Hock left town last Wednesday with a train of pack animals loaded with supplies for his mine at White Hill. Dan has a good claim near to Alexander, Kehoe & Barnes.

Henry Mack went north last Tuesday on his way to San Francisco. He went on business connected with the Defiance mine, and is expected back at the end of next week.

Mr. N. Rhine, of Harris & Rhine, left for San Francisco last Tuesday. He is not expected back sooner than two months; he has been ailing for some time, and will seek medical aid in the city.

A DELIGTFUL PARTY.

How a Big Pine Bachelor Was Honored.

One of the most delightful parties of the season was given here last evening. The party was given in honor of Mr. William McDonald, and the entertainers were the young ladies of that vicinity. The scene of festivity was in the large warehouse of Gregg and McDonald, and the latter gentleman, with the help of Mr. Ashmore, had spared neither labor or expense to make it worthy of the occasion. Evergreens and flowers were used with lavish hand, and arranged with skill and taste. The air of the hall was laden with delicious perfumes that seemed to have an exhilerating effect upon all the company, old as well as young. The festoons of green foliage and wreathes of gay flowers awakened tender memories of former times and distant scenes; of May Day parties and summer evening rambles when hearts were young and hopes were high. The store room in front of the warehouse being unoccupied at present, the counters formed excellent tables and were loaded with all the good things of the season; delicacies fit for the palates of Queens; dishes that would suit the most fastidious or epicurean tastes. An additional zest was given to the enjoyment of all those good things, by the fact that they were prepared by the fair hands of these lovely entertainers. No one will for a moment imagine that the young ladies had any idea of wining Mr. McDonald from his condition of bachelor hood by this display of their culinary accomplishments; but how any man with a stomach, not to speak of a heart, could taste such dainties when offered from the lovely hands that made them, and not ask one of those fair hands in marriage, is one of those things that no fellow can find out. Mac is not considered "tough" by any means, but if he has not already yielded, it must be because he has nothing in his "maras" tenderer than a gigyard. By nine o'clock p. m. the hall was filled with a gay company; at that hour dancing was begun. The music was furnished by Messrs. McNally and Co; of Bishop Creek, and was pronounced by the dancers to be excellent. At midnight the company adjourned for the enjoyment of the good things already mentioned, and it was very evident that this part of the entertainment was highly appreciated. Chickens and turkeys disappeared as if by the use of their own wings, and hams and other dainties followed with not less celerity. Being the first of April, the occasion was not suffered to pass without some pranks being played. One young gent found some nice looking dough-nuts rather deceptive, and another got tangled up in a pie from which he was not extricated without some difficulty. After supper the company returned to the hall and resumed dancing, which was kept up till day break; with the exception of some short intervals, when Mr. McNally entertained the company with well sung songs. Carriages were called as the morning beams began to gild the mountain tops, and as each drove away the occupants showered kind wishes upon Mr. McDonald, and wished him a speedy relief from the lonely desolate life of a bachelor. On the afternoon preceeding the party, a baseball game was played which was very interesting, and even exciting. A large crowd of both sexes attended, and some money changed hands on the result. Knowing so little about the "national game" I cannot attempt to describe this contest; but I feel warranted in saying we have a team of nine here that, when hitched up will puzzle any other part of the county to beat.

Yours, S. P. R.

PROFITABLE INDUSTRY.— No other product of the soil will pay better than making raisins. The Kern county Californian says: From Hanford, Tulare county, is received a remarkable statement of the profit realized from a Muscat vineyard during the past season. The plat contained three and three-quarter acres, and comprising 1,500 vines, or 400 to the acre. Of the fresh fruit $150 worth was sold, while the remainder was convered into raisins, eight hundred boxes were made, which sold for $2:10 per box, or $1,630, thus giving a cash return of $1,830. The net return from the raisins was $1.85 per box, or $1,480, giving a total net return from sales of $1,630. After the cost of cultivation and other, apart from preparing the fruit for market, the net return, or profit the acre, was found to be about $350." There are thousands of acres of land in Owens Valley that would give quite as good returns as the foregoing.

CO-OPERATION.

Mutual help enables two boys to do together what one boy could not do alone. Co-operation also accomplishes much else. It is Co-operation on the part of buyer and seller which enables out-of-town residents, by sending to us to get goods from the leading makers of the world as desirable in style, quality and price as if present in Sacramento to buy for themselves. In this system of Co-operative Shopping each party concerned has a special work

WHAT THE CUSTOMER HAS TO DO.

To write us, stating as clearly as possible what is wanted, and the amount of money to be expended. In doing this our Illustrated Catalogue (free to any address) will be found a valuable aid, as it gives full information about goods, styles and prices, and how to order. Customers should be careful to write name and post office address distinctly. Also, to state how the goods are to be sent.

WHAT WE HAVE TO DO.

Simply to imagine the customer here in the store, and accordingly to give him as near as possible the same goods, same prices and same attention.

It is true, our work is a responsible work. But it is greatly lightened by the fact that we never have to BOTHER OURSELVES ABOUT THE VALUE OF OUR GOODS OR THE SATISFACTION THEY WILL GIVE. We KNOW our styles are new, qualities reliable, prices low, and consequently that our goods cannot fail to please

From the above it will be seen that Mail Order Shopping is not a complex system. Indeed, for out-of-town residents, it is the easiest, safest and most satisfactory way of buying. Those who have never tried the system should certainly give it a test.

SATURDAY APRIL 10.....1886

FOR WINTER EVENINGS.

Some Tableaux to Amuse the Young People.

There are few pastimes better calculated to interest and amuse a winter evening assemblage of young people than tableaux; and a few plain directions, by which effective scenes can be arranged in any room, cannot fail to be of interest. You will require ten boxes of various sizes, two half-length picture-frames, one washtub and board, one broom, twenty feet of annealed wire, two dozen curtain-rings, twelve large lamps or twenty candles, or a gas-rod twelve feet long, with fifteen five-foot burners upon it, six yards black tarlaton muslin, costing about 25 cents per yard, and five cotton sheets. If the room has no folding-doors, you must have a thick curtain or bedquilt contrived to draw on a wire across the room, leaving a space about fifteen feet deep for the stage. This space must be draped with shawls or curtains, by stretching wire across the sides and back of the stage, near the cealing, and hanging them by means of rings sewed upon the cloth. Then procure four upright pieces of narrow board, just the height of the room for posts, screw them upon the back sides of the frames near the edge, so that when you raise them up the frames will stand upright 4 feet 6 inches from the floor. Cover all the space above and below the frames with cloth of the same color as the back wall, so that they will appear to the audience as if hanging upon the wall. Put up these frames four feet apart, and nail four strips of board five inches wide, in the shape of a large frame, between them having the top and bottom strips, which form the frame, six and one-half feet apart. This will give you a large frame between the two smaller ones. The large frame will be four feet wide and six and one-half feet high outside. The curtain must be arranged to run in front of the frames to cover them when not in use. These three frames stand at the back of the stage—the supporting posts nailed to the floor—two and one-half feet from the wall, so as to give room for the performers or "pictures" behind them. If gas is available, fasten a rod, with burners upon it, over the top of the curtain or folding doors. It is well to make a shelf for it, supported on two posts, about eight feet high. Over the burners, and behind them, tack sheets of common tin, bent so as to throw the light down. If you cannot obtain the tin conveniently, a white sheet fastened behind the burners will answer the purpose. If the curtain does not reach the cealing, you must put a shawl or thick cloth above it, so that too much light will not enter the darkened auditorium. If gas cannot be had, fasten candles or lamps, very securely, upon the shelf. In a very elaborate performance the stage should be raised to a level with the eyes of the spectators, but very fine performances are sometimes given on a few hours' notice. Next make a vale of black tarlatan muslin large enough to cover the space before the posts which support the curtain.

A few suggestions requiring only such costumes and appointments as can be obtained in almost any house may not be out of place. A very simple one is: "Justice, Mercy and peace." Justice stands on a high pedestal, made of two boot-boxes covered with a sheet; Peace on one box, and Mercy kneeling on two boxes placed end to end, making a long pedestal. They are draped in sheets. Peace can be taken by a child dressed in a short frock of white cotton, belted around the waist. Justice must be a larger lady than Mercy. Mercy kneels in an attitude of prayer, with clasped hands; Justice, blindfolded, stands erect, holding a sword and scales covered with white cloth, and Peace stands on the right of Justice, holding a stalk of paper lilies in her right hand. The faces of the trio must be whitened. In all "statues" the hands should be covered with white cotton gloves, the arms with stocking-legs sewed to the gloves, and the heads with wigs made of lamp-wicking. Be sure to turn down the gas or draw a strip of green cambric before your lamps; and if your statues stand still the effect is wonderful.

Next you may have a comic scene, Love's Disguises. A pretty girl in calico stands at a washing tub while a fop gazes at her with undisguised admiration through an enormous eye-glass. He is dressed showily with white hat and cane. In the next scene the maiden is sitting on a chair in the center, while a cunning Cupid aims a great tin bow at the fop from the washtub.

And then "The Roman Girls at the Shrine of St. Agnes." The saint, in white, stands in the large frame; before her a shrine (two boxes covered with a sheet) on which stands an unpainted wooden cross, two and one-half feet high. A dark Roman girl holds a wreath of flowers over one arm of the cross; another, kneeling on the other side, is passing to her a basket of flowers; a third kneels in prayer at front of the stage, telling her beads; a forth stands in the corner of the stage at back, holding a sheaf of straw. Dresses: Black, brown or red skirts; black bretelles over white waists; long white towels on heads. Towels folded three times lengthwise, and placed upon the head, leaving the ends to hang down behind. Concealed voices sing some appropriate air, as "Ave Sanctissima."

Next draw away the back curtain again and show more pictures, which the assistant has had time enough to prepare. In the center frame stands a "gleaner." In one small frame, a child with a red cape over her head and a little basket in her hand personates "Red Ridinghood," and in another is "A Marchioness."

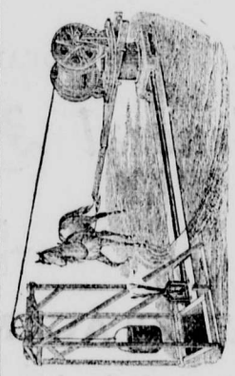
THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind in use adapted to all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the past TWO YEARS and gives RESULTS unapproached by any process, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month each year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth more than its cost in the first month.



BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR

The Man Who Did Housework.

There was once a man, says the Housekeeper, who was cross and peevish, because he thought his wife never did enough in the house.

He came home one evening from the hay field cursing and scolding, till things seemed to fairly glow around him.

"Dear, don't be so angry," said the woman; "in the morning we will change work. I will go out with the hay workers, and mow, while you do the work at home."

Yes, the man thought this a good idea, and was very willing to show her a thing or two.

So early in the morning the woman took the scythe, and went out in the meadow with the rest to mow. The man was there to work in the house. First, he made ready to churn; but after churning awhile, feeling very thirsty, he went down cellar to tap some beer. While doing this he heard the pig in the kitchen. He ran upstairs, leaving the faucet. At the sight of him the pig ran against the churn with disastrous consequences. When the man saw this mischief done, and the pig greedily smacking and sipping of the stream that ran over the floor, he was ready to fly with rage, and completely forgetting the beer-barrel, he punished the pig as best he could. He reached it again in the door, and gave a mighty kick that killed it on the spot.

Now he remembered leaving the faucet open, but on going to the cellar all the beer had run out. He then went to the milk-room, and again found enough cream to fill the churn, for butter he must have for dinner. When he had churned awhile he remembered that the cow was yet in the stable, and had received neither bite nor sup, though it was late in the day. Thinking it would take too long to go to the pasture, he concluded to put her on the sod roof, on which grew short, green grass. As the hut lay by a steep side-hill, he thought by laying a plank from that to the roof, it would be an easy matter to get the cow up. But he dared not leave the churn, for the baby was crawling around on the floor, and might upset it; so he took the churn on his back, thinking he would give the cow some water before putting her on the roof. Leaning down to dip water from the well, down came the contents of the churn, deluging his head and neck, then dripping into the well.

It was now near dinner time, and as there was no butter, he thought of cooking mush, and immediately hung a kettle of water over the fire. But now he bethought himself, that the cow might fall off the roof and break her legs, or neck, so he must go up to tie her. One end of the rope he tied around the cow's neck, and dropping the other through the chimney, he went down and tied it around his leg, for the water was boiling in the kettle, and he must make the mush. While doing this the cow fell off the roof and dragged him up the chimney by the rope. There he hung, a prisoner, while the poor cow dangled between heaven and earth, able neither to go up or down.

The wife had waited seven long and broad hours to be called home to dinner, but no summons came. At last she thought it was too long and finally went home. Upon seeing the cow hanging in such a remarkable manner, she quickly cut the rope with her scythe. At the same moment the man fell down the chimney, and his wife found him standing on his head in the mush kettle.

Thus ended the woeful experiences of a man who found fault with his wife; and as this type of the genus homo is not confined to one nation alone, let every man addicted to a similar practice take a solemn warning.

American Indian Paintings.

The painted rock of Santa Barbara County, Cal., is 150 feet high and upon it are many color paintings in a good state of preservation that are thought to be the work of Indians. There are two caves in this giant rock, one at its base and another some sixty feet up, and in each of these are pictures of animals.

Ho! for the West.

The Western fever is a disease which is very apt to attack the New England farmer who has not been able to get ahead in the world; he seems to think the far West a veritable Eden, whose crops can be grown without labor, and riches obtained for the asking. Many a farmer who has moved onto the new lands of the far West with his family has found, by sad experience, that his dream of bliss was but an illusion—and has returned to his New England home, poorer in pocket but wiser in experience.

Now let any of our Eastern farmers, who own only a small farm and are discontented with their lot—running behind, as the saying is—and who are pining for homes in the new West, get up some morning, and ask themselves: What's the matter? Why don't I get ahead in the world? Why do I want to go West? Then if they study up the matter carefully they will find there is a "screw loose" somewhere, and see that they need not go West in order to get it tightened. If money is the sole object the farmer has in view, it can be made in the East as well as the West; business can be conducted on a smaller capital here than in the West.

But, says one, how did Mr. A. and B., who, a few years since moved West with their families, and purchased Government lands, get their money? In a few years they came back East pretty well to do in the world. Well, we will answer that question by asking another: How do the foreigners who come to this country with hardly a dollar in their pockets, purchase a farm, cover it with a mortgage, and in a few years pay for it, and own it free and clear, and have a snug little bank account besides? In nine cases out of ten, the correct answer would be, By not doing as we do. They come to this country with no other capital than pluck, thrift, and energy; they bring their frugal habits with them; they are determined to succeed, and they do succeed. They have not our expensive ways of living; society ways do not trouble them. They dress cheaply—and pay no money for public enterprises, except what the law exacts. Now, the farmer who moves onto the new lands of the West must work on the same principle if he would save anything ahead. But he can do it in New England as well as in the West, if he has only the independence to carry it out. There are but few, however, that care to live in such a manner.

Most of our farmers believe in a higher manhood than that which would devote itself entirely to the accumulation and hoarding of dollars and cents. The true New England farmer desires to see his children well educated, and there is enough of the Puritan left in him to induce him to work for the best interest of society, and to this end he becomes a public-spirited man. The church and other public institutions receive his hearty support and approval. He likes good society, even if it sometimes costs him something to keep it up—he places the comfort and health of his family first, and leaves the bank account to take care of itself. It is very seldom that such a one becomes discontented with his farm life—but should such a one, or any Eastern farmer, become discontented with his lot, and think of "going West," let him for a moment consider all the blessings and privileges, society and home surroundings, that are his in the East, and then ask himself, "What shall I get in exchange for all these if I go onto the new lands of the West?"—[American Rural Home.

Was Not Entertained.

An old fellow who had served during several weeks on a jury created a sensation in court by arising during a trial and addressing the judge.

"'Squr," said he, "jes listen to me a minit, if you please. I recognize the fact that I have made a big mistake. I come here an' hung round tryin' to get on the jury an' at last I got thar."

"Well, what is the matter with you?" the judge demanded.

"I'm comin' to that. I got thar, as I told you, an' we lit into bus'ness. I thought that I would hear all about how fellers got killed an' how somebody was murdered, an' I thought that we'd say some feller was guilty an' would see him hung, but I was disappointed. Here come a lot o' cases about fellers removin' mortgaged cotton, an' all about Mr. So and So suin' each other but I ain't hearn nothin' 'bout killin' nor nothin' interestin' yit. I am a powerful hand for fun, jedge, an' I never could stand dry details. I wanter hear suthin' that'll make my hair stand up on eend. I thought that a juryman had a fine time. I thought that with him it was a regular show, but as I tole you, I've been deceived. W'y, I mout stay here a month foolin' with sich stuff, an' even then wouldn't have nothin' ter tell the boys when I got home, so jedge, ef yer doan't give me a chance to hang a feller, I'll have to jog 'long towards home."—[Arkansas Traveler.

Logan a Crack Shot.

General Logan is looking better than at any time during the last twelve months. The manuscript of his book is in the hands of his publishers and he is now preparing himself for a long season of rest. The General is building a gymnasium in the rear of his house, where he proposes to spend an hour each day exercising with the clubs and dumbbells. General Logan is very fond of outdoor sports. He is an admirable horseman and swordsman, and knows how to handle a rifle. He is one of the best pistol shots in the country. He has the handsomest dueling pistols in Washington. But he is the last man to brag of his strength or skill. When down at the Hot Springs of Arkansaw a few years ago trying to throw off a peculiarly severe attack of rheumatism, he astonished the pistol experts of that pistoling country.

On one occasion a dozen young men were practicing from the piazza of the General's hotel at a bottle laid on the broad crotch of a distant tree. The bottle was round. Unless it was hit plumply in the middle it spun round and round like a top. The young men were good shots, but now and then they would miss the somewhat difficult mark. Then the invalid senator would chaff them. The young men finally became irritated and asked the general if he could improve their skill. After a little more chaffing the general said:

"I'll tell you fellows what I will do. There are twelve of you, but I'll promise you each a box of cigars every time you hit the bottle if you'll promise me a box every time I hit it."

The boys accepted the proposition instantly.

"I'll shoot first, and, if I hit, I'm to shoot again and again until I miss."

They had no objection, so the general fired twelve consecutive shots, each time breaking a different bottle, while the young men's eyes opened wider and wider.

"Do you want any more!" he asked, after the twelfth shot.

"No," said the young men, hastily, "I guess not."

"You can send those twelve boxes to my room whenever you are ready, gentlemen," said the general, as he lounged away. "Some day when I have more leisure I'll give you an hour's instruction in target shooting."

But the boys never held him to his promise. They paid their bets, however, and after that did their practicing when the general was not around.—[Washington Corr. Chicago News.

Hair Jewelry.

There may still be sometimes seen by the curious in old-fashioned jewelers' shops—those hospitals for buckles, snuff-boxes, quizzing glasses, seals, huge cameo pins and battered silver fruit knives—those flat and lusterless brooches, almost as large as door plates, on which drooping female figures mourn in deep distress under the shadow of a weeping elm, the branches of which are fashioned of a straight-gummed hair that once curled in life, and now falls stiffly over a sarcophagus. Broken pillars lie about among anchors and other symbols of hope and piety; railings and yews and melancholy firs are there in brooding clumps and clusters; and down the sky, wherein the sun is emblematically setting, there not infrequently descends a dove, that either bills another in descending, or settles touchingly on the capitals and cupola of a classic mausoleum. It may be a cemetry where the high-waisted lady grieves, with walks that wind up to temples or down to other groups of mourners. Often the scene of woe lies in a grove, where the faithful Charlotte, in an enormous hat, comes to deposit a wreath on the final resting-place of that restless spirit Werther, over whose sorrows scarcely a tear has been shed for fifty years, and whose power to touch the heart of youth seems to almost have vanished. Wherever it may be, cemetery or grove, on the banks of the river or by the wave of the sea, figures and tombs and landscapes will be all found to be outlined and shaded in hair, with infinite patience, no little skill, in a taste as faded and dead as that of the old samplers that hang in Yorkshire farm-houses under the gun, the brass beer-warmer, and the polished coal-pinchers. In those old days—the days of the flat brooches—sensibility was a fashionable virtue. Every young lady wept with Werther, and sighed with the unfortunate and amiable heroines of the marble-backed little volumes one still finds on book stalls next Shinely on "Revelations" and Whackleton on "Tubercular Meningitis." Every young gentleman claimed to be a man of feeling, and dropped easy tears over a noble sentiment or a distressful tale, where now it is more in vogue for him to laugh and show his teeth.—[Cornhill Magazine.

A Natchez debating society has decided that the abolition of slavery was not a benefit to the South. This is a reminder that there was a better debating society in Natchez before the war.—[New Orleans Picayune.

Arithmetical Item.

Jim Webster was tried last week in Austin for stealing chickens from Col. Yerger. He was convicted and sentenced to a term of imprisonment. After the trial was over, Col. Yerger said to Webster:—

"Now that you have been convicted, just for the fun of it, I'd like to know how many of my chickens you have stolen at one time and another."

"I ain't gwinter tell yer, boss, how many chickens I lifted offen your're hen roost."

"Jim, here is half a dollar, if you will tell me the number you have taken."

"No, sah, I ain't gwinter tell yer for no half dollar how many of dem chickens I tuck. Ise knows the number perzackly, but I ain't gwinter gib hit away for no fifty cents. I ain't no fifty cents on de dollar niggah. Ef you wants de hull troof yer mus pay a hull dollar."

"Well, Jim, here is fifty cents. If you are willing to tell the whole truth for a dollar, of course you will tell half the truth for fifty cents. You can afford to tell me half the number of chickens for fifty cents, can't you?"

"Sartainly. I'se a square niggah. Ef you pays for half the troof, dat's what yer gits."

"Well, give me half the number of roosters you stole."

"Lemme see. Half de number of roosters am five."

"Very well. What's half the number of pullets?"

"Heah, heah! I can't split a pullet in two, kin I? Half de pullets am six and one pullet over."

"How about old hens?"

"Half de hens am six."

"So you stole ten roosters?"

"De law! How de dibbel did you come ter fine dat out?"

"You stole thirteen pullets and twelve old hens."

The astonished darkey started back in dismay, and rolling his eyes at Colonel Yerger, exclaimed:—

"You is a dangerous man. Dar's some hocus pocus about dis heah."

"One question more, Jim. How did you manage to find out half the number of chickens you stole. You don't know anything about arithmetic."

"No, sah, of course I don't know nuffin' 'bout refmetic, but I knows half de number of chickens I got, because de udder niggah what was watchin' outsider de fence he tuck half de chickens and I got de udder half."—[Texas Siftings.

Lincoln at Gettysburg.

Mr. John Russell Young, ex-United States Minister to China, is now on the high road to recovering from his late severe attack of Eastern fever. He has been telling some of his interesting reminiscences, and among others relates the following: "The celebration at Gettysburg was on Cemetery Hill. I was sent to report it for the press. I sat behind Mr. Lincoln. Mr. Everett delivered the oration. I remember the great orator had a way of raising and dropping his handkerchief as he spoke. He spoke for two hours, and was very impressive, with his white hair and venerable figure. He was a great orator, but it was like a bit of Greek sculpture—beautiful, but cold as ice. It was perfect art, but without feeling. The art and beauty of it captured your imagination and judgment. Mr. Everett went over the campaign with resonant, clear, splendid rhetoric. There was not a word, or a sentence, or a thought that could be corrected.

You felt that every gesture had been carefully studied out beforehand. It was like a great actor playing a great part. Mr. Lincoln rose, walked to the edge of the platform, took out his glasses and put them on. He was awkward. He bowed to the assemblage in his homely manner, and took out of his coat pocket a page of foolscap. In front of Mr. Lincoln was a photographer with his camera, endeavoring to take a picture of the scene. We all supposed that Mr. Lincoln would make rather a long speech—a half hour at least. He took the single sheet of foolscap, held it almost to his nose, and, in his high tenor voice, without the least attempt for effect, delivered that most extraordinary address which belongs to the classics of literature. The photographer was bustling about, preparing to take the President's picture while he was speaking, but Mr. Lincoln finished before the photographer was ready. I remember it was a beautiful October day, and there were four or five thousand people present. Very few heard what Mr. Lincoln said, and it is a curious thing that his remarkable words should have made no particular impression at the time. The noticeable thing was the anxiety of all on the platform that the photographer should be able to get his picture. I remember we were all very much disappointed at his failure, and were more interested in his adventure than in the address."

Carlyle as a School-master.

Jonathan Findlay, now a resident of Montreal, Canada, was more than sixty years ago a pupil of Carlyle's, who, Mr. Findlay says, was a cruel tyrant, ruling a class of trembling boys with a rod of iron. He was rough and uncouth in his appearance and no one suspected that within him were the elements of a great and successful writer.

THE Anti-Chinese movement is causing much bitter personal ill feeling in Carson. Two editors, Mr. Harris of the Index and Mr. Parkinson of the Tribune, have been assaulted and beaten by boycotters. Incendiary fires have become so alarmingly frequent that loud calls for a Committee of Safety are made, and some property holders employ armed men as an extra guard about their premises, and the Anti-Chinese League publicly announce that they will also furnish guards if called upon.

ENGLAND is mono-metallic in financial policy; Belgium is bi-metallic. In the ten years from 1874 to 1884 England with a population of thirty-seven millions, coined about seventy-seven millions of dollars worth of gold. During the same period Belgium, with a population of less than six millions, coined seventy millions of dollars. In other words, for every dollar coined in gold in England, in proportion to population, during the time specified, Belgium coined about five and a half dollars. Evidently silver money does not drive gold out of Belgium.

BY the great labor strikes among railroad workers great inconvenience has been inflicted upon the public, and great loss upon the companies and the workmen. The railroad people claim the protection of the law against the violent acts of the strikers in hindering them from a free use of their property. Want of will or power in the executive of any State or Territory to afford such protection would be sure to lead swiftly to anarchy and the life and property, not only of corporations but of individuals, would be at the mercy of the first crowd of thieves who should combine for public robbery. If the richest corporations were not protected in the free use of their property the smaller possessions of individuals only would be safe so long as the owner would be able to guard them against greater force. But while the employer should be fully protected in the free use of his property the workman must not be so ground down that he must live in wretched poverty rather than in decent comfort, as the fruit of his industry. The law that will permit dishonest, selfish men to place fictitious values upon property and reduce workmen and their families to the brink of starvation to pay interest on these fictitious values is unjust and should be amended. Such laws are sure to lead to lawlessness, for men who are free to discuss all matters and who know that honest toil deserves a fair reward will not be held in misery by them always. The system that permits Gould and others like him to go on accumulating millions upon millions while thousands of their unfortunate work people are sinking deeper and deeper into poverty cannot always endure; but while such a system continues there will continue to be a recurrence of the scenes just witnessed in the southwest.

...tell you why I wouldn't ... restaurant and have a ...e with you while we ... for the train. I didn't ... you asked me. Keep ...e the floor. Not half an ...re, you said to Mr. Puffer, ... let's get a cigar," and away ...nt, holding his arm and not ... him a chance to decline. ...en we met John O'Howdy on our ...ay to luncheon you said, "Just in time, John, come take lunch with us." And then to-night, when we found the train nearly an hour late, you looked at your watch, turned to me and said, in a questioning way, "Would you like a cup of coffee?" And I did want it; I was tired and a little hungry, but I would have fainted before I accepted such an invitation. And you went away a little bit vexed with me and had your coffee and bread and butter by yourself, and didn't enjoy it very much. In effect, you said to me: "If you want a cup of coffee, if you really want it, I will buy it for you." You are the best husband in the world, but you do as nearly all the best husbands do. Why do you men seem to dole things out to your wives when you fairly throw them to the men you know? Why don't you invite me heartily, as you invite men? Why didn't you say, "Come, let's get a little coffee and something," and take me right along with you? You wouldn't say to a man, "Would you like me to go and buy you a cigar?" Then why do you always issue your little invitations to treats in that way to me? Indeed, indeed, my dear husband, if men would only act toward their wives as heartily, cordially, frankly as they do toward the men whom they meet, they would find cheerier companions at home than they could at the club.

HER HUSBAND CHATTERS AT THE CLUB.

Sit down, old boy. Touch that beli. Thanks. Now say what it shall be. Yes, wife's quite well. Little tired to-day, she was in town shopping all yesterday. What an enigma a woman is, any how. Now you sit down here, and give your order broad as you please, you know, and let me pay for it as a matter of course. If you should formally and gratefully thank me for the wine and cigars I ordered for you, you'd feel like a fool and I'd feel insulted. You ask a man to have anything with you, from a lunch to a wine supper, and he'll either decline entirely, off hand, or take the very best. But you talk about a woman's extravagance and all that; why, I begin to believe there are no extravagant wives. Girls may be extravagant, but an extravagant wife is a rarity. Tried to buy this trinket and that knick-knack for my wife yesterday. No, sir! Said we didn't really need them! Wanted to buy her a ring, a dainty little conceit that I had Charley Carat get up for me three months ago. She didn't know that, of course, but do you know, she wouldn't have the ring? Said I couldn't afford it. I didn't say anything, I was so vexed. I have to take the ring any how; going to send it to my sister out in Kansas. She walked till she was nearly half dead, though I proposed a hansom half a dozen times; she wouldn't even ride in the street-cars. And at luncheon she selected a modest little bite of cheap things that would make about a thirty-five cent smack. Luckily I met John O'Howdy, and asked him to join us, so I got us something to eat, and she couldn't protest. When I tipped the waiter she caught me at it, and looked so mournful I really thought she was going to ask him to give it back again. Well, you see, it doesn't take more than a whole day of that sort of thing to kind of take the edge off a man's enthusiasm, and I just naturally dropped into the old way of only asking her if she'd like this or if she wanted that. Felt afraid to rush right in and order it, as I would with a man, you know. Best wife in the world, I believe, and saves more money than I make, but, don't you know—and I hardly know how to say it without making it sound mean—when she comes to town I love to go out and sort of make it a lark with her, and it dampens my spirits to be checked up every time I pull out my pocket-book. Fact is I spend lots of money with the boys I'd a thousand times rather spend with my wife if she'd only let me. And yet only last night she give me a sweet little lecture because I didn't treat her in the same free, jolly, good-fellow-sort-of way that I do the boys. Funny isn't it? I tell you, woman is an enigma.

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Scotland, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 100 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it." JOHN R. DODGE, JR., jeweler, Normal, Ill., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. It is the best machine ever invented by man. 2d. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy ours for $100." I will ship a sample to those desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY APRIL 24.....1886.

—If you have a pretty foot show it at the Odd Fellows Ball on Monday evening.

—Ten men are at work in the Keynot mine; they are taking out ore right along.

—Wearing blue overalls is one of the regulations adopted by the students of the Inyo Academy.

—It is reported that Mr. Gus. Thede will be a candidate before the Republican Convention for County Assessor.

—A colt belonging to Mr. Tibbetts took the first prize for two-year-old stallions at the colt show at Bishop last Saturday.

—Considerable repairs are being made on the Blaney House Hotel at Independence. H. P. Cartier is doing the work.

—Butter was recently shipped from San Francisco to Independence. There is not enough produced here to supply the local demand.

—Inyo Lodge, I. O. G. T., will elect officers to-night [Saturday]. A full attendance is desired, as other important business will arise.

—Sacramento county pay one dollar per head of the population for the support of County Officers. Inyo county pays seven dollars per head.

—Potatoes were received at Independence yesterday from Dayton Nev. During the preceding week very few families in town had any potatoes.

—No more doctors or lawyers are needed in Owens Valley, at least not for some time yet. The present inhabitants have enough to do taking care of health and property.

—There is report of a rich strike in the Garfield district, near the Farrington Brothers' mine. Ore from the new find is said to go as high as $1500 a ton. The claim belongs to parties in Dayton.

—Two weeks ago Mr. T. J. Goodale brought a lot of hams of his own curing into Independence and sold them. Parties who have since used them say they are better than any Eastern hams they have ever used.

—During the past two weeks several shipments of potatoes were made from Mason Valley to Bishop Creek. "What is the use of raising anything; we have no market." The man who made this remark never had anything to sell.

—A great deal of improvement has been done in the Odd Fellows cemetery of late, by the members of the lodge. Mr. Robinson has very kindly given a grant of plenty of water for irrigation and trees, plants and flowers are growing rapidly.

—James McNally, of Bishop Creek, will play for the Odd Fellows' ball on Monday eve. Besides being a good violinist Jimmy has a fine reportoire of comic songs and those who attend the ball may depend upon being well entertained.

—Two carloads of ore from the White Hill mine are ready for shipment. The mine is looking about as well as usual. Dan Hock is at work on his mine adjoining the White Hill; he is doing some dead work at present but will begin getting out ore in a few days.

—The cost of mine and mill supplies on the Comstock in the census year amounted to $3,018,859; of this $2,205,832 was for mine use and $813,026 for mill use. The greatest expense was for wood—$1,500,000; timber cost $500,000 and explosives $208,000.

—Everything in the market good to eat has been got for the Odd Fellows' Ball. Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Johnson and a corps of assistants have been at work most of the week cooking for the occasion. The supper will be a stunner; don't wear tight garments.

—Pupils are coming to Mr. Spangler in such numbers that he hardly knows what to do with them. Three came from Big Pine at the beginning of the week. Several pupils from Camp Independence attend the school. Parents are eager to secure good instruction for their children.

—Freight on potatoes shipped from Dayton, Wabuska, or any other point along the C. & C. road to Independence or any other point in Owens Valley has been reduced to a dollar per hundred pounds. When ordered in 1000 pound lots or more they can be got at Dayton for a cent a pound.

—At the last regular meeting of the Masonic Lodge at Independence it was decided to remove J. W. Smith from the State Asylum at Stockton to a private asylum. The fraternity want to secure the best medical aid and the most favorable conditions for Mr. Smith in order to bring about his complete recovery if that be possible.

—On the farm at Alvord lately bought by Mr. Sanger from S. G. Gregg about one hundred acres will be planted with grain this spring. Most of the seed is already sown. A gang of five plows has been at work for some weeks breaking up new ground for alfalfa and grain. The fruit trees planted last year attained a growth of not less than seven feet and some of them bloomed this year. With land located in addition to what he bought Mr. Sanger has about two thousand acres in one body and in three or four years it will make a very fine home. It will be seen that this is one of the finest locations for fruit in the Valley.

THE FUTURE OF INYO COUNTY.

INDEPENDENCE, April 20, 1886.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT:—Sir: Being but a stranger here it may look like presumption in me to head an article with such words as "The future of Inyo County." By reading articles recently published in several newspapers in reference to Owens Valley, and also a pamphlet on the resources of Inyo county, I was induced to come here and see for myself. I had been in the Valley but a day or two when an old settler said to me, "The county has no future," If all people were like this old settler his prophecy would be true. After a stay of a couple of weeks during which time I have traveled around and observed and examined, my opinion is very decided that Inyo county has a future; a bright and prosperous future. Before coming I will admit that I was a little skeptical as to the literal truth of every statement I had read in favor of the country; but now I am fully satisfied that Owens Valley is even better than described in the publications referred to. Being an old resident of California I am familiar enough with most of the State to know that nowhere else within her borders are better opportunities for making homes than here. So well am I convinced of this fact that it is my intention to stay and locate upon a tract of sagebrush land that may be irrigated from the Owens Valley canal. I have already traveled over most of the land from fifteen miles north of Independence south to Owens Lake, and am well satisfied that when the water shall be run out on this thirty-six miles of valley, converting its seeming barrenness into green fields of alfalfa, orchards, vineyards and grain fields, there will be a change of opinion among such as think that "Inyo county has no future." The people who think thus are they who look back with tender regret to the times when the only means of conveying materials was on the backs of mules. But the pack train has been superseded by the railroad train and the march of improvement will make correspondingly better time. In reference to the canal I would say that I have made a pretty thorough examination of a good portion of its course, am quite familiar with many similar works, and say without any hesitation that for making a dam and head-gate, and for the general course of the canal, the conditions here are far more favorable than any others I have seen. At some future time I may make more extended remarks upon Inyo county in general and Owens valley in particular, but for the present will only say that I am now well satisfied the whole conditions of climate, soil and productions, and market—a very important item—are much better than the most favorable descriptions had led me to expect. In order to guard against any misconceptions and consequent disappointments, I will add that in my judgment no intending settler should come here without money to give him a start.

Yours, JASON.

Judges.

There is likely to be four vacancies on the State Supreme Bench to fill this fall. The terms of Judge Myrick and Judge McKee will expire with the year. Judge Ross has announced that he will resign and Judge Morrison is expected to retire on account of ill health. The two first named are expected to seek re-election. Judge Myrick understands and applies the law on irrigation as suited to the conditions of our own State. Judge McKee understands and applies it according to the old English doctrine of riparian rights, and as utterly unsuited to the conditions and needs of California. The voters in all the counties that depend upon irrigation for their fertility should consider their own interests when it comes to an election and they can be depended upon to do so.

SERVICES.—Rev. J. M. Spangler will deliver a lecture this [Saturday] evening at Lone Pine. He will also preach at the same place on Sunday forenoon at 10:30. Services will be held at Independence at 7 p. m.

INCREASE IN VALUE.—The village of Riverside, in Los Angeles county, was located in 1871 and the lands adjoining the village were placed on the market at from $20 to $25 an acre for choicest locations. The Express says some of the same lands, with water and improvements, have recently been sold for $1600 an acre. Village blocks of two and a half acres, which sold in 1871 at from $100 to $200 each are now worth in the business district from $7,000 to to $15,000, according to location. Something of the same kind will take place in Owens Valley by and by.

ROUGH WORK—Last Wednesday John Broder and Tom Webb were on the Island, north of Lone Pine gathering up cattle. Broder got into a pool of water and his horse fell on top of him. Tom dismounted and ran to his assistance to save him from being drowned. When Broder was rescued from his perilous position his horse got up and ran away followed by Webb's horse, which was left standing loose. Both animals made for the river, and as both men were soaked with water from head to foot they could not run fast enough to head them off. The horses plunged into the stream, swam across and started for home. Evening was coming on, there is no habitation on the island, the men were tired, wet and hungry; they plunged into the river and by wading and swimming got across in safety. After a weary walk of about seven miles they found their horses tied up at Hunter's ranch, on Georges Creek, over six miles from home. During their walk the clothing of the men got dried and they were none the worse for the rough exercise.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. George, of Bishop Creek, is on a visit with Mrs. Conklin.

C. I. Mairs was at Bishop Creek in the beginning of the week.

Mrs. Man, of Bishop Station, has been dangerously ill during the past two weeks.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Albers has been dangerously ill during the past week.

Miss Emma McMurry, of Big Pine, is climbing the hill of knowledge under the guidance of Mr. Spangler.

John Anton and Mike Lasky have made a run of ore at the McEvoy Mill. They finished a day or two ago.

Mrs. Geo. Drake, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia for three weeks past, is now convalescent.

Mr. and Mrs. Conklin have returned home after a sojourn of several months at Los Angeles and San Francisco.

John S. Gorman went down to Swansea at the beginning of the week to prepare for another run of the furnace.

Mr. R. L. Peeler and Miss Alice Howell were married at Bishop Creek last week and are living in Independence.

Mrs. Campbell, of Big Pine, was at Independence last Tuesday settling the affairs of her deceased husband, Duncan Campbell.

John Alexander came down from the White Hill last Thursday after a stay of some weeks at the mine. He makes a good report of mining matters up at the Hill.

Senator Reddy has been at Darwin all the week looking after his mine, the Defiance. He is expected to visit Independence before he returns to San Francisco.

HORSE SHOW.—A public parade and display of horses was made at Bishop Creek last Saturday. Many very fine animals were shown. During the past two or three years a great deal of attention hos been given to horse breeding at and around Bishop Creek, with the result that some as fine draft animals can be seen there as in any other part of the State.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for ale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

—A few days ago a setiler was at work putting up a dwelling where he located land a few miles south of Independence. Two men came along carrying blankets on their backs; they sat down to rest and the settler shared his dinner with them. They said they had come from Arizona and were going to Candelaria to look for work. Their trip would be over several hundred miles, much of it through an uninhabited desert. The fair presumption is that in less than ten years from now the settler will have a fine home, all of the comforts and many of the elegancies of life, while the two men will still be wandering over the country with blankets on their backs looking for work.

SATURDAY APRIL 24 .....1886.

AN ARKANSAS WEDDING.

The New Ceremony Just Approved by the Governor.

A very interesting weddi g occurred over at Hock's Springs the other night. Ben Lother and Ida Grimes ran away from the neighborhood where they had been reared, and applied to young Wilkinson, who recently accepted a call to preach. The arrival of the runaway couple soon became known, and quite a number of young people gathered at the school house where the ceremony was to be performed. The preacher, upon arriving, called Bill Fellers to one side, and said:—

"Bill, I couldn't refuse to accommodate that young couple, but to tell the truth I don't know how to perform a marriage ceremony. I was never married and I never saw anybody married, and I don't understand the performance."

"I never saw anybody married, either" Bill replied, "and I don't believe there's anybody here that understands it."

"It won't do to disappoint them, for I understand the girl's father is in pursuit. Let's see, you were commissioned as a justice of the peace the other day weren't you?"

"Yes, but the papers didn't shed any light on marriage ceremonies."

"I don't know what to do about it," the young preacher continued. "They've begun to grow restless, you see."

"Well, parson, I don't understand it any more than you, but I am willing, if you'll help me kill hogs next week, to take the job off your hands."

"All right."

Bill turned to the company, and said:—

"Ladies and gentlemen, we've met here to engage in a very serious business. This young couple" (pointing) "think they ought to be married, and it ain't for me to say they ought not. Young fellow, have you got your license?"

"Yes, sir."

"All right. Hop out here now."

The young couple advanced.

"Join hands," said Bill. "I would like to say that the new ceremony just approved by the Governor has gone into effect. Those who have never seen this ceremony performed will doubtless be amused at its novelty, but I'll say right here that all snickering will be treated as contempt of court. Young man, what is your business?"

"I am a farmer."

"Ah, hah! How many rails can you split in a day?"

"Four hundred in good timber."

"Will you swear to it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Hold up your right hand."

He held up his hand and was sworn. Bill continued: "Are you a good hand to cover corn?"

"Yes, sir."

"Please say, 'Yes, your Honor.'"

"Yes, your Honor."

"That's right. How much can you cover in a day?"

"Three acres, if the land's in condition."

"Will you swear it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Yes, your Honor."

"Excuse me. Yes, your Honor."

"Hold up your right hand."

And he was sworn again.

"What was the weight of the largest bass you ever caught?"

"I don't remember exactly. About five pounds, I reckon."

"Will you swear it?"

"No, your Honor."

"All right. Are you willing to marry this girl?"

"Yes, your Honor. If I wan't I wouldn't have brought her here."

"That's what I thought," Bill meditatively replied. "You love her, I reckon?"

"Yes, your Honor."

"How much?"

"Oh, I don't know. Ever so much."

"What did she say when you asked her?"

"She said, 'Yes.'"

"Glad to hear it."

"Now, young lady, will you please advance and kiss the Judge?"

The girl hesitated a moment, but she stepped up and kissed Bill.

"Do you love this man?"

"Yes, sir."

"Yes, your Honor."

The girl corrected her mistake.

"How much do you love him?"

"Lots."

"Glad to hear it. Please step forward and kiss the Judge." Again she kissed him.

"Remember that you are under oath. Did you ever love any one else?"

"Yes, your Honor."

"Why didn't you marry him?"

"He didn't ask me."

"Please advance and kiss the Judge."

"Look here, 'Squire, said the would-be-bridegroom. "I believe we'd rather be married the old way."

"The old way is repealed. Young lady, how old are you?"

"Look here, Judge," said the now impatient lover, "that's none of your business."

"Yes, it is. Young lady, you will please advance and kiss the Judge."

"No, I'll be blamed if she shall! exclaimed the young man; "an' more than that, this thing has gone far enough. Now, I want to ask you a few questions. Don't move. The young fellow whipped out a pistol, and Bill's knees began to hump each other. "Now, just stand there. Did you ever see a bigger liar than you are?"

"No, sir."

"No, Colonel."

"No, Colonel," Bill repeated.

"Wouldn't you steal if you got a chance?"

"Yes, Colonel."

"That's what I thought. Now, confound you, lead us to a preacher's house pretty devilish quick. Come on, folks: the fun ain't over yet."—

The Rise of Eugene Hale.

In the Maine Legislature of 1862, my seat-mate was a gray-haired, good-looking man, every inch a gentleman—Mr. Grant, of Ellsworth—who treated me cordially from the first, and between us there grew up a lasting friendship. He had been in the House before, and helped me to get the "hang of the school house." After we became acquainted, Mr. Grant inquired about Eugene Hale, who was a young man settled at Ellsworth. I had known Eugene from early boyhood, dividing his time between working on the farm and going to school, and I gave him a good recommendation. How could I do otherwise? for no young man ever stood fairer or better in the community in which he was raised. When I met Eugene I told him what I had said to Mr. Grant. "Now, Eugene, I want you to fill the bill," said I. "I will try," was Eugene's reply. When Eugene got his foot into Congress there was no power to get him out, until the greenback craze knocked his trotters out from under him. Seth Milliken, who represented Eugene's old district, has not forgotten what kicked Eugene, and when a bill was before Congress to make more eighty-five cent dollars, he voted against it.—Lolon Chase, in Augusta Journal.

A Tough Story.

The city of San Francisco is advertised as containing more badness to the square mile than any other given area on the map of the world. It is in view of this astonishing reputation that a satirically inclined individual relates the following story:—

A group of Eastern emigrants were sadly gathered upon the deck of a California bound steamer. The last fond glance to home and friends was given, the last adieux spoken, and, with the forced silence of resignation, the little party turned their faces toward the new land. Suddenly a despairing wail burst from the lips of a pale and religious looking young woman, who rushed to the side of the vessel, and, gazing up to Heaven with pathetic hopelessness, exclaimed —

"Good-by, God! I am going to California."

Toombs and Hale.

While a member of the United States Senate Robert Toombs' style of oratory and argument is represented to have been such that his opponents were wary in attacking him. The late Hon. John P. Hale, of New Hampshire, who is reputed to have possessed the faculty of apt and good-natured repartee, on one occasion entered the lists with the Southern Senator, and certainly was not worsted by the encounter. Soon [after] Hale's admission to the Senate [he] ...ered a speech on the slavery ...nd was answered by Mr. ...g that, "judging ...h of the

THE HUNTER HUNTED.

A Curious Adventure with a Blue Heron in a Swamp.

Of all the native birds in Florida none is more interesting than the heron tribes. The king of all these tribes is the great blue heron. It grows to an extraordinary size. Capt. Dummitt, who planted the most noted orange grove in the State, killed one on a bayou near Mosquito Lagoon fifteen years ago which measured nine feet seven inches from the point of its bill to the tips of its toes. The coastwise bayous and lagoons are usually dotted with small mangrove islands. In south Florida the mangrove grows to a height of sixty or eighty feet, but north of Cape Canaveral it is a gnarled bush ten or fifteen feet high. The bushes cover the little islands as hair covers a man's scalp. The islands are veritable thickets, and woe betide the man who is lost in them, for they are infested with sand flies, red bugs, mosquitoes, and scorpions. Creeks intense in crookedness and of uneven tide wind among these islands like the paths of a labyrinth. These solitary creeks are the favorite fishing grounds of the great blue heron.

Some of the happiest days of my life have been spent in hunting the bird in these haunts. Seated in the bow of a Canadian canoe, with my gun on my knees and a guide in the stern, I was noiselessly poled over the winding creeks beneath the arching mangroves. At sharp turns there was frequently a scream of affright. Huge wings were unfolded. The great bird wafted itself into the air, and was brought to earth by a shot well aimed. It is dangerous sport, however, for a stranger. Even the best guides are sometimes lost in the green labyrinth and suffer untold tortures. Unpracticed hunters are apt to lose their eyes; for the beak of the great blue heron is as sharp as a needle, and his long neck makes immense sweep and great power. The bird strikes with marvelous precision and with the rapidity of lightning. When wounded it is especially dangerous. I was once struck on the cheek within half an inch of the eye. The blow was made by a crippled snowy heron on an island in Lake Worth. It was just after twilight. The darkness saved my eye. I was in a thicket looking for birds that I had shot while on the wing. I saw a snowy spot in the undistinguishable foliage, and took it for a dead bird. As I stooped to pick it up, my cheek was pierced as though receiving a thrust from a stiletto.

In the spring of 1870 I was encamped in the heart of Turnbull Swamp, about eight miles from the head of Indian River. The weather was very dry, and there was much less water in the swamp than usual. I was hunting parroquets, wild turkeys, wood ducks, deer, bears, wildcats, and pumas. The swamp is streaked with savannas a hundred yards wide and miles in extent. Deer becoming scarce in my vicinity, I set a savanna on fire one morning while on a turkey hunt. After the burning of the dead grass the new crop would serve to bait the deer within a fortnight. At sunset I was miles away from camp. At dusk I saw several gobblers fly into a grove of tall cypresses, and marked them with the intention of recruiting in the morning at daylight and shooting them from the trees. The reddened sky gave me bearings on my way back to camp. After wading for ten minutes through mud and water, I [stopped] to the [funeral] music of a [death] owl, I emerged upon the burning savanna. The sky was overcast. It was as dark as Erebus. A brisk south wind was driving the fire northward. The flames were leaping over the tall, dry grass, and singeing the clouds and the tops of the cypresses an orange hue.

Suddenly I saw in the lurid light far above me four great blue herons. They were in line, flapping their wings with precision of machinery. Instinctively I drew my gun to my shoulder. On inspiration I discharged it, for the "sight" was invisible. The second barrel did good work. The third heron in the line stopped, left one leg, and came [tumbling] toward the ground in great [circles]. I saw that the bird would [not] escape, and fell [to] the spot. But the [bird] ...ite the ...

using the gun as a club, for it was so dark that I could not gauge the bird's distance. Besides, the bird would be facing the light, and I would be facing the darkness. I continued my retreat; I ran as though the devil was after me. In my flight I threw open the barrels of my gun, and drew out the empty shells. In mad haste I reloaded and relocked the barrels, still running at the top of my speed. Then I stopped, wheeled about, and banged away with both barrels. The bird shrieked worse than ever, and was untouched.

Again I sped toward the burning grass. I had regained my composure, however. Fear gave way to mirth. I laughed outright at the absurdity of the situation, blessing my stars that no friends were near to chaff me. Again I reloaded the gun, turned and fired. I was on the verge of the blazing canes, and had a fair view of my pursuer. At the second shot the heron fell, and the impetus from its speed was so great that it came against me, legs, wings, neck, and beak, in a limp lump. I had shot it through the neck. Its head was attached by the skin of the neck alone.

I carried the prize to camp. Its plumage was the perfection of feathery beauty. Old Conner, my guide, was awaiting my return with a supper of roasted venison and yams. The bird was so tall that Conner fastened its beak to the back of my coat collar, drew the neck over my head, and the feet touched the ground. He afterward severed the head from the neck, and hurled it across the fire at the trunk of a palmetto—I have seen performers at a circus handle a knife in a similar way—the sharp beak entered the tree, and stood quivering there like a heavy-handled bodkin; and for all that I know it remains there to this day.—The Cook.

What a Gentleman Knows about The Price of a Coon.

A gentleman well known in this community was presented the other day with a pet coon by a countryman who thought he could not show his appreciation of his city friend in a better way; the gentleman (the coon was taken, and at once endowed with all the franchise that an American citizen can possess in a city home. He made himself at once perfectly at home, and the first thing he did was to crawl up on the satin-covered sofa and proceed to take a nap. The mistress of the house seeing this remonstrated by taking the young friend by the chain that hung from his neck and lifting him off the sofa, the coon in the meantime turning around like he had jumped from a fly wheel, and catching at everything in his reach with all four feet at the same time. In his exit he got his hind leg around the support of an ornamental stand, and the irate lady, thinking that he had hold of the sofa, gave him a yank that almost pulled his head off, and brought down the table with a $30 vase on it. The coon seemed to take in the situation with perfect coolness, and while the lady was picking up the pieces he walked leisurely out into the hall and disappeared in the cellar. About an hour afterward the gentleman of the house came home, and, after listening to the threats of hot water, tea-kettles, etc., from [the] ——, he concluded to hunt up the coon, and started on the search—but the coon was nowhere to be found. Finally, on passing by the pantry door, which had been left open, and where a tub of water stood that had been used in washing out the pantry, he espied the coon, but the coon had turned white; this perplexed him. He called his wife, who came at once, and the cause of the whiteness was soon explained; the coon had found the water, and near by was an open flour barrel. He had bathed in the tub and had crawled into the barrel, and had evidently been continuing this amusing process for some time, for he had worked up a lump of dough twice his own size, and was sitting in the water, rolling the pieces in his paws. He was hauled out, washed and sent back with "many thanks" to the countryman, with the information that a wild-cat, young bear, ground-hog or anything else would be preferable. The gentleman says that anybody who wants a coon is richer than he is.—[Knoxville (Tenn.) Chronicle.

THE BOMBARDMENT.

Inside Experience of a Baltimore Brick-layer.

Mr A. Parlett Lloyd sends the Baltimore Sun the following interesting reminiscence:—

The bombardment of Fort Sumter is a favorite theme with writers on the late war, because it was indisputably the opening of hostilities. Yet not one of them has stopped to record the gallant conduct and heroic bravery of the Baltimore brick layer, John Swearer, who has the distinction of being the first man wounded in the civil war. I became acquainted with that unpretending individual several years ago, and was partly instrumental in having his name placed upon the pension rolls of the United States; for, be it remembered, our generous Government, in recognition of his meritorious service, has bestowed upon him the monthly pay of $4, commencing from the passage of the special act of 1884.

Mr. Swearer resides at No. 202 North Bond Street, Baltimore, and though greatly incapacitated on account of his wounds, still works at his trade. He tells the story of the opening chapter of the bloody epoch in terse language. "By the 11th of April," says he, "things were getting pretty warm. For some time the Confederates had been gathering by thousands We watched them from Sumter taking possession of forts Moultrie and Pickney, yet were powerless to interfere. Our supplies were getting low, and Major Anderson had asked for relief, but we knew that as soon as a Government fleet appeared we would commence to feel the hot shell pour into us. There was in the fort at the time about seventy soldiers and thirty-five or forty workmen like myself, who had been sent there to make repairs. And, let me tell you, it wasn't all of them who crouched behind the walls of Fort Sumter who loved the flag that waved over us, or who would have raised a hand in its defense. The Star of the West was expected to arrive shortly, and we were on the lookout for fireworks. About 4:15 o'clock on the morning of the 12th of April, 1861 (oh, I never shall forget it). I was standing with Lieut. Jeff. C. Davison the ramparts, making ready for an attack, when boom, a shell came whizzing between us from the enemy's stronghold. It was the first gun fired—the index of the fearful crisis to follow. For the moment we were stunned. Then Lieut. Davis sprang behind a cannon for safety, and I—well, I—I know not what I did, but you can calculate I got out of the way mighty quickly. A few minutes afterward Gen. J. D. Foster ordered me to go out among my fellow workmen and ask for volunteers—he knew very well that I was ready to battle for Uncle Sam. I obeyed, and succeeded only in getting thirteen men out of the whole gang! Oh, sir, if I'd had my way I'd have shot all the rest!

"Then came the terrible cannonading; shell after shell burst upon our ramparts, and we returned fire as best we could. It was an unequal battle, and we foresaw that unless assistance came surrender was inevitable. Nevertheless, not one of those who fought thought of giving up while life lasted or there remained a remnant of the old fort. Major Doubleday commanded Company E, and I tell you he made us work like demons. All that day and part of the next I managed one of the guns, though each shell that struck against the side of the buttress threatened to knock a fellow into Judgment day. During the fight, on the 13th of April, a shell exploded just above me, and at the moment I was taking the enemy's measure, and it settled me, sir; it settled me for that fight. I knew no more till a long time, and then the battle was over and Fort Sumter was demolished. If my memory should ever fail me I have only to look at my limb or to over-exert myself in the slightest, and my wound will remind me."

The facts narrated above are corroborated by the following letter, dated Mendham, N. J., December 21, 1885, from Major Gen. Doubleday:—

"In the first opening of the enemy's batteries against Fort Sumter (April 12, 1861), the fort was garrisoned by only two companies of United States artillery, under the command of Major Robert Anderson. I commanded one of these companies. Our sixty men were in[vested] by several thousand. The [guns] revolved upon the regu[lars] immense in their [fire] in a proper

SATURDAY, MAY 1 1886

THE great reduction in railroad fares caused a vast influx of visitors to the State. It has been estimated by good authority that the amount of wealth brought into the State by these visitors up to the end of the third week in April was at least seven millions of dollars.

THE business men and working people, the bone and sinew of England, appear to be giving heurty support to Mr. Gladstone's measure for giving home rule to Ireland. It is only the aristocrats, the great land holders, who have anything to fear from this measure.

THE President has sent a message to Congress in which he recommends the creation of a Board of Arbitration for the settlement of disputes between laborers and their employers. It would not be possible to find men to compose such a tribunal who would be able to give satisfaction to employers and employed, and as no law could be formed that would compel obedience to the arbitrators, the Board would be powerless and useless. The disputants will prefer to name their own arbitrators, if arbitration be possible.

IN New South Wales, coal miners obtain 10s. a day; pit laborers, etc., from 6s. to 6s. 8d. a day; carpenters and blacksmiths, from 9s. to 11s. a day of 8½ hours work. After next June, the number of hours constituting a day's work in connection with the working of New South Wales collieries will be reduced to eight. Tin, copper, gold, silver, and some other classes of miners receive average daily wages of 8s. 4d. for shifts of eight hours. In cases that demand travel to remote and far distant mines, the wages are proportionately increased. Blacksmiths obtain from 10s. to 12s.; blacksmith's strikers, 8s. 4d.; ordinary laborers 8s. engine-drivers from 10s. to 11s.; firemen, from 8s. 4d. to 6s. 2d.; smelters, from 10s, to 10s. 6d.

Two or three weeks ago an East Indian was murdered in Virginia City by an Italian. The stream of immigration now flowing into the United States includes much that is objectionable. During the past year we received; "True Believers and Giaours, Christian and Deist, Idolater and Heathen, Buddhist and Brahmin, Polygamist and Monogamist, Slave-holder and Slave, white and black, yellow and mixed. Once the United States was attracting to its borders the finest specimens of the Aryan race. Now the scum and off-scourings of the world, barbarian and semi-barbarian, are beginning to pour in. We can stand most of Europe perhaps, but the line must be drawn in time somewhere, and it is now high time to begin drawing it.

Percentage.

The reckoning of percentages, like the minus sign in algebra, is a constant stumbling-block to the novice. Even experienced newspaper writers often become muddled when they attempt to speak of it. The ascending scale is easy enough. Five added to 20 is a gain of 25 per cent; given any sum of figures, the doubling of it is an addition of 100 per cent. But the moment the change is in a decreasing calculation, the inexperienced mathematician betrays himself, and even the expert is apt to stumble or go astray. An advance from 20 to 25 is an increase of 25 per cent; but the reverse of this, that is, a decline from 25 to 20, is a decrease of only 20 per cent.

There are many persons, otherwise intelligent, who cannot see why the reduction of 100 to 50 is not a decrease of 100 per cent, if an advance of 50 to 100 is an increase of 100 per cent. The other day an article of merchandise which had been purchased at 10 cents a pound was resold at 30 cents a pound, a profit of 200 per cent; whereupon a writer, in chronicling the sale, said that, at the beginning of the recent depression, several invoices of the same class of goods which had cost over 30 cents per pound had been finally sold at 10 cents per pound, a loss of over 200 per cent. Of course, there cannot be a decrease or loss of more than 100 per cent, because this wipes out the whole of the investment. An advance of from 10 to 30 is a gain of 200 per cent; a decline from 30 to 10 is a loss of only 66⅔ per cent.

Calling for Extension.

Recently the Board of Trade of Los Angeles urged the Managers of the Carson and Colorado railroad to extend the line southward, so as to make a connection with lines to that City. A late issue of the Los Angeles Express contained the following on the same subject.

"The resolutions passed by the Board of Trade of this city in relation to the Carson and Colorado Railroad embody suggestions which it would be well for the owners of that road to consider. The Carson and Colorado is a narrow guage road, three hundred miles in length, extending south along the eastern base of the Sierra Nevadas from Mound House, a point near Virginia City, Nevada, on the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, which in turn connects with the Central Pacific at Reno. Mound House is forty miles from Reno. The present terminus of the Carson and Colorado is Keeler, on Owens Lake, about two hundred miles north of this city. The road is owned by the same gentlemen who own the Virginia and Truckee, D. O. Mills, of New York, being the largest stockholder, and H. M. Yerington, of Carson City, general manager of both roads. It was built about five years ago with a view to supply the numerous rich mining camps along the eastern base of the Sierras, and the rich agricultural regions of Mason and Owens valleys. Among the best known of the mining camps may be mentioned Bodie, Aurora, Hawthorne, Garfield, Columbus, Belleville, Benton, Bishop Creek, Independence, Darwin, Panamint and Cerro Gordo. All these districts have been large producers of gold and silver bullion, and although they are not so productive as formerly, they still send out considerable quantities of the precious metals, and in proportion to the number of their inhabitants are very large purchasers of products of all kinds. Owens River valley contains a large quantity of agricultural land susceptible of cultivation, and with a railroad connected with Los Angeles, which is now unquestionably the center of immigration in the State, it would fill up rapidly. The owners of the Carson and Colorado have had the subject under contemplation for some time of extending their line either to Mojave or to Barstow, where they would connect with the Atlantic and Pacific and California Southern. There are some reasons why the latter connection would be desirable to them, one of these being that in taking in the Calico mines near Barstow they would have the complete chain of mining camps for four hundred miles. Familiar as we are with this great mining section, we may say that we do not believe there is any portion of the world richer in precious metals than the section of four hundred miles in length through which the road thus extended would pass, and for a distance of fifty or a hundred miles on either side of it. Whether the Carson and Colorado should be extended to Barstow or Mojave, it would be equally advantageous to Los Angeles, as it would open up to our merchants a large extent of country at present untouched by them. The trade of Inyo county formerly came to Los Angeles, but since the completion of the railroad it has gone north by way of Reno and Sacramento to San Francisco.

A railroad is being built north from Reno through a naturally rich agricultural and stock country toward Oregon. In all likelihood within two or three years there will be a through north and south line of railroad along the eastern base of the Sierra Nevada range from Los Angeles to some point in Oregon, connecting the various transcontinental lines of railway. It is to be hoped that Messrs. Mills and Yerington may deem it to their best interest to build their line another hundred miles south, and connect with that portion of the State which is growing most rapidly, and which will overflow into the territory which is already tributary to their road."

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY MAY 1 .....1886.

—The Supervisors will meet on Monday.

—A shipment of tin ware, including a great variety of articles, has just been unpacked by Eibeshutz.

—J. B. Hiskey, Treasurer of Esmeralda county, Nevada, dropped dead on the street at Hawthorne on Friday of last week.

—Mr. A. W. Eibeshutz will be appointed guardian for W. A. Bolinger, now in the asylum for the insane at Stockton.

—Mrs. Hardy, wife of the county Treasurer, has been ailing for some weeks past; she is confined to her bed and in a very weak condition.

—At the Headquarters Saloon the billiard room has been very much improved by new wainscoting all around, and a new floor, The whole is painted pure white and is now a very pleasant room.

—Rev. J. M. Spangler lectured at Lone Pine last Sunday. Several citizens who were at Independence during the week praised the address highly. Mr. Spangler will be warmly welcomed at Lone Pine in future.

—The Alpine Argus tells that a large pine tree was recently felled by wood-choppers, a large portion of the trunk was hollow, and the space was filled with water and trout. Doubtless each trout was just like the story, a whopper.

—The furnace at Lookout was started up for a run on Tuesday of last week. During the past two months or more Mr. Fitzgerald has been getting out plenty of good ore and the present run is liable to be the best ever made at the furnace.

—For some time past the farmers at Camp Independence complain that parties have been unlawfully taking water from Oak Creek. A meeting will be held at the school house at the Camp on Wednesday evening, to take measures for the prevention of such unlawful acts. See the notice on another column.

—Mr. James has been making some much needed improvements on the road at and around Camp Independence. He has ditched and graded the lane so that all the water will run off and not form miniature lakes as formerly. The willows along the road are being removed, thus making a wider roadway. Cap. Wat. has made a good Road-master and is deserving of much commendation for the excellent service he has rendered.

SPECIAL MEETING.—A special meeting will be held at the school house at Fort Independence on Wednesday next, May 5, at 7:30 p. m., to take measures for the protection of the rights of shareholders in the waters of Oak Creek and all its branches. All interested parties will please take notice. BY ORDER.

CHRYSOPOLIS.—Work will be resumed at the Chrysopolis mines immediately. Mr. Chambers, brother-in-law of Mr. Bolinger, has authorized Mr. Eibeshutz to go ahead with the work and do all that in his judgment may be necessary for working the mines. Mr. Chambers himself will come here as soon as he can get matters arranged that now detain him at the Ontario mine, Park City, Utah.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for sale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

MINER KILLED.—A miner named C. C. O'Connell was killed in the Holmes mine, at Candelaria, on Thursday of last week. He, with three partners, had put in three blasts in a winze on the first level and went to the level to await their firing. One went off, and O'Connell, in opposition to the advice of his partners, went down to see why the others had not gone off. When he reached them the blast went off, crushing his head terribly. He was a native of Cerro Gordo, aged 61.

Bishop Creek Notes.

Mrs. Yandell left on last Saturday to make a three months visit with friends and relatives in Tennessee.

Mrs. Niebecker has been here for the past week visiting friends and ralatives. She returned to her home at Belleville last Saturday.

Mrs. Belle Dormer and family, of Carson, is here on a visit. Her oldest son is attending the Inyo Academy.

Mrs. George Drake has been a sufferer during the past two weeks from a severe attack of pneumonia. At last report she was improving.

Miss Minnie Smith is on the sick list, and has not been able to attend the Academy, of which she is a student, for three weeks.

Mr. J. R. Eldred is suffering considerably from a felon on his left hand, and has not been able to handle the blacksmith tools for a week past. He is reported to have said that he would rather walk the floor all night with a squalling baby than nurse that felon for half of that time. He speaks from experience.

Notwithstanding these reports of maladies and ailments, Bishop Creek is a healthy place; with the few exceptions noted, and some cases of heart troubles among the male students of the Academy, the general health is all that could be wished. The female students of that institution appear to be impervious to the darts that wounds the others, and each passes on

"In maiden meditation, fancy free."

On Easter Sunday Rev. Logan preached an excellent sermon, suitable to the occasion. The M. E. Church was filled to overflowinn, and all present appeared to take deep interest in the discourse. Mrs. Sneden presented to the church a variety of flowers for the occasion, and two handsome flower vases. Mr. Bourland also gave a great many flowers, and so did several others. The church presented a very pleasing appearance. A number of beautiful anthems were sung by the choir, to the great delight of the congregation. I think the time is not far off when Bishop Creek will have a number of singers who will be hard to beat. Though no singer myself yet I know when correct time is kept, and whether the music sounds well or ill. Rev. Logan announced last Sunday that Rev. J. D. Hammond, of Carson, expected to be here this coming Sunday, and will hold services on that evening. Presiding Elder De La Matyr is also expected at the same time.

On Monday evening a meeting will be held in the interest of education and the public are invited to attend.

Under the direction of Mr. Logan, the students of the Academy have organized a Literary Society. It has been named the "Fowler Literary Society," and it is to be hoped it may be of great benefit to the members, by cultivating a taste for the best literature.

During the past week the weather has been lovely, so warm and sunny that everything has started to grow that could grow at all.

Even new spring bonnets are growing in a profuse manner on the heads of ladies and children. Last Sunday I noticed about eighty different varieties of these exotics, every style appeared to be represented. The ladies may think we old bachlors don't notice such things but we do all the same.

A ball was given on Friday evening of this week; the Summers Brothers furnished the music. A supper was given by the Hartshorne Brothers, and every body knows what good suppers they can get up.

The Good Templars are having their hall lengtened twelve feet, and renovated generally. It is surprising how the Lodge is growing. A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump, and this Lodge is a spring of improvement to the town and neighborhood, and will continue to be such. ADIEU.

Surpassed Expectation.

It was expected that the Odd Fellows Ball last Monday evening would be a success, but the most sanguine of the brethren had no idea that the affair would prove such a grand success as it did. For numbers in attendance, for hearty enjoyment and entire satisfaction to the company no more successful party was ever held in the county. The members of the Lodge were proud of their party and very grateful to their many for the generous support A handsome sum was left for fit of the cemetery after all expaid. This will permit of improvements on a place y becoming a credit to the o the whole valley also. clebration of the order ch a delightful remembered

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Enloe, of Bishop Creek, passed through Independence this week on her way to Los Angeles to visit relatives.

D. A. Bender, of Carson, and F. Sharon of Virginia City, were at Independence last Tuesday. Mr. Sharon is Superintendent of a big mine on the Comstock.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Albers died last Monday. The child was about eight months old and had been delicate from the time of her birth.

Herb. Hartshorn, of Bishop Creek, has gone on a trip to Boston. He took the Southern route and stayed in Independence long enough to take in the ball on Monday night.

A Warning to Parents.

It is well known that children are extremely susceptible to the influence of opium in any form—in fact, so dangerous is it, that it never should be given except under medical guidance. And yet how often do we find nurses and even parents administering cough mixtures and syrups, the chief ingredient in which is either morphia or opium. Both physical and mental development are thus arrested, the nervous system weakened, and a whole train of evils follows. It is a pity that the law as to the sale of poisons in any form is not more stringent, especially when it is known that in Philadelphia alone several hundred children died last year from the use of those very cough mixtures, which, while seemingly beneficial often do serious, if not fatal, injury. A strong point in favor of Red Star Cough Cure is that while it is thoroughly efficacious it contains no opiates.

Celebration.

Last year a considerable sum of money remained after paying all expenses connected with the celebration of the Fourth of July at Independence. It was resolved at that time to let this money remain with the committee of arrangements, for use at a celebration to be held this year. Already discussion and preparation begin to be heard on the subject of our coming celebration, and beyond doubt such steps will be taken as will make the celebration this year quite as successful as could be wished. When the proper time comes an invitation will be extended and a welcome given to all who may feel disposed to spend the Fourth at Independence.

Misconduct.

On the night of the Odd Fellows' Ball two young men from Big Pine occupied a room in the Blaney House. Next morning after the company had gone away I discovered that the furniture in the room had been broken and otherwise injured in a wanton and malicious manner. The parties are well known, but through regard for relatives I refrain from publishing their names; neither will I make any further comment on their conduct, but will leave it with all judicious people to decide if such acts do any credit to the perpetrators. H. LEVY, Prop'r. Blaney House, Independence.

THANKS.—The hearty thanks of the brethren of Inyo Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., is hereby tendered to the friends who attended the anniversary party on last Monday evening. Many of these friends came long distances from Bishop Creek, Big Pine, Lone Pine and elsewhere, and to these in particular the members of the lodge are very grateful. The effects of this liberal patronage will soon be seen in the additional improvements it will permit of being done on the Cemetery. BY ORDER.

How the Darkey Made Love.

Years ago a planter was courting a certain young lady in the sunny South.

[redacted] day he ordered his negro [redacted]n to drive to the residence [redacted] served pro- [redacted]mer [redacted]d over- [redacted] retreat [redacted]

Be it known that Cuffee, on his arrival, had fallen desperately in love with the ebony cook in the kitchen, but he was dumbfounded in the presence of this sable woman, the art of love-making being to him an almost unfathomable mystery. Cuffee, however, was bound to learn, and he silently followed the pair to the shady bower.

Parting the vines with his hands, he very cautiously peered within. There on a bench sat the young lady, and kneeling on the ground was his master, who was holding her hand in his. Cuffee heard these words:—

"O, your eyes are like dove's eyes! Your alabaster neck sets me on fire. O, Cupid!"

As quick as possible Cuffee disappeared from the scene. He returned to the kitchen, turned a kettle bottom side up, seized the bewildered Dinah and seated her on the kettle. Then, getting down on his knees, he took both her hands in his, and with uplifted eyes, exclaimed:—

"O, your eyes are like dog's eyes! [redacted] neck sets me on [redacted]

[redacted]rtunate [redacted]m the [redacted] come, [redacted] sundry [redacted]e sticks pro[redacted]e irate [redacted] very indignan[redacted]nah.

He Didn't Expect to.

Last Sunday, after leaving church, a local divine noticed a small boy, the son of a deceased parishioner, skating on a stretch of ice in the gutter. Never losing an opportunity to save a soul from the Stygian darkness which awaits the erring, he stopped the lad and inquired:—

"My boy, do you not know that skating on Sunday is wicked?"

"Isit?" asked the urchin, executing a figure eight as he put the question.

"Yes, it is, and if you persist you will never go to Heaven."

"I don't care," replied the boy, "there is no skating in Heaven."

"But, think for a moment, my boy, if you don't go to Heaven you'll be separated from all those who loved you on earth. You'll never see your father there, either—"

"I don't expecter see him there," interrupted the bad boy.

"And why, my lad?"

"Because he was a Mugwump."—[Indianapolis Scissors.

A Soft Thing.

Two old friends met on the train between Dallas and Fort Worth. After the usual greeting, one of them asked:—

"Isn't Sam Sweedlepipes living in Dallas?"

"Is he a glazier?"

"Yes; he is a painter and glazier."

"He is getting rich fast."

"Getting rich fast, is he? Running a monte bank, I suppose."

"No; he has got a better thing than that."

"City official?"

"No, he belongs to a fire company, and when a fire breaks out he runs along and wakes up the people with a stick."

"I don't see how there is any money to be made in that."

"He wakes people up by tapping on their windows with a stick, and he manages to break all the panes of glass within half a mile of the fire, and next day he is called on to put them in again at fifty cents apiece. He has got a soft thing of it. He hasn't got the social status, but he is making more money than if he was an alderman.—[Texas Siftings.

The young man who walked eight squares through the rain without an umbrella was not admitted by the young lady on the ground that she did not want any damp fool about her.—[Kentucky State Journal.

WATCHING CLERKS.

Protection Against Fast-Living Employes.

"The time has gone by," said a Chicago merchant, "when business men could employ help indiscriminately, or even keep men whom they have had in positions of trust for years without knowing more of them than acquaintance in the store or office can give. Our confidence is so much abused, and our pockets are so frequently rifled that we have come to feel that protection is absolutely necessary. About the only thing we receive which gives us a favorable opinion of a man who applies for work is an introduction from a mutual friend or a letter of recommendation; but the friend or the writer of the letter rarely knows more of the man's real character than we do, and the recommendations in reality testify only to his ability to do work. They tell us nothing of the man's life after business hours—whether he passes it in a respectable and honorable way or devotes it to drinking and gambling. An association is to be formed for the purpose of probing into this thing.

"We think of organizing a detective system for the purpose of exercising surveillance over our employes. The number of disreputable places in Chicago is not so large but that we can secure a pretty correct idea of a man's habits without going to any very heavy expense. I was a member of such a society in New York, and it was of incalculable benefit to me. As an example of its workings let me show you this brief report," said the gentleman, displaying a ruled, partially printed blank. It read as follows:—

"To subscriber 297: The person of whom you inquire is about 26 years old, unmarried. Has been in New York three years, and bears a good character. Often visits gambling houses. Drinks, but not to excess. Lives expensively.

"This young man," continued the merchant, "came to me with the very highest recommendations. I wanted a cashier, and should have employed him had it not been for the report from the protective society. You can very readily understand why I did not wish a man who frequented gambling houses, even though so quietly that his friends knew nothing of it, to handle my money. Neither would I knowingly employ a man who drank, even if he never did get drunk. This young fellow could not understand why I refused his application. Many a trusted employe in New York at that time wondered why his resignation was asked for or how his employer learned that he occasionally played faro or went out with a convivial party."

"But if a man is honest and faithful, and attends strictly to his business, do you store it up against him that after business hours he gambles or drinks a little?"

"We most assuredly do. Among business people the sentiment against dissipation in employes is growing stronger and stronger. The first thing we ask now about a new man is: Does he drink or gamble? and we purpose answering these questions through the new society. Experience has taught us that the reliable men—those most to be trusted—are those who abstain from whisky and cards, and I venture the assertion that ten years from now the drinking man will find difficulty in securing any employment—much less a position of responsibility. A young man may drink and gamble in moderation for years and still attend to his work, but he is sure to come to grief, and his employers must suffer. We do not say that every drinking man and every gambler shall be discharged, but we are going to find out who of our employes have bad habits, and you may be sure they will be given no position of trust or profit.

"I do not care to give you the names of any of the members of the new association. Suffice to say that there will be over 200, that they include many of our principal business men, and that enough operatives will be employed to keep us posted on what we wish to know."—[Chicago News.

Mr. Hendricks' Humor.

During Mr. Hendricks' serious illness a couple of years ago I went in his room one morning and found him looking at the afflicted foot with an amused smile on his face and the familiar sparkle in his eye. "What do you find so interesting in that contemplation, Governor?" I asked as I took the hand stretched out to me. He pointed to the foot wrapped up in numberless bandages and elevated on the footboard of the bed at what seemed, as Mr. Hendricks was a tall man, a good distance from the head. "Doesn't it look like a rabbit sitting on a log?" he said, and with two ends of the bandages accidently exposed on either side like ears, it certainly did. "Well," he continued, "I've been thinking, though I haven't shot for a long time, that with a good gun I could hit it, and if I succeeded, it would at least have the effect of changing Thompson's everlasting question of 'How is the foot doing,' to 'Where in thunder has the foot gone.'" Thompson was the family physician, to whom he was much attached.—[St. Louis Republican.

A United States half-dime of 1802 is worth $3. That is about what it was worth to the men of those days.

Paid for the Chronometer.

Here is a story about old Jacob Astor that shows how wretched parsimony and detestable meanness are sometimes rewarded: "One of Astor's best captains had made six voyages to China without a chronometer, but just before sailing on his seventh voyage he suggested to Mr. Astor that it would be safer to have one. 'Get one,' said the millionaire. The captain did so, and entered its cost on the account current. When Astor's eye fell upon the item, he drew his pen through it. The captain expostulated. 'Damn it, man,' said Astor, 'I told you to get one, but I did not say I would pay for it.' The old seaman left Mr. Astor's employment at once and went down town, and before night was in command of as fine a ship as ever floated. In three days he set sail. At the same time Astor's ship, under a new commander, also set sail. The voyage to Hong Kong was very close, but the Captain, who, as he used to say, had 'discharged John Jacob Astor,' by keeping his men at the braces, took advantage of every breath of wind and won by three days. The ship was loaded in the shortest possible time, and before Astor's vessel, which had arrived in the meantime, was half loaded, our captain weighed anchor, and with a full cargo of tea sailed for New York. He arrived in good time and hoisted out the cargo, which was sold at auction on the spot. The market was thereby overstocked, and when Astor's ship arrived, the price had fallen. Some time afterward, as the Captain was walking down Broadway, he met Mr. Astor. 'How much did that chronometer cost you?' the latter asked. 'Six hundred dollars.' 'Well,' said Astor, 'that was cheap, it cost me $60,000.'"

The Olives Tasted Good.

On the 9th of last month Dr. E. E. Beeman, of Cleveland, O., heard a friend say that it was impossible for a man to eat thirty quails in thirty consecutive days. The doctor said it is a popular error, and that there is no reason why a man may not eat quail every day as well as beef. He said he could eat two quails a day for thirty days. The end of this friendly dispute was a small wager, and Dr. Beeman began the task of eating sixty quails in thirty days, a pair a day, one for dinner, one for supper.

Last evening the thirty days ended. A reporter found Dr. Beeman in McKean & Buckley's restaurant making preparations to eat the last quail. The doctor said:—

"I have eaten fifty-nine quails and I feel good. People have said that it could not be done. I merely wish to prove the fallacy of this statement and I think I have done so. I like quail now just as well as I did a month ago when I began to eat them. I could eat forty more in twenty days, and I'll bet $500 on it."

The waiter announced that the last quail was ready and the doctor entered the dining-room and sat down at a small table. On a plate, resting on two pieces of toast, was a broiled quail. On the table was a dish of olives, a dish of pickles and some crackers. The doctor did not begin to eat immediately. He took the bird in his fingers and broke off a leg, but laid it on the plate. He ate a large olive and then swallowed a mouthful of quail.

"I relish that," said he, and hurriedly ate two more olives.

He finally finished the quail, and the referee declared him the winner.

The stakes were trifling and were presented by Dr. Beeman to the cook who served the quail.

The meat on sixty quails weighs about five and a half pounds.—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Here is an excellent recipe for chicken croquettes, which are so popular now and so frequently served with salads at evening parties: Boil two medium-sized chickens until they are very tender, chop them fine, add one pint of cream, almost half a pound of butter, with a liberal allowance of salt and pepper. The easiest way to shape these is to press some of the mixture firmly into small moulds, or shallow cups will do; fry them in hot lard until they are brown; some cooks prefer salad oil to butter, but clarified butter gives a much more agreeable flavor and a better color.

BROKEN ENGAGEMENT.

The Trouble a Man Had with His Watch.

"Ever see anything funny in the course of my business? Certainly I do," said a jeweler. "See lots of fun sometimes, and, by the way, your question reminds me of the fellow who was in here half an hour ago. He has a watch—there it hangs now—that is more trouble to him than all his brains, though I don't mean to say that he is a fool. The most foolish thing that I know of him is, that he will persist in carrying that watch. Well, as I was about to say, that self-same ticker of his comes to me not less than once a month regularly. I remember very well the first time he brought it. It was on Tuesday morning, and, as he had known me for some time before that, he stopped to tell of his troubles. The watch, he said, hung on a nail in his room Sunday evening, ticking away for dear life. He was very much interested in a book which he was reading, so much absorbed, in fact, that, though he looked at the watch every two minutes to see if it was time to go to see his best girl, he did not notice that the hands had stopped moving. At last he heard the clock striking, and, mechanically counting the strokes, found that it was 9 o'clock. The watch only said half-past 7, and, as it was a case of 8 o'clock or not at all, he tried hard to devote the remainder of the evening to his book, which had suddenly grown uninteresting.

"The next day he shook the timepiece up, got it to going in fine style, called on his lady love in the morning, explained the cause of his failure to keep his appointment, and soothed her sensibilities by arranging to take her to the opera at night. When evening came he made sure that the watch hands were walking around the watch-face at the usual rate, and again took up his book. Half-past 5, 6, and half-past 7—it was time to go now. He put the ticker in his pocket, his coat on his back, and left the hotel. When he reached —— Walnut Street, he rang the bell, walked in, and asked for Miss ——, with the greatest assurance. 'Gone out!' It was impossible. But he was told she did go at half-past 8 with Mr. ——. Half-past 8! He was thunderstruck again, but a glance at the clock on the parlor mantel assured him that it was then nearly 9 o'clock, and he left in a maze of disappointment. The watch had stopped sometime during the day, and started again according to its own sweet will, and was an hour or so behind time.

"Since that time, he has married another girl, and is not yet on speaking terms with the one that his watch got him left with. Nearly every time he comes, he tells of how he missed an appointment, or a train, or something of the kind the day before. I have frequently told him that the watch was a cheap affair in the first place, and it is not worth repairs now, as it cannot be made to keep time by the best jeweler in the land, but he always says it will have to do a little longer. Just for the curiosity of the thing I looked over my books the last time he was here, to see how much he had paid me for putting it in order, and it was just $32. I sell a very fair watch for $30 nowadays."

He Had Expected It.

"I see," he remarked to a Chatham Street dealer the other day, "that your friend Moses, who opened a pawnbroker's shop in Williamsburg, has gone to the wall."

"I see dot same vhay, but I vhas expecting it."

"Wasn't he a good business man?"

"Vhell you can shudge for yourself. Vhen a man comes in mit a ten-dollar revolver Moses looks him oafer, und says: 'Vhell, peesness was picking oop und I gif you two dollars on him.'"

"That seems to be cheapenough."

"Yes, but it vhasn't der peesness vhay. He should turn oop his nose, begin to whistle, und finally say: 'I haf 2,000 revolvers on hand't, und peesness vhas all brobk oop. I ask my wife if she doan' gif you fifty cents.' Moses vhas a greenhorn. His liberality drives him to ruin."—[Wall Street News.

Quail as a Legislator Knows Them.

They were discussing, in the Illinois Legislature, a bill to prevent the destruction of quail for three years. Speeches of various sorts were made. One farmer advanced the suggestion that there were too many quail. If they should be preserved for three years they would eat up all the crops. Then up rose an honest granger, with this valuable contribution to natural history: "Mr. Cheerman, I've lived in Illinoy, man and boy, for forty years, enduring all of which time I've foilered agricultooral pursoots, exceptin' for seven years, when I was arunnin' of a saw-mill, and I have obsarved this about quail, whenever there is too many quail the good Lord he freezes them out." That settled it.

A young lady poet says: "He looked once in mine eyes and then fled." Here's a state of things. It will be remembered that Katisha had a right elbow which people came miles to see—and yet Nanki Poo fled. Thus does history repeat itself.—

SATURDAY, MAY 15.....1886

THE terrible scenes of riot and murder in Chicago make it more clear that it is time to change our immigration laws. The perp trators of those fearful outrages are utterly unworthy and unfit to be entrusted with the privileges of American citizenship, or to be admitted to live among American citizens. The Americen people should not permit the ignorant, brutal, lawless savages of foreign countries to come among them when the result of their presence is riot and murder. The law excluding the Chinese should be extended to the exclusion of such murderous villains as threw dynamite bombs in the streets of Chicago.

All About Glycerine.

The consumption of glycerine for medicinal purposes, arts, and manufactures has greatly increased in the past few years. It is the by-product of the manufacture of candles. Tallow or other animal or vegetable fats are saponified, with the addition of water, under heat and high steam pressure, in closed tanks. The neutral fats separate into fatty acids and glycerine, which latter remains dissolved in the water. The solution of glycerine thus formed is concentrated and sold to refiners. Some of the latter, in order to cheapen the process of refining, bleach their half-refined product by means of vegetable or animal charcoal. This absorbs the color and also some of the acids still in the glycerine, rendering it, for a short time, inodorous and almost colorless; but the seeds of decomposition are not removed, and in time the acids still contained in the glycerine oxydize, and the glycerine becomes "off color." It should properly be distilled until the last trace of impurities is removed, when the glycerine becomes chemically pure, inodorous, and colorless.

When the concentrated glycerine is applied undiluted to a chapped or ulcerated surface, it produces a burning sensation, which to some persons is almost unbearable. The reason is glycerine has a strong affinity for moisture; it takes it from the skin, and thus gives rise to the burning sensation. If a small quantity of water is added to the glycerine before it is applied, this unpleasant effect will be observed but little, if at all.

Gathered Crumbs

Never put a hot iron directly upon silk—it takes the life out of it.

Lard, if applied at once, will remove the discoloration after a bruise.

Pickles or vinegar will not keep in a jar that has ever had any kind of grease in it.

Wrap eggs in paper, twisting the ends hard; put them in a box in a good cellar, and they will keep all winter.

Ham, to be eaten cold, should stand in the water in which it was boiled until it is cold; it will not be so dry and hard.

Teething, feverish children, can often be quieted by bathing in warm water in which you have dissolved a large spoonful of saleratus.

A cup of cold, strong beef-tea, nicely seasoned and free from grease, taken during the night, will overcome in many cases nervousness and sleeplessness.

Hash, to be good—and it can be good—must not stew and simmer and simmer and stew, but be heated through as quickly as possible and sent to the table at once.

Where writing implements are used but seldom, the pens are apt to be rusty. To prevent this, keep them in pearline, the compound used for laundry purposes. Take a small dish, fill it with the powder, stick the pens down into it, and when you want one you will find it nice and bright.

For a hair-curler take two ounces of borax, one drachm of gum arabic and add to them one quart of hot (not boiling) water. Stir, and as soon as the ingredients are dissolved, add two tablespoonfuls of spirits of camphor. Before going to bed wet the hair with this fluid and roll it in pieces of paper in the usual manner.

A kind of concrete, hard and solid, is now being used for building purposes in Paris. It is composed of eight parts of sand, gravel, and pebbles; one part of common earth, burnt and powdered; one part powdered cinders, and one and a half parts unslacked hydraulic lime. These materials are thoroughly beaten up together, their mixture giving a concrete which sets almost immediately, and becomes, in a few days, extremely hard and solid, which property may be still further increased by the addition of a small quantity, say one part, of cement. Among other constructions to which this material has been applied, is a house three stories in height, 65x45 feet, standing on a terrace, having a perpendicular retaining wall 200 feet in length and 20 feet high. Every part of this structure was made of the hard concrete, including foundations, vaults of cellars, retaining walls, exterior and interior, without exception, as well as the cornice work, mouldings, string courses, balustrades, parapets, and the building is without band-iron, lintels, or wood throughout.

Notes on Science and Industry.

The triple effect apparatus has proved to be of great importance on all large sugar estates where economy of fuel is a primary consideration, and the latest and most improved pattern of this device is found to be a very efficient mechanism. In its working, exhaust steam, collected from the various engines working in the factory, enters the heating space of the first pan; the steam boils the cane juice; the vapor from the juice in the second pan passes to the heating space of the third pan, producing a third ebullition, and the vapor from the third pan is drawn off by the aid of a powerful air pump. In this way is obtained a high vacuum, which reduces the boiling point, and enables the concentration to be carried on at a very low temperature. The construction is such that the pans may be worked as single vacuum or as a double effect apparatus.

Attention has been repeatedly drawn, of late, by engineers, to the injuries resulting from the use of poor lubricants. Many of the latter, it is said, are made from the residuum of petroleum stills, which has been steamed and settled, thus separating some of its gritty components, but with much of the latter, mostly in the form of charred products, remaining; these residuums are skimmed out to consistency for lubricating purposes, and mixed with the cheapest kinds of natural oils, with all their higher and inflammable products, and even benzine is used. Frequently, too, the oils are mixed in so coarse a manner that, when at rest, the heavy residuum will separate in the packages underneath the lighter fluid oil, and the danger of using such oils is apparent. In cold weather, and when first poured on to bearings, some of these oils seem to have a good body, but in warm weather and in warm places they soon thin out, and, in flour-mills, where, distributed in close rooms over hundreds of bearing, they spread diminutively over adjoining woodwork and floors, and evaporate rapidly, and their inflammable vapors form explosive combinations.

By the new process of toughening timber, it is claimed that the effect produced upon whitewood is such that a cold chisel is required in order to split it. This result is accomplished by a special method of steaming the timber and submitting it to end pressure, technically "upsetting it." By this means the cells and fibers are compressed into one compact mass; and it is the opinion of those who have experimented with the process, that wood can be compresesd to the extent of some seventy-five per cent, and that some of the timber now considered unfit for use in such work as carriage building, for instance, can be made valuable by this means as a substitute for ash, hickory, etc.

In a communication read before the Academy of Sciences, Vienna, it is stated, as the result of investigations, that the annual mean diminution of temperature with altitude is, in the tropics, in general, perhaps, not greater than in central Europe, and that during the regular monsoon this diminution of temperature with altitude is slow on the windward side of the mountains, but rapid on the leeward. It cannot be proved that the condensation of the enormous mass of aqueous atmosphere during the rainy season in the East Indies increases the temperature of the air in the higher stations, not even in those places where it might have been expected. Again, a phenomenon that is in intimate connection with the constant winds of the regions of the monsoons consists in the fact that a perceptible annual period exists in the difference of atmospheric pressure at stations of various altitudes. These differences have their greatest value when the wind blows from the lower to the higher stations, and their smallest values in an opposite course, which is noted as a phenomenon of peculiar interest.

It is found that gum arabic, under prolonged drying, preliminary to pulverization, not only experiences a loss of natural moisture, to the extent of some ten per cent, but also a slight change of properties, as indicated by its power of reducing, at a gentle heat, potassic solution of copper. After a time it also loses its ready solubility in water, and consequently oily emulsions are not as easily made with it. But these difficulties are avoidable by keeping the gum arabic only as a moderately fine powder, and, when the weather is moist or cold, it should be dried no longer than one day, in a warm place, in which case it will lose but two per cent, or, at most, two and one-half of its weight.

A New Anecdote of a Droll Man.

There are a number of anecdotes in circulation about the late Congressman Rankin and the brave manner in which he met death. Almost his last words were a joke. When the late Senator Carpenter lay dying he showed a similar nerve. A few hours before his death he was seized with a violent spasm and asked the doctor what it was. "It's the colon," said the doctor, referring to that portion of the anatomy bearing that name. "Then I've a little longer to live," replied Carpenter, "we never come to a full stop at a colon."—[Curtis, in the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY MAY 15.....1886.

—Remember the festival on Monday eve.

—Lone Pine will celebrate the Fourth of July.

—A very backward spring is the general comment.

—Assessor Irwin and Deputy Crough are in the south end of the county.

—Alex. Clark is in the northern end of the county on a book delivering trip.

—An anti-Riparian club has been organized in Mono county, with Orlando E. Jones as President.

—Mr. C. Walters, of Camp Independence, starts for Mojave on Monday. He will be absent about eight days.

—The new mill at Candelaria is completed, and it is expected that a start will be made about the end of this month.

—A shipment of a few tons of ore was made last Saturday, from a prospect belonging to J. C. Irwin, and located east of Alvord.

—The two mills at Belleville are now running only during the day time; it is expected that both will be running night and day before long.

—Georg Storey says he has no intention of building a mill at the Poleta mine: he does not see anything that calls for such a work.

—The C. & C. railroad company are making an addition to the depot buildings at Belleville. Carpenters began work last Wednesday.

—Strawberries and cherries from the [illegible]ley have been offered in [illegible]rning Coffee of Belleville and Candelaria more past. [illegible]d the young lady [illegible]rm to a su[illegible]ch vir[illegible]shine have been receiving large [illegible]ipments of spring and summer goods during the last two weeks. Call and examine their stock.

—A good thoroughfare has been made through the wet pieace of ground near Shepherd's on the Lone Pine Road. This is a much needed improvement.

—Although this is an unusually cold and backward spring alfalfa is making an excellent growth. Ranchers in this vicinity will commence cutting their first crop early in June.

—Mr. J. McMurry, of Big Pine, is slowly recovering from a severe attack of illness. These attacks are coming upon Mr. McMurry with greater frequency and severity.

—Mr. H. Levy has engaged Mr. W. McDonald as manager of the Blaney House, at Independence. Mr. McDonald is an experienced and competent hotel keeper.

—Barnes & Kehoe made a shipment of two carloads of ore this week. Ke[illegible] reports the mine looking well, and [illegible]ved [illegible]rties are that another shipment [illegible]pot!" [illegible]e made.

[illegible]f that unfo[illegible]s fleeing fr[illegible]vo ago M. Walter of [illegible]followed by [illegible]ndence, received one [illegible]pelled by [illegible]strawberry boxes by rail. [illegible]f Di[illegible]. [illegible]lter is now marketing berries, and will have a good crop.

—The Los Angeles Express urges very strong reasons toward extending the C. & C. railroad to a connection with the Southern Pacific. Beyond all question this extension will ultimately be made.

—Nevada politicians think the Carson mint will be reopened before long. Fair will, they say, be a candidate for re-election, and not even his sack could secure him the seat in the Senate unless the mint be reopened.

—Very large quantities of strawberries could be sold along the line of the railroad; and yet not a single box is sent out of Owens valley, though berries of the finest quality and unlimited quantity could be produced here.

—A very laudable effort is being made by Mr. Spangler to raise funds for the completion of the church at this place. An excellent entertainment will be given for that purpose on Monday eve; a programme is published on another column.

—There is a large demand for lettuce, young onions and other vegetables, along the line of the railroad as far north as Dayton and Virginia City. Good prices would be paid, yet not a pound of vegetables is sent out of Owens valley, though tons of such stuff might have been ready for market weeks ago.

—Very rich ore is being taken from a recent find in Garfield district. The claim is joining the location of Farington Brothers, about sixteen miles west from Soda Springs station of the C. & C. railroad. A car load of the ore sent to Selby and Company netted nine hundred dollars a ton. Since then ore has been found that goes from five to ten thousand dollars a ton.

—At a certain hotel in Carson the Chinese cooks were discharged and white cooks were employed. At the end of four weeks the seventh set of cooks had been employed, the proprietor had fallen off twenty pounds in weight through worry, and was out several hundred dollars in money. The seven sets of cooks had about the same effect on the hotel people that the seven years of famine had on the kine Pharaoh saw in his dream. The hotel man is fighting it out on that line, and will yet come out victor.

Artesian Wells.

In a large portion of the valley section of Tulare county artesian wells are numerous, and except in two or three instances along the eastern limit of the belt no unsuccessful borings have been made. The number is growing constantly, as it is found that a well of average capacity will furnish a sufficient supply of water to irrigate and make productive a large area of land. No rock is encountered in boring in the valley, strata of gravel and clay succeeding each other from the surface to the greatest depth yet attained. It is therefore necessary to use iron casing. This is usually seven inches in diameter, and when a water-bearing stratum is penetrated the water rises to the surface and falls over the top of the pipe. A well in which the center of the overflow rises two and a half inches above the periphery will furnish a stream supplying one-half of a cubic foot per second, equivalent to twenty-five miners inches, or 247 gallons per minute. This is about the capacity of the average well, and will irrigate more than one hundred acres the first year if properly used, and a greater amount thereafter. As the greater number of these wells are in that portion of the valley farthest removed from the large stream from which the irrigating canals are taken, they are invaluable to that large and fertile region. The supply is perennial, and may be used when and where necessary. The usual cost of boring an artesian well is 50 cents a foot for the first one hundred feet, 75 cents a foot for the second hundred, and so on, adding 25 cents per foot with each succeeding hundred. Double casing, such as is generally used, costs 70 cents to $1 per foot, The average depth of the wells in the artesian belt of Tulare county is about 450 feet, but the deepest ones furnish the largest streams of water. Many of those bored first being shallow, have since been deepened, with satisfactory results.—Delta.

Calico "Prints."

The Calico Print of last Sunday says:

There are few idle men in camp at present. The miners are either employed in the various mines or chloriding and prospecting for themselves. Chloriding operations are on the increase owing to the general success in this character of mining. The merchants and all other busidess men anticipate unusual lively times within the next two or three months, owing to the improvements going on or anticipated.

Part of the machinery for the Runover Mining Co's. new 20-stamp capacity quartz mill is now on the site about 100 yards above the company's well.

Woolman & Hoben, are working this old time mine. They started on a "knife blade" seam, which widened out into a very large pocket, from which they took out three tons in twenty days which netted over $700 at Barber's mill.

The old amalgamating pans, and other machinery of the Oro Grande Co's mill near Daggett are being replaced by new machinery, and the entire mill is being renovated and repaired.

Capt Brisen and Jas. Reed are working on the Exchequer mine, which shows up well.

Cheatem & Leonard are taking out about one ton a day of very good ore from the Victor mine.

Reed and Goddard are taking the same quantity from the Humbug mine. The ore averages 100 ounces to the ton.

Wm. T. Coleman & Co. are hauling monthly about 75 tons of borax from their deposits in East Calico to the Daggett depot. There seems to be no end to the supply of this commodity in their mines, which is of a high grade.

Entertainment.

Panamint.

A good deal of progress has been made on the rebuilding of the works at Panamint. The mill frame is nearly completed, and much of the machinery is in place. A great deal of labor was required repairing damage done to machinery by the fire that destroyed the works years ago. A good deal of new shafting, stems, cams, shoes and dies will be required. The mortars are as good as ever. The engine and boilers have been put in thorough repair, and are ready for work at any time. A few days ago White Smith arrived at the mill from Mojave with nine tons of corrugated iron for the roof. He has gone back for the remainder and for other freight. During the winter months much delay was caused in getting in freight by snow on the mountains. Now work can be pushed more rapidly.

New Ore Market.

Mr. J. Dorwin, representing the Melrose Smelting Works of Alameda, was at Independence several days this week. Mr. Dorwin was buying lead ores for his firm, and he offered prices much higher than has heretofore been paid for similar ores in Inyo county. This firm intend to be regular buyers of ores here, and miners will be likely to get better prices than they have been getting. There is some probability that the firm will put up sampling works at Keeler. Should this be done it would be quite a gain to miners, they could then have their ores sampled, sold and get their money in a few days.

RANCH FOR SALE.—The ranch known as the D. B. Curtis ranch, is now for ale or rent on reasonable terms. This ranch contains about 400 acres, is favorable located and has good water privileges. Plenty of good fruit, pears and peaches. Good grain land and a large area sceded to alfalfa.

ARTESIAN WATER.—Farmer Sam Davis, of the Carson Appeal, has struck it. He bored a hole seventy feet deep on his ranch north of Carson, and now has a steady flow of water discharging from a pipe two feet above the surface at the rate of three gallons a minute or 4,000 gallons a day. It is clear, soft water, and a very valuable acquisition. Several similar flowing wells have been struck in that vicinity.

Letter from Sacramento.

TO THE EDITOR:

The Capital City of California presents many interesting sights, but few are more so than the store of Weinstock & Lubin. The history of their business reads almost like a romance. Started in a miniature store, with a capital of but a few hundred dollars, and in the face of strong competition, it has, in eleven years, increased the extent of its ground floor area more than a hundred fold, the number of its clerks from one to one hundred and fifty and sixty; has completely outstripped its rivals, and is now one of the largest general retail stores in the United States.

Long ago people predicted that on account of its already large business, that further growth was impossible. But it has grown, and IT IS GROWING. Indeed, the recent increase in its business has been larger proportionally than for a number of years. This, undoubtedly, is because time has solidified and perfected its organization, added to its experience, and proven to the people that its principles are as steady and fixed as they are just.

In a newspaper, now worn and dingy with age, we find the germ of these principles aptly stated in one of the store announcements. "We aim to treat our customers as we would wish to be treated if we were in their place." How much this has meant to the millions who have dealt with the store since it was started, or how much it continues to mean to-day, no one can tell who has never given its methods a personal trial.

Even in distant states and territories people can be found who have never visited Sacramento, but whose confidence in this House and in the superiority of its goods CAN'T BE SHAKEN. They know by experience whereof they think or speak.

One almost feels that with such a brilliant record, a House like this would rest content. Not so, there is still work to be done—there is still chance to provide the people of the Pacific Coast with better goods than, as a whole, they now get—still room to lower the prices they pay. What store so fit to undertake the work as this store? AND IT PROPOSES TO DO IT. In fact, it is doing it.

Even distant merchants feel the potency of its influence. It is an interesting and suggestive fact, that there are many people who have never heard of this Store, but who to-day are being served by local dealers better and truer, than they would be, but for its existence. In a word, public opinion is being slowly revolutionized as to the treatment in justice due from dealer to customer.

While the Store is thus accomplishing much indirectly, it is in direct work that its principles and methods shine brightest. It stands at all times as ready to serve the wants, perchance, of the distant widow, who may send for twenty-five cents worth of goods, as it does the banker or capitalist who enters its doors to spend hundreds of dollars. Neither favor, affection patronage or friendship, can influence the determination to treat all customers alike.

Furthermore, people know that in sending to Weinstock & Lubin, Sacramento, who deal direct with the leading manufacturers of Europe and America—that they get the benefit of latest styles and fashions—and prices as low and lower than those of other dealers.

There is hardly anything which this House does not keep—from a toothpick to a bridal outfit. Dry Goods, Clothing, Millinery, Shoes, Hats, Notions, etc., all command its earnest attention. A large Illustrated Catalogue of its goods, prices etc., is sent free to any address.

Facts are but food for reflection. The lesson they teach in this case is plain. DO NOT REMAIN UNACQUAINTED WITH THE ADVANTAGES PRESENTED BY THIS STORE.

SATURDAY MAY 15 ..... 1886.

All Sorts.

Last year the income of the Royal Humane Society in London, England, was $95,000.

Most people, when they come to you for advice, come to have their own opinions strengthened, not corrected.

Eleven thousand men are employed in Illinois coal mines, and coal is found in forty-nine counties in the State.

Mrs. Vance, wife of the North Carolina Senator, has in her Washington parlor a hornet's nest forty-two inches in length.

Luther, the greatest of reformers, and Baxter, the greatest of the Puritans, and Wesley, the greatest religious leader of the last century, believed in witchcraft.

Baron De Worms, speaking at a Conservative banquet in London recently, said that the government would dissolve if a Liberal and Parnellite coalition should be formed.

Bird's-nest soup is no longer exclusive with the Chinese, for in Paris, London and New York it is served at restaurants and by the caterers, and is said to be very good as an imitation.

How radical the conversion of Mr. Gladstone to home rule has been cannot be entirely appreciated till the fact is recalled that it is only three years since he lodged Parnell in Kilmainham jail.

Lord Guilford is the latest British nobleman to pay his life for his love of fox-hunting. Unfortunately no anise-seed anglomaniac has been known to carry imitation to such an extreme.

Mr. Langtry writes from Belfast that she is working hard upon some new characters; that she will appear at London in the spring, and that she expects to revisit her dear America next autumn.

A man appeared on the streets of Denver recently driving a team of fully developed elks, worth $1,500 and capable of traveling 100 miles a day. The children thought Santa Claus had come to town.

A man in Main has petitioned for divorce on the ground that he was insane at the time he was married. If his prayer be granted, there will be a sudden and enormous increase in the number of divorce suits filed.

J. M. Walker, who had a fifth interest in the famous "bonanza firm," was worth so much money once that he thought poverty never again would knock at his door. But it does, for, though once a millionaire, he is now moneyless.

There is an ex-vice president alive, it seems, whom everybody has forgotten for many years, David R. Atchison, of Missouri, who, in 1853, was chosen by the Senate to fill the place of Vice-president Wm. R. King. "Are we so soon forgot?" said Rip Van Winkle.

The most serious incident during the British elections was the savage attempt on the life of the great landowner, Sir Watkin Wynn. It is noted, and not without satisfaction, that the legal element will not be too numerous in the new House of Commons.

Eleven happy couples have asked Patti to be godmother to their first infants since her arrival in Paris, where she is undergoing a course of medical treatment at the hands of an electrician. The prima donna has also received applications for grants of loans of money amounting to $72,800.

Before his death King Alfonso gave peremptory orders that every article of the Infanta Eulalia's trosseau should be procured in Spain, including the jewelry and lace. This arrangement is a grievous disappointment to the Paris tradesmen, who had counted on reaping a rich harvest from the royal marriage.

Speaking of the ideas some people have of being relieved from immediate distress through charity, the Galveston News says: "A little eight-year-old who suffered by the fire, hearing that he might get relief by applying to the committee, was told to prepare his claim. He wrote it out as follows: A bicicle, $3.00; two ginnie pigs, $2.00; one prery dog, $1.00; half pound shot, 5c.; a rifel, $6; cartickets in bank, 65c.

Ghastly Humor.

What Yankee soldier would have thought of the droll reply that arose to the lips of the Confederate, who was caught in a persimmon tree by General Longstreet? When sternly asked by his commander what he was doing there, the veteran at once disarmed wrath by saying:—

"I'm eatin' some green persimmons to draw my stomach up so it'll fill its rations."

Still there was something ghastly about such humor. When starving men indulged in such jokes there was not much room for laughter.—[Atlanta Constitution.

[An] old subject. "Hubby, [Sm]ley is going away, and I [th]ink I should give him some [th]ing." "So we should, [dear]. How would a nice, silk [ha]ndkerchief?" "First-rate; but [we] can't afford to him outright." "Just lend it to him. [He] won't want it any longer."—[Chicago [Ti]mes.

If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of me as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the fathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."

JOHN R. DODGE, Jr., jeweler, Nonsat, Ia., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. it is the best machine ever invented by man. 2d. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy ours for $1000."

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine in use for the concentration of all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for the last TWO YEARS and a great many mines, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results far in advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the entire cost of the machines every month in a year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that escapes the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than the cost for this purpose alone.

BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Possessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

Testimony of HIRAM WARNER, Chief-Justice of Ga.: "I have used Simmons Liver Regulator for Constipation of my Bowels, caused by a temporary Derangement of the Liver, for the last three or four years, and always with decided benefit."

Have You Malaria?

I have had experience with Simmons Liver Regulator since 1865, and regard it as the greatest medicine of the times for diseases peculiar to malarial regions. So good a medicine deserves universal commendation.

Safer and Better than Calomel!

I have been subject to severe spells of Congestion of the Liver, and have been in the habit of taking from 15 to 20 grains of calomel, which generally laid me up for three or four days. Lately I have been taking Simmons Liver Regulator, which gave me relief, without any interruption to business.

A Question of Etiquette Settled.

In a late issue of a valuable contemporary, a letter is published which proposes a question of the greatest moment. The punctuation, which is accurately reproduced, seems to have been perfectly spontaneous.

"Which," reads the epistle, "which would be the proper way for a gentleman wishing a lady's photograph to send her his and ask her for hers or send his to her and ask for hers and not hear from her or write and propose an exchange they being a great distance apart.

When we see people so high in social society as the writer evidently is, fussing and artificializing to express passion and meeting his number tei loy-miss, on the common ground of hit-or-miss, it gives us hope that, although there may be within the splendor of the superior of the society swell a something as warm and human as we, as pitiful and needing of sympathy—as it greets us openly in the unmasked nature of the lowly. What a letter it is! What a confession of weakness! And yet (and for this we may sing songs of joy) what an evidence of our common humanity!

There are many ways in which the young man may proceed. "Pass Suit," indeed, says that "the affair may be easily managed." "He may either express a desire to have her photograph, asking if he may send his, or he may inclose his, saying that he takes the liberty of sending it, and adding how greatly he should prize one of hers, should she favor him so highly." It will be observed that in the matter of punctuation Dress Suit meets his questioner like a brother; he makes no half considerations. The methods recommended are excellent for those having a great command of language, and a sufficient command of countenance to inclose a picture and simultaneously remark that they take the liberty of sending it. In real and jesting life, they are the modes always followed by the elite; but unless one is to the manner born, as we say, he might become confused. Thus, the two might express a desire to have a lady's photograph, saying that he takes the liberty of sending it; or he might inclose his own asking if he may send his, either of which procedures would be fatal to love.

Luckily for those who wish to devote themselves to the serious business of life, and got to the tripperies of fashion, there are smoother and more straightforward methods. Thus an ardent lover may call on his sweetheart and steal her photograph out of her album before she comes in. Or he may express a desire to have her photograph, and thereupon buy one of the photographer. Another way is to write the young lady a cordial note, adding that the next time she breaks a cameo you would like to have one of the pieces. Humor, in fact, is always good. Again you may write a chatty letter, saying that you are contemplating a gallery of beauties, and would like her picture as a climax. If on familiar terms, it is customary to add that if she will get somebody else to sit for her, success will be assured. If the fair lady is cross eyed it will be a delicate piece of flattery to suggest a side view. Say that the right or left side will be immaterial, and then you may add, with a pretty gallantry, that a pair of eyes sufficient to ensnare you, "when t'other dear charmer's away," in case you are not yet introduced to the lady whose picture you desire, it would probably be the best form to take an instantaneous photograph of her as she goes by. If the lady is your wife and you still desire her photograph you can easily pick up [illegible] of them [illegible] "never [illegible] discovery has [illegible] Switzerland of a [illegible] growing on cat- [illegible] on below the [illegible]. The Russian Embassy at Washington.

The Russian Government allows more money for entertainments at less than we pay our Minister to England. The entertainments at the Russian legation have always surpassed in magnificence anything given by the diplomatic corps, with those of the British Minister coming next. The Russian Government allows its representatives here $25,000 per annum to be spent in entertainments.

Five are given each season at an expense of $5,000 each. A feature of the entertainments, during the term of Baron de Struve, was the immense display of rare old wines which were placed at the disposal of the guests. While the baron was the most liberal minded man, yet the first person who was made the slightest influence of liquor was not to be considered, the fact that room was more desirable than company. And that was not all. The next day he would be certain to receive a note addressed to him in the handwriting of the first secretary, recounting his conduct of the evening before, and stating that, under the circumstances, in the future, the baron would [illegible] the [illegible] calling.

This wasn't much of a lesson in the line of prohibition, but it certainly taught temperance from the most practical standpoint. Another feature of these entertainments was the splendid array of cigars and Russian cigarettes. Ladies are to do, the gentlemen of some of the impecunious ones who filled their overcoat pockets with the choicest cigarettes before leaving the house. Such abuse of the baron's hospitality was not detected by him, but he had ample means of defraying forming himself had he felt so disposed.—[Boston Traveler.

Mistaking a Guest for a Waiter.

Colored servants are out of style, and have been replaced in the swell houses by Frenchmen who wear a lordly air that causes them to be mistaken for the nobility. A bold call for reform in this direction comes from a lady who gave a large reception recently, and innocently mistook a guest for one of the swell waiters. She is a handsome, bright woman, with a keen sense of the ludicrous, and told the story on herself, laughing, though much mortified at the affair.

"I thought I should sink through the floor," she said. "I met the gentleman in the hall upstairs, as I was coming down to receive. It was early, and when he bowed with so much manner, I thought it was odd, coming from one of Demonet's men, whom my husband had engaged to take charge of the supper room and the cloak rooms. But of course I said 'good evening,' and remarked that I hoped the tables would be all right and the guests well served. He did not respond, and looked queer, so I continued: 'Oh, you are looking after the rooms up here.' Then he put out his hand and, like a flash, his name came to me, and I knew I had called Mr. Blank, my husband's friend, a waiter."

"What did you say?" asked the excited group around her.

"Oh! I thought I'd faint, and I really wished I could drop through the floor out of sight, but he looked so amused that I rallied and said, 'Oh, Mr. Blank, you know Demonet's men are so ill-looking and such gentlemen in manner.' Then I begged him to give me his arm, and he escorted me down to the drawing-room; but I assure you I shall never look at a dress coat again without a shudder."—Washington Letter to Chicago Inter Ocean.

OUR IRONCLADS.

What Would Be the Result of a Battle Between Them.

People often wonder what would be the results of a great naval battle at the present time. Would many ships be destroyed? Would the loss of life be great? Let us try to describe, shortly, a few of the probable features of a fight between two fleets of modern ironclads. Although two hostile fleets might approach one another in some tactical formation, this could not be adhered to for any length of time, and the battle would soon become a series of independent duels between individual ships. This is at once apparent when we consider that most, if not all, of the ships would have rams, and it would, therefore, be highly necessary for a captain [illegible] feet clear of the sides of his ship, however [illegible] by an enemy [illegible] action [illegible] probably [illegible] and, of course, which [illegible] certainly won [illegible] engage great [illegible] fective in sinking [illegible] ships.

It may be safely concluded that every ship would be steaming as fast as possible in action, that it would be necessary to avoid being rammed, and yet to obtain favorable positions for discharging its broadside and to enable the fire of an enemy. Heavy gun fire would, of course, be maintained from the commencement of the action, and those ships whose engines got disabled from this cause would speedily be rammed and as this point we can safely say that great loss of life would take place, for the reason that the boats of a ship [illegible] exposed to the machine guns [illegible] would at an early stage of the action be of little use, and in the [illegible] which a ship sinks after being rammed, it would be impossible to the crew to improvise other means to save themselves from drowning. No steps seem yet to have been taken by our country with a view of providing for this contingency.

I have suggested that a hospital ship, bearing the Geneva cross, should accompany a fleet into action to receive the wounded. We could make a further suggestion, namely, that this ship should be provided with fast steaming boats, the primary object of which would be to proceed to the assistance of a sinking ship. By this means, a number of men might be saved who would otherwise certainly be drowned. It is not probable that the loss of life from gun fire would be large, as a great part of the crew of an ironclad would be under water, the rest being inside the armored portions of the ship. Few ships would be able to get into favorable positions for discharging Whitehead torpedoes from their tubes; even if they did so, the discharge of one of these machines is so erratic when discharged from a ship in motion that it would, in nearly every case, miss its mark. The time for the use of Whitehead torpedoes would be from the torpedo boats at the commencement of the fight.

To sum up, it is the opinion of many naval men of authority that a modern naval battle would only occupy about one half the time of a fight in the old Trafalgar days; that half the ships engaged would be sunk, and that most of the remainder would be so disabled as to unfit for further service for months to come.—[Chamber's Journal.

A Strange Loss and a Wise Masters Care.

A Norwich, Conn., correspondent writes of the young burglar, Williams, of Bridgeport, who is now in New London jail: "Give him twenty minutes alone with a safe," says Sheriff Hawkins, "and Williams can open the most intricate lock that ever was devised; and if you will tell him merely the name of the safe maker, he will tell you instantly all the parts in the lock and give you a description of its mechanism. He never breaks a lock. He simply finds out inside of twenty minutes the combination on which it sets, oils the safe a drake so it will be warm and recocks it, and when the owner returns he finds the safe apparently just as he left it. To accomplish his work, Williams uses, in addition to his quick wit and mechanical knowledge, three ordinary wires, which he forces into the lock about the handle in such a way that the number of the combination is reduced to twenty-four. He reasons that all persons in locking a safe make a certain number of moves, and a knowledge of this fact enables him to further reduce its probable combinations to two or three movements. These two or three moves he finds out by actual trial, which consumes the greater part of his twenty minutes. In the case which the safe is in an apartment that is in full view of the street, he drops a little quicksilver on the floor, pours water on it, and the steam that arises effectually cloaks the windows. In three instances Williams unlocked safes, abstracted the contents, relocked them and made off in the time that the men who were in charge of them were at their dinners. He got away with the valuables in a Stratford safe in this way."

DEAD-LETTER OFFICE.

A Harmless to Average Observers—The Postal System.

Among the many places of interest to visit in Washington, perhaps there is none that is so absorbingly interesting to the great mass of visitors as the Dead-Letter Office and the business connected with it. There is nothing to see here but everyone seems to be looking and appreciating. Just inside the large hall a space is railed off where visitors may stand and observe at their leisure the work that is going on so busily. Over fifteen thousand letters a day to be examined, assorted and disposed of! And a large corps of clerks is needed for this work, and how quickly, skillfully and mechanically it is done! Fortunately all letters are opened and all sorts of valuables, containing money or articles of value, going one way and coming another. A single moment suffices to open an envelope with unerring precision. The letter is withdrawn, unfolded, refolded, replaced. The next letter the same. Now and then a peep at the examined letters shows that the work does not end, for the supply is never exhausted, but is constantly replenished as the letters are passed on. Here, as in many other departments, the work is several days or weeks behind time, and fresh appropriations are needed to more [illegible]. SATURDAY, JUNE 26 1886

THE result of the trial, of Doctor Mc Donald in San Francisco, for killing David P. Mish, is very likely to be followed by a similar result in the trial of J. H. Harlan, in Yolo county. Mc Donald killed the man who slandered his wife, and Harlan stilled the foul tongue that defamed his daughter. It has come to be a part of the unwritten law that husband or father may kill the evil hearted scoundrel that would defame wife or daughter. This is a crime of the basest and most cowardly sort, and there is no written law for its punishment. Public sentiment evidently favors the only through remedy for such a crime.

Curran's Criticism of Byron.

Those who, having recovered from the Byronic fever of youth, now run to the other extreme of Byronic dislike, will enjoy this stray leaf blown over the sea: "When Lord Byron published his sentimental 'Farewell,' after his separation from his wife, the matter was the subject of much after-dinner comment. Curran's opinion was once appealed to. 'I protest,' said he, 'I do not understand this kind of whimpering. Here is a man who first weeps over his wife and then wipes his eyes with the public.'"

English Breakfast.

Young Mrs. Vassarline: "You are sure this is the real English breakfast tea, Mr. Grocer?" "Oh, yes, we warrant it." "Well, I'll take a pound, if you are sure. Our visitors are from London, and I should be dreadfully mortified to give them Japan by mistake.—[Philadelphia Press.

...NDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

...ATURDAY JUNE 26 .....1886.

—From many places come such notes of preparation as leaves no doubt that there will be a big crowd at Lone Pine on the fourth.

—Last Saturday morning a man named Abraham Richards was killed at the Combination shaft, Virginia City. He got faint when coming up the shaft, slipped from the cage and fell 850 feet. A wid...ow and three children are left destitute.

—J...rie, of Virginia City, committed One Mon... last week by shooting himself. He was aged seventy-two year. About ten minutes before shooting himself, Curr...drank some beer in the... That terrible stuff not infrequently produces ...nsanity.

—It is reported that a ...thousand tons of slag from the old Cer... Gordo works has been sold to Selby & Co, of San Francisco, and will be shipped very soon. This will make a little more business at Keeler, if the report proves true. It is so too.

—In the Modoc mine at Lookout, there is now a larger body of ore in sight than ever before. Mr. Fitzgerald is sending ore to the furnace and shipping to San Francisco at the same time. A large part of the ore is so high grade that it pays better to ship it than to smelt it at home.

—The Tax Collector of Mono county compelled the Kharpreas to pay a license tax. Several who refused at first to pay, were taken before a Justice of Peace and fined $20 each for so doing. They then paid under protest. They should be made to pay for a license in Inyo county, if taxes may be collected in Mono county it may in all.

A gentleman from the lower country who visited Owens valley recently said: There are very many people living on farms in the lower country, who, if they could be made to understand the advantages offered to settlers in Owens valley, would come here at once." It is very certain that no where else in the State is there so much good land open for settlement, and upon which water can be so easily brought.

—No farm product of Owens valley draws from strangers more words of praise than our crops of alfalfa. People from west of the mountains are delighted to see all the fields covered with such heavy crops of clover entirely free from every kind of objectionable weeds. In many counties west of the mountains, farmers have a constant struggle to keep their alfalfa from being made utterly worthless by foxtail and other weed pests entirely unknown here.

—About two weeks ago Dan Hock left Independence to go to Hawthorne. A few days ago a letter was received here from him, requesting to have his mail sent to Muskingum county, Ohio. Dan suddenly took a notion to go back to the States and visit his friends of early days. In all probability he will find more of them in the grave yard than any where else. Dan, like all others who have been long in California, will soon find himself lonsome in the east, and will turn up again in his old haunts a few months hence.

—Last January Mr. Christman, of Ventura county, wrote to Independence for information about Owens valley. Several letters passed, and in the end Mr. Christman arrived here last week. He spent several days looking over the country, and was well pleased. In presence of several parties he said he found the county better in every way than had been represented to him. He left here at the beginning of the week on his return to Ventura, where himself and brother own property. This they will sell as speedily as possible, and together will return here to stay and make homes. From reports they will all arrive here about month hence. Mr. Christman said several friends told him if he found the country even half as good as represented they would all come here.

Good Yeild.—Fifty-four tons of ore from the Lapanta mine, near Hawthorne, recently worked at the Cat Creek mill, yielded $4000, or a little more than $74 per ton.

Preaching.—Rev. J. M. Spangler has changed his appointment at Lone Pine from July 4th till Sunday following; that is till July 11th. On the evening of July 4th he will preach in the new church at Independence.

The Worst Yet.—Henry Levy is lame. This is how it happened: He threw a stone at a dog, but in taking aim he did'nt make sufficient allowance for the size of his own foot, and instead of mashing the dog, the stone only went as far as the end of his toe. He is now wearing a gunny sack on part of that foot.

OPENED.

The New Business House At Independence.

Though not yet quite ready for business, only a part of their stock of goods having arrived, yet so many calls were made by intending purchasers Mc Mahon and Jiggins opened the doors of their new store on Wednesday. From the start they have been doing a good business; in fact they have not yet got time to properly arrange their goods, and the floor of the store is crowded with packages of all kinds. But even now the long rows of shelves present quite an attractive appearance, being filled with bright new gooks of many kinds, arranged with good taste.

Whether or not the new firm can or will continue to sell goods at the close margin of profits they begin with, remains to be seen: but for the present they are certainly offering goods much cheaper than ever before seen in Inyo county. This is an advantage that buyers will not be slow to avail themselves of.

The firm were forced to open at least a week sooner than they had intended, consequently were not ready with an advertisement giving at least a partial list of goods and prices. This defect will be remedied next week, and then comparison can be made with prices charged hitherto. Every one interested in getting the greatest value for their money will wish the new firm success.

Democratic Committee.

Last Tuesday a meeting of the executive committee of the democratic County Central Committee was held at Independence. Several new members were added to the county committee, to fill vacancies by removal and resignation. The committee now consists of the following; E. Robinson, Chairman; J. W. P. Lord, A. Eibeshutz, A. N. Bell, T. Keboe, D. Olds, T. K. Hutchison, H. H. Howell, Geo. Storey, Barton Mc Gee, R. P. Hessian, A. D. Gilbert, E. J. Shepherd, J. R. Moffatt, J. Barnes, Ed. Walker, J. C. Eddy, H Chickering, W. C. Smith, F. Fitzgerald, Thos. McDonough, J. Hertel, P. Calsacsia, Authur Smith and S. P. Roberts. A full meeting of the County Committee will be held at Independence, on Wednesday, July 7th, at 2 o'clock p. m. to elect delegates to the State Congressional and Joint Senatorial Conventions; to apportion delegates to the County Convention, to fix the time for holding primary meetings, and for holding a county convention for making nominations for county officers.

Vineyards in Owens Valley.

Mr. David Lubin, of Weinstock and Lubin, Sacramento, arrived at Independence on Thursday. He is looking over Owens valley for a suitable location for a large vineyard. He said that from what he had seen of the valley, he was satisfied the country was well suited to the production of very valuable wines. He beleives the day is not distant when wines from Owens valley will readily sell for two and a half to three dollars a gallon, when most of the wines from Napa and Los Angeles will not sell for more than fifty to sixty cents a gallon. Mr. Lubin already owns a vineyard adjoining the well known Natoma vineyard, and from his experience there, and knowledge gained by extensive travel, may reasonably be presumed to know something of the matter.

Personal Mention

Mr. J. M. Keeler is at Independence, and will stay some days.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald were at Independence several days this week.

Mr. S. T. Preston and Mr. S. Lewis were in town at the beginning of the week.

J. A. McKenzie arrived at Independence from Darwin last Thursday. He was called to give expert testimony in the Silva case.

Mr. Collins and his son Edward arrived at Independence from Bakersfield, Kern county, last Wednesday. They are now at the ranch at Alvord.

Mr. Ellis Franklin, of Sacramento, who arrived at Independence two weeks ago, has since made a trip to that city and back here again. He came back with Mr. David Lubin.

Mr. Isaac Harris, of Harris & Rhi... accompanied by his son, J. ... have gone to San Francis... the wedding of Miss ... daughter of the form...

A PAYING PROPERTY.

The Hindley Mine Declares a Dividend.

Several times of late mention has been made of the Hindley Mine, near Soda Springs. This mine adjoins the Farington Brothers property, and is likely to be of great value. The Dayton News Reporter says: "Tuesday night the Board of Directors of the Hindley Mining Company met and declared a dividend of $7 50 per foot, amounting to $12,250. This, the first dividend, pays back to the owners all the money they have put into the mine and leaves them a handsome profit beside. Nobody begrudges them their good fortune. and all who know them hope that it may continue. For months they have persistently kept at work upon their claim with nothing but "prospects" for encouragement. Theirs is the reward of honest labor. The company is now on a solid financial basis; has twelve tons of $600 ore on the cars ready for shipment, and much more of the same kind in sight. All the ore thus far shipped has come from one upraise in the main tunnel 211 feet below the surface. Several other upraises are being run from different points in the tunnel for the purpose of obtaining air. In all of these rich ore has been found, but the ground has not been prospected at all. Altogether the mine looks better than it ever has before. The company is working ten men, and expects to pay regular dividends hereafter.

The Silva Case.

The work of taking testimony in the Silva case was finished on Thursday evening. Up till that time Mr. Bennett, U. S. Examiner, had been occupied every day since the beginning of these proceedings in taking the evidence given by witnesses, and far into each night transcribing with his assistants the proceedings of the day. Some witnesses yet remain to be examined in San Francisco. The testimony taken here, amounting to over twelve hundred pages of type writing, has all been read over to, and signed by, the witnesses. At the conclusion of the proseedings on Thursday Mr. Reddy, on behalf of himself and Mr. Miner, the opposing counsel, thanked Mr. Bennett for his uniform courtesy during the examination, and congratulated him on the manner in which his arduous duties had been performed.

The testimony in this case lately taken at Carson, together with that taken here, and what yet remains to be taken at San Francisco, will all be submitted to the U. S. Circuit Judge, and after argument by counsel will be studied by him and judgment in the case will then be rendered. Some months may pass bhfore final judgment is given. Mr. Bennett, and his assistants, Mr. S. Putnam and Mr. Howard Vernon left this morning for San Francisco.

Health Fountains.

Every year the curative properties of mineral springs are becoming better known, and more people suffering from all kinds of maladies are resorting to such places. Instead of swallowing huge doses of nauseous drugs, as in former years, thousands of invalids now go to watering places, and by drinking the medecinal waters, by rest from labor and the worry of business, by the good nursing and care found at many of these places, health is restored, while the patient is at the same time enjoying a delightful rest and recreation. In the whole United States no mineral springs have more valuable medecinal qualities than those at Soda Springs, on the line of the Carson and Colorado railroad, and no where else are guests treated with tenderer care or superior courtesy. The waters of these springs have been found of especial value to persons suffering from the effects of lead fumes, powder smoke, or impure air in mines. In the ten years that Mr. and Mrs. Brazzanovich have had charge of the Springs, not a single patient has died there. The charges are as moderate as the waters and attendance are excellent. Try Soda Springs.

WHAT WE DO.

Every day people living in the country are learning more and more to get their things of dress and personal need of the city merchants. It is they who have the greatest variety of goods, the freshest styles and the lowest prices—the three things necessary to the most successful buying.

By means of SAMPLES and ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES and by aid of long experience and skill in filling orders, we are able to place the advantages offered our city trade equally within reach of out of town customers.

As to cost of sending goods to and fro, we might add that transportation charges have been so reduced that they hardly figure in the handsome saving usually gained.

Have you doubts as to the merits of this system of trade? Try it!

Science and Industry.

European ingenuity in the construction of destructive instruments was perhaps never so active as at the present time, and past successes only stimulate to still greater achievements in this line. In England and other countries, in order to overcome the rifled mortar—a short gun with a relatively short range—guns have been invented having a length of fifty feet and a range of eight to ten miles. The thickness of solid armor plates has also been increased until the Italian ironclad Italia has thirty-six inches of armor on her sides and carries four 100-ton guns, which throw shells of 2,000 pounds a distance of ten miles. Not satisfied with even such monstrous guns, the same Government contracted, two years ago, with Krupp, to build for them five 10-ged steel breech-loading guns of 125 tons each, fifty-five feet long, and a projective of 2,500 pounds.

An improvement has been made in compound engines—those in which the products of combustion pass from the furnace around one or more of the steam cylinders. According to this arrangement the furnace connects with the smoke-stack directly and also by a divergent trunk, which is enlarged to form a chamber, so that all the products of combustion shall pass through the chamber when the damper in the direct flue is closed. The low-pressure cylinder is within the chamber, which is large enough to leave space around the cylinder sufficient for drainage, and the packing glands of the piston and valve rods project below the bottom of the chamber, so as to be accessible, and removable plates also permit access to the cylinder head and steam chest cover. The damper is to be opened when the fire is just started up and when the engine is at rest. It is asserted that, by means of this arrangement, condensation in the cylinder is largely prevented, the resulting being fine, dry steam and perfect safety.

M. Sorrel's milestone cement, for which so remarkable a capacity is claimed, is said to have come into very general use. The oxychloride of magnesium is the basis of an artificial burrstone, and is formed by adding a solution of chloride of magnesium, of the proper strength and in the proper proportions, to the oxide of magnesium, obtained by calcining magnesite. The magnesite is burnt by ordinary lime kilns at a dark red heat. The result is pro[t]e magnesium, which is next [g]round to a powder between [m]illstones, thus making a perfectly [d]ry powder. This is then mixed [w]ith powdered soapstone [o]r talc. It is then put into [b]arrels, casks, or other [v]essels, and will keep in [a] perfectly dry place for [m]any months. When, however, it is wetted with [a] solution of magnesium, which converts the oxide of magnesium into the oxychloride, and the new cement plastic mixture is rammed or tamped into the holes required to be filled, where it hardens. The chemical result is due to the combination of the chloride with the oxide of magnesium, and this, covering each particle of the ground burrstone with a thin film, causes the mass to adhere together with such solidity that, when made into blocks or stones, it is capable of resisting a crushing weight of more than ten tons to the square inch.

No More Roots.

"No, I didn't lose that leg in the war," replied a stranger, yesterday, as he leaned up against the cold wall of the post-office. "I used to claim that my leg was shot off at the battle of Antietam, but one day something happened to cure me of lying. I was stumping along the highway in Ohio, and stopped at a farmhouse to beg for dinner.

"'Where did you lose that leg?' asked the woman.

"'At Gettysburg.'

"'Sit down till I call my husband.'

"He came in from the barn, and I was asked where my regiment was stationed in the battle.

"'In the cemetery,' I replied.

"'Oh! Well, my son Bill was in the cemetery, too. I'll call him in.'

"Bill soon came in, and wanted to know what particular gravestone I took shelter benind. I said it was a Scotch granite monument.

"'Oh,' grunted Bill. My brother Bob was behind just such a stone, and I'll call him in.'

"Bob came in, and he swore a mighty oath that he was there alone. He sort o' pre-empted that monument, and remembered the inscription to a word. However, to give me the benefit of a doubt, I was asked to name my company and regiment.

"'Company "B," Fifth Ohio,' I promptly answered.

"'Oh! Brother Jim was in that company; I'll call him in.'

"Jim came in, took a square look at me and remarked:—

"'Stranger, our regiment wasn't within 200 miles of Gettysburg during the war!'

"'I said Twenty-fifth. Of course the Fifth wasn't there.'

"'Oh! I'll call in my brother Aaron; he was in the Twenty-fifth.'

"Aaron came in, called me a wooden-legged old liar, and I was pitched over the fence into the road. They've got this war business down so fine that you can't go around playing roe on the country no more, and the best way is to own right up that you got drunk and got in the way of a locomotive."—[Free Press.

Go and Join the Marines.

The average marine is not usually supposed to sleep on a bed of roses, or to live on the fat of the land, but the marine at the Washington barracks is the envy of every other marine in the service. Not only are the quarters kept in first-class condition, but the food is pleasing in variety and bountiful in quantity. It is tested before each meal by the officer of the day. Here are two specimen dinner menus for the weekly bill of fare: No. 1—Soup, roast beef, stewed onions, string beans, and potatoes. No. 2—Soup, roast mutton, green peas, stewed onions, mashed potatoes, and plum pudding. A private in the marine corps receives $1 per month, and if he is stationed in Washington he lives like a fighting-cock—that is to say, like a thirteen-dollar-a-month fighting-cock. Major Howsen is the officer to whom the marines are indebted for the marked improvement in their rations.—[Towle, in Boston Traveler.

Wire or fibrous nails are coming into use, and are claimed to be, in some respects, quite an improvement upon the ordinary cut nail, especially on the score of tenacity. They are not only tough, but will penetrate hard wood where cut nails would break or become badly bent for cut.

HOW TO MARRY.

A Treatise That Should Be Read By Everybody.

The following is a Philadelphia physician's advice to a young man prospecting for a wife:—

When the adult age is reached—what? As truly as every positive requires a negative, every knife its fork, and that opposites attract, so, too, with the genus homo, like birds they must mate, and it is not good for man to be alone. The great event of a man's life is to seek and secure a sweetheart and then have a wedding day. Now, to choose a proper wife and companion is the puzzle or puzzles in every man's experience. Some choose for beauty, others for accomplishments and blandishments, some for wit and manners, and the average young man for money and family, but, after all love, supported by prudence and discretion, other things being equal, should act as the all-inspiring motive. Happiness follows love, and wealth cannot buy happiness; it may contribute to its existence, but happiness is an attribute beyond purchase.

As a physical adviser, no marriage should occur unless both contracting parties are healthy subjects; to be a good animal is the highest gift in nature.

A marriage has vast responsibilities, hinging upon it the future procreation of our species, the perpetuation of the human family; therefore no man wants to become the father of a race of pigmies or deformed dwarfs—physical cripples, to the disgrace of himself, his wife and his progeny—God forbid! Let a man consider this well. First of all, then, see that the prospective wife be a thoroughly healthy girl and fine animal.

It is safe for us to say that nowadays far too many mothers are culpable for encouraging matrimony when they know in their heart of hearts that their daughters are subject to organic disease. This is to be severely deprecated and frowned down upon wherever and whenever seen. On the other hand, the presumptive swain who contemplates Hymen's knot and himself a shattered wreck is nothing short of a criminal. Marriage is indeed a serious question.

Next, the salt of common sense is an important necessity. Since marriage resolves itself into a permanent covenant instituted by God, to be be broken only by death, and not like a loose pair of shoes that can be put on in the morning and removed at night, it is an issue that should occupy the mental, the moral, the spiritual, the practical and the consequential deductions of all thinking people to the soberest degree. The civil law, may separate, but it cannot sever.

A divorce is a blot on the page of history, and about it there is always a bad smell. Any one who espouses the conjugal yoke with the prospect of divorce ahead weds an ignis fatuus. Hence a man should choose his wife as did the sainted Primrose of "Vicar of Wakefield" memory, who chose his as she chose her wedding gown, not for fine, glossy surface, but for qualities that would wear well. A woman is either the fortune or bankruptcy of a man's future.

All tailors cut the coat according to the cloth, which suggests how young folks should consider the circumstances of each other. It is wrong for a struggling young man, without money or influence in the world, to wed a girl of affluence and wealth, fostered in the lap of luxury by kind and loving parents, when the same conditions cannot be extended her in the future; but then it is wrong for her to encourage such a young man unless she is willing to share his struggles and misfortunes as an equal yoke-fellow and companion. The word wife means weaver, i. e., a wife should weave along with her husband the web of life.

There are two many young girls brought up under the present regime of society, so called, who, by indulgent mothers, become imbued with false notions and fritter away their time in learning useless trifles, until their muscles atrophy and leave them mere automatons to pose for the entertainment of visitors, like overdressed parlor dolls under a glass case. They lace, powder, effect frivols, study how to make conquests, etc., in short, to assume all the evils of prevailing fashion. These creatures die young of tight lacer's liver or ennui. Young man, beware!

There is no object so fascinating as a pretty-faced, intelligent woman, when a woman to commend herself as an eligible candidate for matrimony should be useful as well as ornamental. A model wife is an economist, a bread saver, while her husband is the bread winner.

Little domestic drudgery is a healthy antidote against disease, and makes a fine wife and mother than a mere hot-house plant. If she has a thorough knowledge of household economy (Dody's Domestic Economy) far too many girls nowadays marry and marriage long before they have learned to spank a pepper-box. Any one who follows this council will not go astray.—[Philadelphia

A Few Little Ones.

"I am so pleased," said Clara to her little friend. "Last Saturday they gave me such a beautiful doll for a birthday present." "Ah! you still play with dolls? I don't; I'm too big now." "And what have you done with yours?" "I have locked it in the cupboard. It will do for my children." "But suppose you have no children." "Then it will go to my grandchildren."

"What are you waiting for, little boy?" inquired a kindly old gentleman of a street urchin, who was watching each passer-by intently. "Waitin' for a long-whiskered gent smokin' a seegar. Then I'll foller him an' git the stub."

"Do long-whiskered men smoke better cigars?"

"Naw, but they don't smoke 'em so short."

The Sunday-school teacher was telling her class the story of the Good Samaritan, and the lessons which should be drawn from it. "Now, Johnnie," said she to one of the boys, "if you should have found one of your playmates, whom you did not like, as this good Samaritan found the Jew, what would you have done?" "Golly!" replied Johnnie earnestly, "you can bet your life I'd climbed on the fence and hollered 'Goody—goody!' if I'd got a lickin' for it next minute."

A good little boy had been brought up to believe that a lottery ticket purchased on Sunday would not prove lucky, and he denied himself. A bad little boy did not believe in such scruples. He went boldly to a cigar store and bought a ticket on Sunday. The result is to be told. Neither of the boys drew a cent. Moral: It makes no difference.

Flossy—Come, Johnnie, let's play we's married.

Johnnie—Very well, Flossy.

F.—Come, den, come in to dinner. How do you like dinner to-day, my dear?

J.—It is a good dinner. A very good dinner, indeed.

F.—Oh! you mustn't say that. You must say it ain't wuf a dam. If I couldn't cook better dan dat I would hire myself out for a shape in a dry goods store.

Little Tommy had behaved so badly on his first appearance at church that his mother declared she wouldn't allow him to go again. The next Sunday at church time, Tommy was deeply grieved on being informed that he was to stay at home.

"Please, mamma, won't you let me go?" he pleaded. "I'll be juss as good, and I won't do a single thing that's wrong."

"No, Tommy," was the firm reply, "you cannot go to church again until you are old enough to behave."

A tempest of tears ensued. When the violence of the shower was over, Tommy looked up, pathetically wiping his eyes, and moaned:—

"Well, I do think it's too bad that a little boy who loves God the way I do, and loves to hear people talk about him, can't go to church."

Forgery Made Easy.

David N. Carvalho, a handwriting expert in the District Attorney's office at New York, says that forgeries by amateurs are increasing, and that they are encouraged by the bad practices that have grown up in the commercial houses—the use of stylographic pens and analine inks. Many large houses, he says, recognizing the lack of character in a signature written with a stylographic pen, have discarded them altogether in signing checks and papers of similar importance, and the Surrogate's office at New York requires paper to be signed with a steel or quill pen. A stylographic signature is easily imitated, and when it comes to identifying the genuine signature, a difficulty is met, arising from the effect of the movement on the essential characteristic features. Analine inks are still more dangerous, because they can be copied exactly, by the use of copying pads, on the principle of the hektograph.

Where Lynch Law Came From.

A curious fact is that although the lynching of Henry Mason, colored, recently, for the murder of Mr. Hammersley, is the first occurrence of the kind in Campbell County, the very name of "lynch law" was derived from a native of that county, old Col. Lynch, who was in the habit of administering summary punishment to marauders and miscreants of every description without paying any attention to the ordinary processes of law. Hence he was called "Judge Lynch," and this, it is said, is the true origin of the terms "lynching" and "lynch law."—[Lynchburg (Va.) News.

THE VANITY OF MEN.

Stout Legs, Broad Chests, and How They Are Obtained.

There is a profession which many people know nothing of. It is that of the man who models the human figure, but not in clay. He models in cloth. An expert in this art can demand a large salary and is always sure of employment in the large tailoring houses. A reporter visited a fashionable up-town tailor to have a talk with one of these artists. He was introduced to a dapper little Frenchman of about forty-five years.

"You have had a large experience in your profession, I suppose?" asked the reporter.

"I have given it my constant study for nearly twenty years, and the more I see of it the less faith I have in the common sense of most of my patrons."

"That's rather a broad assertion to make."

"Nevertheless, it is true and becoming more so every day. You Americans are of all people the least satisfied with what nature has given you. You are always trying to go one better than nature and instead of trying natural means in the way of taking plenty of air and muscular exercise you substitute the pad and the corset."

"Will you tell me the latest idea of a good figure from a dude's standpoint?"

"That depends a great deal upon what the dude wants. If he wants a finely developed pair of calves, I can supply him. If he lacks breadth of chest, I can furnish him with as fine a chest, as you could wish to see. Should the deficiency be in the shoulders, I can produce a pair that Atlas himself would envy. The process of producing them is very simple. But first I must inform you that I have nothing to do with tailoring. I simply make cloth coats or pads which answer the same purpose to the tailors as lasts do to a shoemaker. To do this it is absolutely necessary to have an accurate idea of the proportions of the customer; otherwise it would lead to a very amusing confusion. Once I had a customer who wanted to possess a shapely pair of legs. The original ones were sufficiently full for all practical purposes, but he wanted them more full. I made some pads for the thighs, calves and hips. They were made of fine chamois leather and when finished they were sewn into the trousers. The result was the gentleman walked on Fifth Avenue next morning with finely shaped legs, but entirely out of proportion with other parts of his body."

"Do many people wear pads of this description?"

"Quite a large number. Most gentlemen prefer to wear padded undergarments; by this means they avoid the bulky appearance which padded clothes gives them. The cheapest outfit costs $35.—[New York Mail and Express.

The Frozen Valley of the Lena.

Scientific men have been perplexed for many years over the phenomenon of a certain well at Yakutsk, Siberia. A Russian merchant in 1828 began to dig the well, but he gave up the task three years later, when he dug down thirty feet and was still in solidly frozen soil. Then the Russian Academy of Sciences dug away at the well for months, but stopped when it had reached a depth of 382 feet, when the ground was still frozen as hard as a rock. In 1844 the academy had the temperature of the excavation carefully taken at various depths, and from these data it was estimated that the ground was frozen to a depth of 612 feet. Although the pole of the greatest cold is in this province of Yakutsk, not even the great severity of the Siberian winters could freeze the ground to a depth of 600 feet. Geologists have decided that the frozen valley of the lower Lena is a formation of the glacial period. They believe, in short, that it froze solidly then, and has never since had a chance to thaw out.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY JULY 3 .....1886.

FIRE!

Independence Burned!

Loss, $285,000

About ten minutes to four o'clock last Wednesday afternoon, fire broke out in a building between Mattack's blacksmith shop and Mair's livery stable on Main street, Independence. Instantly the alarm was given and a crowd rushed to the building; buckets and water were plenty, but no ladders were at hand. A fatal delay of a few minutes followed before the first ladder was brought; this delay caused the destruction of the town. The building was like tinder, there were some pots of paint and oil inside, flames burst out almost as quickly as if loose powder were fired; the blacksmith shop, twelve feet distant on one side, and the livery stable, about as far away on the other side, were wrapped in flames almost in a moment. The livery stable was a building, half a block in length; the blacksmithshop was also a large building and from these great masses of flame rolled out, crossed the street, and the Blaney House was quickly in flames too. As usual when big fires get fairly started, a strong breeze sprung up; the flames rolled and roared till the whole air seemed filled with fire and thunder. South of the Blaney House stood the Meat Market; the upper floor of this building was occupied by Mr. McMahon as a dwelling; there was but little time to get anything out from either floor till the whole building was in flames. A vacant space of about sixty feet separated this building from the store and dwelling of L. Wood. The flames leaped across, and directly another big building was roaring like the others. A wide street on the south of Wood seperated the great store building of Harris & Rhine from the fire, and it was hoped the destruction would stop here. The hope was vain; the waves of flame swept across the eighty feet of space, and soon the great building was sending out other and greater waves of fire. A large yard, about a hundred feet wide, lay between Harris & Rhine and the Miners Home hotel, owned by Henry Levy. The hotel and a dwelling house, also owned by Mr. Levy, appeared to burst into flame from the intense heat, and were entirely enveloped in a few minutes. East from the Harris & Rhine building, and separated by two yards, together about a hundred feet wide, was a large dwelling house occupied by C. Mulholand and family. This building was completely surrounded by shade trees, and the occupant thought it was quite safe. He was mistaken, the flames reached it, and it was wiped out, very little of the contents being saved. In fact the family got away with very little more than they had on their backs.

THE COURT HOUSE DESTROYED

North of the Blaney House, standing in a large yard and having a grove of large shade trees in front and between it and the Blaney House, was the County Court House. For some time it was hoped the Court House would escape, but the very air seemed turned to flame; great lurid masses rolled and roared high up across the street from the stable and over the trees, the roof caught fire and the Court House was doomed. Mr. I. S. Peeler, deputy Clerk; Mr. J. J. Moore, under sheriff; District Attorney Laird; Dan Crough, George Lewis and Mr. Davis and one or two others, were busy in the mean time, and before the lower part of the building burst into flames all the county records and books and all the books belonging to the office of the Assessor were saved. The law library of the District Attorney was all destroyed; his office being on the second floor there was no chance to save anything. The dwelling of John Broder, north of the Court House, went with the rest. A number of small buildings just back of the Court House and Hotel shared the general fate. East from these, and about a hundred and twenty yards distant, was a large barn. Blazing shingles reached it; there was a fresh roar, a crash, and then a big heap of fire. The great warehouse of Harris & Rhine, a little farther south, went in the same way. This building burned many hours, and made a terrible fire. The whole east side of Main Street was now one vast mass of flame, for the fire spread so rapidly that all the buildings were burning at once, the wind blew fircely, and the uproar of wind and fire was awful.

THE WOOD BUILDING.

On the west side of Main street, where the [illegible] the burning dwelling house; this did no good. The space that separated this from the store was about forty feet wide; the blacksmith shop was about sixty feet from the store, a brook running between them. The heat got so intense that Mulholland could no longer endure it, nor could any one approach to pass him water. He got down, and the store was left to its fate. A building just south was wrapped in flames directly; the saloon of Jerry Mairs was enveloped, and then the large building on the corner. This building, on the second floor, was occupied by O. I. Mairs and family as a residence; the ground floor was the general store of McMahon & Jiggins. It took but a moment for the flames to leap across the street south, seize the saloon building of John C. Irwin and from there extend to the Post Office and residence of George H. Hardy. The drug store of Doctor Stevenson went with these; the flames leapt over an alley and caught another big livery stable belonging to A. Parker; this burst into a roar of fire in a moment. Now nearly the whole was town flaming, the fire spread so rapidly that all was burning at the same instant. The air was filled with fire, flames leaped and roared and the heat was so intense that all efforts to save goods was abandoned. In fact almost nothing was saved by anybody, the citizens were driven away and could only stand helplessly looking on at the destruction of their homes and property. An orchard on the south side of Parker's stable arrested the fire in that direction, and the dwellings of J. J. Moore and H. P. Cartier were saved. The printing office, being still farther south, was also saved. West from the Mairs property, and separated from it by a street, is the brewery building, surrounded by large shade trees. Here there is a pump and hose, and by prompt use of these and wet blankets, and sheltered by the trees, the building was saved. This takes long in the telling, but a very short time destroyed the town; in half an hour after the alarm was given the fire was at its worst, and inside of two hours very little more was left to be destroyed.

HOMELESS AND DESTITUTE.

All the stores and warehouses in town were burned; no provisions, clothing, beds or bedding remained except in the few dwellings west of the burned district. A messenger rode to Camp Independence and told what had happened, and at once teams were hitched up and sent in for the women and children. Settlers there were promptly on hand to take the homeless and care for them. May God reward them for their kindness. When the news reached Lone Pine A. C. Harvey and Manuel Diaz at once hitched up their teams, the wagons were loaded with provisions and bedding and both started for Independence, arriving about midnight. From South of town J. W. Symmes, John Lank, John Shepherd and others came up with offers of food and shelter and soon all were temporarily provided for.

NEEDS.

All the stores being burned no supplies of any kind can be got in the town. There are cases where two or three families have divided one sack of flour among them. Women and children are left almost naked. Food garments and bedding are needed.

COUNTY FUNDS SAFE.

Next morning after the fire the County Treasurer went to the ruins of the Court House and found the safe. Not much difficulty was had in opening it, and the contents were found all safe.

HARRIS & RHINES'S SAFE.

The large safe of this firm was also found next morning with all its contents uninjured. Being placed on a foundation of solid stone work, the safe was found in an upright position; it opened easily. The contents were examined, the books and papers found all right and the safe was closed again.

COUNTY LOSS LIGHT.

The Court House was insured for ten thousand dollars. Material of all kinds is now very much cheaper than when the building was put up and it is estimated that nearly, if not quite, as good a building can be put up for that sum.

OTHER LOSSES.

It will not be accurately known for some time how much has been lost by the citizens. As near as can now be ascertained the amount of insurance is about eighty thousand dollars. The losses are estimated at two hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars. When such a loss as this falls upon so small a town as Independence it is a very serious matter for the losers.

THE HEAVIEST LOSERS.

Probably the heaviest losers are O. I. Mairs and Harris & Rhine. The former had several valuable buildings burned and not a dollar of insurance; the latter carried a very heavy stock of goods with comparatively light insurance; McMahon & Jiggens had just gone into business, they had not yet effected any insurance and their stock is a total loss. Mr. A. Parker is also a heavy loser; the blacksmith shop belonged to him and this, with his dwelling house and a large livery stable are all a total loss. Woods, Eibeshutz, Chenot, Irwin, Hardy, all of these are supposed to be reasonably well insured though all have suffered loss. The loss of Henry Levy is total; his hotel building, dwelling house, furniture, apparel, bedding and much goods, all are destroyed and no insurance. C. Mulholland and family lost nearly everything. Neither he nor his wife and children saved even a change of garments. In a word, there was an alarm of fire, a sea of flame and wind, blinding volumes of suffocating smoke and the town gone.

WANTS.

Supervisors are wanted to me[et] ately; they should at once e[nter] to clean off the ruins of [the] Court House and get ready to rebuild. The insurance money can be got in a few days. Proposals should be published for bids to put up the building. No time should be lost in this matter. There is plenty of pipe on hand to bring water into the town, this pipe should be laid at once. The fire has destroyed enough to have built the water works ten times over. Several individuals are losers to a greater amount than would build the works. Let no one say he cannot afford the expense: he can far less afford to take the risk involved by want of water. We want building materiel, but it will take some days for parties to determine what kinds and amounts they will need. We want a few tents to give shelter for a time in town, so that time may not be lost in travel to and from the farms around. We have plenty of hope and energy, but we need united, well directed work to rebuild our town.

MARRED BEAUTY.

Independence was rich in beautiful shade trees, fine little orchards and pretty arbors. On several streets the trees are now gaunt, blackened skeletons; the orchards are ruined and scarcely a trace of some of the arbors remain.

A MOURNER.

Next morning after the fire, a citizen looking at the ruins of his dwelling, saw the pet cat of his baby boy sitting on the blackened limb of a burned shade tree. Her fur, no longer smooth and clean, was singed and grimed with smoke and ashes. She looked a perfect picture of inconsolable grief; her head was bowed, and if ever a cat's eyes were dimmed with tears, her's were. Marius, mourning over the ruins of Carthage, might look more dignified, but could not look more forlorn than that cat. Poor Maggie, we know how to pity her.

WILL REBUILD.

Mr. Henry Levy says he will make immediate preparation to build a new hotel on the site of the Miners Home; destroyed in the fire. He will go to San Francisco at once to order building material, furniture and goods, and expects to be ready for business again in about six weeks.

HOSPITALITY.

The few who were not burned out have been hospitable to their less fortunate neighbors. Judge Hannah has a houseful of boarders, but he is the only one who pays. Mr. Laird was promptly on hand, and gave most cordial invitations to his neighbors to come to his house and they would be cared for. Mr. Peeler, E. Robinson, Mr. Hunter, M. Spangler, Mr. Matlack, Dan. Crough, Mr. Brady and Mr. J. J. Moore, all made the homeless ones welcome. Doubtless others did the same.

TEMPORARY COURT HOUSE.

The Methodist Church has been secured for temporary use as a Court House; it will afford ample accomodation for the present.

CLERK'S OFFICE.

The County Clerk will for the present have his office in a room in the dwelling of the deputy Clerk, Mr. R. S. Peeler, on Market Street.

A FIRE COMPANY.

A properly organized and well drilled fire Company of even twenty firemen would have saved most of the property destroyed.

HARRIS & RHINE.

Are the heaviest losers; their total losses foot up about $85,000, insurance $45,000. Mr. Harris is in San Francisco, and Mr. Rhine at once telegraphed him to buy a stock of staple goods and ship as quick as possible. The store building destroyed by the fire cost the firm $18,000 to build and fit up. They will at once set about building a better structure than the first. Such are the statements made by Mr. Rhine.

MCMAHON & JIGGINS

Have opened for business in Good Templars Hall. They have an assortment of goods on hand, and plenty on the way.

TENTING.

Levy and Thurston are fitting up a large hotel tent, and by tomorrow or next day will be able to accomodate all comers with plenty to eat.

MEAT MARKET.

For the present the Meat Market will be opened in the printing office building. Other quarters will be provided in a few days. Prices for all kinds of meats sold in town will be put to the lowest figures till all the sufferers can recover a little from our present destitute condition.

Reason it Out.

Suppose you are about to enter London, or some great metropolis. You are a stranger going there to buy goods for yourself or family. You will probably be reasoning in this wise:

"I do not know where to buy. I am unacquainted with "any store. But I shall try and find the largest establish- "ment. For where the most people choose to buy, there the "general styles and assortments will be the most satisfactory "and prices the lowest. It MUST BE so, or else such a concern "would not attract the largest trade. Still there is this diffi- "culty: I do not know the VALUE of all I wish to [buy] "may be charged more for some things, than other [people] "who are better posted on prices. Therefore, I shall be [care]- "ful to ask if this largest establishment has a secret [mode] "marking prices, permitting salesmen to charge me as much "as they think I will pay, or whether its prices are [one] "plain figures, insuring me as much for my money as [its] "its most favored customers.

* * * * *

A parallel to the above is found in the fact that thousands of people, all over the Pacific Coast, are now looking to large city merchants for their supplies, but do not know where, or how to send.

Will not the same course of reasoning hold good in these cases? If so, why not place your trade accordingly? DEAL WITH THE LARGEST ESTABLISHMENT.

The stock of our house includes nearly a hundred different lines of goods, and because its business methods have always afforded PROTECTION to inexperienced, or absent buyers, this, the eleventh year from the acorn, finds it a towering oak of vast proportions, its trade reaching into every town and hamlet, from Montana to New Mexico.

What has thus grown to be a center of interest to so many thousands of buyers may be of DIRECT INTEREST to you.

If you send your name and address we will mail FREE a copy of our large Illustrated Catalogue. It gives full information about goods, styles and prices, and how to order. It is worth having as a book of reference, whether you choose to order goods of us or not.

Equality.

In turning the leaves of one of the exquisitely illustrated magazines, which are now the most magnificent patrons of the American wood engraver, one is naturally led to consider the overmastering tendency of our civilization, which is, in a certain sense, typified by these luxurious periodicals. The American magazine, so far as the letter press is concerned, lacks the pro[illegible]y that belongs to the leading English publications; but the paper is of the finest quality, the illustrations are often real works of art, and the articles treat on the questions which go to make up "the form and body of the time." It is not very long since such a book could not have been produced at all, even for the use of the privileged few, and it is a very short time, indeed, since the masses could hope to know any of the pleasures which are now provided with unfailing regularity.

It is the same throughout all the wide domain of human thought. In ancient times there was no lack of marvelously acute speculation, but [illegible]gest efforts of the thinkers [illegible]but little change in the [illegible]ding conditions of the masses [illegible]ust always constitute the [illegible]al fiber of society. While [illegible] was writing his masterly [illegible]s on the relations of men, [illegible]ory of human beings were [illegible]uarly being appropriated as the [illegible]oils of imperial conquest. The [illegible]randest flights of Grecian oratory [illegible]d not touch very deeply the moral [illegible]ture of the average Greek. There [illegible]ted then an intense appreciation [illegible]verything that possessed the [illegible] form of art, but there was [illegible]r inability to perceive the [illegible]importance of general [illegible]s to the greatest masses of [illegible]umanity. Democracy had then made great progress in theory, but it had absolutely failed to mould the thought and legislation of the time.

Now, however, all this is changed. Books are no longer written for the few; laws are not made for the benefit of a narrow caste; governments are no longer worked for the advantage of what was once the governing class. Equality, the essence of democracy, is the very soul of our civilization, and no statesman can now afford to overlook this dominating fact. The writer and the man of science must also clearly recognize the existence of this new factor in our modern thought if they hope to materially influence the destinies of the race.

Doubtless this immediate responsibility to public opinion, and the consequent temptation to work with an eye to immediate effect, are fatal to [illegible]ghtest form of art. If [illegible]enes were living now, he [illegible]ly have the patience to [illegible]and re-trans[illegible] of Thucydides, in [illegible]er to catch the secret of his style he would know full well that all [illegible]latter ends of oratory are now to [illegible]achieved by simpler and less [illegible]stic means. There is a [illegible], in hopeless suffer[illegible]an inexpressible sad[illegible]e of a human being for [illegible]angements of society [illegible]mbition the merest [illegible]art of a dream. The world is [illegible]ch in works of art whose eternal [illegible]ues of beauty time's destroying [illegible]and can never touch, and we may, therefore, forgive the artistic shortcomings of our civilizations which—through the correlated agencies of science, and legislation—[illegible]ve the barriers to that [illegible] is not the synonym [illegible] is simply the ex[illegible]relief that all men [illegible]er free to struggle [illegible]he darkness to the [illegible]as Picayune.

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Scotland, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family, than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 100 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and saves as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."

JOHN R. DODGE, JR., jeweler, Normal, Ill., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. Let it is the best machine ever invented by man. 25. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. 85. If you run short, you can not buy ours for $1000."

I will ship a sample to those desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best washer in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Pays capable agents big money. Write for particulars.

Etiquette.

The etiquette of the "At Home" is by no means the etiquette of the ball, the lunch, or the dinner. People talk of sending "regrets" in response to an "at home" which is not at all the thing to do. If a lady is not able to be present she has but to mail her card to arrive on the afternoon on which the tea is given, and later when the hostess looks over her cards she discovers who were present in person and who acknowledge her invitation by sending cards. The "At Home" is a miscellaneous affair, and special acceptances or regrets are quite out of place. The practice of removing the bonnet at lunch is almost exclusively confined to Boston. In New York no lady would dream of removing her bonnet at lunch any more than she would in church. In the dining-rooms at the Windsor and the Victoria it is exceptional to see a lady without a bonnet at the luncheon hour, while in Boston, at the Vendome, it is as exceptional to see one with her hat, unless it is a transient guest.—[Boston Traveller.

A Very Slow Blizzard.

Two Frenchmen, one from Dakota and one from Texas, were talking in the lobby of a Chicago hotel.

"Yes," said the Dakotan, "we have a good deal of wind in Dakota. But the Texas norther isn't very slow, is it? How fast does it travel?"

"Why you've no idea how swift it is," replied the Texan. "We can only measure it by electricity. When it strikes a town an' they telegraph to the next one to 'look out,' ten to one the blasted thing'll be there first. How fast is a blizzard?"

"Well," said the Dakotan, "I don't know; we can't measure its speed. There's nothin' you can time it by. The only one I ever saw that could be measured went twice as fast as lightnin'. There was somethin' queer about that. The thing went awful slow and we couldn't tell what was the matter till we found it was draggin' one of them 'tarnal Texas northers 'long behind."

Knights of the Bath.

A few days ago a well-known young man shocked one of his lady friends by his ignorance of history. It was after a dinner party at his house and she was telling him what she had learned in her private history class. One thing led to another, and all the time he was getting into deeper water. At last she surprised him by inquiring: "Now tell me, Mr. ——, what are the Knights of the Bath?" He stammered for a while, and finally blurted out: "Why, Saturday nights, I suppose."

There was once a man who had the reputation of being bad. Wherever he went people were always watching to catch him tripping. On a certain occasion a safe was blown open and robbed, and because this bad man happened to be within twenty miles of the spot, he was arrested for the crime. There were witnesses who swore to having seen burglar's tools in his possession, and others who swore to having seen him near the place, and with the help of a corrupt judge and a bribed jury the innocent bad man was sent to State Prison for seven years. He was bowed down for a while, but and by he sent for a lawyer and asked:—

"What will you charge to get evidence showing that Senator Logan committed this burglary and thus secure me my liberty?"

BILL NYE.

Declines an Invitation to Visit Washington.

Bill Nye writes as follows, through the Boston Globe:—

I have just received your kind and cordial invitation to come to Washington and spend several weeks there among the eminent men of our proud land. I would be glad to go as you suggest, but I cannot do so at this time. I am passionately fond of mingling with the giddy whirl of good society. I hope you will not feel that my reason for declining your kind invitation is that I feel myself above good society. I assure you I do not. Nothing pleases me more than to dress up and mingle among my fellow-men, with a sprinkling here and there of the other sex. It is true that the most profitable study for mankind is man, but we should not overlook woman. Woman is now seeking to be emancipated. Let us put our great, strong arms around her and emancipate her. Even if we cannot emancipate but one, we shall not have lived entirely for naught.

I am told by those upon whom I can rely that there are hundreds of attractive young women throughout our joyous land who have arrived at years of discretion and yet who have never been emancipated. I met a woman on the cars last week who is lecturing on this subject, and she told me all about it. Now the question presents itself, how shall we emancipate woman unless we go where she is? We must go right into society and take her by the hand and never let go of her hand until she is properly emancipated. Not only must she be emancipated, but she must be emancipated from her present thralldom. Thralldom of this kind is liable to break out in any community, and those who are now in perfect health may pine away in a short time and flicker.

My course while I am mingling in society's mad whirl is to first open the conversation with a young lady by leading her away to the conservatory, where I ask her if she has ever been the victim of thralldom and whether or not she has ever been ground under the heel of the tyrant man. I then time her pulse for thirty minutes, so as to strike a good average. The emancipation of woman is destined at some day to become one of our leading industries.

You asked me to kindly lead the German while there. I would cheerfully do so, but, owing to the wobbly eccentricity of my cyclone leg, it would be a sort of a broken German. But I could sit by and watch the game with a furtive glance, and fan the young ladies between the acts, and converse with them in low, earnest, passionate tones. I like to converse with people in whom I take an interest. I was conversing with a young lady one evening at a recherche ball in my far-away home in the free and unfettered West, a very brilliant affair, I remember, under the auspices of hose company No. 2. I was talking in a loud and earnest way to this liquid-eyed creature, a little louder than usual, because the music was rather forte just there, and the base viol virtuoso was bearing on rather hard at that moment. The music ceased with a sudden snort, and so did my wife, who was just waltzing past us. If I had ceased to converse at the same time that the music shut off all might have been well, but I did not.

Your remark that the President and Cabinet would be glad to see me this winter is ill-timed.

There have been times when it would have given me great pleasure to visit Washington, but I did not vote for Mr. Cleveland, to tell the truth, and I know that if I were to go to the White House and visit even for a few days, he would reproach me and throw it up to me. It is true that I did not pledge myself to vote for him, but still I would hate to go to a man's house and eat his popcorn and use his smoking tobacco aft[er] I had voted against him and t[alked] about him as I have abo[ut] land.

No, I can't be a[t] right out, ope[n] If I talk[ed] ack, I ing to assist the families of those who are in the political arena trying to obtain a precarious livelihood thereby. I was once an official under the Federal Government myself, as the curious student of national affairs may learn if he will go to the treasury department at Washington, D. C., and ask to see my voucher for $985, covering salary as United States commissioner for the second judical district of Wyoming for the year 1882. It was at that time a vile contemporary characterized me as "a corrupt and venial Federal official who had fattened upon the hard-wrung taxes of my fellow-citizens and gorged myself for years at the public crib." This was unjust. I was not corrupt. I was not venial. I was only hungry! Yours as here 24.

How General George A. Sheridan Got out of His Tight Box.

Stories of General George A. Sheridan, the stump speaker and lecturer, who is generally paraded as "of Louisiana," are often to be heard in the places where public men gather. He is said to have once declared the axiom that the one thing which a stump orator does not need to burden himself with is facts. It is the General's idea that a facile speaker can create all the facts he wants as he goes along in his speech. In illustration of his meaning he told a story of an occurrence when he was out on a tour with General Garfield. He had made an assertion with reference to the tariff which seemed to him to need some bolstering and he said that his statement had been based on a decision of the highest Court of the State of New York. He was about to pass on, when a young man in the audience interrupted him and begged permission to ask where this decision could be found. The General was "up a stump" and as a fight for time in the hope that Garfield might help him out, he asked the inquirer: "Are you a lawyer?" The stranger replied in the affirmative. "I thought so," said Sheridan. "You look like a lawyer and like a smart and intelligent one at that. You have doubtless read this decision yourself many times." By this time it became apparent to Sheridan that Garfield was enjoying his discomfiture and that he must get out of his scrape the best he could. It flashed across his mind that there was a report in New York known as Denio's and he said: "The report is in fifth Denio, page so and so." The young lawyer wavered a minut[e] and then sat down, saying meekl[y] "Ah, yes, I do remember now h[e] ing read it myself." Sheridan that he had curiosity years after to look up the particular pa[ge] which he referred the inqu[irer] young fellow and found that the middle of a report of a involving questions of idioc[y] York Tribune.

A BALD-HEADED FUTURE.

A New York Physician Predicts The Doom of the Human Hair.

A startling prediction comes from the Nineteenth Century Club. Dr. Wm. A Hammond advances the opinion that in about one thousand years, which will carry us to the year of our Lord 2885-86, all mankind will be bald. Unless the generation living in that age should choose to counterfeit their ancestors of the present day by wearing wigs, only smoothly polished heads, destitute of capillary covering, will be visible from the family circles of theaters or the galleries of churches.

Dr. Hammond does not undertake to predict to what men and women of that distant era will resort to supply this deficiency of hair, or whether they will regard it as a deficiency at all. He only makes a proposition based on his observation of the steady increase of baldness, without even expressing an opinion whether the decline of hair will be a blemish or an ornamentation. Perhaps the esteemed doctor is inclined to regard it as the latter, since his own head emulates the days of 2885, except to a light filamentous fringe which borders the base of the skull.

It is difficult to conjecture to what this universal baldness may lead. If the present fashions should prevail in those days, it is not improbable that ladies may employ distinguished artists to paint "Mikado" figures, birds of bright plumage or indescribable animals on their heads, and enterprising men of business may use the smooth space for advertising purposes. If ladies decide upon wearing wigs the business of hair-dresser and lady's maid will be considerably lightened.

If Dr. Hammond is correct in his prediction it is certain that the termagant wife of 2885 will not be able to take as firm a hold upon her husband as the wife of the present time. It may also be questioned whether the politicians of that date will be any more barefaced than those of 1885, even if they should be mor[e] bareheaded.—[New York Herald.

Who is The Fellow?

A man by the name of Hamblin committed a cold blooded murder some time ago in San Francisco, in the killing of one Massey. Hamblin is now on trial for his crime and is being defended by a man by the name of G. A. Knight. At the time Massey was murdered by Hamblin, there was a man in company with Massey by the name of Smith. This man Knight, in his talk to the jury in referring to Smith, made use of the following language, "he was a soldier and a faro-dealer, a representative—at least by temporary location—of Inyo county, a spot which could only be characterized as the south-east corner of damnation, the refuge of the off scouring of all things."

We do not exactly know who this man Knight is, but of one thing we are positive, that he is ill-bred, and certainly could only be permitted through a strained courtesy by the Court, to appear before a respectable tribunal in the, no doubt, self-assumed capacity of a lawyer. A capacity to which he is not entitled either by good breeding or the common politness of a boor. His villification of a people and a section of which he knows as little about as he does of law, or common decency, stamps him as being of the class, which in city parlance, would be called shyster. If any one can inform us who Knight is and that he is a responsible party we will have him charged with being a libeller and slanderer, and a common liar. If he will come up here we will guarranty that our people will force him to retract his infamous vituperation by treating him so kindly that he will be ashamed of himself, and feel so badly that he will search for something meaner than Paddy Jack's mule to kick him out of the county.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY JULY 10.....1886

—W. L. Hunter will be a candidate for renomination to the office of County Clerk.

Senator Reddy went north on Thursday morning, on his way back to San Francisco.

--S. D. Thurston is a candidate for Sheriff. Sam has "grit" and "go" and would make a good officer.

—John W. P. Laird has been appointed a delegate to the Democratic State Convention for the second time.

—L. Lasky, of Lone Pine, was one of the first to send food and other goods to Independence, after the fire.

—L. Wood is restablihsed in business. He has opened up in the carpenter shop near the residence of H. P. Cartier.

—There are repeated calls for miners of late. Mr. J. S. Gorman wants ten to work in the Defiance mine. See his advertisement.

—Mr. Muth-Rasmussen offers to give five gallons of strained honey to each family, who was burned out if the parties will send up to his house for it.

Testimony was taken during the week in the case of a contested land claim between Robert Arnold and A. D. Gilbert. The land is located at Black Rock.

—An apple tree in the yard adjoining the office of the INYO INDEPENDENT is now in bloom. The tree is seven or eight years old and symmetrical and thrifty in appearance.

—Nothing has transpired to make any change necessary in the estimate published last week of the losses in Independence by the fire, or of the amount of insurance.

—Henry Mack, of Darwin, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county Clerk. Mr. Mack will have strong backing in the convention among the mining men.

—Mr. Frank Fitzgerald has been chosen as delegate to the Democratic State Convention. This is the second time that Mr. Fitzgerald has received the same proof of the respect and confidence of his party in Inyo county.

—The army of candidates for county offices is receiving new recruits every day. It might not be amiss to divide up the offices and provide more places; two or three men and their families could live in considerable style on the solaries now paid to some of the officers.

—The Supervisors, as a Board of Equalization, have been in session most of the week. A few of those whose property was destroyed by the fire last week, asked for a reduction of their assessment. The Board refused to make any reductions.

Mr. Isaac Harris arrived at Independence last Monday. He stayed just long enough to aid Mr. Rhine in making arrangements for rebuilding, and then returned to San Francisco, to attend the wedding of his daughter, Miss Lilly Harris, tomorrow.

—Mr. W. McDonald has gone to Stockton to bring back Mr. J. W. Smith. Some days ago a letter was received from Mr. Smith, in which he stated that he was not satisfied at Stockton and wanted to come home again, as he thought his chances for recovery were better here than any where else.

—None of the large number so eager to get offices need be disappointed, each one may have an office. They are all good men, and by each one electing himself to stay at home and attend diligently to his own business, he will have an office that in the end will pay him better than any county office.

—Max Cohn, of Lone Pine, is justly entitled to the gratitude of the people of Independence. In the very hour when he heard of the calamity that had fallen upon the town, he loaded up a wagon with food and bed clothing and started, arriving here about midnight. His coming brought welcome relief to several families.

--S. G. Gregg is a candidate for the office of Sheriff. Mr. Gregg is not the candidate of any combination of political managers. The work of making offiers should not be in the hands of a few men who control delegates or determine the action of conventions by the use of proxies. Voters are a little tired of having officers foisted upon them without any choice as to fitness for office, and will be glad of an opportunity to select for themselves, when the choice is for a man so generally esteemed and trusted as S. G. Gregg.

THE CELEBRATION AT LONE PINE.

It is pleasant to record that of the large gathering at Lone Pine to celebrate the National holiday no one was injured by any accident. The gathering was the largest ever seen in the town, and not the least unpleasantness of any kind marred the pleasure of any one. The special train brought down a great many visitors from Bishop Creek, several cars being filled to their utmost capacity. From Big Pine, Tibbetts, Independence and Eclipse many went on the train, and from other points by private conveyance. Early in the forenoon a procession was formed on Main street under the direction of J. R. Moffet. Mr. Moffet was mounted on a very fine horse whose training was something to delight everyone who had any liking for horses. The procession was headed by the Bishop Creek brass band, an institution begun only a few weeks ago, but already able to perform in a manner equally creditable to the boys and their instructor, Mr. Ford. A large wagon tastefully decorated carried little girls representing the States and Territories. The Lone Pine Hose Company, led by the Foreman, Mr. F. Fitzgerald, was a nice feature of the procession. The hose cart, drawn by the members dressed in uniform, was handsomely decorated and fitted with a canopy under which was seated Miss Meysan in the character of the Fire Queen. The visitors from Independence admired this part of the procession more than any other. All the lodges of Owens Valley Pioneers were well represented. The procession marched to a grove near by, where a stand was erected, and was called to order by Colonel Stevens. During the proceedings that followed here a number of patriotic songs were sung, Mr. C. Hampton read a poem; Miss Conklin recited Drake's ,,Address to the American Flag;" Mrs. Heenan read the Declaration of Independence. Hon. A. R. Conklin was the orator and made an able and interesting speech. This closed the proceedings for the forenoon. During the afternoon there were horse races and a foot race. The most interesting of the horse races was a contest in which six horses ran; one from Bishop Creek, one from Independence and four from Lone Pine. The Baragan horse, of Lone Pine, won. In the foot race there were three contestants; Manuel Diaz, Walter Ober and a young man from Bishop Creek. Diaz won. The crowd was so great that no one building in town was large enough for a ball room for all. Two halls were filled to their utmost capacity and the dancers kept it up till after daylight next morning. The whole proceedings ended as they began, pleasantly, and to the general satisfaction of all who participated.

Neighborly Neighbors.

Last Saturday, while the ruined buildings of Independence were yet smoking, certain parties at Big Pine held a "meeting," not to consult how they might aid their unfortunate neighbors, but how they might still further injure them by removing the county seat to that village. The only effect of this meeting will be to attract a moments scornful attention to a few individuals at Big Pine; not one who took part therein knows what are the first steps necessary to be taken to move a county seat. A "Court House" may be built in every back yard in the county, but the county business will be done at Independence when those who are so eager to profit by its late misfortune will be as thirsty as Dives, and as far from water.

Prompt Aid.

As soon as the news of the calamity that had fallen upon Independence reached Sacramento, the well known firm of Weinstock & Lubin at once sent one hundred dollars to be used in getting necessary supplies. With these gentlemen to think is to act, and they think kindly and act quickly. Their generosity in this case will not be forgotten. Messrs. Franklin, Roan and Bunnheim, employed by the same Firm sent fifteen dollars, and Mr. H. A. Man, agent at Bishop Station, sent ten dollars. Thanks are due to all.

True Enterprise.

Just so soon as McMahon & Jiggins saw that their stock of goods was certain to be destroyed, they at once telegraphed to Knapp & Laws, at Hawthorne, Nevada, ordering a lot of staple goods to serve the immediate needs of their customers. The goods came down by next train, and were of the very greatest service. No thought entered the mind of either one of the partners to take advantage of the general misfortune, and try to recover some of their own losses by running up prices on goods that they alone had. Far from this, not only did they sell to their customers at usual prices, but they shared their goods with other dealers, not even charging a commission for handling. This is true enterprise, and shows a spirit far above the huckstering disposition that would take advantage of every circumstance to squeeze the last penny out of every one.

Court Proceedings.

The important case in which the creditors of John Broder are interested on one side, and A. R. Conklin on the other, was called in the Superior Court on Tuesday. Hon. P. Reddy appeared for the defendant and R. S. Miner Esq for the plaintiff. Motion was made by Mr. Reddy on two grounds to strike out part of the complaint. The motion was sustained on one of the grounds. A demurrer to the whole complaint was presented, argued and over-ruled. Complainant asked leave to amend his complaint, leave was granted and amended complaint will be filed in Court within ten days. Time for resuming proceedings in this case before the Court may be fixed by the Court by agreement of counsel.

Communicated.

INYO INDEPENDENT:—When the fire broke out near my place Rev. J. M. Spangler hastened to my assistance and worked quite hard trying to save it. Aided by Mr. Baker and an Indian named Bill he ran between my place and the dwelling of Mr. Stubblefield and Mr. Barrows' barn, putting out the flames as they were seen till my buildings were so much on fire that further effort to save them was useless. Had Mr. Spangler been helped by two or three more men I feel certain he could have saved my store and dwelling, and this in turn would, in my opinion, have saved the Court House. As it was Mr. Spangler and his help should have the credit of saving the dwelling of Mr. Stubblefield. The statement that I was reasonably well insured is a mistake, as I can prove. My loss was about $9000 and my insurance $3000.

Farm Notes.

Ground properly prepared for planting is half cultivated.

The corn row will not be straight if you look behind you.

Michigan celery growers propose to organize a celery exchange. Last year they shipped $25,000 worth.

Make a record of the time when you set your hen, in order that you may be looking out for the hatching.

If the hay ran short and the cattle are thin and poor, remember to use caution in letting them into rich pasturage.

Be very careful about the temperature of the hot-bed, keeping it as even and moist as possible, and not too high—never over 85°.

Grape cuttings should be placed in the ground at once. The same is true of all hardy cuttings. The earlier in the spring the better.

A healthy hen requires no stimulants except good food. If any substance be used, let it be ground ginger, using a teaspoonful for twenty fowls, in soft food.

Don't disfigure your grounds with laths or slats when wire netting is so cheap, says the Homestead. A netting inclosure is durable, and will not blow down in any wind.

The hens are paying the rent on many a worn out farm. They are calling people back from the factories to the deserted farm-houses. The American eagle will yet be a hen if solid worth is ever counted.

Never try to stimulate man, or bird, or beast. A hen filled with "egg producer," or a cow given more food than she can digest, will go like a man kept on whisky. There will be brilliant, feverish work for a time, and then a grand collapse.

The wheat record for last year is as follows: Minnesota, 34,825,000 bushels; Michigan, 31,261,000 bushels; Iowa, 30,332,000 bushels; then Dakota, 27,913,000 bushels of wheat. Last year Dakota increased her wheat area by over 600,000 acres beyond that of the year previous.

A fat, "puffy" bull is a nuisance. Don't let a bull overfeed. Give him plenty of exercise. He never will be fit for service if you pamper him. If you can fit up a harness for him, and make him haul out the manure and do other light jobs, you would be doing business-like farming.

Suitable food and lodging; regular hours of labor; freedom from nagging, ridicule, and the annoyance from his employer's saucy children; considerate treatment generally; prompt payment of wages according to agreement, are the rights of the hired man, according to R. J. Fleming.

The white of a hen's egg contains 84.8 per cent of water, 12 of albumen, 2 of fat, sugar, and membranes, and 1.2 per cent of mineral matter. The yolk shows a much greater degree of richness than the white; it contains 51.5 per cent water, 15 of casine and albumen, 30 of oil and fat, 2.1 coloring matter and extract, and 1.4 per cent mineral matter.

Fuchsias placed in the cellar in the fall may be brought into heat. When they begin to show new leaves, shift into pots a size or two smaller than those previously occupied, shaking out most of the old earth. The soil should be fresh, light, and well enriched with old, decayed manure. Ivy and like plants with heavy leaves, should be often washed for the sake of health and looks.

Mr. Phipps, Chief of the Bureau of Agriculture, Canada, is strongly in favor of planting the silver leaf poplar for producing fuel. He states that he has known a tree only twenty years old to afford four cords of wood. He raises the trees from cuttings of last season's growth. He does not plow the land near the rows, as the plow cuts the roots and causes a growth of sprouts.

Ponds are not good for young ducks. Wet grass, dampness, and cold sleeping places will kill young ducks as quickly as such influences will destroy young chicks. Feed the ducks on bulky food. If you will put up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."

The Horseback Cure.

There is a saying among the Russians that a man who is fond of his horse will not grow old early. The Arab and the Cossack are examples of the truth of the proverb. They generally live long, enjoy robust health, and have no use for liver pads and blue pills. That vigorous octogenarian, David Dudley Field, tells us that he attributes his remarkable vitality to the habit of horseback riding, and, if the truth were known, it would doubtless appear that our sturdiest old men are those who have been fond of the saddle. The taste for equestrian sports and exercise which has lately made such progress in Brooklyn is, therefore, a hopeful and healthful sign. It is not a mere freak of fashion, but a development in the direction of rational enjoyment, and an assurance that the rising generation will be less of an indoor and more of an outdoor people. It means less headache hereafter, better appetites, stronger lungs, rosier cheeks, brighter eyes, sounder sleep, happier spirits, and a total oblivion of that organ which, according to Sidney Smith, keeps men a good deal lower than the angles—the liver.

Johnson's Character.

Boswell had his many faults and his few virtues, but he was never accused of sacrificing truth to effect. He could never be enticed to smooth down the asperities of his hero. Hannah Moore begged him to draw life less rudely. Boswell roughly replied, "I will not cut off his claws nor make a tiger a cat to please anybody." No man had more generous impulses and truer sense of gratitude than Boswell. In writing to Temple, who had volunteered to loan a thousand pounds to buy him a commission in the Guards, he said: "Your kindness fairly makes me shed tears. I am ever your old and affectionate friend here, and I trust hereafter."

Dr. Johnson's life is the most striking illustration of rising from an humble origin to a splendid reputation. When he arrived in London he was poor and friendless, and for years remained in this state of beggary. With his great faculties and incessant toil he could not procure the subsistence of a common laborer; but he kept his courage when he often lost hope. In his letter to Lord Chesterfield he said he was like a man struggling for life in the water. He was possessed of rare magnanimity, of moral greatness. Never did he complain of hardships and neglects, nor did he ever boast of difficulties he went through. He always maintained his surly virtue and lofty independence, which nothing could bend. He would not admit a quotation in his dictionary from works which were dangerous to religion or morality. That was moral heroism, true repentance for undutifulness, in his going long afterwards to the stall his father had kept, in the full time of business, and standing there an hour with his head bare, exposed to the sneers of the crowd and the inclemency of the weather. "Slow rises worth by poverty depressed," was surely his own case. He needed no smile of favor, no word of encouragement, no act of assistance to raise him to eminence. He had the spirit and light within him which guided him upward and onward, with the full knowledge and convictions of his duties to God and man, and never was he found faltering or deterred from their performance. "He looked through nature up to nature's God."—[L. G. W., in Philadelphia Call.

Did She Mean It?

"You've eaten next to nothing," lisped Smithers, who was dining with his Christmas girl. "Oh, I always do that when I sit by you," responded the young lady pleasantly.

Out of the Frying Pan into the Fire.

"Hello," said a Toledo youngster to his chum. "Your folks going to move? Ours is!"

"So's ours. Dad says he wont live in the old shell any longer."

"Mine neither. Where you going to move?"

"Into your house. Where are you?"

"Into your house."

A COW-BOYS' BALL.

How the Festive Is Run by Monarchs of the Plain.

I learned there was going to be a dance at this ranche this particular night, and that was the reason why my cow-punching friend had brought me out to see what the boys did winter evenings. In surprise I inquired of another lariat-swinger if they did not have horse-racing and card playing at the ranches. "No," he replied; "card playing at the ranches, and horse-racing on the ranges have been ruled out by stock growers at various meetings. Times have changed. They won't allow us to play cards or see who has got the fastest horse in camp any more. Reckon the next convention will give orders for family prayer. It's about time I was going to Texas or Missouri."

The speaker was no "swaggering desperado or animated arsenal," and yet he was a typical cow-boy of the Northwest. Fond of cards, not as a gambler, but for the amusement there is in them, and also because they afford a pleasant way of killing time. Fond of horse-racing; but who is not? This is a sport all true Americans take a delight in, and, therefore, the liking can be excused in a cow-boy.

Pretty soon more visitors began to arrive, among whom, strange as it may seem, there was a sprinkling of the fair sex. Some of them had been traveling all day on horseback and in bob-sleds, through deep snow and over unbroken roads, to be present at the dance. A stranger in the country, I wondered where so many ladies came from, but learned that they were in the minority at these meetings only because of the enormous crowds of cow-boys, who are now enthusiastic over the newly-discovered racket of ranch-dancing on a winter's evening.

When all had arrived, I should judge there were about fifty cow-boys present, and about fifteen ladies. Some little time was spent in thawing out, and then the fun began. Let no Eastern tenderfoot imagine that a cow-boy goes to a ball with a six-shooter stuck in each boot-leg, and a butcher-knife like an ice-saw protruding from the back of his neck. While there was lots of noise and fun going on, which at times drowned out the two left-handed fiddlers, who were sawing away for dear life, I did not hear a word or see an act that might not have been heard or seen in an Eastern ball-room, where only swallow-tailed coats and white kid gloves could enter. From all I could see the programme of dances was about the same as that adopted by the Arizona and Texas cow-boys at their dances. A recent arrival from the South had brought it up, and it was tacked to the wall where everybody could see it. It ran as follows:—

1. Grand Circle Round-up March.
2. Horse-Hunters' Quadrille.
3. Catch Horse Waltz.
4. Saddle-up Lancers.
5. Broncho Racket.
6. Captain's Quadrille.
7. Circular Gallop.
8. Round-up Lancers.
9. Cut out Schottische.
10. Branding Quadrille.
11. Cow and Calf Racket.
12. Night Horse Lancers.
13. First Guard Waltz.
14. Second Guard Quadrille.
15. Third Guard Newport.
16. Fourth Guard Quadrille.
17. Day Herder's Waltz.
18. Maverick Polka.
19. Bull Calves' Medley.
20. Stampede All.

My friend, at whose invitation I was present, seeing me stand an idle spectator, shouted as he whirled by: "Git a partner and pitch in!" But I left them to their innocent, happy enjoyment, and remained a wall flower throughout the balance of the evening. When the gay revelers had danced unremittingly until about 1 A. M., a halt was called and supper announced. The supper was spread in a large tent at the back of the main building, and this canvas house was made comfortable and pleasant by the aid of a large stove. There were oysters, turkey, venison, and all manner of canned goods, coffee and cigars in abundance, but not one drop of whisky or spirituous drinks of any kind. When supper was finished the order came for, "On with the dance," and so it was kept up until morning. It was a revelation to me, this life at a cattle ranche in the dead of winter, and I departed much pleased with my visit. —[Uniontown Letter, in Chicago Tribune.

Students and Athletes.

Students are graded in Princeton in six groups. The athletes stand well down in the ranks, according to President McCosh. Fifteen of the twenty-seven are in the lowest two grades; all but seven are below the middle, and only two get up into the second grade. The doctor is in favor of athletics, but believes that excessive bodily exercise takes too much time.

A fruit-layer cake is a delicious novelty in cake making. Take one cup of sugar, half a cup of butter, one cup and a half of flour, half a cup of wine, one cup of raisins, two eggs, and half a teaspoonful of soda. Put these ingredients together with care, just as if it were a very rich cake; bake it in three layers and put frosting between—the frosting to be made of the whites of two eggs, with enough powdered sugar to make it thick. The top of the cake may be frosted if you choose.

He'd Rather Be Hung.

In the middle ages there were two chances of life at the last moment accorded to malefactors condemned to death, besides a free pardon from the sovereign. One of these was the accidental meeting of a cardinal with the procession to execution; the other was the offer of a maiden to marry the condemned man, or, in the case of a woman sentenced to death, the offer of a man to make her his wife. The claim of the cardinals was a curious one. They pretended to have inherited the privileges with which the vestal virgins of old Rome were invested. In 1399 a man was condemned to be hung in Paris. As he was being led to execution down the street of Aubry-le-Boucher he met the cardinal of St. Eusebius, named Rochette, who was going up the street. The cardinal immediately took oath that the meeting was accidental, and demanded the release of the criminal. It was granted. In 1576 Charles V. was appealed to in the case of a man who was about to be hanged, when a young girl in the crowd cried out that she would take him as her husband. Charles decreed that the man was to be given up to her. In 1382 a similar case came before Charles VI., which we shall quote verbatim from the royal pardon. "Henrequin Dontart was condemned by the judges of our court in Peronne to be drawn to execution on a hurdle, and hang by the neck till dead. In accordance with the decree he was drawn and carried by the hangman to the gibbet, and when he had the rope round his neck, then one Jeannette Mourchon, a maiden of the town of Hammaincourt, presented herself before the provost and his lieutenant, and supplicated and required of the aforesaid provost and his lieutenant to deliver over to her the said Dontart, to be her husband. Wherefore the execution was interrupted and he was led back to prison . . . and by the tenor of these letters it is our will that the said Dontart be pardoned and released." Another instance we quote from the diary of a Parisian citizen of the year 1430. He wrote: "On January 10, 1430, eleven men were taken to the Halles to be executed, and the heads of ten were cut off. The eleventh was a handsome young man of twenty four; he was having his eyes bandaged when a young girl born at Halles came boldly forward and asked for him. And she stood to her point and maintained her right so resolutely that he was taken back to prison in the Chatelet, where they were married, and then he was discharged." This custom has so stamped itself upon the traditions of the peasantry that all over France it is the subject of popular tales and anecdotes; with one of the latter we will conclude. In Normandy a man was at the foot of the gibbet, the rope was round his neck, when a sharp-featured woman came up and demanded him. The criminal looked hard at her, and, turning to the hangman, said:—

"A pointed nose, a bitter tongue!—
Proceed. I'd rather far be hung."

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JULY 17..... 1886

In the fire that proved so disastrous to Independence the losses of the insurance companies were very light in comparison to the amount of property destroyed. The whole amount of insurance was about $80,000, the total losses $285,000. The whole insurance business of the Pacific coast is controled by a few companies, and by combining together these make a monopoly of it. The consequence is that rates are so high that much property is shut out from the benefits of insurance altogether. In country towns men who own small homes and work-shops, such as carpenters, blacksmiths, tinners, printers and so on, cannot afford the heavy drain upon their incomes necessary to secure even a moderate amount of insurance; they are forced into taking the whole of their own risks, and when fire comes, they are left homeless, and without even the means for earning a subsistance. The people of the Pacific coast paid to insurance companies in 1885, the vast sum of $6,701,519, and the companies paid back for losses $2,825,3000, leaving a profit to the companies of $3,876,213. These figures show how great the monopoly is, how profitable to the monopolists, and the losses at Independence prove how injurious it is to the people. The business of insurance is more profitable on the Pacific coast than anywhere else in the United States. Yet the premiums charged by the confederated companies which have their offices in San Francisco are from twice to three times the premiums charged in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Chicago. Possibly a partial remedy at least could be found for the evil by proper legislation; at any rate the effort should be made. There ought to be some legal preventive against a combination that compels thousands of people, the best citizens of the State, to live in a condition of constant dread that all they have in this world will be destroyed by fire, yet they cannot afford to take any insurance, the rates are so high.

For some time past Mr. N. D. Rideout, of Marysville, has been much written about as a republican candidate for Governor. He has now declared positively that he will not be a candidate. Mr. Rideout has made a large fortune in honorable business enterprises; it is said there were indications that if he should be a candidate the political parasites would have got after him to spend large sums of money, and having a hearty contempt for all such characters, and an abhorence of every form of corruption, he refused positively to be a candidate.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY JULY 17 1886

—The Executive Committee of the Republican County Committee meets t o-day at Independence.

Mr. J. H. McMahon started for San Francisco on Thursday morning; he goes to buy goods, and will make but a brief stay.

—The singing-school at Camp Independence is closed temporarily during the summer months. Due notice will be given when it will be opened again.

—A terrible earthquake in New Zealand has destroyed the lives of one hundred people. A great deal of property in houses, lands and cattle has also been destroyed.

—The rapid decline of business at Bodie is indicated in the repeated reduction of the salary of the Post Master. Another reduction was recently made; the salary is now $1000.

—Attorney General Garland appears to be completely swamped by the Pan Electric transaction. No Cabinet Officer, not even Belknap, was ever connected with a more disgraceful affair than this.

—Mr. A. Parker has lumber on the way for a large blacksmith shop. The new shop will be built on the site of the old one, and will be finished as rapidly as possible. Tools of all kinds are also ordered, and will be on the ground in a few days.

—The Bodie Free Press is dead. The paper was started to live upon the advertising business of the United States Land office, and ween there ceased to be any business of that kind at Bodie, and very little in Mono county, it died.

—There are still men in the world who "do good by stealth and blush to find it fame." Only a day or two ago we discovered that Mr. E. H Edwards, of Lone Pine, had sent a liberal supply of food to Independence on the night of the fire.

—Mr. J. W. Symmes is out as a candidate for County Treasuree, subject to the action of the Republican County Convention. Mr. Symmes is too well known to need any commendation, for character and capacity he is all that could be looked for in a candidate for Treasurer.

—A building that will serve temporarily for a post office is nearly completed; it stands on the site of the former office, but is placed far enough back from the street line so that a permanent building can be erected in front as soon as Mr. Hardy gets ready to build.

—Everything indicates that lively times are about to set in at Darwin. Men are wanted at the Defiance mine, and Mr. J. S. Gorman is opening up several claims that will each employ a number of men. At other mines work will no doubt be begun that will swell the number of men employed and help the general prosperity.

—The results of the elections in Great Britain and Ireland have only delayed the granting of justice to Ireland. The great measures of the reform bill and Catholic emancipation in 1828 and 1832 were far more stubbornly opposed by the Tories than this last measure of justice to Ireland, but both were granted at last, and so will Hfme Rule be granted.

INSURANCE ADJUSTED.—All the insurance policies affected by the late fire at Independence have been adjusted to the entire satisfaction of the holders. Mr. B. H. Naunton, the adjuster for the companies, stayed at Independence nearly a week, and while taking all necessary care to protect the interests of the companies, he showed no disposition to be captious or try to evade any part of the insurance. The losses were total in every case, and the full amount of each policy will be paid.

LODGE INSTALLATION.—The following have been installed as officers of Inyo Lodge, No. 331, I. O. O. F. to serve during the ensuing term; A. R. Conklin N. G. C. Mulholland V. G. A. Parker, Treas.; Dan Crough, R. S.; J D. Blair, Warden.; S. D. Thurston Con; E. T. Shepherd and John Auton, R. and L. S. N. G.; John L. Bourland and J. R. Eldred R. and L. S. V. G.; W. Barnes and M. C. Lasky, R. and L. S. S.; John Alexander, I. G. The Lodge is in a prosperous condition, it owns a fine cemetry, with water pipes laid through it, and has a good round sum in the Treasury.

A Providential Book.

Surely it was an especial providence that brought about at this particular time, the publication of the report of State Engineer Hall on "Irrigation Development." Only the first volume has yet been published, however, and that is chiefly devoted to a summary of the history of irrigation legislation in France Spain and Italy. Mr. Hall began collecting materiel for this work nine years ago, and has made very copious translations from the laws of the countries named. This has taken an amount of skill and patient labor that can be appreciated by but few. When the author began preparing this work, not even he could fully appreciate the vast importance the subject of irrigation would assume in California, and the consequent value of his labors to the State. The book is issued from the State Printing office, and in execution is a credit to that establishment; it is a very handsome volume. It can be had from the Secretary of State at the cost of production, $2,75; if sold by the trade it would cost at least $5. Mr. Hall is now engaged on the second volume of the work; this will deal with the practical and scientific problems of irrigation.

FIRE.

Farm House and Other Buildings Burned.

Last Sunday fire destroyed the farm house and other buildings on the farm of Alphonse Thiebaut, north of Camp Independence. Mr. Thiebout had come to Indepencence, leaving one man at the farm house. It is not known how the fire started, but the supposition is that the man left at the house had been smoking cigaretts, threw away the burning end of one, went to sleep and only waked up in time to escape from the flames thus kindled. All the buildings on the place, and everything they contained were burned up. A lot of sheepmen were in the neighborhood with their flocks, and three or four wagons and a lot of harness belonging to them had been left in the farm yard. All these things were burned up. A great deal of goods and produce were stored in the burned buildings, all of which is total loss, as Mr. Thiebout had no insurance.

Come Over To Us And Help Us.

The citizens of Los Angeles would like very much to have railroad connection with Owens valley. The "missing link" is only about one hundred and twenty miles long, and over a very easy route. As there is plenty of capital in Los Angeles, and this piece of road would be a good investment, a company might be formed among the business men of the City that would build it. If the road were built the vast tracts of good government land now lying vacant in Owens valley would rapidly fill up with settlers. This would in turn develope a large and valuable business. The great extent of unexplored mineral lands in Inyo county would be prospected and developed, and this, too, would make a very valuable market. There is no good reason why the merchants of Los Angeles should not be able to sell goods as cheaply as the merchants of San Francisco. With an all rail carriage, they would have all the advantage in their favor for getting the whole trade of Inyo county. And not of Inyo county only, but of the most populous regions of western Nevada. Instead of this road being a feeder for other lines already built, these lines would be but feeders for it. There is not an interest or business in Los Angeles but would be benefited by the building of this railroad. The people of Inyo county have more interest in Los Angeles than in San Francisco, and if able to reach it by rail all the way would make five visits there where they now make one to the other city. Every visit would draw still closer the ties of mutual interest. With the building of this and other projected lines, the city of Los Angeles in its present condition, wonderful as its growth has been, is but as the infant in swaddling clothes to the full grown man. The Board of Trade of Los Angeles should take hold of this matter vigorously; if it is set about in the right way the work can be done.

Currants.

Last year the United States took about 10,000 tons of currants imported from Greece. At five cents a pound this vuantity would be worth one million of dollars. The total export of currants from Greece for the last year was about 140,000 tons, and at five cents a pound they would be worth fourteen millions of dollars. The area of the Kingdom of Greece is not much greater than once and a half the area of Inyo county, and like Inyo, a great deal of Greece is mountainous and unfit for cultivation. It was our good fortune to travel in Greece several years ago, and we believe there is as much good land in Owens valley as would equal the entire acreage devoted to the production of currants in Greece. We believe also that the soil is quite as good, and are certain that the climate is better for curing the currants. The so called "currants" are not currants, but a variety of grapes, and we believe they would do well in portions of Owens valley, at leat. This article would bear transportation.

Fertility.

Only a few weeks ago a large tract of land on Mr. Hunter's farm at George's Creek, was unfenced sage-brush land. Now that same land is carrying very promising crops of corn, oats and alfalfa; potatoes, peas, beans, cabbage, watermelons, pumpkins and other vegetables, are growing finely, and a fine young orchard already makes a beautiful appearance. It would be hard to find another region where there is so much good land that can be easily and cheaply converted from a state of nature into fertile farms, orchards and vineyards as in Owens valley. Passing near the same place a few days ago, we saw a large band of cattle out on the open plain, standing in grass that came half way up their sides, and the animals were so fat and lazy that they would scarcely move. No where else on the whole Pacific coast are there such openings to fortune for men of intelligence and energy as in Owens valley.

Land Inquiries.

Letters continue to come by every mail from parties making inquiry about land in Owens valley. In answer to these we can only repeat what has been so often stated in this paper, in pamphlet form and in hundreds of letters we have written; namely:—That there is yet a great deal of good government land open for settlement in Owens valley; that plenty of water for irrigation can be got from Owens river; that the climate is very pleasant, neither too hot in summer nor too cold in winter; that fruits of nearly all kinds and of the finest quality can be grown; that there is good market for all kinds of farm produce; that good judges from other parts of the state say the grains, grasses, alfalfa and other products of the soil have no superiors and but few equals in the state; that malarial diseases do not exist here, in a word that no other region in the state offers greater advantages to settlers than Owens valley.

Had to Submit.

Since the order was issued for the removal of the Land Office from Bodie to Independence the Register and Receiver of the office have used every effort to have the order rescinded and the office remain at Bodie. All in vain, however; the need for removing the office is greater now than when the order was issued, and will increase as the lands of Owens Valley are settled up. The President being fully informed of the facts in the case declined to rescind the order, with an intimation that the officers can resign if they do not wish to emigrate. Register Walker and Receiver Cody have forwarded their resignations. It will probably be two months before the office is removed.

FIRESIDE SHOPPING.

DECIDEDLY important are the facilities afforded out-of-town customers by our Mail Order Department. Mail shopping is now a perfect system, and customers in distant parts of the Coast receive the same careful attention to requests for samples and orders for goods as though present in Sacramento to be served at our counters.

* * *

No one who has failed to try it knows what convenience this is to the public. Instead of being obliged to make a trip to town, or to annoy some city friend with your shopping, a few lines to us will bring the goods desired in prompt return.

* * *

In sending directly to us no obligation is incurred and if goods do not suit they can be returned.

* * *

The cost of postage, freight or express charges is the only extra expense, and amounts to but little as compared with the saving usually made in buying from us.

* * *

Customers are served, in fact, even more carefully by mail than those who shop in person, as we consider ourselves responsible, not only for the quality, but also the suitability of the goods.

* * *

Orders for Hardware, Groceries and such other lines of goods as we do not keep, are purchased on the outside as an accommodation to customers.

* * *

A large Illustrated Catalogue, together with any samples that may be desired, sent free to any address.

Drinking Toasts.

In private life toasting has almost entirely disappeared. A hundred years ago and less it was rife in the extreme. Half a dozen men could not sit down to dinner without drinking toasts. In the event of any great victory there was no end of it. The nation was for a time half insane in drinking the health of Nelson, Wellington, or other successful commanders by sea and land. It was part of a young man's education to get familiar with a few toasts which he could bring out when called upon in turn at evening entertainments. At the age of fifty he had become so hackneyed in toasting as never to be at a loss for a hero or for a sentiment suitable to the character of the company. At the very least he could give, "The rising generation," "All ships at sea," or, "May the wings of friendship never lose a feather."

Curious, and not a little melancholy to think what vast numbers of worthy people now gone to their rest habitually killed the time in soaking and trying to amuse themselves in this kind of driveling nonsense. As yet the popular mind has not been aroused to inquiry on a variety of important questions. A great part of life was consumed in dawdling and drinking, as is still the case among certain classes in small country towns.

t Discountenanced in general society, complimentary toasting holds its ground in public festivities. There the libations are observedly copious, as provocative of oratorical display, and as much attended with senseless uproar as ever. Corporation dinners, charity dinners, reception and farewell dinners are all alike in these respects. Every toast must be prefaced by a drink all round. The quantity of champagne consumed on some occasions is immense, the removal of a wagon load of empty bottles not at all unusual. What may be the different degrees of intoxication we shall not attempt to specify. One would not like to be too severe in a matter admitting of many extenuations. At the same time we may be permitted to say that the example set at these festive demonstrations is not quite in accordance with the solemn counsels ordinarily uttered on the evils of intemperance. Men in high position, who are nimble at toasting at grand dinners, do not seem to perceive that they are acting inconsistently in holding out a bad example to the poor, whom they are constantly lecturing on the terrible consequences of misexpenditure on drink. —[Chambers' Journal.

To Talk with England.

Mr. William C. Turnbull, of this city, has finished a series of experiments to test his invention of long-distance telephoning. He finds that the distance at which telephoning can be practiced with his transmitter is only limited by the length of wire, under favorable conditions. He expects to get permission very soon to conduct a series of experiments in telephoning over one of the Atlantic cables. London and New York will probably be the points between which conversations will be attempted. Mr. Turnbull says if the company will allow him to use a battery of sufficient strength, he has no doubt but that he can from New York converse in his ordinary tone of voice with a friend stationed in London. More than this, he says this telephone is so pure in tone that any one in New York could recognize a friend's voice talking to him in London. Through the same transmitter parties in New York have recognized the voices of friends talking to them in Chicago. A charter for a company to use the long-distance transmitter and receiver is now being taken out in New Jersey. He has applied for patents in England, Germany, France, Belgium, Austria, Italy, Canada, Spain, Russia. Applications will be made in other countries also.

Mr. Turnbull in his receivers uses no diaphragm. Currents from other wires in close proximity do not affect them very much. One of the operators at the Baltimore Telephone Exchange has had one of Mr. Turnbull's instruments in his house, between one and two miles from the Exchange, since last summer. His wife is delighted with it, as she can talk to her husband while lying on the lounge, or from any part of the room. A short time since he said to his wife, "What music is that I hear?" naming the air that was being played. She replied, "It is a street band playing half a square away from here." The window was open and the sounds came into the room of his dwelling where the instrument was placed. It is said by electricians that this new telephone will to some extent revolutionize telegraphing. Mr. Turnbull began experimenting about eighteen months ago. He was led to it by feeling there was a need for a better telephone, and felt that he had the power to construct the required instrument. Prior to this application and study he had given electrical subjects comparatively little attention. He has invented a number of other things and patented them. Among these was a compressed air-motor for running street-cars in 1860. —[Baltimore Sun.

Mind Cure.

The sublimation of the mind-cure craze in Boston is a man named Bennett, to whom patients go in and lay down $10, never more nor less; the "doctor" pronounces the formula. "You are cured," and the patient walks out again. There is no diagnosis, no treatment, nothing but faith; and yet it is said that Bennett is making a big income, $10 bills coming in by the mail, and requests for consultation by telegraph. He calls himself an apostle of the "Order of the Inspirati."

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, STOUTLAND, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 100 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and ladies to pay for it."

JOHN R. DODGE, JR., jeweler, Nonsat, Ill., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. It is the best machine ever invented by man. 2d. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy ours for gold."

I will ship a sample to those desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best washer in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Pays capable agents big money. Write for particulars.

THE DUNCAN CONCENTRATOR

Beyond question the cheapest and most effective Machine of the kind ever put on the market. Will use with equal success all grades and classes of ores.

This machine has been thoroughly tested for a period of TWO YEARS and a great many mines, giving most EXTRAORDINARY results for its advance of anything before realized. A recent competitive TEST with the Frue at the Carlisle Mine in New Mexico showed an advantage of over 30 PER CENT in favor of the DUNCAN, the amount saved over the Frue being sufficient to pay the whole cost of the machines every month each year. One of the most valuable features is the AMALGAMATOR. It saves all the amalgam gold and silver that adheres to the batteries, pans or settlers, making the machine worth MORE than double for this purpose alone.

BAKER'S MINING Horse Power.

Posessing all the requirements of a first class hoist, and affording means for the continuous operation of a pump or blower without interfering with the hoisting apparatus. It is made entirely of iron, no piece weighs more than 300 pounds. At the ordinary speed of a horse, a 1,000 pound bucket of ore may be raised 120 feet per minute. The hoisting drum is under complete control of the man at the shaft, and is capable of carrying 500 feet of five-eighths steel rope. SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

The Usual Picnic Jokes.

The picnic season now is here,
And the paragraphist
Will do his duty, never fear,
On jokes he ne'er has missed.

The young man in the new light pants
Will crush the blithe squash pie;
The sandwiches alive with ants
Will make the children cry.

Fond lovers in the forest glade,
Their eager love will tell,
When all at once the timid maid
Will see a snake and yell.

The man who swings the pretty girls
Will make his shoulders lame;
The dude who tries to row a boat
Will wonder why he came.

The thunderstorm that ends the fun
Will crash down prompt at four;
With startled shrieks the girls will run
And drabbled skirts deplore.

Well, Now the Chinese Must Go.

Speaking of Chinamen, the historian fell in with one of the race the other day directly in front of Jordan & Marsh's store, where there wasn't much to gaze at except the dainty costumes displayed in the window. There was a very peculiar sort of smile clearly perceptible in the Chinaman's face.

"Not many dresses like that for the ladies in China, John," said the Caucasian.

The Chinaman's superior smile extended noticeably in either direction.

"Chinese ladies no likee such dresses," said he. "Too much cloth; likee show small feet. Melican lady heap big feet"—and he measured off a space of about two feet in the air with his hands—"gottee wear big dress; no likee show feet!"—Boston Record.

She Wanted to Borrow.

A Chicago woman entered the office of a loan agency the other day and said:

"I want you to raise $1,500 on $3,000 worth of furniture. What is your lowest rate of interest?"

"On such loans we generally ask 10 per cent."

"Very well. Send your examiner up to the house. It is a speculation with me."

"Going into business, ma'am?"

"Yes, sir. I'm going to take my three daughters to the seashore, and either marry 'em off or drown 'em!"—Wall Street Daily News.

Kentucky the Cradle of Colonels.

A careful estimate of the army Kentucky can throw into the field gives some astounding results. Estimating two colonels to a regiment, the usual allowance, we have a comfortable little force of 397,000,000 of soldiers. This calculation is on the basis of 500 soldiers to every citizen of Kentucky who is called "colonel." In case of war, we can only hope that the state will stand by us.—Life.

HUMAN SENSITIVENESS.

The Vast Difference Between a Healthy and Morbid Feeling of This Kind.

The sensitive plant, that shrinks from the touch, is rightly regarded as occupying a high place in the vegetable world. When its delicate leaves are seen drooping from contact with the finger, we might fancy it gifted with a sort of consciousness, by which it can not only feel, and perhaps suffer, but also visibly attempt to withdraw from suffering. It is an interesting object to notice, whatever may be our speculations in regard to it, and we naturally have strong interest in a plant so curiously endowed.

Some men and women in our most civilized communities seem to be very much akin to this little shrub. Their one distinguishing characteristic is sensitiveness. They are easily hurt, easily irritated, easily offended. They translate every touch, however innocent or even friendly, into an intent to trouble or annoy them; they are constantly fancying slights, suspecting insults, imagining ridicule, dreading censure. Of course they have their fair share of real grievances to deplore, and when to these are added the countless imaginary ones which a morbid fancy suggests, we can not wonder that they are in continual distress; and if we can not accord them our respect, we should not refuse them our sympathy.

It seems somewhat strange, however, that any one should plume himself upon so uncomfortable a disposition; yet such is often the fact. People who thus suffer attribute it to no morbid or suspicious temperament, but to an acute sensitiveness, of which they are rather proud than otherwise. They conceive themselves to be of finer grain than their more cheerful and trusting neighbors; they are quicker to notice, keener to feel, and therefore exposed to sufferings that coarser or duller natures will never be troubled with. On this account they claim more consideration; they think people should be especially careful not to wound or vex them, because they are so sensitive. What would be only ordinary behavior to most persons they esteem cruelty to them because of their delicate organization.

Is sensitiveness, then, so fatal a gift that we would prefer to be dull of comprehension? No faculty is ever better for being dull. But when it is only sharpened by selfishness its mission remains unperformed. It is then only a means of personal gain, whereas its true purpose is a wide and general diffusion of happiness. This purpose, however, can not be fulfilled unless we interpret truly its messages. A healthy sensitiveness accepts the pain which it must bear as a wholesome medicine, not dwelling upon its bitter taste, not upbraiding those who hand it, not regarding it as a permanent evil, but simply using it for self-improvement. At the same time it gladly welcomes all the pleasant tidings which are thus brought to knowledge. It is as keen to feel the good as the evil, and finds it in much larger proportion. It is a poor, one-sided sensitiveness that feels only the cold winds of neglect or criticism or displeasure, and is dead to the sunny influence of kindness, esteem, sympathy and love. If the same sensibility that now quivers under the one be but quickened to receive the other, life will have far happier days in store than it has yet disclosed.

Above all, acute sensibilities are intended as a direct means of inspiring generous impulses and cultivating a benevolent character. They are no longer a torment, but a blessing, to him who is always sensitive for others as well as himself. The pleasure and pain he feels, and the sources to which he traces each, are his continual guides to show him how to diffuse the one and to mitigate the other in his intercourse with mankind. Nothing is more selfish than a narrow, one-sided, self-pitying sensitiveness; nothing more ennobling than a sensitive spirit, keenly alive to all good influences and delighting to use them for the welfare and happiness of mankind.—Philadelphia Ledger.

HAND ORGANS.

Something About the Manipulators and Cost of These Instruments of Torture.

The best hand-organs cost from one hundred to one hundred and fifty dollars, but those which so commonly torment the public rarely cost more than forty dollars. The best are the flute organs, and they play nearly a dozen tunes, and some have extra cylinders, which add to their capacity. The principal factory is in Chatham street, this locality being so near the Italian quarter (Baxter street) that it is very favorable to trade. There are some Italians who own a number of organs, which they rent by the season at a large profit and with but little loss. The grinder having finished his summer itinerancy, of course comes back for winter quarters, and thus pays his rent. Both organ-grinders and boy fiddlers have their regular routes, which they repeat year after year, and there seems to be some general arrangement which prevents interference. It is said that more than three hundred of these peripatetic minstrels have gone from New York this season, and yet it will be rare that two men will visit the same village. When cold weather sets in the grinders return to Baxter street, where they pack together—sometimes nearly a dozen in a small room, with neither fire nor lights. The Italian can sustain life under extreme privations, and he seems content to sleep on the floor and live on what he can pick up.—N. Y. Cor. Troy Times.

A CHINESE RAILWAY.

It is Exceedingly Small But Has Proved a Great Success.

It is commonly supposed that there is not a mile of railroad yet in China, but this is a mistake. There is one road complete in all its appointments and details in daily operation. It is situated about seventy-five miles east-northeast from Tientsin and is known as the "Kai-Ping railway." It was built to afford an outlet for the output of the colliery of the Chinese Engineering & Mining Company, situated about five miles from the town of Kai-Ping in the province of China, North China.

In November, 1879, surveying for a canal system was begun and in October of the following year the work of excavating a canal to connect the colliery with the nearest point on the Peh-Tang river was started. But it was found that it would be impossible to bring the canal nearer than within seven miles of the colliery, so the directors told the Government that unless the permission were granted to build a line to connect the colliery with the head of the canal the company would be forced to stop work. But not till April, 1881, would the Government listen to any appeal, and then permission was given to put down a line from the colliery to the head of the canal on condition that only horses or mules should be used as the motive power, and that it should be called a tramway.

In the meantime the engineers had been quietly constructing a locomotive in the shops out of such odds and ends as were obtainable, and the use of the men and materials for this purpose was kept a secret for fear that it would become known to the Government that they were building a "locomotive." The locomotive was tested with twenty pounds of steam on the 24th of March, 1881, and worked well, but on the 7th of April all further work on it was stopped by order of the managing director, and on the 9th all the rails on which it had been run in the yard were pulled up, and on the 5th of May the locomotive was shunted into a shed, presumably to let her rust out.

Work was, however, again begun on her, and at last, in spite of all obstacles, an engine subsequently described was finally completed at small expense, though in the roughest manner, owing to want of facilities in the shops, and was run in the yard on the centenary of George Stevenson's birth for the first time; whence it was not inappropriately christened the "Rock of China." The first trial on the main line was made on the 8th of November of the same year, and since then the engine has done good service, running over twelve thousand miles and supplying all requirements till locomotives could be got out from England.

This engine, in all its details, and indeed most of the railroad, was planned and built by Claude W. Kinder, a young English civil engineer, who was at the time assistant to Mr. Burnet, chief engineer of the company. The boiler is an old portable boiler of English make, cylinders eight by fifteen and a half inches, belonged to an old winding engine from England. Wheels, thirty inches in diameter, bought as old iron, are of chilled iron from Whitney & Son, Philadelphia. Frame, channel iron from head gear of No. 1 shaft. Axle guards, angle iron, riveted to same. Springs and all other work made at the colliery. Wheel base, eight feet, four inches (six wheels, four coupled), weight on drivers six tons, on leading wheels three and a half, side tanks, end coal bunkers. One motion pump and one donkey pump. Stevenson's link motion. Cost of construction about $650 for labor and other than old material. The railway has a total fall of seventy feet between termini, maximum gradient, 1 in 100; sharpest curve radius 1,500 feet, except in yard; where there are curves of 600 feet radius. The rails are steel, 30 pounds to the yard, Vignoles pattern. The line is single, sleepers are of native elm, rough hewed and laid on an excellent road bed, well ballasted with broken limestone, and the gauge is 4 feet, 8½ inches.

On the whole length of the line (7 miles) there is one tunnel of 300 feet, 1 arch of 20 feet span, 1 open top iron girder bridge, 10 feet span, 1 iron Warren girder bridge, 30 feet span, besides several culverts. There is one half-way station at Liu-Ying-Chong. The imported stock is 2 locomotives, 11 inch tank engines, 18 inch stroke, 6 wheels coupled, from Stevenson & Co., England, 3 third class passenger carriages, 35 ten-ton coal wagons, 17 five-ton wagons and 1 break van. There is also one saloon carriage, built at the company's works. There are 17 crossings on a level on the seven miles of line.

The traffic is daily about 600 tons of coal, 100 tons of limestone, besides pottery and sundries, and also about 160 passengers who pay five cents for the seven miles.

The tunnel above mentioned takes a branch line to the company's quarries, and all bridges are made for a double line of rails. Flag signals are used, and there is a gatekeeper at each crossing. Notwithstanding the fact that this road is in daily operation, runs smoothly and is a beautiful model of what a railroad should be for general traffic, its existence is ignored by the Government. It has never been seen by any member of the Board of Public Works, nor, indeed, by any other considerable person connected with the Government at Peking, or of the province in which it is situated, although it has a State carriage and a fine house for the accommodation of such visitors.—Tientsin (China) Letter.

A Serious Mistake.

Dr. Sundel is a young man with a new girl, and the other evening, in a bit of enthusiasm, he made a dive at her and kissed her on the forehead.

"What do you mean, sir?" she said, indignantly.

"I beg your pardon—I—I—" he hesitated.

"Excuses are useless, sir. Apologies are in vain. I could never forgive a man for kissing a girl on the forehead when her lips were in easy reach and entirely unengaged at the time. Go, sir!"

But he didn't get gone. Not hardly.—Merchant Traveler.

FRENCH PEASANTRY.

Beneficent Results of the Division of France Into Small Agricultural Properties.

M. Baudrillart declares that the division of land in France into small agricultural properties is in accordance with the natural configuration of the country, and is, accordingly, normal and healthful. Many of the products which add enormously to the wealth of France, such as the vine, the olive, and a multitude of fruit trees, need manual labor in their cultivation, as do horticulture and market-gardening. In all these lines of production the division of property into small estates tends directly to larger returns. Before the French revolution there were 4,000,000 land owners. Ten years ago this number had doubled, and although it may have been reduced somewhat since, in consequence of the long agricultural depression, it is probably not far from that figure at the present time. Half the landed estates in France pay less than five francs in taxes, but these plots of ground yield a gross produce of double and triple the calculated return. When the evil of excessive division becomes too great, it constantly tends to correct itself by the action of self-interest, and there is now going on in many parts of France a movement toward the reconsolidation of estates. The average yield of these small properties is far in excess of the average yield of larger estates. In the matter of stock-raising the small farms have decidedly the advantage as regards horned cattle, and the large farms as regards sheep. Since 1821 the value of small properties has trebled and quadrupled, while that of large properties had only doubled.

The industry and thrift induced by universal land-holding have practically banished agricultural pauperism from France. There are a few wandering beggars and a few persons in each community depending upon aid, but provincial France is self-supporting. The peasants are less deeply in debt than formerly; they borrow less and their savings constantly accumulate. The rise in the price of agricultural labor has made the lives of this class of laborers much more tolerable than formerly, while the small proprietors have steadily improved their condition. White bread has superseded largely the rye bread of former days, and in the more prosperous provinces meat is frequently seen on tables from which it was once almost entirely absent. The style of living is, of course, of the plainest description, but it is comfortable and adequate, and the families are independent and enjoy the humble pleasures which spring from these conditions. The great majority of cottages are decently furnished, with respectable accommodations, and the housekeeping is often admirably conducted as regards cleanliness and system.—Christian Union.

A NEW DISINFECTANT.

How Coffee May be Used as a Temporary Dressing of Wounds.

Years ago some studious Germans made the observation, the correctness of which he endeavored, and to a great extend also succeeded, to establish by statistical data, that coffee, if taken in the morning on an empty stomach, acted as a preventive against infectious and mainly acute epidemic diseases. He quoted a great number of cases where individuals accustomed to drink a cup of hot coffee for breakfast had either escaped an epidemic of typhoid, then ravaging the part of Germany in which the observer lived, or if attacked by the disease, contracted it in a much milder form; while all those who died from the disease had not been in the habit of taking coffee in the morning. This was a good number of years ago, at a time when in many parts of Germany coffee was still either an unknown or so costly a beverage as to be looked upon as a luxury that only the rich could enjoy. We have forgotten the name of the physician, but remember that the medical profession did not take kindly to the idea of coffee being a disinfectant, or as they then said, an anti-zymotic, and those who could not deny the correctness of the observation itself, ascribed the apparent immunity to other causes, many to the hot water with which the coffee was prepared.

That the physician, however, has not been so wrong has been but recently proved. During the last meeting of the Prussian army surgeons in Berlin, Medical Director Oppler reported that after extensive investigations, which he related in detail, he had discovered that we possess in coffee an antiseptic remedy of no mean value, but one which could well serve for the purposes of a first dressing of a wound in a battle. If employed at once it totally prevented suppuration, but if used after pus has already accumulated in the wound it leads to the formation of a scab, beneath which the wound heals with complete asepsis. The coffee should be employed in the form of powder as it might entail the loss of valuable time to have to grind first the roasted coffee bean, which in Prussia every soldier is bound to carry about him. Dr. Oppler recommends the use of coffee tablets, which have recently been discovered by a Hamburg firm and which answers the purpose admirably well, as it is only necessary to rub these tablets a little, when they at once assume a powder form.—Medical and Surgical Reporter.

—Mr. Payne, who was the bugler boy for General Sully in the Indian campaign of 1862, lately visited a battle-ground near Cranden, in Spink County, D. T. He says two hundred Indians were killed there and all buried in one grave by the soldiers. Skulls are now seen lying on the ground turned up by the plow. It was not known before by the settlers whether Indians or whites were buried there. Mr. Payne also locates the spot not far away, on the east side of the James river, where twenty-nine soldiers were buried. It is probable the attention of the War Department will be called to the matter, and proper care given their burial place.—Chicago Times.

IN WEST IRELAND.

Scenes of Abject Misery Witnessed by a Visitor at Carraroe.

I reached Carraroe on Saturday evening, and on the next day I happened to meet the Rev. Walter Conway, who was on his way to attend some sick calls on one of the islands which make up his straggling and extensive parish. Being anxious to see as much of the condition of the people as possible, I gladly accepted his invitation to accompany him.

I was by no means prepared for the scenes I witnessed that Sunday afternoon. Such poverty-stricken people, such wretched hovels, such misery and patient suffering I never saw before, and I hope I shall never see again. There was scarcely a house but had some inmates lying down with fever, brought on, I was assured by the local doctor, by hunger or the want of sufficient food. It was pitiable in the extreme to see the emaciated features of most of them, and the looks of famishing despair on their countenances as they lay huddled together on the bare earthen floor or staggered about the house like drunken people from sheer exhaustion.

While the good priest was administering the last sacraments to a few of the worst cases I inspected several of the houses alone. I was quite unexpected, and indeed I required no other evidence than the character of the cabins and the woe-begone appearance of the inmates to convince me that the gaunt specter of famine had already appeared. I shall never forget the sight I beheld in one house. Father Conway had preceded me by several yards. On his pushing the door of this house open I observed him reel backward and look as if he were going to faint. The fever-laden atmosphere of the one-roomed house as it rushed outward was overpowering, and it was some time before he could enter. I summoned up courage to follow him as he beckoned me to come on.

I had some difficulty in realizing the fearful scene before me. On one side of the hearth lay two young boys in a state of unconsciousness, and almost side by side lay their two sisters in the same pitiable condition. Following the direction indicated by the priest, I observed the mother of these four children, a few feet off, a corpse. All were lying on the bare floor, with a few scanty rags their only covering. I hastened from the house overwhelmed with the sight, and what my feelings were can be better imagined than described. The priest remaining a considerable time in the cabin, I returned to find him engaged in cutting off the girls' hair with an old rusty scissors which he discovered after a close search. The next day the priest visited this stricken family again, and carried himself—to avoid publicity—two of his own blankets with which to cover the poor girls and their brothers.—Catholic Times.

FEMALE LAWYERS.

List of the States in Which they Have Been Admitted to Practice.

Damon Y. Kilgore, Esq., recently wrote to Perry & Martin, attorneys-at-law (ladies), inquiring as to the number of ladies practicing law in the United States. The junior partner of the firm, Ellen S. Martin, in her reply, said:

"My investigation last year resulted in finding forty-eight women who had been admitted to the bar and engaged in practice or some line of lawyers' work—editing law reports or periodicals—in the United States. I have heard of others since; but as it was too late for my purpose, I have not followed them up. There are many more women who have studied and been admitted, but they have not practiced.

"The forty-eight in actual practice are distributed as follows (I give the place of first admission—some have changed location. I give the States in the order in which they first admitted women): Iowa, 3; Missouri, 2; Michigan, 6; Utah Territory, 1; District of Columbia, 3; Maine, 1; Ohio, 4; Illinois, 7; Wisconsin, 5; Indiana, 2; Kansas, 3; Minnesota, 1 (from Iowa); California, 3; Connecticut, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Nebraska, 1; Washington Territory, 1; Pennsylvania, 1. Total, 48.

"The admission in all these States is to the highest courts, except in the case of Pennsylvania. Women have also appeared as attorneys in several of the lower courts of Maryland, and have been admitted to United States courts in Texas and Oregon, though not to the State courts.

"Women were admitted on their first application without any change of the law in Iowa, Missouri, Michigan, Utah, District of Columbia, Maine, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana, Kansas, Connecticut, Nebraska and Washington Territory. In Wisconsin and Ohio, after some women had been admitted, others were refused by other judges, and the Legislatures at once passed laws forbidding the exclusion. In Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota and California the courts would not admit women until laws were passed, and the Legislatures promptly passed them.

"The first admission of a woman occurred in Iowa in 1869, when the statute provided only for the admission of 'white male persons over the age of twenty-one years.' But the words 'white' and 'male' soon after dropped out of the statute. In the other States where the women were admitted on first application there existed either the common law on the subject (whatever that may be) or the words 'male,' 'citizen,' or 'voter' was in the statute relating to admission of attorneys."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Diminutive Engine.

Charles Cox, a jeweler of Salem, Ore., has constructed a steam engine inside the wreath on a one dollar gold piece. Its weight is two pennyweight and six grains, and the length of the stroke is sixteen hundredths of an inch. The length of the valve stroke is three hundredths of an inch, and the machine when run by steam is capable of five thousand revolutions per minute. It is now run by compressed air. The cylinder and bright work is gold-plated, and the little thing is quite a curiosity in its way.—Oregonian.

Amazing Ignorance.

After all that has been said and written on the decision of the Supreme Court, in the case of Lux vs. Haggin, the subject can hardly be mentioned without an apology. And yet it would appear that not enough has been written and said from the fact that there are farmers here in Owens' Valley who so utterly fail to understand the matter at all, that they think those who are working hard to have that decision reversed are trying to have farmers prevented from taking water from running streams for irrigation. According to that decision, any one who owns land along the natural course of the streams from which these men take their water, and located below them, can compel them to cease using the water for irrigation, and force them to let the water run in its natural channel, "undiminished in quantity and uninjured in quality." Surely the way is here so plain that "the wayfaring man, though he be a fool need not err therein.' It matters not that these unwise men would be utterly ruined by such a law; that their lands would be made desert and their homes uninhabitable, it is the law and unless that decision is reversed these men will be compelled to submit to it, although starvation to them and their families be the consequence. The whole matter is so well understood that with the exceptions alluded to, and a few millionaire land owners, all the people in the State are united in their efforts to have this most ruinous decision reversed, and the law so amended that no succeding Court or Judges may ever again be able to threaten the people of California with such widespread ruin as would follow the decision of our present Supreme Judges It may not be possible for these few men to understand this matter; the works of the Creator are all perfect, and they are perfect—of their kind. But while there is one man in California outside of an insane asylum who does not understand it no pains should be spared to instruct him

Dangers From Appropriation.

The doctrine of entire right to the waters of a stream by the simple act of appropriation is one that will be carefully considered before being formulated into a law. Suppose that a single person should stick up a notice on the bank of a stream containing water enough to irrigate two hundred thousand acres of land, and in that notice state that he had appropriated all the water that flows in the stream; then suppose further that he should set up a tent on the bank of the stream and spend most of his time under its shelter, only going out occasionally to remove a few shovelfuls of dirt or grub out a sagebrush, and call that building a ditch and under these wretched pretenses attempt to control the development of a great region that would afford homes for hundreds of families, would it be wise to give the strength of law to such a huge system of blackmail as this would be? This is no imaginary case, no merely possible but altogether improbable outrage; right here in Owens Valley every one knows that such an attempt is being made, and only wants the enactment of a law confirming the unlimited right of appropriation to make it a success. While the rights of hard-working men who built ditches and made homes from the desert must be fully paotected due care must be taken that no law will be made that would give one or a few unprincipled schemers the power to make hundreds of farmers their bond slaves.

Pat Him on the Back.

The Mexicans are helping the Canadians to make Secretary Bayard miserable. Some friend of the Secretary should try to convince him that he need not be afraid of either or both his tormentors. There are Americans enough to protect the Secretary from these or any other foreign assailants if he will only show a little grit. Mr. Bayard made a little mistake about twenty-five years ago, and appears to fear that this would be remembered to his prejudice if he should get into trouble with foreigners. The Secretary need not have the slightest hesitancy in doing his duty; his countrymen will stand by him, and he knows what they can do; and if he will but show the courage and energy becoming an American officer he may rest assured he will have backing enough. Brace up, Mr. Bayard; trust your countrymen and you need not fear our neighbors.

There is strong probability that the extra session of the Legislature will end without anything of importance being done, Nothing better could be expected, after the attempt already made to legislate upon the subject by the present body. The call for the extra session will not be entirely barren of good, however; every experiment made, every failure to settle the question, sheds new light upon it and helps to prepare the way for that final legislation that will secure a just and equitable distribution of the waters of the State for irrigation. This is all that good citizens ask.

THE newspapers of the State are nearly, if hot quite as unanimous in condemning the Governor for calling the extra session as they are in opposition to the Chinese. Every day makes the gross folly of the Governor more apparent; democratic papers denounce his action quite as strongly as republican papers do.

WHEN THE GRASS SHALL COVER ME.

When the grass shall cover me,
I cead to foot where I am lying;
When not any wind that blows,
Summer blooms or winter snows,
Shall wake me to your sighing,
Close above me as you pass,
You will say, "How kind she was,"
You will say, "How true she was,"
When the grass grows over me.

When the grass shall cover me,
Holden close to earth's warm bosom,
While I laugh, or weep, or sing,
Nevermore, for anything;
You will find in blade or blossom
Sweet small voices, odorous,
Tender pleaders in my cause,
That shall speak me as I was
When the grass grows over me.

When the grass shall cover me!
Ah, beloved, in my sorrow
Very patient, I can wait—
Knowing that, or soon or late,
There will dawn a clearer morrow;
When your heart will moan: "Alas!
Now I know how true she was;
Now I know how dear she was"
When the grass grows over me!

Monkeys in Defense of their Kind.

A cowardly little Capuchin monkey will charge a bull-dog to rescue a shrieking comrade. Shooting a Rhesus monkey never fails to awaken the anathemas of his fellow-apes; they follow the murderer for miles with indignant shrieks and all sorts of pantomimes, suggestive of reprisal. "In the defiles of Sidi Felbez" (Abyssinia), says Brehm, "we came across a large troop of baboons, crossing the valley ahead of us. Some had already ascended the opposite ridge, and some were still in the valley; the latter were attacked by the dogs, but the old males promptly dashed down the slope, and, with wide-open mouths, roared so fearfully that the dogs quickly drew back. They were again encouraged to the attack, but by this time the baboons had all reascended the heights, excepting a youngster about six months old, who, loudly calling for help, climbed on a block of rock and was surrounded. Then one of the largest males, a true hero, came down again from the mountain, coaxed him, and triumphantly led him away—the dogs being too much astonished to make an attack." To many other species of animals sympathy of that sort is so foreign that they will actually join to massacre a wounded comrade.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald.

An Eccentric Citizen of Moscow.

A Russian novelist has published a biography of Prokofi Demidow, a well-remembered citizen of Moscow, and probably the most eccentric man of his nation. His wealth enabled him to indulge a mania for the strangest kind of bric-a-brac—broken swords, knouts of all sizes and ages, stuffed Cossacks, skulls, bottled monstrosities and reptiles. His museum of living curiosities was equally unique. He kept bears, and wild-boars and had a stable full of unmanageable horses, some of them so vicious that they had to be fed by stratagem; and Demidow's favorite anecdote was the adventure of a horse-thief who one night entered the den of equine monsters and never afterward questioned the existence of a personal devil. To such as knew how to humor his personal whims his liberality was unbounded.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald.

An Extreme Case of Shylockism.

A Berlin correspondent reports a ne plus ultra case of Shylockism. Prof. Bombe, teacher and school inspector, recently left the world by the poison route, and subsequent investigation revealed the fact that he had been hounded to death by a usurer. In 1869 sickness had obliged him to borrow 150 marks—about $32—and a preposterous percentage expanded that sum until the interest exceeded his yearly income, for it was proved that in the course of sixteen years this leech had drained him of 68,500 marks.—Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Last Battle of the War.

The last battle of the war occured near Brazos Santiago, Tex., May 13, 1865. A small expedition set out to surprise a Confederate camp was overtaken on its return by a larger force and defeated with a loss of eighty men. This engagement is officially reported as the battle of Palmetto Ranch. The Federal troops engaged were the Thirty-Fourth Indiana volunteers, the Sixty-second United States colored infantry and the Second Texas cavalry.—Inter Ocean.

The Penetrative Force of Arrows.

Wonderful stories having been told of the feats of savage archers in piercing armor and trees several inches in diameter, Prof. O. T. Mason, of the Smithsonian institution, requests archery clubs to make careful experiments upon the distance of accurate projection momentum at leaving the bow, and penetrating power into animals of arrows.—Arkansaw Traveler.

He Was Getting Rich Too Fast.

The Chinese minister at Washington was formerly the governor of a province. After he had made his fortune, the emperor saw that he was getting rich too fast, and, much to his disgust, exiled him here on a salary of $25,000 a year and all expenses paid.—Texas Siftings.

Frank R. Stockton's Methods of Writing.

Frank R. Stockton dictates his funny stories and novels to his wife, who acts as his amenuensis, and in this way, by working only three hours a day, he did "Mrs. Null" in ten months, besides dictating nine magazine articles.—Inter Ocean.

No Jewish Member of Congress.

In the United States, with an estimated Jewish population of nearly 500,000, there is not a single Jewish member of congress. In England no fewer than seven Jews have been elected members of the house of commons.—Montreal Star.

Water-Tight Mail Bags Are Advocated.

Water-tight mail bags are advocated for ocean service, with some strong arguments in their favor. They should also be made buoyant enough to float with contents in case of disaster.—Chicago News.

The Best-Dressed Professional Woman.

The best-dressed professional woman in New York is said to be Dr. Lozier, whose quiet black gowns suits her and her calling.

An English Actor's Enormous Receipts.

Henry Irving's receipts since 1878 are said to have been nearly $2,500,000, including the proceeds of his American tour—Inter Ocean.

There are 13,000,000 men, women, and children earning wages in the United Kingdom.

Some New Reportorial Ear-Marks.

"You can always tell when there is a new reporter in town," said an old stager the other night.

"How is that?" was asked.

"Well, he is sure to do one of three things. He will write up Capt. Bill Fuller's race after the State road train stealers, or he will interview the goat-wagon man, who wants 5 cents because he can't walk, or he will tell about how one of Sheridan's bombshells knocked a hole in a lamp-post at St. James' bank corner. If the new reporter is extra sharp he will write all three.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Lobster and a Dragon.

Lovers of the curious in art will be rewarded by a visit to the Japanese department of one of our business houses, where may be seen a couple of pieces of workmanship of the most unique character. The ones referred to have quite a history attached thereto. The patient care and accurate handiwork of the Orient has no better example than these two pieces of iron, which have so remarkably been worked out into representation of a lobster and a dragon, that are reproduced in such perfect manner that one wonders more and more at the talent of the Japanese artist who fashioned them. About 50 years ago a mechanic by the name of Mio-Chin made a couple of similar pieces of work. One of them became the property of the mikado, the other one of the daimios. Both of these august individuals handed them down to his successors, they thus passing on as heirlooms until the then daimio of twenty-five years ago sold his to an American merchant now in New York. Since these pieces were first made many attempts have been made to copy them but without success.

When Mr. Kusufaro Tanaka was in Japan three years ago he came across a very clever mechanic, and he had such faith in his talent that he employed him to make the pieces he now has. Working steadily for three years he has made just four pieces—two lobsters and two dragons. The first Mr. Tanaka sold in New York to a party there for $600—who in turn sold them to a Boston merchant and connoisseur for $1,500. They are exact duplicates of the two now here. The peculiarity of the work is that it was all done in a similar manner to the Yankee process of whittling—the difference being that the material operated on is iron in the one case and wood in the other. It should be stated that they are not mere carvings—the joints are perfectly articulated, with the result of making the work more lifelike and more wonderful.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

As I sit here now it is curious to watch the actions of some of these senators. Cullom, of Illinois, is playing with a string, and Dolph, of Oregon, is tapping his knees with his spectacles. Eli Saulsbury, as tall as Jack's beanstalk, is walking about the chamber with his hands in his pockets, and Senator George, of Mississippi, has one of the ends of his gold spectacle frame in his right ear, and he is using this as an ear pick. Henry B. Payne is picking his teeth with his knife, and as I look in I note that another senator, who has been performing the same operation upon his molars, has taken the blade out of his teeth and is cleaning his finger nails with it. The knife is often used as a toothpick by senators, and a half hour rarely passes when one or more may not be seen touching their teeth with the cold steel of the penknife.

Evarts, when he laughs, looks very much like the American eagle on a broad grin. I have noted that Senator Hoar reads a great deal in the senate chamber, and that the books often cover several different languages. Joe Brown, of Georgia, sits very quietly, and one of his gestures is stroking his long white beard. Beck, of Kentucky, is always busy, and Logan now and then seems to grow a little nervous and at such times he keeps his hands or feet moving, and often walks out into the cloak room. Gen. Manderson, of Nebraska, has a way of putting his thumbs in his vest pockets when he walks about the senate, and Van Wyck is continuously moving here and there, now gesturing violently, and always ready to make a speech when he sees the government in danger.—"Carp" in Cleveland Leader.

Who Sets Fashions for Women.

The Gainsborough hat is again coming into style. Some four or five years ago it was quite fashionable, but was driven out of vouge by the ridicule of the press and sarcasm of theatre-goers. It disappeared from street and parquet for a time, but has become again the rage. The other day during a brief interval of sunshine a lady wearing a Gainsborough nearly three feet in diameter walked on the west side of State street, from Lake to Adams. She was stared at by 10,000 curious eyes, and was the object of 1,000 remarks ranging from sarcasm to wonder. She did not seem to mind it, but strolled leisurely along with her parasol at an angle of 45 degrees, and hummed an air from the "Mikado." She was in no hurry, but stopped at every other shop window and gazed therein. She had not walked a block before the universal feminine comment was: "The Gainsboroughs are coming in again." And so they are if that lady is as good an advertisement as she has been in the past. She is under salary from a millinery firm on Wabash avenue, and I have seen her walk more than one article of head dress into popularity in the self-same way.—Chicago News.

The Toothpick and the Teeth.

The toothpick is an important instrument in taking proper care of the teeth; it should be brought into requisition after each meal, and a thorough use made of it in removing all particles of food or other foreign substances which may be lodged between them. The best tookpick yet invented is a quill from the wing of a goose, sharpened so as to readily pass between each tooth and its neighbor. The vigilant and thorough use of this simple little instrument would almost insure an average set of teeth from the ravages of decay. Too much importance has been laid upon tooth-powders and washes; most of them are harmless and some beneficial. Precipitate chalk is the principal ingredient of nearly all the powders and tablets in the market, and is measurably beneficial.—Dr. S. H. King in Western Journal of Health.

Servants in Washington City.

Of course, in this city of cheap house rents, you would suppose that housekeeping would be a pleasant and easy matter, as help gets only an average of $12 a month. From personal experience I can say that nowhere in the country is it so difficult to get good servants as it is here. The best help is black. There is plenty of it, but very little of it is good. All the women are "ladies," and I know of one housekeeper who lost her cook and washerwoman two days ago in this wise: She wanted an extra woman for some purpose and spoke to her cook on the subject. Dinah said she could recommend "a lady" who would answer. The housekeeper said she did not want "a lady," but a "woman" who could scrub floors, lift bundles, and generally help in spring cleaning. The cook flared up, declared that black ladies are as good as white ladies, threatened to have the lady of the house "boycotted," and left, taking the washerwoman along with her.—Cor. Rochester Union.

Gen. Logan's Great Black Eagle.

Mrs. Gen. Logan, at the suggestion of Bancroft, the historian, has named the great black eagle, recently sent to the general from Tennessee, by the appropriate title of "Old Hickory."—Chicago Journal.

The Native Mexicans as Laborers.

We have been using considerable American labor, but will now change our policy and employ only natives, except two engineers, who must be Americans. Of course, American labor is more competent, but it also costs a great deal more, and we find that when a man gets down in that country he puts himself on the level of the native, and works hard to do just the same amount of work. He never stops to think that he receives twice the pay of the native and should do twice the amount of work. Consequently it is foolish to go to the expense of employing outside labor. The natives give better satisfaction.—Mexico Cor. Globe Democrat.

The Right Kind.

After all the fussing and puffing about the great things companies would do in Owens valley in the way of building ditches, two or three single individuals are doing more than the whole of them. Mr. Stevens, a man aged over seventy-five years, is pushing his ditch along rapidly, and will soon have water on several thousand acres of good land. Far from making any blow about his work, or seeking any notoriety, he modestly shuns notice, minds his own business, goes ahead and will complete his enterprise while others are talking about what might be done. Mr. Rawson is another man who is doing a great deal of valuable work in getting water on to land, planting and making it very productive. But he too works quietly and detests notoriety. These are the kind of men who are a real benefit to any country; success to them.

THE Marquis of Lorne, a young man whose wife won't live with him, is spoken of as Viceroy of Ireland under the coming Tory administration. When Lorne was sent out as Governor General of Canada a few years ago, Louise went with him, but found him such poor company during the cold nights there that she left him and went back to England. Such a cold blooded fellow as that is not likely to be very popular with the warm hearted Irish people, There is but one man in public life in England who is every way qualified to be Viceroy of Ireland and that man is an Irishman, Lord Dufferin, the talented son of a talented and beautiful Irishwoman.

Flowers Exported for Their Sugar.

The Maluva tree of central India (bassia latifolia) bears flowers which are now being exported to Europe for their sugar, of which they contain more than half their weight. The tree resembles the oak and a single specimen sometimes bears a ton of flowers.—Boston Budget.

Novels at a Penny Apiece.

The practice of cheap publishing in England is about to reach its lowest level in the issue of a series of new, original novels by well known writers, printed in demy 8vo on fair paper with striking covers, at a penny apiece.

Fifty American dairy cows were shipped to China a short time ago from San Francisco.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDRNCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY JULY 31 .....1886.

—At Bell's Mill improvements and repairs are being made preparatory to begin making flour from the new wheat crop.

—Mrs. W. L. Hunter arrived home at Independence last Wednesday from a lengthy visit with relatives in the Lower Country.

—Mr. Hardy and family moved into a new building at the end of last week; it stands on the site of the former Postoffice building.

—Messrs. Alexander and Gilmore have signed a contract to build a hotel for H. Levy on the site of the "Miners' Home," destroyed in the recent fire.

Tom Webb came down from Long Valley at the beginning of the week, and started back yesterday morning. He says the cattle are doing first rate.

—Mr. E. Chenot expects to have his new building finished by a week from next Monday. He has bought a fine stock of merchandise and will then reopen his store.

—Another candidate for Sheriff has entered the lists; Mr. Thomas J. Goodale. No man in the county is better known than Mr. Goodale; if nominated he would make a lively canvass.

—Further abuse of the Supreme Court is useless; it is like pouring water on a drowned mouse. The Legislature at its extra session should not meddle with the Court; that can be better attended to at the general election.

—Three newspapers have come to an end in Mono county within the past few weeks. All of them were started because their projectors "had no other way of making a living," but the people got tired of supporting them.

—Mr. A. W. Eibeshutz is now monarch of all he surveys in a tent in the brewery grove. In his airy quarters he would rival Francis or Henry in the field of the Cloth of Gold. Meantime his new building is making rapid headway.

Mr. Wayland, of Bishop Creek, is reported to be dangerously ill; his daughter, Mrs. Brown, of Independence, went up to Bishop Creek at the beginning of the week to help take care of him. Mr. Wayland is aged nearly seventy years.

Mr. Pat. Clinton has leased the Carson mine, at Cerro Gordo; the lease is to run a year and a half. Mr. Clinton was at Independence some days this week getting ready supplies and making other preparation for work on the mine. A new tunnel will be started at once.

—Harris & Rhine have been receiving new goods by every train that came in during the week. Apparently they are doing a big business and are receiving orders for goods as fast as they can fill them. The express office is removed to their new building on Edwards street.

—A sewing machine agent in San Francisco called on a customer at the beginning of the week to collect a bill. The customer got mad and cut the agent's throat. Agents are in the habit of getting people to buy machines on the installment plan and sign "con-throat" leases; but the San Francisco method of getting even is rather rough on the agents.

—The sale of the McCown place, north of Alvord, to Mr. Collins is reported. As Mr. Sanger, Mr. Collins' partner, is doing at Alvord, the latter will no doubt at once proceed to make extensive improvements at Warm Springs. During the past few weeks Mr. Sanger has cleared over a hundred acres of sagebrush land and it is now ready for plowing. He expects to have at least four hundred acres seeded to alfalfa this season. Both of these gentlemen intend making their homes on their locations; both will be valuable citizens as their example will induce others to invest and improve in Owens Valley.

—B. F. Leete, of Reno, is said to have found indications of a rich gold deposit at Gold Mountain, south of Candelaria. He and one of his sons went to that region last week provided with a prospecting outfit. If there is any gold there Mr. Leete will be very likely to find it. Burns advises sick persons to put a message to Dr. Hornbrook

"—In a kail blade, and send 't,
As soon's he smells it,
Baith their disease, and what will mend 't,
At once he tells it."

Mr. Leete, in diagnosing for gold, is not less skilled than the renowned Scotch scientist in diagnosing for disease; we hope he may find heaps of it.

BLACK-SMITHING.—Parker & Matlack got their forge in working order at the beginning of the week and have been playing the anvil chorus right along while the building is going up around them. They are ready to do all kinds of work as well and as cheaply as ever.

NATURAL GAS.—Mr. Israel Luce reports that he has found very strong indications of natural gas at the marble quarry. A jet of the gas issuing out of a hole in the quarry was accidentally ignited and burned with a strong flame for some time. He says as soon as he can make the necessary preparations he will prospect further for the gas.

COUNTY OFFICERS' QUARTERS.—The various County Officers are located for the present as follows: Superior Judge, at his own residence; District Attorney, residence of H. P. Cartier; Treasurer, Postoffice; Assessor, at his own residence; Recorder, County Clerk and Auditor, at the residence of R. L. Peeler; Sheriff, residence of Under-Sheriff. The Superior Court is held in the Methodist Church.

THE LAND OFFICE.—Every kind of device is resorted to in order to delay the removal of the Land Office to Independence. The fire has been made an excuse for delay false representation having been made that there was no accommodation for the office here at present. As a matter of fact the Register and Receiver could have choice of at least two buildings, either of which would afford very ample accommodation for the office. In the mean time much delay, trouble and expense are incurred by keeping the office at Bodie. There is no good reason to delay the removal of the office for one day, and the public need for the removal increases every day.

MYTHICAL CANINES.—The Los Angeles Express tells of great damage being done in that county by a band of wild dogs; they go to the towns at night and kill chickens and hogs. They live on game and are a terror to sheep men. A short time ago 600 of these big black dogs were counted in one band. They are about twice the size of the largest coyote and very dangerous when molested. The writer of the article says: "These dogs are no doubt a part of the band of wild canines that live in the mountains in Inyo county."

This story is "no doubt" all as untrue as the statement about "the band of wild canines that live in the mountains in Inyo county." No such band exists anywhere in Inyo county.

Champions of Liberty.

The Orangemen of Ulster continue to give abundant proofs of their ignorance, brutality and utter contempt for law or the rights, or even lives of other citizens. It may well excite the utmost disgust and horror to hear of these men shouting about their devotion to what they call "religion," and screaming about their "loyalty," at the very time they are busy robbing, wrecking and burning the homes of their peaceful neighbors, and murdering officers who are doing their duty. The scenes lately enacted at Belfast stamp those Orange savages as among the most fiendish of mankind; their conduct there was such as only devils could delight in, and their cries of "religion" and "loyalty" must have made the halls of the palace of all the demons reverberate with bitter laughter. Gladstone may well be encouraged by the action of such enemies; he has the hearty sympathy of all lovers of freedom and progress everywhere.

BEEF, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

The demand for beef is growing more rapidly than are the herds increasing. In the year 1860 there were 814 cattle in the United States for every 1,000 of our population. To-day there are only 775 head of cattle to each 1,000 of our population, a very considerable falling off in the relative supply, notwithstanding that during this period the whole of Montana, Dakota, Idaho, Eastern Oregon, Nevada, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, most of New Mexico and nearly one-half of Texas have been withdrawn from the dominion of the Indian and filled to overflowing with cattle. The increase in these States and Territories alone, since 1860 has been over 15,000,000 head of cattle. Still, with this wonderful extension of the business into new fields, and the saving of every female animal of the bovine race for breeding purposes, the increase of population has been so rapid and continuous that we have not been able to keep up our beef supply. No one for a moment will dispute the statement that the population of this country will go on increasing at a proportionate rate, and that in consequence in the year 1910 we will have 100,000,000 people to eat beef. Where is this supply to come from? A pamphlet has recently been published on Nevada as a cattle country, by the editor of the Northwestern Live Stock Journal, that would seem to give the best answer to this question. The writer urges the policy of irrigation and alfalfa growing as the surest and most profitable way of raising beef cattle in future. By this means a better grade of cattle can be produced, that will be fit for market in much less time, weigh much more, and command a better price than cattle raised on the range. The following sales were made in Chicago, on July 8th, 1885:

One hundred and thirty-two steers, weight 1,372 to 1,450 pounds, $4 85 per hundred. One hundred and twenty steers weight 1,160 pounds sold for $4. A lot of good Texans (extra fat) 607 pounds, brought $3.50 per hundred pounds. Examine these figures and see what they demonstrate. The 1,106 pound steer brings $44 24 gross. The average of the other (1,372 and 1,450) equal to 1,411 pounds, brings $82 54, a difference of $30.30 in favor of the larger animal. This is a gain in value by Winter feeding of nearly 90 per cent on the open range system. To this add the four per cent. loss on the entire herd, gained by Winter feeding and we have a net gain on each beef steer of 121 per cent. over his present range value.

The writer gives the following estimates of the cost of clearing and irrigating land in Nevada, and of the returns from the same.

"The bulk of the irrigable lands of this region can be supplied with water for $5 an acre, and the average for the whole, that is, all that would be practicable to irrigate, would not exceed $7.50 per acre. Five dollars an acre is a liberal allowance for this clearing. This expense aggregates $12.50 an acre. And $7.50 more for cost of land and expense of seeding to alfalfa. The investment, then, for seeded alfalfa land is $20 an acre. Seven per cent of this amount is $1.40 per annum. This acre of land will yield four tons of alfalfa hay, the cost of harvesting being $1.50 per ton, or $6 for the acre. Sixty cents per ton will pay the cost of feeding, making the total expense per acre $8. The product of this acre will feed three head of stock cattle for 130 days, four and a third months, keeping the older ones fat and the youngsters growing. This adds $2.66 a head to the annual expense of maintaining the herd, or $8 to the cost of each beef animal at three years of age. The above statement shows, however, that the three-year-old beef animal will bring $38 30 more in the Chicago market by virtue of his Winter feed from calf-hood up, leaving a net profit of $30 30 after paying for the cost of the hay."

Considerable changes would have to be made in applying these estimates to Owens valley. Instead of allowing five dollars as the cost of clearing here, men who have already cleared large tracts say they can do it for fifty cents an acre; and instead of gathering four tons of hay per acre, six tons can be safely counted on here. The cost of supplying water in Nevada is, according to this estimate, more than double what it would cost here. The writer estimates the cost of land in Nevada at seven and a half dollars an acre; here there are thousands of acres of good government land open for settlement, and thousands of acres more partly improved that can be bought at the figure given for Nevada.

Plenty of Accommodation.

A correspondent at San Francisco writes that he was all ready to come to Owens Valley with a view to stay a few weeks and examine the country thoroughly. Just before starting he heard of the great fire at Independence, and that induced him to give up the trip for the present, as he thought no hotel accommodations could be had, nor any livery horses or carriages. We would urge this correspondent, and all others intending to visit Independence and Owens River Valley, not to delay one hour for the reasons given. Mr. O. I. Mairs has a good and well equipped livery stable where all comers can be accommodated with excellent carriage or saddle horses, and with almost any kind of carriage, and where teams are as well cared for as any where else in the State. For personal accommodation, visitors will not find any where else better beef-steak, sweeter or lighter bread, richer cream or more delicious butter, finer vegetables or more delicious fruits; and for trout we beat the world, except Big Meadows, Plumas county, and we equal that. We can give the weary traveler a bed on clover that will be more elastic than the finest steel springs, redolent with odors richer than the breath of the sweet south playing on a bank of violets, and where, resting on and covered by sheets of showy whiteness, he may enjoy the soundest sleep or revel in the most pleasing dreams. Don't be kept away for want of accommodation; we have plenty.

Cheap Fares.

The following instructions have been issued to agents of the C. & C. railroad: You are authorized to sell round trip tickets to Reno and return, to connect with trains leaving Mound House on August 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th, at one half regular rates, making such tickets read, "Void after August 17th for points between Mound House and Candelaria, and after the 18th between Candelaria and Keeler." Round trip tickets can be procured to San Francisco and return on above mentioned rates, only good until and including Sunday, August 15th, at noon, half regular tariff rates. This means that an open half-fare rate has been made for the public in general, on account of the Grand Army of the Republic parade at San Francisco on August 31. Sell half rate tickets for children over five and under 12 years at half the above rates.

San Carlos.

S. A. Densmore recently made a shipment of ore from the San Carlos mine that paid very well. The ore was sent to Selby & Co., and went seventy-six dollars a ton silver, 30¾ per cent. lead, and a small amount in gold. The net return to Mr. Densmore was seventy-six dollars a ton, the value of the lead and gold being equal to all the expenses. Mr. Densmore says he will put a greater force of men to work in the mine immediately. He reports the vein to be two and a half feet wide.

OLANCHA IS THE PLACE

All Other Competitors Left Far Behind.

The County Seat will be moved to Olancha, sure. The following communication puts the matter beyond doubt:

"Since I last wrote you in regard to the removal of the County Seat, numerous petitions have been sent here extolling the adaptability of various locations, and each offering magnificent inducements.

We, of Olancha, believing our place to be the centre of civilization and the only place where the County Seat can be permanently situated, at a meeting of our would be tax-payers, it was unanimously resolved to offer the Honorable Board of Supervisors the following inducements:

FIRST:—We will present six hundred and forty (640) acres of land surrounded by an iron fence fourteen (14) feet high.

SECOND:—We will build therein a two hundred thousand dollar Court House, wholly of iron, so that it will be fire proof, bullet proof, burglar proof and every other proof. Rooms to be furnished in the latest and most luxurious style, and the whole to be under the supervision of aged matrons, not younger than sixteen years.

Olancha being directly in the artesian water belt, wells will be sunk and an abundance of flowing water supplied, and the grounds will be planted with fruit and ornamental trees and exotic and rare flowers.

THIRD:—We will build and run a hotel on the European plan, free to all comers, officers and attaches of the Court House to have a liberal rebate. We will supply all officers and lawyers with a full set of the moral law; we will supply every officer with a double team, warranted for a two twenty gait; we will build and run a railroad to Owens Lake, where we will have free bath houses. The Court House will be supplied with soda water at a nominal figure. The members of the Board of Supervisors shall be declared free comers at the bar. Judges will be furnished with free cigars. Ice will be packed daily from the mountains and supplied at low rates.

Any other improvements suggested will be cheerfully adopted by our committee. All this and more will be done, providing we first get the ten thousand dollars starter yet in the hands of the insurance company. Our petition will be out for signatures next week. All aspirants for county offices failing to sign it will be ostracized in the coming election. As this is strictly confidential, I know you will not show or read it to any of our competitors, unless you feel like it or want them to know the contents.

Yours,

P. S. I forgot to state that the Court House entrance will be overhung with grape vines, forced by the Edison electric process, ripe grapes warranted every day in the year.

Propose to Tax It.

The people of Mono county are not stirred that the matter of salaries of county officers is yet settled. The Board of Supervisors have passed the following resolution:

"In the matter of making a test case in regard to salaries, moved by Boone, seconded by Hector, that we instruct the District Attorney to inquire into the law under which the County Auditor is drawing his salary; that if said officer is by virtue of his appointment acting under the law as revised in Statutes of 1885, and only entitled to the salary as provided in said amended law, then if in the judgment of the District Attorney it is deemed advisable, we hereby instruct said District Attorney to take such steps as may be necessary to settle the matter by making out a case that will bring the constitutionality of the law before the Courts as to its taking effect upon all appointed and elected officers after its passage."

The tax-payers of Mono and Inyo counties should never cease agitating this matter till they are absolutely certain of relief from the oppressive burden fixed upon them by the enormous salaries paid to county officers. It is not to be endured that the labor of so many should be all for the benefit of a few officers, or that one man should receive for one month more than his service to the county is worth in a whole year.

Cheap Harvesting.

The Delta, Tulare county, gives a description of a lately invented harvesting machine:

One team is employed to haul water for use in the boiler, and one to follow the harvester to pick up the sacks of wheat. These are the only horses employed. The men engaged are the engineer, fireman, steersman, header-tender, sack-sower, water hauler and sack-hauler. With these seven men fifty acres can be headed and threshed in a day, and the grain piled in stacks as fast as it comes from the harvester. Thus the wheat standing in a field of fifty acres in the morning could be left piled in sacks in the evening.

Mr. Berry's actual cash outlay for running the harvester, in his own field, not taking into account allowance for wear of machinery and interest on value of same, amounts to about forty cents per acre. And he can make a profit on harvesting for others at one dollar per acre, whereas the lowest rate charged by other harvesters is two dollars.

Dangerous.

True or false, since the creation of the Board of Railroad Commissioners that body has been accused of being entirely controlled by railroad influence. A project is now talked of to create a similar Board to have control of the waters of the State used for irrigation. For every complaint made against the Railroad Commissioners fifty would be made against any Board of Water Commissioners it would be possible to have. Under the legislation that would necessarily follow the creation of such a Board, works would be constructed and capital invested on a scale rivaling the railroads. The interests growing up would come far closer to the people than railroad interests, and might become vastly more oppressive than any or all railroad interests ever were accused of being. The present condition of the water interest of the State is surrounded with dangers, not the least of which is the creation of a Board of Water Commissioners. If such a Board were in existence it must have too much power for the safety of the public, or too little to be of any real service.

Effects of the Conclave.

Much of the great success expected for the meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic in San Francisco will be due to the Conclave of Knights Templar held in the City three years ago. The reception then given to strangers, not in San Francisco alone, but in many other towns and cities, and in fact wherever they went, was so cordial and generous that they became enthusiastic in their praise of California and its people. The reports those visitors gave on their return home of the beauty of the State, the variety and unrivalled excellence of its productions, and of the hospitality, courtesy and generosity of its people, inspired a desire in the minds of thousands of others to visit the State also. There is no doubt that the great throngs of people from the East, who are now visiting California, were mainly induced to come by the reports of those who attended the Conclave of Knights Templar.

If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as the Washer take off the women, and save as much money as it does, I will not come. I own it all one at every house, if they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it." JOHN H. SPRING.

The Song of the Woman Who Does Her Own Work.

Spring!
To be sure—so it is—and I'm going to sing,
Not the tunes that the regular poets rehearse
In ridiculous verse.
I've nothing of winds aromatic to say,
Nor pansies, nor tulips, nor hyacinths gay.
I live in the city,
And discover no pretty
Green leaflet or bud
Sticking out of the mud:
Nor do I hear warble of black bird or blue;
Yet I know it is spring just as well as you do.
Ay, I know it too well, for it's all spring for me;
From long before breakfast till long after tea.
I spring with the mats and the rugs out-of-doors;
I spring to the carpets—drag them from the floors;
I spring up step-ladders and wash down the walls;
I spring to the windows, I spring to the hails;
I spring to each corner, each closet, each nook;
I spring to each dust-laden picture and book;
I spring to the garret, where cobwebs abound;
I spring (if I may be allowed the expression) to the cellar, half-way underground;
I spring—but, good gracious! to tell every thing
I spring at would take me the whole of the spring.
And when spring is over I feel, I declare,
As though my springs were broken beyond all repair.

Spring!
To be sure—so it is—but let nobody bring
Any poems to me about beautiful flowers,
Or life-giving showers,
Or vine-covered bowers,
Or sunshiny hours,
For really such things seem extremely unmeaning
To one on whom spring springs a lot of spring cleaning.

A FAMOUS CASE.

Mr. Brooks Breaks Up a Noted Counterfeiter's Gang.

Recently, while in the United States treasury building, I learned from Mr. Brooks, the Chief of the Secret Service Department, for the first time the true history of a famous counterfeiting case, which attracted much attention all over the country, a few years ago. I was fortunate in forming his acquaintance as a Kansan, for he had been in Kansas in 1856 with Jim Lane's crowd, and told me that he saw men taken off the cars at Glasgow, Mo., and hanged for no crime but that of being Northerners (he being a foreigner, escaped.) Those were days when men shot the way they voted on both sides. I said: "Mr. Brooks, please tell me how you discovered one counterfeiter, that will better explain the Secret Service than any other talk about it. In the first place, how do you get the counterfeiters?" He said: "The ladies who count the money have charge of but one denomination; thus, the woman who handles the $100 notes counts no other. Fast as they seem to run through her fingers, if a single line is deflected, she can perceive it. Thus, the money that is returned is the chief source, although bankers and brokers also send them.

"One time a $100 counterfeit note came up. I compared it with all the engravers' samples which I have in my books, and after much deliberation, I concluded it was the work of one of two men, both, as I supposed, in New York. I wrote our agent, telling him to shadow Haskell and Brockaway, the suspected individuals, in no way connected with each other. After considerable search he found Haskell working at a card engraver's in Philadelphia. He was followed closely for some weeks, when he was taken sick and went to his home, a little village in New York, but instead of getting better he died. The counterfeit $100 bills continued every now and then to appear. I wrote our agent, 'Where is Brockaway? He must be the man.' I had before discovered that he sometimes passed under the name of Spencer, was tall, slender, with gray hair and long gray beard, all of which our agent knew. After more labor than I can tell you, we found that a wealthy gentleman, by the name of Spencer, had a yacht, and was off on a pleasure tour. Again we were literally at sea as well as they, but at last we found such a vessel anchored at a country place on Long Island. One day a tall, slender, gray-haired man, with a long, white beard came down the beach, accompanied by a beautiful girl, they were followed by another elderly man and young girl.

"The four boarded the yacht and started off. Our men took a yacht, and followed in the same direction; their yacht came back, our's returned. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, to all appearances, had a fine residence in a flat on one of the most fashionable streets in New York. They lived quietly, never went out, received no friends.

"Several weeks after they were joined by a tall, broad-shouldered, dashing, fine-looking fellow from the West; he called himself Foster. Now here is where experience comes in. Our agents report every night. As soon as I heard this description I wrote our agents that the new arrival was James W. Doyle, from a little town in Illinois. He married a woman by the name of Foster, whose father was a counterfeiter. 'Shadow him.'

"The truth is, ten or fifteen years before, that chap had to leave Philadelphia under circumstances which looked as if he was in the business then. In the Illinois town they found he left a boy under the name of Foster, but most of the mail that went into it was addressed to James W. Doyle—so my guess was correct. He soon, however, returned to New York. These men were followed day and night for five months before we saw a single suspicious thing. Doyle spent much of his time at the flat occupied by the Brockaways. One day the men came out with a broken seal, something like this," (here Mr. Brooks took up a stamping machine, like an ordinary notary's seal), "they took an omnibus to go down town, and left the broken seal in the 'bus. At the store they obtained another on the condition that if it suited, they would buy it, if not it would be returned next day. Our theory was that they broke the seal when they were nearly through with the job, and by using the new one one day were able to finish.

"They now began meeting a fine-looking man in Brooklyn, who lived in a beautiful garden. The three came and went much together, but nothing suspicious was seen, except that one day they stopped at a corner and all three closely inspected a small open package, which was passed from hand to hand. Our agent then concluded that the young man was going away, as he bought a fine overcoat, although it was yet summer. He also got a new satchel. One day he purchased a ticket for Chicago; he entered the sleeper; two of our men had adjoining berths. Another was anxiously expecting him in Chicago. If he had left the car at any place he would have been arrested by our men on the charge of being a Government embezzler, in order to give us a plea on which to search his baggage. If that proved all right, the other man would have stepped up and apologized, and said to the officer: 'Why, this is not the man I told you to arrest; you must pardon us, sir, etc.' But he made no attempt to leave the car. When they arrived at Chicago, they found the officer with his carriage waiting. The Chicago man laid his hand on Doyle's collar and said: 'I arrest you, Baxter, as a Government embezzler.'

"'Why, my name is not Baxter. I can bring fifty men here to prove my identity.' In the meantime, he had dropped his two large satchels. 'All right,' said the detective; 'if you prove all correct you will not be long detained. Here is a carriage; we shall take you to the United States Marshal, and after examination you will probably be dismissed.' The two satchels, the man and the detectives entered the carriage. We expected to find on him counterfeit one hundred dollar notes. In his inside pocket he had seventeen $100 notes, but they were genuine. The first satchel contained only clothes. The second, wrapped in some soiled linen, he had two hundred and four $1,000 bonds, in other words, $204,000 worth of Government bonds.

"The Marshal asked him: 'How much is there here?' His answer, I do not know," gave him away.

"Our men took them to the banks. The bankers declared them genuine, and said they would be glad to buy them, as they were at a premium. Well, to make a long story short, it took us a week to prove them counterfeit. They were absolutely a better job than ours, and there (pointing to a framed bond), is an enlarged photograph of one of his bonds."

"And where is he, Mr. Brooks?"

"He is now in the penitentiary in Illinois. His first sentence was for eight years. He was highly indignant—must have a new trial. He had it, and was sentenced for ten years. He has not hankered after another trial."

"And Brockaway?"

"We found more in the possession of Brockaway; but he was old and feeble, and we let him off on a suspended sentence, but kept a watch on him. In six months we caught him counterfeiting railroad bonds. He is now in Auburn."

"And the man in the garden?"

"Well, that was the strangest of all. There he lived, so close to the chief of police in Brooklyn, that the latter could have seen the lever of his presses, and was never suspected. He practiced counterfeiting from the age of eighteen to sixty-two. By a legal technicality he, who probably made them all, or at least most of the bonds, escaped."

"How much of this have the newspapers given?"

"They have given a general outline, but never knew the particulars I have given you."

On one occasion Mr. Brooks was shot through the body—the pistol placed against his back. Four assassins were in the room to kill him, so as to get rid of the only expert who could convict a party then arrested. But Mr. Brooks got well; lived to convict his man, and all his four would-be assassins are in the grave or in the penitentiary.

Surely, in his case, civil service is an excellent thing for the Government. Probably there is no man now living as expert as he, or one who could be so useful in protecting the Government currency and bonds from the counterfeiters. Mr. Brooks is an Englishman by birth. Were he displaced, the leading banks and express offices of the United States would give him a more lucrative post than his present place.—H. E. Monroe, in Chicago Graphic News.

A POPULAR PHRASE.

Origin of "Every Thing Is Lovely and the Goose Hangs High."

This expression is a corruption of an old-fashioned saying that originated in the early days of this country.

As most of you know, wild geese, when they migrate in autumn, form themselves into lines shaped like the letter V, the leader flying at the point, the two lines following; and as they sail away, far above the trees, and beyond all danger from guns—on those cool mornings when the air is clear, and the sky beautifully blue—they seem full of glee, and join in a chorus: "Honk, honk, honk!"

Any one who has heard those curiously sounding notes, never could mistake them. And the folks on the earth below who heard the bird's wild call, in old times, realized the happiness of the winged creatures in being so high and safe. And so it became quite natural, when two persons met each other under peculiarly favorable circumstances for this or that enterprise, for them to say: "Every thing is lovely, and the goose honks high!"—St. Nicholas.

Remains a Frenchman Forever.

Everybody knows that a Frenchman remains a Frenchman forever, no matter how much he travels. You might as well take an elephant to visit foreign countries with the idea that his trunk would eventually come off, as to lead a Frenchman through distant lands and among strange peoples in the hope of causing him to lose the peculiarities with which he was born. An Englishman or even an American goes to a foreign place, eats the foreign cooking, and swears. A Frenchman goes there and cooks for himself in his own way, or finds some one to do it for him. Wherever he may go he forever refuses to adapt himself to things as they are around him, but sets peacefully to work fixing things as they were at home.—Cor. New York Sun.

Waterproofing Fabrics with Parafline.

It is found that when parafline is thoroughly mixed with linseed oil, cast into small blocks and cooled, it may be used to make any fabric, as cloth, felt and leather, waterproof, by rubbing it with such a block and ironing afterwards to equalize the distribution of the material in the pores. If too much is not put on, the material may be made to be only impervious to water, but not to air, the small, greasy pores repelling water, but not air.—Frank Leslie's.

—At last something new beside the bride is chronicled in weddings. A Baltimore "happy couple" knelt on a rug of pink and red roses when the clergyman pronounced them one, last week, and the bridal gown was not of conventional satin, but composed entirely of Valenciennes lace, caught with tiny white birds and natural orange blossoms. Now, if this isn't novelty nothing at these fashionable ceremonies can be, and Baltimore deserves to be called the banner city for having thought of the floral rug.—Boston Herald.

I have experimented in the Potomac and marvelled at the simplicity of the apparatus and the stupendous importance of the results."—Cleveland Leader.

—Deafness appears to be exceptionally prevalent in Kennebec County, Maine, and in Martha's Vineyard. A recent scientific investigation of the matter shows that in both districts there is abundant evidence of heredity and especially of atavism. In the families affected there was also found blindness, insanity, idiocy and deformity, and in some cases a long history of consanguineal marriages. In Martha's Vineyard the distribution of deafness coincides with that of certain soils, and its eastern boundary is also the typhoid fever line.—Boston Journal.

—At a large and would-be fashionable wedding, recently held in a town in this State, the solemnity was rudely disturbed by a rather unexpected answer. The bride had entered, on her uncle's arm, and was met by the groom at the chancel. The uncle then returned and took a seat in the body of the house. All went well until the clergyman asked the question: "Who giveth this woman to be wedded to this man?" He paused for an answer, and the uncle rose, and placing his hands on the pew in front of him, he said, in accents louder than are common at weddings: "Me!"—Boston Traveler.

—It is related that when the first Maine railroad was started, about forty years ago, W. C. Pitman, of Bangor, was a conductor. One rainy morning he started from Waterville, and on arriving at North Belgrade, a flag station, not seeing any flag, ran by the station. Just as the train had passed the red flag was run out for some passengers to get on. Mr. Pitman stopped his train, and asked Stephen Richardson, the station agent, why he did not display the red flag before. Mr. Richardson replied: "Be you a-goin' to run your train in rainy weather? I didn't think you would."—Boston Journal.

The Tongue in Disease.

A white-coated tongue indicates febrile disturbance; a brown moist tongue indicates disordered digestion or overloaded primæ viæ; a brown dry tongue indicates depressed vitality, as in typhoid conditions and blood-poisoning; a red moist tongue indicates debility, as from exhausting discharges; a red dry tongue indicates pyrexia, or any inflammatory fever; a "strawberry" tongue with prominent papillæ indicates scarlet fever or rotheln; a red glazed tongue indicates debility, with want of assimilative power of digestion; a tremulous, flabby tongue indicates delirium tremens; hesitancy in protruding the tongue indicates concussion of the brain; protrusion at one side indicates paralysis of the muscles of that side.—Scientific American.

A PUZZLED PROFESSION.

The history of Rheumatism and many of the attempts to cure it, form one of the strangest records in the annals of disease. Rheumatism is one of the most perverse and obstinate of all diseases. One of the chief fallacies in attempts to cure rheumatism has been administering local treatment as if it were a disease confined to particular spots.

The one thing to be remembered in dealing with rheumatism is that anybody who has this unpleasant disease has it "all over." It is a disease of the blood, and it pervades the whole system. Therefore the whole system needs purifying and vitalizing. Is not this reasonable?

Next, remember that there is one great vitalizing agent. It has been before the world a number of years—long enough to be thoroughly tested. The hosts of strong and hearty persons who once were sufferers but have been made sound and happy by Compound Oxygen, cheerfully testify as to the power and success of this great vitalizing agent. Quietly, easily and surely it does its work, driving out of the blood those elements which have caused the mischief, renewing, purifying, and restoring to a new and enjoyable life.

Among many others who have been restored to health by Compound Oxygen, after suffering protracted agony from rheumatism, may be mentioned the cases of Mrs. Blair of Philadelphia, and Miss Winfree of Lynchburg, Va. For years these ladies had been martyrs to rheumatism in its most painful forms. The story of their recovery will be found in a brochure published by Drs. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, which they send free to any address on application.

Orders for the Compound Oxygen Home Treatment will be filled by H. A. Matthews, 615 Powell Street, San Francisco.

"Women's work is never done." This suggests a marked similarity between women's work and the undercrust of some women's pie.

A WISE REFORM.

The habit of administering quinine in powerful doses, as an antidote to malarial maladies, was once dangerously common. Happily this practice has undergone a wide reform. Not only the public, but professional men have adopted, not wholly, of course, but largely, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a safe botanic substitute for the pernicious alkaloid. The consequences of this change are most important. Now fever and ague sufferers are cured—formerly their complaints were only for the time relieved, or half cured—the remedy eventually failing to produce any appreciable effect, except the doses were increased. A course of the Bitters, persistently followed, breaks up the worst attacks and prevents their return. The evidence in favor of this sterling specific and household medicine is of no ambiguous character, but positive and satisfactory, and the sources whence it proceeds are very numerous.

In Washington their are goldfish that have belonged to the same family for fifty years, and they appear to be scarcely any larger than they were when purchased.

EVERY WOMAN KNOWS THEM.

The human body is much like a good clock or watch in its movements; if one goes too slow or too fast, so follow all the others, and bad time results; if one organ or set of organs works imperfectly, perversion of functional effort of all the organs is sure to follow. Hence it is that the numerous ailments which make woman's life miserable are the direct issue of the abnormal action of the uterine system. For all that numerous class of symptoms—and every woman knows them—there is one unfailing remedy, Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," the favorite of the sex.

Twenty-three million eggs were recently shipped from St. Louis at one time, only nine hundred of which were broken during their journey to New York.

DIED OF OVERWORK.

"Only forty-five years old with strong, well developed physique, but overworked himself and succumbed to nervous prostration."—[Bulletin, October 21st.

Hardly a day passes but this same mournful story is repeated. Our most talented and intellectual men, whose names are synonymous of all that is noble and estimable, are passing away in the prime of life, almost without warning, seemingly healthy and strong. Society wonders at the sudden call—"nervous prostration" is the only answer to the question, "What killed him?"

When shall we learn that the physical and nervous system are separate and distinct entities—that one may thrive and the other starve; that perfect health can only be obtained by an harmonious adaptation of one with the other.

Look at the boys and girls of our city. That the girls are beautiful we acknowledge, but whence do they derive their spirituelle nature? From nothing but the fragility of their nervous system; sure victims in future of neuralgia and female complaints. Look at the boys: Their legs and hollow chests, almost every one with a poisonous cigarette in his mouth. We say poisonous. Tobacco will not do; they must have belladonna, stramonium and opium. Cigarettes are made to meet the demand of an irritable nervous system, and the sale is enormous—forty millions last year. Now from these esthetic youths of both sexes must come the future generations. The girls pallid and feeble, unfit for the duties of maternity; the boys lacking that vitality to which we owe the most exalted and ennobling joys of healthy and intellectual offspring; serve at the end of a few years to fall into the hands of empirics, in the hope of a restoration—vain hope. The history of half of our intellectual men is a history of wasted vitality. Entirely engrossed in their efforts for the attainment of wealth, ambition, or position, the springs of vital force become exhausted, and they fall victims to, perhaps, worthy purposes.

If our young boys thus hunger after the sedative cigarette, our older ones fly to alcohol. Why should whisky shops so flourish in our city if not to meet a public demand? They are typical of a want for something by which may be quieted that excitement consequent upon the diseased condition of our motive faculties and passions. The desire for strong drink is not so much a habit as a necessity. Temperance lecturers may sound their slogan at every corner, preachers may hurl denunciation from the pulpit, but an exhausted nervous system knows no God, no hell—nothing but its own imperative need for the sustaining draught, poison though it be. Now, for this condition of things there should be a remedy. Words of warning may be of no avail, but we utter them. Less hours of brain labor, less worry over the attainment of some fixed purpose, more out-of-door exercise, more sleep, the use of some tonic containing no alcohol, to the exclusion of all stimulants, and the worn and feeble nervous system will regain its energy, and the happy life may extend itself to the utmost limit. And this tonic—free from stimulants, a perfect food for and sustainer of the nervous system, whose use will supply the place of tobacco and whisky—is Dujardin's Life Essence.

The question as to how much shoe leather is daily consumed in Berlin was recently discussed in the Post, which paper arrives at the following estimate: If it is assumed that of the 1,300,000 inhabitants only 1,000,000 wear boots and shoes, at an average cost of only six marks (about $1.50) per pair, lasting six months, this would cause the daily wear and tear of shoe leather in the German capital to amount to 33,333 marks.

He then caused the work to be stopped and consulted an oracle, receiving the reply, 'A barbarian will finish thy work.' The gentleman who alighted upon that bit of history copied upon a sheet of paper the paragraph from Herodotus and carried it to de Lesseps, who, having read it, took his pen and appended, 'The barbarian prophesied by the oracle—F. de Lesseps.'"

AFRICAN CANNIBALS.

The Story of a White Man Who Lived Fifteen Months Among Them.

About a year ago a report was telegraphed over the world that the whites in some of the Upper Congo stations had been killed and eaten by cannibals. The report was not believed, because a few white men had traveled up and down the river for a year or two without discovering evidences of cannibalism except in one tribe. Stanley's recently published book threw no light on the subject of Congo cannibals, though it did record the appalling rumor afloat among some of the tribes that the whites were very fond of eating black people. The report that the whites on the Upper river had become food for the natives proved false, as was expected, and recently a good deal of information has been brought back about the cannibal tribe whose numerous villages line the river for a distance of about eight hundred miles from its mouth.

The Congo State is on good terms with this tribe, the Bangallas, and has a station in the midst of them. It was the Bangallas who sallied out in their big war canoes and gave Stanley the fiercest reception he encountered when he first forced his way down the river. As is usual with cannibal tribes, they are superior in courage, physique, and mental ability to the surrounding peoples, and they lord it over a considerable area. Mr. Westmark, who has lived among them for fifteen months, has just lectured in France on their peculiarities, and chiefly on the practice of anthropophagy as it exists among them.

According to him they engage in the practice only upon the death of well-to-do or influential men, whose slaves are killed at the graves of the deceased persons, so that they may accompany their masters and minister to their wants in the other world. It has been the custom to sacrifice at least twenty victims at the death of every important person. Bound hand and foot the poor wretches are beheaded, and half of them are buried in the grave of their master. The bodies of the other ten are reserved for the big fete that concludes the funeral ceremonies. Native beer in great quantities is prepared days in advance of the feast. The flesh of their murdered slaves is placed in great earthen pots full of water and boiled until half the water is evaporated, and then the banquet is ready to begin.

The orgie continues for a day or two until all the refreshments are exhausted and a large part of the male population is dead drunk. The Congo missionaries appear to think that the Bangallas are sadly in need of reformatory influences, and they intend to establish a station among them. Mr. Westmark makes the interesting statement that although cannibalism has been practiced to a large extent among the Bangallas, it has now considerably diminished on account of the influence of the whites, and he believes that after Europeans have lived in the country a little longer it will disappear.

Among the many millions of savages in Africa there are very few cannibals. Schweinfurth found that the large Moubutu tribe on the Welle Makua were addicted to the practice. It also exists among the Mucelis of Angola, among the Bangallas of the Upper Congo, among some of the natives on the Aruwimi tributary of the Congo, and was formerly practiced to a small extent in some parts of South Africa. As a rule, the natives who indulge in the horrid custom try to conceal it from the whites who visit them, and nowhere does it long survive the growth of white influences in districts where it has flourished.—Chicago Tribune.

A STEAM TRYCICLE.

Competition with Fast Railroad Trains Made Possible at Last.

J. H. Bullard, of the Bullard Arms Company, has for several months past been at work on a trycicle for which steam shall furnish the motive power. The experiment has so far succeeded that recently several trips have been made with such satisfaction as to already cause two manufacturers to apply for the right of manufacture. Several details are yet to be perfected, and when the machine is entirely to the satisfaction of its inventor a public exhibition will be given. A minute description is not possible at present, as the inventor wishes to secure his patent rights before making public the details of his invention. It is proposed, however, to have the machine so constructed as to be easily controlled by a lady or child. The power of locomotion will be automatic, so that all the rider will need to do is to get seated on the machine, take hold of the steering apparatus and then devote one's self to the pleasures of a trip over hill and country with a steed that requires neither food nor grooming, and, if so desired, that can compete with the lightning railroad train. It is the inventor's intention, however, to regulate the speed to eight miles an hour, as the roads to be found in this country would not make a higher rate of speed enjoyable. But twenty miles an hour will be guaranteed possible. This machine will be a "hill climber" and warranted to overcome anything in that line without exertion or fatigue. It will be so arranged that light baggage can be fastened on and the appliance will be adapted to either the single or sociable form of tricycle. It is thought the sociable will prove the more popular form of the two and the manufacturers will be able to cater to either taste of a purchaser. The weight of a machine will be increased comparatively little, as the appliance will be very compactly arranged. The water supply will be capable of five to seven hours' use before needing renewal. Kerosene oil will be the fuel. It is claimed that the invention can be applied with equal success to a four-wheeled carriage. As stated above, several trial trips have recently been made, and those who have been fortunate spectators speak enthusiastically of the entire success and practicability of the invention. Patents will be applied for in France, Belgium, and Germany and other portions of the continent as well as in this country. —Springfield (Mass.) Union.

STORAGE OF FURS.

A Business Which Is Assuming Extensive Proportions in Large Cities.

Furriers have two harvests. One is on the approach of cold weather, when they sell furs, and the other is on the approach of hot weather when they store them. Moths are the great terror of those who own fine firs, and what a terrible thing it would be if a sealskin sacque, which cost two hundred and fifty dollars, should be found next fall riddled with these destructives! This is often, however, the result when they are put away by those who are not experts, for moths will get in at the very slightest crevices, and often they succeed even when very great care has been taken. This trouble and risk are avoided by sending one's furs to the furriers, where they are kept safely until required. The furriers charge a handsome fee, and some houses clear enough from this item alone to pay their rent and store expenses for the whole year. The extent of the business may be inferred from the fact that nearly ten thousand sealskin sacques were worn in this city last winter besides other furs, and also fur-trimmed dresses, which require an almost equal degree of care.

Fur dealers say that the only way to keep furs is to clean them thoroughly and then put them away in very tight boxes. The moths, however, are so penetrative that constant vigilance is necessary, and hence every fortnight the furs must be taken out, beaten and restored to the boxes. At such times the grubs are occasionally noticed, and this shows the need of such precaution. The fur dealers also say they prefer this method to the use of any preventives, as the latter are generally injurious. Camphor, for instance, which is so commonly used is injurious to sable and some other furs, and its unpleasant odor renders it very objectionable. Tar paper is used by some people, but the fur dealers object to it because of the strong smell which it leaves on any thing with which it comes in contact. Tobacco and cedar wood are found unreliable, and the furriers, therefore, depend almost solely on the above described method.

Those who can not store their furs in this manner must, of course, resort to camphor, oil cedar, tobacco, tar paper and other preventives and then "put up" with the inevitable odor. When storage, however, is accessible it will be found the better way, because it is always free from the risk which attends all other methods. A lady, for instance, who had some very valuable furs made the remark to a fur dealer: "Why should I pay you for taking care of my furs when I can do it just as well myself?" She was a very capable woman and put her furs safely in boxes, on whose joints she pasted strips of paper, thus making them perfectly tight. One season she was successful, but the next time this method was tried the furs were so eaten as to be spoiled. The moth had penetrated in some mysterious manner or else the eggs had been laid previously. At any rate, the lesson came too late. The expense of storing a two hundred and fifty dollar sacque is ten dollars, which is certainly very reasonable These goods are hung up in dark closets and in this manner are preserved from creases, which would injure their appearance. The furrier gives a receipt, and each one bears its owner's name, and in this manner identity of ownership is preserved.—N. Y. Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

LOCOMOTIVE HEADLIGHTS.

Why They Could Be Removed Without Detriment to Anybody.

"There are twenty-five thousand locomotives in the United States," said a railway official, "and every one of them is furnished with a headlight. A locomotive without a headlight would look like a dog without a nose, and most people would say that it is next to impossible to run a locomotive without a big lamp in front. Yet I am of the opinion that these lamps are almost useless, and that they could be taken off of most locomotives without detriment to anybody. Headlights are not in use in England, and we have used them in America simply because somebody used them before us. We have become so accustomed to them that most people think that a locomotive without a lamp could not be run with safety, but I am convinced that there is more danger in their use than in their absence. I speak, of course of road engines, and not of those used in yards. On a road engine the headlight is of no earthly use to the engineer; it obstructs his vision so that he can not see his switch-lights, and I think that every thinking engineer will come to the conclusion that he would rather run in the night without a lamp than with it, as he can see better in the dark. Red can not be seen distinctly under such a powerful light when the engine is running rapidly. A green light under the brilliant illumination of a headlight appears yellow, and a blue light appears pale. I know of accidents which have occurred from this cause, and the eye-sight of every engineer having a night run is put under a terrible strain by continually gazing ahead into such a light surrounded by such dense darkness. If there is any good argument in favor of the retention of headlights on road locomotives it is that travelers by public highways who have to cross railroads at grade can see the train coming at a greater distance by means of the headlights. But it would be cheaper for the roads to rig up automatic warning bells at every grade crossing than to continue the use of so many unneeded lamps The new electric headlight put on the market a few years ago was a success as a light-giver, but it has not been generally introduced, simply because railroad managers know that headlights on road locomotives are practically useless, and that a more powerful light would be positively dangerous."—Chicago Herald.

MARRIAGE IN BRAZIL.

Consanguineous Unions the Rule Instead of the Exception.

Consanguineous marriages in Brazil are the rule and not the exception, there being really more such than of those between parties not related by blood. There are very many, not only between first cousins but also between double first cousins; and there are probably more marriages between a man and his niece, or a woman and her nephew, than there are of first cousins in America, even without taking into consideration the fact that the population of the United States is four or five times as large as that of Brazil. It seems most ludicrous to the stranger to hear a man and his wife address each other as cousins, as they generally do when such was their relationship.

In many cases not only was the union of the parents consanguineous, but also that of the grandparents, and in some cases even further back. Surely this has its effect on the intellect of their offspring, though not so marked and invariable as one might naturally suppose. For some of the children are apparently as intelligent as those of people not related by blood. But this proves nothing unless it is their good fortune, and even these probably pay the penalty in some other way.

The people of Brazil are by no means intelligent as a race generally, but this is chiefly due in part to the absence of educational facilities; for it is no easy matter for the poor people in any part of the country to acquire even the rudiments of an education, and for those outside of the towns it is virtually impossible.

Probably to consanguineous marriages are due not only some loss of intellectual power, but also the facts that the people are, as a rule, homely, exceedingly nervous, and not vigorous, though these conclusions may be qualifiable, for the lack of vigor may be due partly to the climate and their lazy, inactive lives, and their nervousness may be attributable to the quantity of strong coffee they all drink from early childhood, and the habit of excessive smoking amongst the men and boys.

The features of the white people are, for the most part, irregular. Generally they have coal-black hair and beautiful black eyes. Sometimes the teeth are very fine, and the hands of those of the best families are beautifully soft and very flexible, a most natural sequence, as these people, having many slaves, never perform any work themselves, nor have their immediate ancestors before them, to impair their delicacy. But whatever beauty they do possess will frequently be marred by ugly skins, noses, mouths or other features, whilst the face may lack a cultivated, refined expression, which gives place to the sensual. But this is no invariable rule, for some are handsome, intelligent and refined-looking.—Brooklyn Magazine.

THE GENTLE MUSTANG.

Disposition and Accomplishments of the Furious Steeds of the West.

The mustang of the West is neither a thing of beauty nor a joy forever.

It is composed principally of appetite and heels, the latter having a controlling interest. It has no resemblance to the Arabian steed or the war-like chargers of the North. It favors a clothes rack considerably, and is frequently used to hang old clothes on of a wash-day.

Most horses have nice manes, but the mustang has none, with the positive exception of a few desultory hairs between the ears which look more forlorn than a false bang after being soaked in a tub of water.

The mustang has a mild, inoffensive eye, and sometimes it looks at you with an appearance of brotherly love that is quite touching. It is then that you will find it healthy to secure a seat on the house top or in the foliage of a lordly sycamore.

The mustang clothes a vengeful and desperate spirit under the guise of white winged peace, and when you think you have won his affections and conquered his haughty pride, he concentrates all the elements of revolt, anarchy and Nihilism in his south-east corner, and when you have disentangled yourself from his heels you find your remains ready for an inquest as soon as the coroner can scrape them together.

The author of this brief tract once had a loving friend whose truthful nature and large balance at the bank endeared him to all.

He unfortunately became possessed with the idea of owning a mustang and bought one of a pale blonde complexion with a brunette stripe down its back and a spavin on each leg.

It seemed of a quiet and reserved disposition at first, and the young man would caress it lovingly and call it his heart's delight.

It was while he was caressing the noble animal one day that he imagined he had stepped on the wrong end of an earthquake He waited until the dust had settled and then discovered that the majority of his remains were plastered on the wire fences for half a mile while the balance still clung to the mustang's heels.

It is perhaps needless to add that the loved and once loving mustang died young.—Walt Mason, in St. Louis Whip.

Strictly Private Families.

A lady advertised for board in a strictly private family. She received two hundred and fifty-five answers by actual count. She was able to respond to only thirty or forty. Following was the dialogue in each case:

"Do you have a strictly private family?"

"O, yes, indeed."

"How many persons have you in your house?"

"Twenty, ma'a'm."

"Twenty, and yet you say you have a private family?"

"Yes, ma'a'm," with an air of injured pride, "but they are all friends of mine, who board with me."—Merchant Traveler.

REMINISCENCES OF METHUSELAH.

Bill Nye Evolves Some Fresh Ideas About the Grand Old Man.

A reference to Methuselah at a recent public dinner has awakened in my mind many recollections and reminiscences of this grand old man. We first meet Methuselah in the capacity of a son. At the age of sixty-five Enoch arose one night and telephoned his family physician to come over and meet Methuselah. Day at last dawned on Enoch's happy home and its first red rays lit up the still redder surface of the little stranger. For 300 years Enoch and Methuselah jogged along together in the capacity of father and son. Then Enoch was suddenly cut down. It was at this time that little Methuselah first realized what it was to be an orphan. He could not at first realize that his father was dead. He could not understand why Enoch, with no inherited disease, should be shuffled out at the age of 365 years.

Methuselah now cast about him for some occupation which would take up his attention and assuage his wild, passionate grief over the loss of his father. He entered into the walks of men and learned their ways. It was at this time that he learned the pernicious habit of using tobacco. We cannot wonder at it when we remember that he was now fatherless. He was at the mercy of the coarse, rough world. Possibly he learned to use tobacco when he went away to attend business college after the death of his father. Be that as it may, the noxious weed certainly hastened his death, for 600 years after this we find him a corpse!

Death is ever a surprise, even at the end of a long illness and after a ripe old age. To those who are near it seems abrupt; so to his grandchildren, some of whom survived him, his children having died of old age, the death of Methuselah came like a thunderbolt from a clear sky.

Methuselah succeeded in cording up more of a record, such as it was, than any other man of whom history informs us. Time, the tomb builder and amateur mower, came and leaned over the front yard and looked at Methuselah, and ran his thumb over the jagged edge of his scythe, and went away whistling a low refrain.

Father Time and Methuselah.

He kept up this refrain business for nearly ten centuries, while Methuselah continued to stand out amid the general wreck of men and nations.

Even as the young, strong mower going forth with his mower for to mow spareth the tall and dignified drab hornet's nest and passeth by on the outer side, so Time, with his Waterbury hour glass and his overworked hay knife over his shoulder, and his long Mormon whiskers and his high, sleek dome of thought, with its gray lambrequin of hair around the base of it, mowed all around Methuselah and then passed on.

Methuselah decorated the graves of those who perished in a dozen different wars. He did not enlist himself, for over 900 years of his life he was exempt. He would go to the enlisting place and offer his services, and the officer would tell him to go home and encourage his grandchildren to go. Then Methuselah would sit around Noah's front steps, and smoke and criticise the conduct of the war, also the conduct of the enemy.

It it said of Methuselah that he never was the same man after his son Lamech died. He was greatly attached to Lamech, and when he woke up one night to find his son purple in the face with membraneous croup, he could hardly realize that he might lose him. The idea of losing a boy who had just rounded the glorious morn of his 777th year, had never occurred to him. But death loses a shining mark, and he garnered little Lammie and left Methuselah to moan and mourn on for a couple more centuries without him.

Methuselah finally got so that he couldn't sleep any after 4 o'clock in the morning, and he didn't see how any one else could. The older he got, and the less valuable his time became, the earlier he would rise, so that he could get an early start. As the centuries filed slowly by, and Methuselah got where all he had to do was to shuffle into his loose-fitting clothes, and rest his gums on the top of a large sleek headed cane and mutter up the chimney, and then groan and extricate himself from his clothes again and retire. He rose earlier and earlier in the morning, and muttered more and more about the young folks sleeping away the best part of the day, and said he had no doubt but that sleeping and snoring till breakfast time helped to carry off Lam. But one day old Father Time came along with a new scythe, and he drew the whetstone across it a few times, and rolled the sleeves of his red flannel undergarment up over his warty elbows, and Mr. Methuselah passed on to that undiscovered country with a ripe experience and a long, clean record.

We can almost fancy how the physicians, who had disagreed about his case all the way through, came and insisted on a post mortem examination to prove which was right and what was really the matter with him. We can imagine how people went by shaking their heads and regretting that Methuselah should have tampered with tobacco when he knew that it affected his heart.

But he is gone. He lived to see his own promissory notes rise, flourish, acquire interest, pine away at last, and finally outlaw. He acquired a large farm in the very heart of the county seat, and refused to move it or plot it and call it Methuselah's addition. He came out in spring regularly for 900 years after he got too old to work out his poll tax on the road, and put in his time telling the rising generation how to make a good road. Meantime other old people, who were almost 100 years of age, moved away and went west, where they would attract attention and command respect. There was actually no pleasure in getting old around where Methuselah was and being ordered about and scolded and kept in the background by him.

So when at last he died, people sighed and said: "Well, it was better for him to die before he got childish. It was best that he should die at a time when he knew it all. We can't help thinking what an acquisition Methuselah will be on the ever green shore when he gets there, with all his ripe experience and his habits of early rising."

And the next morning after the funeral Methuselah's family did not get out of bed till nearly 9 o'clock.—Bill Nye, in Boston Globe.

FOREST HILL.

President Cleveland's Modest Little Country House Near Washington.

President Cleveland has become a real estate owner. Just about the time Miss Folsom arrived in New York on her return from Europe he completed the purchase of a house and tract of about thirty acres of land on the Tenallytown road, one and a half miles north of Georgetown, and about three miles away from the White House. Last summer, when he was invited by the manager or superintendent of the Soldiers' Home cottage to occupy that house, he declined, having a strong conviction against the propriety of using a building maintained by the contributions of the army. The White House becomes a monotonous residence for one who is confined to its four walls and the almost constant visits of place-hunters and anxious officers. To find a place not too remote from the Executive Mansion, out in the country, the President drove about on a prospecting tour, and a modest little gray stone house on high ground, from the front of which an extensive view of the hills of Virginia, the Potomac river, and the capital was obtainable, arrested his attention. After some negotiations it was purchased for him at a cost of $21,500, and the deed was registered in his name. It is a place with a long but not important history in the office of recorder of deeds. It has been variously named "Pretty Prospect," "Rosedale" and "Forest Hill," but the latter designation is the one by which it is to be known. The house is constructed of rubble, square, and with a slightly pitched roof, and with an extension kitchen, with servants' rooms above. On the parlor floor are parlor, library, dining-room, pantry and kitchen. There are five chambers, moderately spacious, well lighted and ventilated, on the second floor. The piazza on the south side, fronting the road, commands the best view, and was an attractive feature to the President when he first saw the place. Near by is "Woodley," formerly the home of Philip Barton Key, and not far away is the country place of Secretary Whitney, which has been known as "Grassland." Madame Iturbide, who married Count Iturbide, formerly Mexican Minister, has a place in the neighborhood. The country near by is not altogether attractive to the Northern eye, accustomed to more fertile farms, greener fields and more luxuriant trees, but for the purposes of the President the place is admirable. It is not his intention to occupy it as a permanent residence even for the summer, unless it should happen to prove attractive to Mrs. Cleveland. He contemplated only the occasional resort to it in the extremely hot weather, when the temperature is always higher in the city than it is outside the line of asphalted pavements, and when he feels compelled to apply himself to tasks that ought not to be interrupted by casual visitors. On such days as those he had in mind, when the city is sweltering, and work in the White House is out of the question, he believes that he can go to the broad hall at "Forest Hill," and, seated at a table over which the unobstructed breeze has full play, devote himself uninterruptedly to a good deal of serious business, which would be difficult to expedite in the White House, open as it is from morning until night to every person who chooses to call.—Harper's Weekly.

COLLARS AND TIES.

Two Articles of Apparel Which Reveal the Characteristics of Their Wearers.

No other garments have the faculty of so revealing their owner's characteristics as collars and ties. The hat and coat may deceive, gloves may mislead, boots may create very false impressions, but the collar and tie give an unfaltering verdict. The middle-aged professional man has his collar turned down and wears the soberest of black ties. The horsey man carries out the promise of his gorgeous plaid jacket and breeches by a collar of formal cut and a cotton tie imprinted with horse's heads or hoofs, with stirrups, saddles or other articles of equine furniture. It would be as difficult, on the other hand, to imagine an æsthetic poet abandoning his wide, turned-down collar and loosely-knotted, soft Surah tie for this sporting style as it would be to conceive an American rancher in the stiff, four-inch-deep, "stand-up-all-round" and chimney-pot of the young gentlemen who ogle barmaids at fashionable restaurants. 'Arry on the eve of a bank holiday purchases a cravat of gaudy color, filling up all interstices in the region of his throat; and, in addition, assumes a paper collar of startling form and pattern. Inexperienced eyes might find some difficulty in distinguishing between the closely-knotted handkerchief of the poacher and the similar style also in favor among navvies. The difference is that the gentlemen who pursue the former vocation usually wear their's very tight to the neck, while the latter, whose occupation requires the utmost freedom, tie their red and yellow bandanas so as to permit unrestricted play to their manly throats. This method has the advantage of making one article take the place of two.—London Globe.

A Very Pretty Story.

Nearly forty years ago a prominent merchant of this city began commercial life as a pedler from house to house with a pack of goods. His wife, a true helpmeet, said to him: "I propose to lay aside a dollar every day, and then, in case of misfortune, we will have the money to fall back upon." Faithfully she adhered to her determination, though often at the cost of much self-sacrifice. Her husband's business grew and prospered, and the dollar a day was easily put by. The steady additions to principal and interest swelled the sum total until, by careful husbanding, it had become a competency. Financial reverses met the merchant, and then both his wife's fidelity and her prudence became manifest. When he knew not whither to turn his wife placed at his disposal the handsome result of her nearly forty years of savings, and he was enabled to retrieve his losses and stem the tide of disaster.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY, AGUST 7.....1886.

THE attack upon certain members of the Supreme Court by David S. Terry, appears to be quite as much the result of personal feeling against those Judges as any desire for the public good.

IT IS now very generally conceded that the Constitution and Statutes of the United States makes it the duty of every State Legislature to elect a United States Senator at an extra session, under such circumstances as the present in California.

A LOS ANGELES paper says it has good authority for stating that Hon. H. H. Markham will be a candidate for renomination for Congress. Mr. Markham has proved to be a very diligent, faithful and very capable representative; the district never had a better in Congress. Inyo will support him heartily if he should again be nominated.

THOUGH not a single law should be made at the extra session of the Legislature, yet the meeting will not be barren of good results. The subject of irrigation is being very thoroughly studied and discussed, and every day is bringing nearer that complete understanding of the matter that will result in good legislation. It is a very great gain that the State is now assured that no hasty, ill considered acts will be passed by which water monopolies can be created, or that would prevent the reasonable use of water for irrigation.

Justice Will Satisfy.

Riparian rights would prevent the use of water from natural streams for irrigation. Appropriation with priority of location giving the better right, would put all the waters of the unnavigable streams of the State in possession of a few appropriators. There is but one security against both of these dangers; the waters must be declared the property of the State, and general laws must be enacted securing a distribution that will yield the best results from the use of the water. The agitation over this subject will never cease, so long as the law is such that a few may have advantages over the many; nothing will be accepted as satisfactory but even handed justice to all alike.

Very Dead.

THE legs of a dead frog may be made to twitch by electricity, but the frog remains just as dead as ever. The efforts of Frank Pixiey and other old fogies to resuscitate the Know Nothing party are only very weak applications of electricity to a very dead frog. The thing committed suicide on the 9th of April, 1861. Only one so perverse as Frank Pixley, or those so narrow minded, dull and stupid as to follow such a leader, would have the indecency to abuse adopted citizens on the very eve of a meeting in San Francisco where hundreds, or even thousands of the bravest defenders of the Union will be present who were not born on American soil. Till the last of these battle scarred veterans has found rest beneath the soil he would have died to save sacred to liberty, even the very genius of stupidity might have sense enough to know that any attempt to revive the Know Nothing party would be hooted at by all decent and reasonable men.

THE Legislature has elected A. P. Williams to succeed Mr. Hearst and complete the unexpired term of the late Senator Miller. This is a result of the extra session wholly unthought of by Governor Stoneman when he issued his proclamation. Mr. Williams is a member of the Firm of Livingston & Co., wholesale liquor dealers in San Francisco. He first traveled for the Frm as agent or "drummer," and was taken into partnership several years ago. He has long been a leader among San Francisco politicians, and is a shrewd political manager. He may be a very honorable man, but surely some better choice could have been made amoug many able men in the republican party for such a distinguished position as United States Senator. His term in the office will be but short; but if it were but for one day the place should be occupied by none but the wisest, the purest and best of citizens.

THE agitation now going on about the removal of the County Seat is not due to any general desire among taxpayers for such removal. It is entirely the work of a few who hope to increase the value of town lots in some other locality, aided by a desire in others to gain a few dollers in any way. Parties have been running all over the valley importuing every one to sign a petetion to the Board of Supervisors, for the submission of the questiou of removal to a vote of the people. After all this running, boring and begging for votes, not enough names of voters were signed to all four of the petetions presented to the Board of Supervisors last Tuesday to entitle a petetion to consideration if they had all been signed to one. This being the case on a preliminary petetion for ordering an election, it is clear that there would not be the ghost of a chance for two thirds of the voters to agree upon some other location for a County Seat. A few persons in two or three places hope to use the votes of other localities as cats paws to help them in their selfish ends. This is all there is to the movement.

The Company offers to locate settlers upon 80, 160, 32 and 640 acre farms, the settlers obtaining the same from the Government at $1.60 per acre under the Desert Land Act, paying for the same 50 cents per acre upon filing his or her application, and the balance, $1 per acre, at the end of three years, or before if water is brought upon the land in sufficient quantity to irrigate the same. Any person, man or woman, 21 years of age, can locate a tract of 640 acres.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 7.....1886.

Bertie Levy accompanied her father to San Francisco.

Richard Hessian, of Big Pine, was at Independence at the beginning of the week.

A. R. Conklin and O. J. Mairs have gone to San Francisco to see the Grand Army show.

Mr. J. H. McMahon got back to Independence from San Francisco last Monday.

Miss Smith, of Bishop Creek, arrived at Independence last Wednesday, on a visit with Mrs. H. Levy.

The demand for fruit all over the State is greater than the supply. Nothing produced from land is so certain to give good returns as fruit.

Mrs. Weichart, of Bishop Creek, was at Independence a few days this week. Mr. Weichart is engaged in building the new store for A. W. Eibeshutz.

Henry Levy has gone to San Francisco to get furniture and stock for his new hotel. The house will be ready for the reception of guests inside of ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin and their little daughter arrived home at Independence from San Francisco last Wednesday. They are all well and glad to be home again.

BIDS WANTED.—The Trustees of the new academy at Bishop Creek invite contractors to bid for the erection of the building. See the notice to builders in another column.

Natural gas in unlimited quantity is flowing in all parts of the State, and still the boring is going on with increasing perseverance. The candidates are responsible for this.

Mrs. W. L. Hunter returned home to Independence last Monday from a visit of some weeks with relatives at Petaluma. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Duval, who will stay for some weeks.

RELIGIOUS SERVICE.—To-morrow, Sunday, Rev. J. M. Spangler will preach at Camp Independence at half past two o'clock, afternoon, and at Independence at a quarter before eight, evening. All are invited to attend.

It is reported that Captain Kesler wants to go to the Legislature again from Inyo county. Just give the good natured captain one more chance in the Legislature, and the County officers might own Inyo boots, breeches, body and soul.

BORN OF FIRE.—All over the district burned in the late fire at Independence great numbers of young locust trees are coming up. The ground being thoroughly saturated with water and heated by the fire caused the seeds to germinate.

A. K. Briggs, of Bishop Creek, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff. Among the several candidates already in the the field for the office of Sheriff, Mr. Briggs has no superior for energy, industry and perseverance; he would be an active and efficient officer.

Harry Mighels, mail clerk on the C. & C. railroad, is spending a vacation at Independence. He hunts a good deal—in the orchard, and spends pleasant hours fishing—in the parlor. He appears to enjoy the fun ever so much, and grins from ear to ear all the time.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Professor W. T. Welcker, was at Bodie at the end of last week. Mr. Welcker made himself so agreeable at Independence last winter that he would have been given a hearty welcome had he found time to come here from Bodie.

EYE INJURED.—Some days ago M. Muldoon was putting a shoe on his horse; a piece of iron flew up and hit him in the right eye, hurting it severely. He went to San Francisco last Tuesday to have the eye treated by an occulist as there was danger of losing it entirely from inflamation.

By an inexcusable blunder among the mail clerks on the C. & C. railroad, the newspaper mail due at Independence last Wednesday was left lying somewhere along the line of the railroad till Friday. As a rule the clerks are very careful and the mails are on time, but such work as this if repeated would at once rob them of this good character.

Rare.

It is rather rare for an attorney to refuse a fee, but we have it on good authority that R. S. Miner, Esq., was offered a handsome fee if he would take charge of the petition presented to the Supervisors last Tuesday, and refused it. Mr. Miner is not a citizen of Inyo county, and his reason for refusing the fee was that he thought Independence the proper place for the County Seat. Mr. Laird refused a similar offer, for the reason that he is law adviser of the Board, and it would not be proper for him to take any side in the matter.

Who Did It!

When the petition for a vote on the removal of the County Seat was presented to the Supervisors last Tuesday, it was discovered that some of the names signed to it were not written by the men known by those names. The attorney who presented the petition cannot be justly held responsible for such work as this; he simply presented the papers as they were handed to him, and it is but fair to assume that he had no knowledge of the fraud.

Petition Withdrawn,

When the Board of Supervisors convened last Tuesday Mr. P. W. Forbes, of Bishop Creek, appeared with a petition, asking the Supervisors to order an election on the removal of the County Seat to some other place than Independence. A brief scrutiny of the petition showed that a large number of the signers were not qualified voters; when these were rejected not enough names remained to the petition to fulfill the requirements of the law, and Mr. Forbes then asked to withdraw the petition, which was granted. This puts the matter at rest; there never was the least chance for the success of the movement.

Swine and Poultry.

Millions are lost annually and science is still at fault. Accident develops one of the greatest discoveries of the age and fortunes invested in the raising of swine and poultry are made secure. Mr. J. McCann, P. O. 33, Bridgeport, W. Va., writes: "The discovery was entirely the result of an accident. A splendid cock was almost dead with chicken-cholera and a dose of St. Jacobs Oil was given him. In ten minutes he was entirely cured and made healthy by its use." Mr. Charles F. Powell, P. M., Terre Haute, Champaign Co., Ohio, writes: "With a small piece of bread in the form of a pill saturated with St. Jacobs Oil I saved two very fine Polish chickens, which were dying with the roup. In a short time I could not tell which of the chickens had been sick." In cases of hog-cholera it should be given with the swill, and if refused should be drenched with milk mixed with a small quantity of St. Jacobs Oil.

Continual calls for the same information makes continual repetition of the same facts necessary. From all over the Pacific coast and from beyond the Rocky Mountains the same questions are asked over and over again about Owens Valley. There are yet many thousands of acres of good government land open for entry. All of this land lies near to a railroad, none of it more than seven miles distant. No land is owned by any railroad company, beyond, what is necessary for depot buildings. Plenty of water can be had for irrigation from Owens river. There are but few localities, however, where one poor man could locate land and get water on to it. Numbers could locate near each other, and by uniting their money or labor, or both, could make a ditch that would irrigate all their land. This has already been done in more than one instance. The country is free from all kinds of malarial disease; so far as we know, fever and ague never existed here, except where some one had contracted the disease in some other region, and all such cases were quickly cured after coming here. All the fruits, grains, grasses and vegetables known to the temperate zones grow here in perfection. Apples, pears, peaches and plums are particularly fine, excelling in flavor those grown in most other parts of the State. Grapes of the best varieties for wines, raisins and table use are already grown in sufficient quantity to prove the soil and climate most admirably suited to their production. Men well skilled in wine making are positive that Owens valley will yet become one of the most famous and valuable wine making regions in the world. Water of the best quality for domestic use can always be got in any part of the valley by sinking wells from ten to twenty five feet deep. Snow very rarely falls in the valley; every winter there is more or less frost, and ice often forms, though seldom on running water, except on the north end of the valley. Cattle and horse breeders say the alfalfa raised here is much finer and makes better feed than any they have seen elsewhere. A yield of six to eight tons per acre is the usual yield each season.

The land is mostly covered by sage brush, costing about fifty cents an acre to clear by the use of horses and a home made grubbing machine, made of railroad iron. Most of the land already enclosed is fenced with barbed wire. The mountains bounding the valley yield good cedar posts; from the same source plenty of fuel can be had. Several varieties of forest trees make rapid growth, and three to four years after being planted begin to yield fencing posts and fuel.

Improved land can be bought at prices ranging from eight to thirty dollars per acre, according to improvements and location. The Carson and Colorado railroad runs the whole length of Owens Valley and connects with the Central Pacific railroad at Reno. By continuing the C. & C. road one hundred and twenty miles south, Independence, the County Seat of Inyo and at the centre of Owens Valley, will be within eight hours travel of the City of Los Angeles. The mining regions of Western Nevada offer the best market on the whole Pacific Coast for all kinds of farm produce, and the railroad running through this region and into Owens Valley giver the farmers here control of that market. The schools of the valley are quite as good as country schools in general. Religious services are held regularly at different places, and at Bishop Creek and Independence there are churches.

A new academy will be built at Bishop Creek this Fall; bids are now invited for the erection of the building. This institution is under the auspices of the M. E. Church and will be supplied with able teachers. Mail and telegraph facilities are good.

TILDEN DEAD.

Samuel J. Tilden died at New York at a quarter before ten o'clock last Wednesday morning. Few men who have not held the very highest offices have had such potent influence in shaping party policy as Mr. Tilden. Though living in the greatest seclusion for many years past, a seclusion rendered necessary by feebleness and age, yet on the eve of every political contest during these years aspirants for office and party managers sought his counsel and guidance as if he were an infallible oracle. When the most experienced politicians in his party were confused and baffled; when conventions were at a loss what to do, all seemed to turn as if by instinct to Mr. Tilden for light and guidance. In the bitterness of party strife the motives and the measures of the wisest and best of men may be impugned and decried; but no man can have such influence as Mr. Tilden had over the minds of great numbers of other men unless he is wise and virtuous far above the average of other men. Had he not been good as well as shrewd, Mr. Tilden never would have been the power he was for many years in the democratic party. Without goodness no man could have such power in any party, at least he could not hold it long. All parties insist on having honorable men for leaders, and swift oblivion awaits the leader who is detected in dishonorable deeds. Mr. Tilden retained his great influence while he retained life. The greatest public service Mr. Tilden ever rendered was helping to free the State and City of New York from the grasp of the infamous Tweed ring. As Governor of the State he used all his power to break up the gang of thieves and bring them to justice. He succeeded so well that the ringleaders were forced to fly or were convicted and punished as felons. It is not often that scoundrels are treated thus by leading men of their own party. Mr. Tilden was the modern Saint Patrick among the political vipers of Manhattan Island, except that he failed to totally exterminate the brood; he is needed there yet.

According to their political bias men will differ in opinion as to the right of Mr. Tilden to be President of the United States in place of R. B. Hays. But whatever may have been his own view of the matter, he was so good a citizen and so sound a lawyer that he submitted quietly to the decision of the only tribunal lawfully empowered to decide the question. For his virtues as a man and his services as a citizen, Samuel J. Tilden deserves to be held in grateful remembrance by his countrymen.

Attend To It.

If democrats and republicans want their best and most capable men nominated for office, they can secure that result by attending the primaries and making sure that none but trustworthy men are sent to the county conventions. When candidates for office are suffered to pack a convention with delegates of their own choosing, elections become a mere farce and casting ballots an idle form. It is no uncommon occurrence for a few wire pullers to have such men nominated for office as their own party positively refuse to support, and thus secure the election of their opponents. This has been done again and again, and will continue to done so long as schemers are suffered to run conventions.

Notice to Builders.

The Trustees of the Inyo Academy are now ready to receive bids from contractors for the erection of the building. A copy of the specifications can be obtained by writing to the undersigned. All bids to be considered must be sent to the Secretary of the Board of Trustees on or before August 14th. Parties bidding on contract to state when they can begin and when finish the work.

C. L. LOGAN,
Secretary Board of Trustees Inyo Academy, Bishop Creek, Inyo County, Cal.

Injured Veteran.

Reuben Merryman, of Bishop Creek, had an accident last week by which one of his legs was broken. A calf was fastened by a long rope in a yard near his house, he heard the animal make a commotion during the night and went out to discover what was the matter. The night was dark and Mr. Merryman went where the rope was fastened, took hold of it and traced it to the calf; this he found had got tangled up in the rope and was thrown down. He freed the calf which then sprang up, made a sudden jump forward, and as the rope was coiled around the man's leg he was thrown down violently, and the leg was broken above the ankle. Mr. Merryman lives alone, a short distance from town; three or four days passed before any one came near enough so he could make known his condition, but as soon as this was reported he was at once well cared for by the members of the Inyo Veterans Club, to which he belongs.

Why Delay!

An offer has been made by parties in San Francisco to refund the bonds of Inyo county at five per cent interest per annum. The present rate of interest paid on the bonds is seven per cent. It will be remembered that we discussed this matter a little some time ago, and then asserted that the time was near when this great reduction could be had. The County Treasurer has been urging the Board of Supervisors to authorize him to refund the bonds at this cheaper rate of interest, but for some reason or other no action has yet been taken. Surely there can be no good reason why the necessary authority should be withheld from the Treasurer, even for a day. The tax-payers should not be forced to pay seven dollars instead of five one hour longer than is absolutely necessary. On some other matters the Supervisors may sit and talk as long as they please: they are paid by the year, and may keep in Session all the time, making one quarterly meeting extend to the beginning of another quarter: but as interest never sleeps, as it never even takes a cat nap, they should bestir themselves to ease the public burden in the case of the bonds.

The Petition Again.

When Mr. Forbes withdrew with his petition he hastened away, went to different places, got a few more to sign it, returned on Thursday and again presented it to the Board of Supervisors. Mr. Miner was employed as counsel and appeared to show cause why it should not be granted. He read the law which provides that a petition must be presented bearing the signatures of a majority of qualified electors of the county, and showed that this provision was not complied with in the papers offered to the Board, as here were four separate petitions, instead of one as the law requires. These papers were further defective because there was no evidence to prove that the signatures were genuine; any one might have written any of those signatures; or even if the signatures were genuine, there was nothing to prove that the signers ever saw the so-called petitions, the names were written on separate slips of paper and pasted to the so-called petitions. When an attempt was made in Mono county to move the County Seat from Bridgeport to Bodie, the Supervisors were compelled to reject the petition, although it had far more than the requisite number of signatures, all signed to one petition, not divided up among four petitions as in this case; but there was nothing in the paper presented to prove that any of those signatures were genuine. It would be a fatal mistake to presume that because a name appeared in the Great Register similar to a name appended to any of these papers, therefore the party who wrote the name to the paper was the identical party whose name appeared in the Register. There is nothing in the papers presented to prove this. But even the appearance of a name in the Register is not sufficient proof of qualification to vote: a vote may be challenged when presented, and before being accepted proof must be made that there is no just ground for the challenge. The same will hold good here, not only the genuiness of each signature must be proved, but also that the signer is a qualified elector.

SUPERVISORS PROCEEDINGS.

On motion, J. W. P. Laird was appointed a member of the County Board of Education, vice self, term expired.

Board adjourned till 2 o'clock, p. m. At which time the same re-assembled, all the members present.

Clerk of Board ordered to give notice for proposals for county printing.

At this time P. W. Forbes, Esq., as counsel, appeared before the Board, moves and advocates the submission of the matter of the removal of the County Seat of Inyo county, California, from Independence, to the qualified electors of said county at the next general election, as prayed for by petition heretofore filed.

R. S. Miner, Esq., as counsel, appears and opposes the granting of said petition for the removal of the County Seat from Independence, and objects to the Board considering said petition for the reasons:

1st. That said alleged petition was once before, on the 2d day of August, 1886, presented to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, California, and by the Clerk of said Board, duly filed, and that afterwards, on the 3d said Board, on request of the party presenting the same, allowed said party to withdraw the said petition for the reason that it was defective in that it was not signed by a sufficient number of the qualified electors of said county, and there is no proof before said Board that said petition as now presented contains a sufficient number of the signatures of the qualified electors of said county.

2d. That said Board acted in excess of its jurisdiction in allowing said petition to be withdrawn.

3d. That it appears that since said alleged petition was filed on said 2d day of August, 1886, and became a record of said Board, the same has been altered.

4th. That no proof has been offered showing the genuineness of the signatures attached thereto, or that said alleged petition was ever signed by any parties.

5th. That no proof has been offered showing that the said alleged petition was signed by qualified electors of said county.

6th. That four separate and independent petitions are presented, neither of which contain sufficient signatures of qualified electors of said county.

7th. That by reason of the foregoing grounds said Board has no jurisdiction to grant said petition.

Before Mr. Miner's argument was concluded, the Board adjourned until Friday, August 6, 1886, at 9 o'clock a. m.

FRIDAY, August 6th, 1886.

On the above named day the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, State of California, met at 9 o'clock a. m. All the members present. Minutes of preceding day read and approved.

Argument of R. S. Miner, Esq., as opposing counsel, in the matter of the petition for removal of the County Seat, resumed and concluded.

Argument of P. W. Forbes Esq., as counsel in favor of petetion for removal of County Seat, resumed and concluded.

Whereupon the Board adjourned until 2 o'clock p. m.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON

At which hour the same reassembled, all the members present. Board proceeded to examine the petetion heretofore referred to in the matter of the removal of the County Seat.

J. W. P Laird, District Attorney, was requested to appear before the Board and give opinion touching matters pertaining to said petition.

The following questions were put to him in writing:

When there shall be presented to the Board of Supervisors of any county a petetion signed by the qualified electors of said county, in number equal to a majority of the votes cast at the preceeding general election, praying for the submission of the removal of the county Seat of such county, and such petetion is made of four (4) different headings, each identical in language, neither of said headings being separately signed by a number equal to a majority of the votes cast at the next preceeding general election, but all attached together and filed as one petetion, is such petetion a legal one?

Answer:—It is not.

Whenever a petetion has been filed with the County Clerk and has been withdrawn by the party presenting it, and with the permission of the Board of Supervisors, and returned with more signatures attached, would it be a legal one.

The District Attorney required time to examine authorities before answering this question, saying it might take two or three days to fully go over the necessary authorities.

At half past four o'clock p. m. the Board adjourned till seven o'clock p. m. At which time the Board again met, all the members present except Thomas C Boland. Consideration of the petition was continued till 9 o'clock p. m., when a vote was taken, and the same was declared rejected by a unanimous vote of all the members present, on the ground that it had not the requisite number of signatures of qualified electors. An order was made for the publication of an advertisement for plans and specifications for a Court House; a special meeting of the Board was ordered to be held on Tuesday, September 7th, 1886, for the consideration of said plans and specifications and the Board adjourned.

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Sweetland, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 100 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house. If they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it." JOHN E. DODGE, Jr., jeweler, Neosho, Mo., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. Sir, it is the best machine ever invented by man. Sir. We have just as good dinners on Monday as on any other day. Sir. If you run short, you can not buy ours for $1000. DAY IS OVER.

Lower and lower the light is failing—
  Waves of color that come and go;
Yellow and purple slowly paling,
  Flush of pink in the after glow,
Booming bees forsake the clover—
Day is over!

Faster and faster from hazy hollow,
  Night is closing on field and wood;
Out of the west the late-bound swallow
  Hastens back to the crumpled brood;
Stately-winged, the night-hawks hover—
Day is over!

Forest and fallow grow dark together,
  A bell in the distance sounding slow;
Still the light of the rosy weather
  Welling up in the after glow;
Now the starry skies discover
Day is over!

ALTITUDES AND HEART DISEASE.

The Risk Which Some People Run—Dangers of the Higher Levels.

The Medical Journal has just reported a paper read before the American Climatological association, by Dr. A. L. Loomis, of this city, which may be of vital importance to many people proposing to visit mountain resorts the coming summer. Dr. Loomis details four cases in which heart disease was brought on by a change from a lower to a higher altitude. Two of these cases were persons going to St. Regis lake, in the Adirondacks, at an elevation of only 2,000 feet. One was that of a visitor to the Catskill mountains, and the fourth had gone to Colorado. Though a relief was afforded them by a return to lower levels, they all died within four or five weeks.

As the result of his experience in twenty-six cases, Dr. Loomis concludes that "the risks which one with even slight cardiac insufficiency runs by passing from a lower to a higher altitude is certainly very great; and, if the insufficiency be extensive, such change becomes immediately dangerous." This conclusion, strongly supported as it is by Dr. Loomis' data, is especially important when it is remembered that cardiac insufficiency may exist in those who give no evidence of it while at, or moderately near, the sea level.

It is well known that sojourn at the high resorts of the Swiss Alps is contraindicated for persons suffering from diseases of the brain, heart, or the large vessels. The change in the blood is due to deficiency of oxygen (calculation will show that ordinarily at an altitude of only 2,000 feet 173.48 grains less of oxygen are inhaled than at sea level) would alone explain the perils which many people incur by exchanging tide water for high mountain air.—New York Herald.

Paris Is Hot and Unhealthy.

Shiraz, too, and the whole stretch of country around it, is fearfully hot and unhealthy in summer and fall, so that the regiments sent there from the north (and the shah does that constantly, because these soldiers are Sunnites and Turks by descent, and do not assimilate or fraternize with the natives), often lose 60 per cent. of their number within a year. Take even the healthiest portions of Persia; take Teheran, for instance, which is now, since good water has been obtained in abundance, one of the exceptionally salubrious points, and you will find a death rate which in Europe or America would be considered appalling.

An able physician here, Dr. Alber, tells me that the death rate at Teheran is between 75 and 90 per 1,000, and the deaths constantly exceed the births, the fact that the town is growing in spite of it being explained by the circumstance that a continual influx of persons from other parts of Persia takes place, and that the deaths are seven-eighths among children below 3 years of age, who are carried off when weaned (cholera ablactatorum). The deaths among the Europeans here show even a larger percentage; they usually succumb to the acclimitization process in the third year. Take it all around, I think the man with information who would maintain that Persia is a healthy country is either very foolhardy or else worse.—Teheran Cor. Chicago Times.

The Rarest Plant in Mexico.

In the botanical garden at the palace they have the celebrated flower Tzapahliqui-Xochitl, of the Aztecs. The story runs that there are only three of the kind in the world, one at the palace, another at a different point in Mexico and the mother plant on the mountain. At one time two tribes had a long and bloody war for the possession of it, so the story goes, but with great deal more exaggeration. The plant is commonly called the "flower hand," as they claim that inside is a perfect baby hand.

I went to see it, and was much disappointed. The tree grows to a good height. The leaves, heart-shape, are thick and about the color of the under part of a silver maple leaf, except that they are very rough, which prevents them from glistening like the maple. The thick, wax-like, bell-shaped red blossom grows mouth upward, and inside is the so-called hand. It has five fingers and one thumb, but looks exactly like a bird's claw, and not like a hand. The story ran that there are but three in existence. Without doubt the plant is rare and there may be no more than a dozen, if that many, in the world; but I have seen in the garden of two different gentlemen the very same tree. One of these gentlemen is in Europe, and the other bought his plant from him, so there was no way of learning where the three came from.—Mexican Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Sounds Made by the Aurora.

In March, 1885, Sophus Tromholt dispatched some thousand circulars to all parts of Norway containing different queries regarding the aurora, and among them also the following: "Have you or your acquaintances ever heard any sound during aurora, and, in this case, when and in what manner?" Up to Sept. 16 he had received answers to these queries from 144 persons. Of these, not less than 92, or 64 per cent., believe in the existence of the aurora sound, and 53 (36 per cent.) state that they have heard it themselves, while the other 39 cite testimonials from other people; only 21 (15 per cent.) declare that they have never heard the sound and know nothing about it, and the other 31 (22 per cent.) have not noticed the query at all. There are thus 92 affirmations against 21 negations.

The sound is variously described in these answers as sizzling, creaking, whizzing, rustling, crackling, hissing, whispering, rushing, buzzing, rippling, roaring, din, breezy, whipping, fanning, clashing, flapping, sweeping, etc.—Nature.

DECLINE OF THE DUEL.

The Great Advance Made in Popular Opinion—Slaves to a Custom.

It has been less than twenty-seven years, less than the average lifetime of a generation, since Robert Toombs delivered in the senate of the United States a eulogy on Senator Broderick, of California, who had been killed in a duel with Judge Terry. In referring to the manner of Broderick's death Toombs says:

"He fell in honorable contest, under a code which he fully recognized. While I lament his sad fate, I have no word of censure for him or his adversary. I think no man under any circumstances can have a more enviable death than to fall in vindication of his honor."

When those words were uttered they probably expressed the sentiment of a large majority of the senators of the United States. There was probably not a senator at the time who, if he did not approve "the code," would have been bold enough to denounce it.

This speech, which was in thorough accord with the manliest spirit of the time when it was uttered, is a moral milepost from which we can measure the great advance made in the popular opinion on the subject of dueling in a comparatively short time. If a member of either house of congress were to apologize in a speech in the capital for the practice of dueling, it would probably be the deathknell to his political ambition. In would at least mark him as a victim of that uncompromising public opinion which in every part of this country has set the seal of its condemnation on dueling and abolished "the code."

This sudden and almost universal abolition of a custom so entangled with the highest conceptions of honor, so firmly fixed in social ethics, and so softened as to the real features of its barbaric cruelty by a gentleness and courtesy that preserved the romance of medieval knighthood, is indeed remarkable. It is probably the best single proof that could be offered of the advance of our people in good morals and true culture.

The last retreat of the doomed custom was Virginia. After it had been abjured almost everywhere else it seemed to flourish there. This was because of the peculiar political complications in that state which brought men into sharp personal antagonism. In the heated campaigns of 1880 and 1881 personal difficulties were numerous, and frequent expeditions were made to the "field of honor." While most of those engaged in this deplorable business were men of unquestioned courage, the percentage of damage to the number of duels was so small as to bring these combats into general ridicule. The term "Virginia duel" was coined, and is still extant, to express an affair with all the pomp and ceremony of a bloody encounter minus the blood.

An intelligent Virginia gentleman, who was until late years a believer in "the code," told me the other day that dueling was dead in this state. He said that the crystalization of the best public opinion in that state against it within the past two years had been simply wonderful, and there is not a county in Virginia where a man would not now elevate himself more in the opinion of the people by declining a challenge than by accepting one.

There never was a time in a truly civilized country when a man did not revolt from the thought of slaying or being slain in these deliberate combats. Men who faced each other with deadly weapons to fight to the death often had no animosity. They were slaves to a custom which had drifted from barbarism into civilization; to an idea which had held its place in some hard portion of the popular conscience untouched by the influences that were beautifying and and refining all other sentiments of the popular heart. Public opinion bolstered dueling into an unnatural prolongation of its sway. Now that public opinion has not only withdrawn its support, but has lifted its implacable cry against the miserable custom, it must go.—Atlanta Constitution.

Japanese Tea at a Chicago Show.

I visited the "Japanese village" the other day, and came away in a towering passion. After visiting several of the little booths nearest the entrance, I sauntered away into the back part of the theater, where a couple of little Japanese ladies were making and giving away cups of tea. "Now," thought I to myself, "I will see for myself whether the Japs and the Cinese know any more about a good cup of tea than the Americans do."

As I approached, the dainty little matron stepped to the front of her booth, and in a rather beseeching manner held out to me a tray containing a half a dozen tiny blue cups half full of tea. I gratefully accepted one. It contained only a few thimblefuls of tea, without cream or sugar; but, oh! ye gods! what tea! I sipped and sipped until it was gone, and then, having quickly made the circuit of the village, came back with a new crowd, and took another cup. This fraud was perpetrated over and over, and it seemed to me that I could drink that tea forever.—Cor. Chicago Journal.

Bees on the War-Path.

A correspondent of The Bee Journal writes that a brood of chickens were in the habit of frequenting the shed in which he kept his bees. The bees stung all the dark-colored ones to death, yet did not molest the light-colored chicks. Why the preference? The editor writes that he has frequently spoken of the advantage of wearing light clothes among the bees. We wear black bee veils because we cannot see clearly through any color. Woolly, fuzzy and dark materials are objected to by bees. A man with a plug hat on rarely gets stung, unless by a bee that in trying to "shoot the hat" aims too low and hits the face by mistake, while a companion at a suitable distance is perfectly safe.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Chance to Make a Fortune.

A party of young men who had been boating on the lake were standing in the doorway of one of the small stores, where they had adjourned for refreshments. One of the party remarked to the crowd that the scene that lay before them was very pretty. The storekeeper remarked: "Yes, if one of you put a washerwoman over there, a cow over there, and a whole lot of boats on the lake, and then let one of them painter chaps make about 10,000 copies, he could make a heap of money."—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

Foreign Immigration Falling Off.

According to recent statistics, foreign immigration is steadily falling off. There is a notable decrease in German immigration.—Philadelphia Call.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

—A physician who hails from the State of Georgia says that the heart of a turtle will continue to beat until it gets dry.

—A portable military hospital, which formed part of the exhibit of Copenhagen at the New Orleans Exposition, has been donated to the United States marine hospital.

—Coyote-catching is getting to be quite an industry in Oregon. A bounty is paid for their scalps, and there are many people who make a living by hunting them.

—In Washington there are goldfish that have belonged to the same family for fifty years, and they appear to be scarcely any larger than they were when purchased.

—James Close, of Walla Walla, W. T., killed an Indian about a month ago, and recently was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of five dollars.

—The enteresting fact goes on record that when the infant King of Spain was being christened Alfonso Leon Fernando Maria Santiago Isidoro Pascual Marciano he protested several times in a very loud voice. No wonder.

—The mother of a pupil in a Massachusetts school sent as an excuse for the child's absence that "his clothes were too dissipated for him to attend." A little girl in the same school gave as a reason for absence that she had "brown kittens in her throat."

—A large wild black bear was killed five miles east of Jackson, Tenn., the other evening. His appearance in the neighborhood created quite a sensation, as he is the first wild bear that has been seen in that county for many years. He fought dogs and men desperately until he was killed. He was shot seven times.

—The oldest house in Stamfordboro, N. Y., the Rogers house, which is said to be one hundred and fifty years old, is being torn down to make way for a business block. Interesting relics have been discovered in the form of old coins and a cannon-ball which is supposed to have been there since the Revolution.—N. Y. Sun.

—Remarkable accuracy is now attained by engineers in cutting tunnels through mountains, working from both ends. Thus at the Musconetcong tunnel, on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, the alingment tested to four one-hundredths feet, or less than half an inch. In this case levels were run five thousand feet long.—Chicago Times.

—Samuel Adkyns, ex-mayor of Grafton, W. Va., while hunting deer recently, was shot in the side by Thomas Wymans, who thought Adkyns was a deer. Several of his companions picked him up and carried him home, but were so apprehensive of some one mistaking the whole party for a herd of deer that they kept up a constant hallooing until they reached the town.

—The American Association for the Advancement of Science is doing good, brave work. In its report last week it announces the discovery that "the homologies of the synomosal bone indicates the posterior half of the zygomatic arch." The papers which have insisted that it was developed by the macrodactylic oboe of the periphrastic javel must feel cheap enough."—Washington Post.

—The hotel-keeper at Plumas, Cal., has received a letter from some one in San Francisco, probably a drummer, inclosing a comb which the writer says he stole, and adds: "Since which I have been converted born of the Spirit of God & therefore I have become a son of God & God my Father tells me to be honest & right everything that I don rong So far as in me is Possable or he will disinherit me yet again."

—At the rate of increase which has been going on for the past few years Java will soon produce as much sugar as Cuba. The sugar planters of Java appear to be making money in spite of the low prices now obtaining, and claiming that it is a more profitable crop than coffee. There are only about one hundred sugar mills in Java, but the land suited to the cultivation of the sugar cane is practically unlimited.

There are only fifteen Chinese carpenters in San Francisco, and they have a union and practically settle their own price on their labor. Up to a year and a half ago the rate was two dollars and fifty cents a day, but at that rate they struck for three dollars a day, and have maintained the latter rate ever since. However, they only do light carpenter work, and consequently do not interfere much with white carpenters. They have abandoned their old time tools, such as the two-handed plane and the back-set saw, and they now use exclusively the American tools.

—The eating of flowers is rapidly becoming an American mania. According to the Boston Record, "crystalized violets at six dollars a pound are the very latest things in confectionery. Candied rose leaves are also very popular. Girls like to eat flowers and will pay as high as ten dollars a pound for some of the most expensive kinds. They are all brought from France, but with the growth of things American, we shall doubtless soon see a beginning of the flower-candying industry in this country and the girls will begin to munch crystalized pumpkin blossoms and johnny-jumpups."

—A writer in the American Bar says that a Twenty-fourth street horse dealer, who goes every year to Kentucky to attend horse sales, bought last year a plantation very cheap. The only buildings are a tumble-down house and barn, and this spring, while reparing the house, he found in the cellar a large case containing thirty-one barrels of whisky, all bearing date of 1861. The man who had owned the place was an old bachelor. The frequent raids during the war led him to turn his ready money into whisky, which he hid. Soon after he was killed and no one knew of the liquor. Thirty-one barrels of twenty-five-year-old Kentucky whisky are worth a good deal.

Beavens' Budget, Fort Plain, N. Y., for March, 1886, says: In the multiplicity of medicines placed upon the market, it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between the meritorious and the worthless. There are at least two excellent remedies widely used, the efficiency of which are unquestioned. We refer to St. Jacobs Oil and Red Star Cough Cure.

Danger signals are used in the mining centers of England to make known such atmospheric changes as may affect the workings of the mines.

Solicitor of Patents, F. O. McCleary, of Washington, D. C., says the only thing that did him any good, when suffering with a severe cough of several weeks standing, was Red Star Cough Cure, which is purely vegetable and free from opiates and poison.

GLADLY ON THE LIST.

Successful practitioners of the art of curing diseases feel natural pride in referring to the remarkable results effected in some cases. Drs. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., are constantly in receipt of unsolicited testimonials from their many patients extolling the wonderful merits of the Compound Oxygen Treatment for lung, throat and chronic diseases of the blood or nervous system. A pamphlet containing many of these, sent with permission to publish, mailed free to anybody who will write for it. Names of national reputation will be found on the list.

Orders for the Compound Oxygen Home Treatment will be filled by H. A. Mathews, 615 Powell street, San Francisco.

Smith's absent-mindedness.—Smith (answering a telephone call)—Hello! Who is it? Jones—It's me, Harry. Did I leave my umbrella at your office last night? Smith—Yes; there are two here. (Holds one of them up.) Is this yours?

A WISE REFORM.

The habit of administering quinine in powerful doses, as an antidote to malarial maladies, was once dangerously common. Happily this practice has undergone a wide reform. Not only the public, but professional men have adopted, not wholly, of course, but largely, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a safe botanic substitute for the pernicious alkaloid. The consequences of this change are most important. Now fever and ague sufferers are cured—formerly their complaints were only for the time relieved, or half cured—the remedy eventually failing to produce any appreciable effect, except the doses were increased. A course of the Bitters, persistently followed, breaks up the worst attacks and prevents their return. The evidence in favor of this sterling specific and household medicine is of no ambiguous character, but positive and satisfactory, and the sources whence it proceeds are very numerous.

INSTANTLY RELIEVED.

Mrs. Ann Lacour, of New Orleans, La., writes: "I have a son who has been sick for two years; he has been attended by our leading physicians, but all to no purpose. This morning he had his usual spell of coughing, and was so greatly prostrated in consequence, that death seemed imminent. We had in the house a bottle of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, purchased by my husband, who noticed your advertisement. We administered it and he was instantly relieved."

SAVED FROM A TERRIBLE DEATH.

No, my friend, you do not know what it means to be saved from death. You think that because you fell into the bay and were rescued from drowning, that in the short space of five minutes you realized all that is meant by those words. You have no idea of the lingering agony of weeks and months of suffering, the certainty that death is ever coming nearer and nearer, and that no human skill can delay the grim messenger. But let me tell you my story:

In the fall of 1870 I had occasion to take a stage ride in Oregon at night. I took a severe cold and was sick for a week. I recovered my usual health with the exception of a slight cough, to which I paid no attention. On my return to California the coughing became troublesome. I applied for medical advice. I was assured it was only an attack of bronchitis and a bottle of medicine would set me right. A month went by and I was no better. I began to lose flesh and appetite; my left lung gave me pain and night sweats troubled me. Again I received a thorough examination, and was informed that I had cavities in my lung and must seek a warmer climate. My doom was sealed. I knew I had consumption. I took cod liver oil, cough syrups and the long list of lung remedies. Day by day I felt that I was nearing the grave; I struggled desperately against the enemy. I spent one winter in Florida, but the climate enervated me. A sea voyage was proposed and I took ship for Havre. I felt that I had exhausted all means. A violent hemorrhage nearly exhausted me, and I felt that I must cease the struggle and prepare to meet my fate bravely. Nearly two years I had suffered and was slowly dying. While in the hospital of the Sacred Heart, I was recommended to send for the celebrated Dr. Dujardin, and once more to appeal to medical science. I sent for him. His first words gave me hope: "My dear friend, you have the consumption, it is true, but by the grace of the good God you may yet regain some health." He gave me a bottle of his Life Essence, saying: "Take this, and if it fails, I can do nothing."

I had tried so many medicines that I had little faith. Yet I took it. The first night I did not sweat. I was surprised, but feared it was only from the different food. I soon began to look eagerly for my meals. My cough did not trouble me and I felt as if I might get well. I saw the good doctor again and received words of encouragement. In short, I took seven bottles of the Life Essence, and then felt that I was nearly well, returned home to surprise my friends, and receive their congratulations at being saved from death. I brought several bottles of Dujardin's Life Essence with me and shall never be without it. To be saved from sudden death is nothing, but to be saved from lingering agony, from daily and nightly horror, is more than human tongue can describe.

What Its Maintenance Costs the Country in Connection with the President.

Most people believe that the $50,000 a year which the President gets as his salary is the sum total. This is a mistake. The estimate of the amount which Congress is to appropriate this year lies before us, open at the page relating to the President. We see that $36,084 is asked for him, in addition to his salary of $50,000, to pay the salaries of his subordinates and clerks. His private secretary is paid $3,250, his assistant private secretary $2,250, his stenographer $1,800, five messengers each $1,200, a steward, $1,800, two door-keepers who each get $1,200, four other clerks at good salaries, one telegraph operator, two ushers getting $1,200 and $1,400, a night usher getting $1,200, a watchman who gets $900, and a man to take care of fires who receives $864 a year. In addition to this there is set down $8,000 for incidental expenses, such as stationery, carpets and the care of the President's stables. And further on, under another heading, there is a demand for nearly $40,000 more. Of this $12,500 is for repairs and furnishing the White House. $2,500 for fuel, $3,000 is for the green house, and $15,000 is for gas, matches and the stables. The White House, all told, costs the country, in connection with the President, considerably over $125,000 a year.—San Francisco World.

A Debate Vigorously Described.

Lest we all forget how to write vigorously, it is well to keep up occasionally with a noble specimen of newspaper English. The following is taken from the correspondence of a western newspaper, and relates to a debate in the house at Washington last winter:

"By the courtesy of Mr. Herbert, George D. Wise, of Virginia, replied to Boutelle, and he did it in a way that made the fur fly and surprised his friends. Wise jumped on Boutelle with both feet, figuratively speaking, with an avalanche of facts, sarcasm and ridicule, and trampled the life out of him. He ripped him up the back, tore out his entrails, and, rending him limb from limb, flung the pieces all over the house. A more complete lambasting and more vigorous and thorough roasting than Wise gave Boutelle was never known. The excitement of the man as he poured forth the terrific and terrible tongue-lashing grew and augmented itself until he seemed to have turned into a very cyclone. With mighty gesticulation and in tones of wrath frightful to behold he whaled it at his opponent throughout the fifteen minutes alloted to him, while Boutelle sat pale and panting and smarting and squirming under the mighty blows of the enraged southerner, who was skinning him from his head to his heels.

"In the course of his remarks Wise paid his compliments to William Mahone, as he called him, and made a neat cutting side stroke at Representative Brady, of Virginia, disposing of him with one sharp, quick, decisive swipe. Wise vigorously and dramatically recited some facts in their order which absolutely knocked out of time every charge and allegation that Boutelle had made in his speech, and in the end landed his prey so high and dry that he could do no thing but gasp for breath."—Harper's Monthly.

A Reformer.

"Mamie," said a grammar school girl to a member of the graduating class, "have you finished your essay?"

"O, yes," gushed Mamie; "and it is too lovely for anything—a Princess slip of white surah, the back cut off a little below the waist line, and full breadths of silk gathered in so as to hang gracefully over the tournure, and three bias ruffles on the——"

"Why, what are you talking about?" interrupted her friend. "I mean, have you finished writing your essay, you know?"

"Er—no," said Mamie, her enthusiasm rapidly diminishing; "but have begun it, and I wish the awful thing was in Halifax!"

"What's the subject?"

"The Curse of Slang."

"Gracious! Isn't that a difficult subject to write up?"

"Difficult! Well, I should giggle! I'll have to hump myself to get it finished in time for the commencement, and I've a good notion to let it slide. I might shut up the Professor's optic by pleading illness, but I'm not that sort of a hairpin. But come, waltz up into my room and look at my stunning graduating harness. It'll paralyze you."—Norristown Herald.

What He Had in for Him.

The other day Judge Nickelson went a fishing. Becoming tired and hungry on his way home he stopped at a cabin near the roadside and thus addressed an old negro man who came to the gate:

"How are you, old man?"

"Po'ly, sah; how is it wid yerse'f?"

"I am hot, hungry, dusty and thirsty. Can you do anything for me?"

"No, sah."

"Can't you give me some water?"

English Lords vs. French Princes.

A wealthy New Yorker and his lovely daughter were seated in their elegant parlor and the girl was crying.

"Don't cry, darling; that's papa's dear," he said, stroking her bandoline tresses.

"I will cry," she said, jerking away from him. "You said I should marry an English lord, and you haven't done it, you mean old thing."

"There, there," he said soothingly; "it was not papa's fault, dear. But don't cry, baby, and you shall have one of those nice French princes who have recently been expulsed."

"Oh, papa, you dear old fellow," and she kissed him lavishly and dried her tears.—Washington Critic.

Not a Hairpin.

A foolish exchange says: "A hairpin is a woman's best friend." This is really absurd. Does a hairpin ever come home very late, sit around the bedroom and look foolish while she blows it up to her heart's content? Does a hairpin ever buy new bonnets, promise her in July a new sealskin next January, and next January stave it off with a promise of a season at the seashore next July? The man who wrote the item either is employed by some hairpin manufacturer or else he is a cynical bachelor.—Graphic.

FAMOUS BOOK-AGENTS.

Historical Personages Who at One Time or Another "Peddled" Literary Works.

The book-peddler, like a certain other personage, is not so black as he is painted. He has had the misfortune—along with the barber, the plumber and the "drummer"—to become the prey of the newspaper paragrapher, and innumerable jests are cracked at his expense. He is, as a rule, a most inoffensive person and is engaged in an honorable occupation. The business can boast many honored names among its followers, a fact that should exempt the book-peddler from much of the odium that is without good cause cast upon him.

It may be a surprise to the public at large to know that among the corps and class of men bearing the business name of book-agents, Bonaparte—when a lieutenant, unemployed at the capital, and too honorable to duplicate his pay accounts—took the agency for Boulanger et Cie., the noted publishers of the Pont Neuf, for a work entitled L'Histoire de la Revolution. Bonaparte tried to secure from the publishing company the whole department of La Vendee, but he was only given a suburban Parisian arrondissement. In the foyer of the great palace of the Louvre, amid countless bric-a-brac of the reign of Louis, the great monarch, can be seen to-day, under a glass case, the little canvasser's outfit of the great Emperor, and within it the long list of names which his assiduity secured.

George Washington, while surveying Fairfax County in his youth—prior to the fateful Braddock expedition—was a book-agent. The work he canvassed for—a copy of which is now among the relics of the Patent Office—was Bydell's American Savage; How He May be Tamed by the Weapons of Civilization. Washington sold over two hundred copies in and around Alexandria, Va.

Jay Gould sold books as an agent. Mark Twain sold books as an agent. Longfellow sold books as an agent. Daniel Webster paid his second term's tuition at Dartmouth by acting as local agent in Merrimac County, N. H., for De Tocqueville's America. Bret Harte was a book agent in the fall of 1849 or spring of 1850.

General Grant, subsequent to his resignation from the army, before his venture on the Dent farm, took part of the territory of a general agent of Putnam's to dispose of Irving's Columbus. Ex-President Hayes footed it all over Southern Ohio, when a mere lad, getting subscriptions for Baxter's Lives of the Saints. Blaine began life as an humble canvasser in Washington County, Pa., selling a Life of Henry Clay, the Mill Boy of the Slashes. Bismarck, when at Heidelberg during a winter vacation, having had his allowance cut short by his father, the Baron, canvassed for one of Blumenbach's hand-books.

James Lackington, a Methodist preacher, commenced to canvass the works of John Bunyan, published by the Rivingtons of London, in 1770, and subsequently became one of the largest booksellers and publishers in England. Thomas Kelly, who was a canvasser in London, afterward became the proprietor of the house for which he was working, and accumulated a fortune. He became Lord Mayor of London in 1834, and died worth nearly $2,000,000.

Thomas Guy, the celebrated philosopher, canvassed Bibles. At his death, besides endowing one of the most magnificent charities in Europe—Guy's Hospital—he left a large fortune to his heirs. James Blackie, of the house of Blackie & Sons, of Glasgow, was canvasser, and was very successful. It has been related of him that after he had made a large fortune and was Lord Provost of Glasgow, incog. he would test the merits of his new publications by a personal canvass of the leading men of his city, after which he would hand his list over to his agent.

And so we could go on. Many of these names are familiar to the public; some of the number are among us to-day. Every thing in any line of business rests with the man—no matter what line, whether dry goods, groceries or books. He can make it honorable or dishonorable as he sees fit.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

HAIR-DOCTORING.

A Popular Female Folly and Its Deleterious Effects.

A fashionable modiste gave a reporter some points on women doctoring their hair to obtain certain effects in color. She said: "Women are blessed with such luxuriant hirsute adornments they rarely ever become bald. If they did not attempt to doctor their hair it would never fall out, unless some scalp disease caused it. In nearly every hair store you visit will be found a hair lotion specially prepared to do something wonderful either in the way of producing extraordinary growth or changing the color from a sandy to a golden, or as desired. Women have a fondness for experimenting with their hair, and can not resist the temptation to try all the nostrums offered. I say nostrums; some of the stuff may be good, used in moderation, but moderation is rarely observed. Women are all allopathic in hair remedies. I have seen many a beautiful suit of hair ruined by applications of lotions. I know a young married lady who moves in the highest circles. She had long, wavy, blonde hair, the envy of nine-tenths of her friends. She concluded that she wanted it a shade lighter—some one had told her that it would add to its beauty. She began by using borax and a lot of prepared stuff, guaranteed by each person who sold it to do its work effectually and without harm. Her hair is now an ugly shade of sorrel and completely dead. It is also much thinner, and will all come out, I think, in a few years. Her case is but one of many. If women would only take into consideration the fact that health, as a rule, gives vitality to hair they would not use so many ineffectual remedies. It is enough to have a race of bald-headed men—may the females be spared."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

NEGLECT OF SPEECH.

The Various Causes Assigned for Stammering in Young and Old.

Every parent whose child exhibits a tendency to stammer in speech should realize how great a misfortune and defect is impending over the child if the tendency grows into a habit, and should use all possible endeavor to avert or to subdue it. For not only does the stammerer suffer annoyance, nervous irritation, shame and innumerable inconveniences, but every one who endeavors to converse with him endures the same nervous irritation, and an embarrassment besides which causes a desire not to encounter him in the future, fortunate if not feeling the most singular temptation to go through the same grimaces and produce the same sounds, which if held in check by politeness or kindness is often held so by an effort, dangerous in the same direction as yielding might prove to the tempted, sometimes producing an incurable stammer of its own.

There are various causes assigned for stammering, none of which operate in all cases. In some children it is produced by organic trouble, malformation of the tongue or of the throat or palate, swollen tonsils, a lengthened uvula or inflammation of the glands. Early attention must be given to this, the uvula clipped, the tonsils reduced, ulcers cauterized, as the particular case requires. Quite as often, however, the trouble is not organic, but functional, and arises from debility, paralysis, tetanic spasms, neuralgia, chorea and other nervous disturbances. This form is almost always curable, with pains and time and patience—patience, after all, being the great panacea. Occasionally this sort of stammering has birth in a chance imitation or mockery of another stammerer, sometimes from a confusion of the mind that hinders control of the organs of speech, or a weakness of the will in relation to them; again from some unhappy excitement, pleasurable excitement seldom retarding the speech. And the act of stammering once accidentally committed, the nervous consciousness of it renders it almost impossible to regain a normal use of the vocal organs. That no stammering, however is entirely and altogether nervous is shown by the fact that the worst stammerer can sing without showing it, and with thorough articulation, and by the further fact that women, who are notoriously more nervous than men, form but a tenth part of all the stammerers in the world.

The trouble with stammerers usually evinces itself in words which begin with consonants, those especially which require a pressure of the tongue upon the roof of the mouth, and when the trouble is not organic, this can almost always be corrected by calling upon the intelligence, and by slow practice, and we repeat, by patience. No sign of vexation or fault-finding should ever be allowed to confuse the child's mental processes while under discipline for the trouble, and if quite young, he may thus be coaxed out of it almost without knowing it. The child should be taught by touch, by example, by plates, if sufficiently old or bright for them, the use and management of the throat, the vocal chords, the tongue and teeth and lips, in speaking, and he should be shown how to speak from the throat and not from the mouth, to speak slowly, and made to think before speaking. If not old enough for instruction of the more advanced sort, then he should be expected to repeat slowly after a kind and gentle voice sentences where the obnoxious sounds slip in unobserved. The best course always is to resort to an experienced teacher, in whose methods knowledge is equalled only by patience.

If a child's eyes are crossed, recourse is had to an oculist; if there is trouble of the ears, to an aurist; if his lip is cleft, if his limbs are twisted, if his back is deformed, to a surgeon. Yet but few things with which he can be afflicted will give much more vexation, annoyance, teasing tremor and mortification than the habit of stammering, if it grows up with him and gets possession of him till he feels it like one of the evil spirits in those possessed of devils, and the parent who fails to mount to the occasion, and thinks it no matter now, that it is rather pretty and amusing in a child, who delays about taking advice, can not afford a teacher in such a trifle, can not go where teachers are, or for any other reason whatever neglects to attend to the business before the child is ten year, old, and to follow it up with the patience of Mother Nature herself for every day of two years, deserves all the reproach with which, in years to come, the child will load him in his heart if not in his stammering speech. Whatever position the child may grow to fill, there he will need his speech; without it the orator will be ruined, the lawyer can not plead, the exhorter can not preach, the teacher can not instruct, the auctioneer has no vocation, the actor can not play, the master can not give his orders; the man himself is handicapped at the very outset of life, and in nine cases out of ten he will know that his parents might have hindered it.—Harper's Bazar.

—A very enjoyable concert was given in a small provincial town. Among the performers there was a popular tenor singer, who was announced by the programme as prepared to sing an aria, "Sound an Alarm," by Handel. This he sang with great effect, and was horrified the next day to perceive in the local paper the statement that he had "sung with great taste and expression a fine song by Handel entitled 'Maria, Sound an Alarm.'"—Engish Exchange.

—Thomas Cunningham, an Englishman, while swimming at Fortress Monroe was in danger of drowning a quarter of a quarter of a mile from shore. Dr. Irving C. Rosse, formerly surgeon of the Arctic exploring steamer Corwin, was near him and went to his rescue. "If you obey my orders," he shouted, "I'll save you. If you don't I'll let you drown!" The Englishman obeyed orders, and the doctor towed him to the shore.

AN ENJOYABLE SIGHT.

The Interesting and Charming Way in Which a Woman Puts on a Bonnet.

"Did you ever notice how a woman puts on a bonnet?" asked an irreverent friend not long ago.

"No? Then you have missed the enjoyment of a most interesting performance. When a man dons his headpiece he merely claps the cover over his brows, with as little consideration as one would drop an extinguisher over a candle. He simply puts it on, and that is all there is in the operation. Light or dark is all the same to him. With a woman how different. When she puts on her new bonnet a poem is created, a picture is called into being, music is brought back to earth and the atmosphere is saturated with sweet sounds."

He had a quizzical look in his face and there was a suspicious smile about his mouth. I wonder if he knew I had on a new bonnet?

"She brings forth her band-box (her plump arms can scarcely clasp its aldermanic waist), sets it upon a chair or table, removes the lid, and with a sweet smile reaches down into the cavernous interior of that box and draws forth very tenderly a little, insignificant, heterogeneous affair that courtesy calls a bonnet. To the male eye it has neither beauty nor comeliness."

I knew he was going to say it. Aren't men hateful?

"But wait a bit," he continued, recklessly. "Now she advances toward the mirror, holding the delicate trifle before her, after the manner in which a careful housewife carries a pan full to the brim of hot fat. Arrived at the looking glass, she releases one ear of the bonnet, and with the disengaged hand deftly brushes her front hair. Then her hand resumes hold of the bonnet, and the fellow-hand in its turn pays attention to the clustering locks on its side of the house. Now both hands have the bonnet in their gentle grasp. The fair creature looks into the glass, and remarks, apologetically, that her hair isn't fixed. She feels that it is her duty to exhibit that bonnet in the most favorable manner. She has no excuses to make for its shortcomings; it has none. It is herself alone and always her hair, that is responsible for any thing short of perfection when the nuptial knots shall be tied under her chin and the bonnet and herself shall be one glory.

"And still she hasn't it on her head yet?" said I, not wholly mortified.

"Ah, no; she raises the airy nothing aloft; her chin protrudes; her hand oscillates; she cranes her neck and hunches her shoulders while she adjusts the bonnet astride her pug and settles it down carefully upon its hair substructure. It is now exactly as it should be. There is no guesswork about it. Square, level and plump could not be more precise in results. Up goes her rounded chin; the strings are tied without the slightest wrinkling of the ribbon; the ends are brushed out with a delicate sleight-of-hand; the bows are picked out flat and square—not too flat nor too square—and a long, slender pin is thrust remorselessly through the bow, its point, naked and unguarded, protruding from the thither side—a warning to all whom it may concern that no trespassers are allowed upon the premises."—San Francisco Examiner.

MUSICAL LEGISLATORS.

A List of the Best Singers in the National Senate and House.

While it is not generally supposed that the staid statesmen at the capital are over-musical in their tastes, yet there are some who love to lay aside the cares of official work and bathe their souls in song. Among the members of Congress Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, is the best known singer. He has a fine baritone voice, which he uses to excellent advantage. The Senator's repertoire is extensive, but his favorites are some quaint old drinking songs, and in their rendition he is well-nigh inimitable.

Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, is a basso, and a good singer he is, too. His favorite is "Old Kentucky Home." Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, is another singer of Congressional renown. His voice is a baritone, and he sings a number of selections very nicely. Not a great while ago he sang his favorite, "One Hundred Years Ago," in his committee room to a company of friends, and they do say it was a magnificent performance. Mr. Brown, of Pennsylvania, has the best tenor in Congress, and it has been thoroughly cultivated. It is a high, pure and sweet voice. Mr. Brown is fond of the highest order of music, although he sings some plaintive ballads in a way that would do credit to a professional. Mr. Hanback, of Kansas, is another tenor. His voice is not as finely cultivated as Mr. Brown's, but it is powerful and sonorous. He would make a good chorus singer in the comic opera were it not for his bald head. Mr. Hanback likes the serio-comic songs of the day. He belongs to the Elks and is a regular attendant upon their meetings. He can give a good recitation as well as sing a song. Sometimes his selections are of the patriotic order, and sometimes they partake of the comic, but he seldom sings any thing sentimental. There are a number of other singers in Congress—enough, in fact, to furnish choruses for several opera companies—but the gentlemen mentioned are those who have achieved reputations on account of their own musical gifts and attainments.—Washington Letter.

—One of the most important rules in the science of manners is that you preserve an almost absolute silence concerning yourself. Play the comedy, some day, of speaking of your own interests to ordinary acquaintances, and you will see feigned attention swiftly followed by indifference and then by weariness, until every one has found a pretext for leaving you. But if you wish to group about you the sympathies of all and to be considered a charming and agreeable fellow, talk to them of themselves, seek some way of bringing each of them into action in turn; then they will smile at you, think well of you and praise you when you are gone.—N. Y. Herald.

IN THE SICK ROOM.

The Experience of An Intelligent Nurse Presented in Popular Form.

"In summer persons caring for the sick invariably raise the windows from the bottom," remarked a trained nurse. "Now, except in very sultry, close weather this should not be done. The sick-room should be constantly supplied with fresh air, but it should be admitted in such a way as to cause no strong current near or about the patient. The best way is to drop the windows from the top. Cool air being heavier descends, and when introduced high up purifies and freshens the atmosphere more thoroughly. It is always dangerous to open a window in the direction from which the wind is blowing.

"People who are not disturbed by disorder when well are often irritated by the least confusion in the arrangement of a room when ill. Every thing in the room should be carefully adjusted to the best advantage, for a sick person's fancy is most capricious. Nothing should be allowed to lie around carelessly. The table should not be littered with books and papers. Flowers should be kept no longer than absolutely fresh. Medicine and water glasses should be carefully washed and kept from the sight of the patient. The constant sight of medicine is not only trying to an invalid but often nauseating.

"No food should ever be prepared in the sick-room. If only a small bowl of broth, it should be served as invitingly as possible. Nor should a bowl of broth or gruel or a cup of tea be carried to the sick person in your hand; place it on a tray covered with a clean napkin. Bring but a little quantity at a time, for a large quantity is apt to take away the patient's appetite. If possible, always serve too little, reserving a supply until asked for more. If the physician should order a larger amount of food, than the patient can take at one time, as for instance, a cupful of milk or broth, try only a little, a tablespoonful or so at a time. If the stomach rejects even this, try even less. Too great care can not be observed in all these seeming small details. With persons of highly sensitive nervous organizations the observance of these apparently trivial things often means the issue of life or death.

"Absolute cleanliness is imperative in the sick room. The bed linen should be changed at least every other day, unless the patient's condition is such as to make it impracticable. Sprinkle the carpet with tea leaves before sweeping, and dust with a damp cloth. Cleanliness is the only means by which the air can be kept pure, especially in summer. Impure air, whether in the sick room or otherwise on the premises, readily becomes poison. Cleanliness in summer is not only essential to the recovery of the sick, but to the continuance of good health to those who are well.

"It is never desirable to darken a sick room except in some nervous diseases, affections of the eyes, or in the acute stages of the disease. There are persons whose nervous systems have become so disarranged that the broad daylight is an actual pain to them and nothing so grateful to their disturbed nerves as the darkness. Light, however, is an important adjunct in convalescence. When the patient is very sick it is easy to admit plenty of light without allowing it to fall in such a way as to occasion annoyance. Be sure that the lamp does not smoke or give out a bad odor at night, and that the gas does not leak, and that the lamp is not so placed as to make shadows flicker within sight of the patient when you keep it burning all night. If the gas jet causes this effect on the wall, shade it in such a manner as to prevent the formation of distracting shadows. Little things that in health would be unnoticed often have a disastrous influence on a system weakened by long or severe illness.

"For all stomach inflammations or irritations there is generally nothing better than cracked ice. The lumps can be allowed to melt in the mouth. One supply of ice can be made to last for a number of hours by laying it in a piece of coarse flannel suspended in a bowl. Take a deep bowl, holding a quart or more and a piece of coarse flannel, oblong in shape, about twice as long as it is broad. Fasten the flannel around the bowl with a string in such way as to make it reach about half way to the bottom. Put the cracked ice into this flannel cup and cover it with the end left over because of the oblong shade. In this manner the ice is kept dry, the water running through the flannel into the bowl.

"Another word about flowers: Keep no heavily scented blossoms near the sick person, and if flowers are placed near the bedside during the day remove them at night. People with delicate imaginations are often very sensitive in regard to a preponderance of white blossoms about them when very ill. They want to behold something vivid that speaks of throbbing life, not the symbolic flowers of death.

"All idiosyncracies of the sick must be studied by the intelligent nurse, for the best of physicians can do but little to alleviate disease if not aided by skillful nursing."—Chicago News.

Timely Work.

Work is most profitable when it is applied at the right place and proper time. One of the best ways of saving labor is to fight the weeds when they are young. Every day's growth allowed them is just so much additional work, as the harrow and cultivator can be made to perform what may hereafter require the plow. On the garden, if the seeds of the vegetables are up, a raking between the rows will delay the use of the hoe and save work. Every hour's work saved is so much profit and gain, and by keeping a close watch over the several departments, the work may be bestowed just where it will be the most serviceable, and every farmer should aim to do so.—Farm, Field and Stockman.

SATUURDAY, AGUST 14.....1886.

No Secession.

THE Los Angeles Express has been bitten by the tarantula of secession; it says:

"The seven counties which may ere long form the magnificent State of Southern California require, and must have the faithful assistance of their metropolis and future capital, in the work of securing the necessary population and development of resources to become a separate commonwealth."

The Express did well not to give the names of the seven counties it intends to admit into the "magnifficent State of Southern California," some of them might object. Ceasar to the contrary, it is more honor to be the second man in Rome than the first man in a village, and Los Angeles as the second city in the really "MAGNIFICENT STATE OF CALIFORNIA" is of more importance and is more respected than it would be as the capital of a state whose small population would make it insignificant. As the nerves, veins and arteries make the head, hands and feet part of the same body with the heart, so the great water courses of the State by their courses would seem to indicate that it is all designed for one great commonwealth. No secession; California, great, glorious, one and indivisable.

No Special Legislation.

THE Colusa Sun is opposed to any constitutional amendment that would permit special legislation on irrigation; it says: "It has been suggested that the Constitution shall be so amended as to allow of special legislation on the question of irrigation. We do not concur. Let Southern California cut from us in that and adopt a system of irrigation whereby the use of water may be as clear as the use of the land, and that section will forge ahead so fast that Northern California will become a backwoods settlement—it will be condemned to great wheat fields and sparse settlements; no schools, no churches, no rural improvements. The land owners will continue to live in the cities and tumble-down shanties will accommodate the Chinese cooks and the few men who temporarily work to put in the grain; while the "cook wagon" does the balance." If irrigation is good for a part it is good for the whole; no special legislation.

HOWEVER disagreeable the conviction may be, the conduct of a great majority of members of the Legislature warrant the presumption that they know but little about irrigation, and don't want to be better informed. It was this conviction chiefly that prompted many to oppose the call for an extra session of the Legislature. The men had already been tried and found wanting. There are men in both branches of the Legislature who have given the matter close study, but there will have to be more of the same kind before needed legislation can be had.

DURING his short term of service in the Senate, Mr. Hearst opposed two measures in which his own state was deeply interested. One was the oleomargarine bill, and the other was a clause in the River and Harbor bill, authorizing suits to be brought against parties injuring the navigable rivers of the State. All the dairymen in the State were angry at him for the one, and the Sacramento Valley farmers were angry at him for the other. No one points to any good he did, or tried to do.

BECAUSE of the great depression in the value of silver, a great many miners have been recently discharged in Candelaria. It is very unfortunate for all who are dependent upon silver mining for their daily bread that the United States Treasury should be run in the interest of bond holders and national banks. Dan Manning is in very poor health; swing low sweet chariot coming for to carry him home to the golden streets of the new Jerusalem.

Congress adjourned on Thursday of last week. In his message to Congress at the beginning of the session, President Cleveland recommended quite a number of subjects on which legislation should be had. His recommendations were neglected in nearly every instance; very little was done, though the session continued longer than usual.

THE Apaches of Ireland, the Orangemen of Belfast, are keeping up their course of murder, fire and robbery. These savages may yet have to be removed from the city, and placed where they can only indulge their propensity for destruction by destroying each other. The sooner this happens the better it will be.

A bill has been introduced in Congress to prevent aliens from owning lands in the United States. Millions of acres of the land that ought to belong to citizens of the United States is already held by foreigners. It is high time to check this gross abuse and wrong.

THE disagreement of conference committees of the Senate and House of Representatives, leaves the Desert Land and Timber Culture Acts still in force, and lands may continue to be located under them.

Mr. J. C. Eddy, of Darwin, has gone to San Francisco.

Mr. H. Levy got back from San Francisco last Wednesday.

T. B. Rickey is reported to be a strong candidate for Governor of Nevada.

The next annual encampment of the G. A. R. will we held at Saint Louis.

Mr. J. T. McMahon and Mrs. McMahon have gone to Davisville, Yolo county.

The Reno postoffice was robbed last week; the thieves got about $500 in greenbacks.

Mr. Thomas C. Boland, of Keeler, went north at the beginning of the week on his way to San Francisco.

General Lucius Fairchild, of Wisconsin, is the new Commander in Chief of the G. A. R. Gen. Fairchild lost an arm at Gettysburg.

TIME EXTENDED.—The time for receiving bids for building the Inyo Academy has been extended till Monday, August 30th, at 3 o'clock P. M.

Recently a cloud burst at Pine Grove, Mason Valley, uncovered a good quartz ledge on ground belonging to Ex-Governor Blaisdell, of Nevada.

Paul W. Bennet, formerly of Independence, now of Stockton, is mentioned as a strong candidate for the Republican nomination for a seat on the Supreme bench.

The Mexican Judge sentenced Cutting last Saturday to one year's imprisonment at hard labor and a fine of $600. If he cannot pay the fine he has to serve 100 days more.

It is reported that raisin makers near Chico expect returns of $400 an acre this season. Fortunes await those who will go into raisin making in Owens Valley, if they manage properly.

Mr. W. F. Matlack is a candidate for renomination to the office of Coroner. During his incumbency of the office Mr. Matlack has discharged all the duties required in a very satisfactory way.

Mike Muldoon, who had an eye hurt while shoeing a horse has lost it entirely. In San Francisco he was told that the eye must be taken out, and he submitted to the operation.

A. W. Eibeshu'z has gone to San Francisco. He will buy a large stock of goods and is expected back in about two weeks. The new store building is now well along toward completion.

The city property of V. Beaudry in Los Angeles is assessed at $105,475, and is probably worth twice that amount. Mr. Beaudry made a great deal of his wealth right here in Inyo county.

The Candelaria True Fissure says so many men have been thrown out of employment in the mines that the leading base ball club is broken up. What a pity that the best batter in the club can't get a whack at the head of Dan Manning.

Again, as during the Conclave of Knights Templar three years ago, the crowds of Eastern visitors are delighted and amazed with the generous reception given them in California. Many of these people will become permanent residents of the State.

Senator Stanford has sent to the German Land and Cattle Co. a quantity of seeds for distribution, which will be sent, free of charge, to any one applying for them. Address, German Land and Cattle Co. 123 California Street, San Francisco, Cal.

The splendid editions of the Call and Chronicle issued during the meeting of the Veterans in San Francisco, reflects great credit upon the whole State. Any city or state might well be proud of such newspaper enterprise as was shown by those papers.

August G. Koch, an old resident of Virginia City, committed suicide by shooting himself with a pistol last week. Deceased was a tinsmith and plumber by trade, and had lived in the city over twenty years. Financial embarrassment was the cause of the act.

For a first-class Piano or Organ the best house to go to in San Francisco is Kohler & Chase. Being the oldest and largest music firm in that city. They possess first class facilities for supplying good instruments at very reasonable prices. Send for circulars.

Sarah Althea sitting in judgment on two Judges of the Supreme Court is something wonderful to see. Even if they had sinned against light and knowledge, instead of being naturally unable to take broad views of great questions, surely this humiliation would be punishment enough.

McMahor & Jiggins have dissolved partnership and gone out of business. Their stock of goods was bought by A. W. Eibeshutz, and the business is carried on for the present in Good Templars Hall. Mr. V. G. Thompson is in charge of the business during the absence of Mr. Eibeshutz at San Francisco.

Last Wednesday Mr. W. W. Collins passed through Independence on his way from Kern county to Big Pine. He had fourteen head of horses, four large wagons and a lot goods and implements to be used on the land recently bought by his father north of Big Pine, and where the family intend to make their future home.

Mr. J. C. Irwin is a candidate for renomination to the office of assessor. The four years service already given by Mr. Irwin has made him thoroughly familiar with all property of every kind in the county. It is a fact that experience the better fits any one for the discharge of any duty, and this recommendation Mr. Irwin has.

James McGuire passed through Independence last Wednesday on his way to Los Angeles. When Captain McGown and his men were stationed at Camp Independence years ago, Mr. McGuire was a sergeant in the company; he has since served at other stations till he was discharged from the service at Fort Boise, Idaho, at the end of his term of enlistment. The brave old soldier is still straight as an arrow, but begins to show traces of the approach of the winter of life. Mr. McGuire entered the service in 1861, and served for some time in the army of the Potomac. He is entitled to a pension but has never applied for it.

It is evident that public opinion is opposed to any summary process for getting rid of the incompetent Judges of the Supreme Court. Reverence for law and the Courts is so great that there is an instant pause when a proposition is made to remove Judges in any other way than by regular election. This strong conservative feeling in the public mind is the best safe guard of our free institutions. If Courts could be overturned by the clamor of a few vindictive or interested men there would be no security for life and property. The sober second thought, expressed at a general election, will bring about without danger such changes as are necessary in the Supreme Court. Very able lawyers hold that by a wise interpetation of the laws as they are, the whole water question, of such vital interest to the State, can be settled in a way to give general satisfaction and secure prosperity.

L. wood has already accummulated quite a varied stock of goods since the fire.

The Levy Hotel is all finished except some painting. Guests can now be entertained comfortably.

A large quantity of new goods has been received by E. Chenot this week; most are already unpacked and he is now open for business.

Harris & Rhine continue to get goods of all kinds by every train that comes south. They are rapidly replacing the great variety of goods destroyed by the fire.

The history of the extra session can be written in one word "fizzle." The Governor, the Judges, the members of the Legislature, all appear to be utterly incompetent to deal with this great matter.

Last Thursday evening a social party was tendered to Miss Duval, at the residence of her sister Mrs. W. L. Hunter. Quite a number were present, and all expressed themselves as having spent a very pleasant evening.

Rev. W. O. Wood and Mr. J. W. Holland, of Springville, Ventura county, were at Independence yesterday. They came by way of Mojave, and are looking at the unsettled lands of Owens valley. They have gone north as far as Bishop Creek, and will return in a few days.

It is reported that Nellie Grant is coming home to live with her mother. Like most girls, Nellie let her imagination govern in the selection of a husband, instead of judgment. She imagined the young fellow was a hero, and he proved to be a mere coarse brute. Before their marriage Sartoris showed that he was not a high minded, kind, and honorable man; but poor Nellie was in love with the creature of her imagination, and that was all perfection. A few years of married life destroyed the fond illusion and showed him as he is, selfish, coarse, rather stupid and quite brutal. Multitudes of other girls have a similar experience.

Didn't Use It.

The following incident of the grand parade of the veterans in San Francisco is told by the Call; In numerous instances along the route the weary veterans were proffered liquid refreshments by sympathizing friends. During one of the many halts a particularly exhausted old veteran was handed a flask by some one in the crowd. He took it, removed the cork and put it to his nose; then replaced the cork and handed it back to its owner, remarking: "Much obliged, but I don't use it."

Here, thought the reporter, is a genuine teetotaler. However, to establish the fact beyond a doubt, he approached the flask bearer and asked what it contained. "Water," said he, and still another fond illusion vanished.

Won't Be A Candidate.

Colonel Markham positively declines to be a candidate for renomination to Congress. In a letter written July 29th, he says: "It is not my intention to take a renomination. I hope the people in the district will receive it kindly. I am not a politician, and do not desire to follow the business. I have got along very nicely, and find it no worse than I anticipated. But I would not do the work I am doing here for twice the salary I am receiving, if I were doing it simply for pay. I should not have accepted the nomination in the first place but for the fact that work was needed for our district, and my friends seemed to think I could do it. I believe a Republican can be elected, and one that would do all for the district that I could do.

Very truly yours,
H. H. MARKHAM."

Lying Cold Men.

The director of the Mint estimates the total amount of coin in the United States on January 1st to be $825,729,325. Of this amount $293,293,872 was silver, the remainder was gold. This estimate would make the amount of silver about $4 80 per capita of the population; but there is not that much in circulation, for many millions of dollars are kept locked up in the vaults of the Treasury. But even if every dollar of the silver coin was in circulation the amount per capita would fall far short of the silver circulation of several European countries. While the United States lost by net exportation during the year $15,608,084 in silver, it gained $1,229,160 by net importation of gold. This ought to stop the lying clamor of the gold men about the coinage of silver driving gold out of the country. The Mint Director in his report shows the very reverse of this.

What He Expected.

The following effusion from a citizen of Bishop Creek was received at Independence last week. It shows beyond doubt the use that was intended to be made of the voters of Lone Pine and other places. But the writer has now realized that "The best laid schemes o' mice and men

Gang aft agley,
An' leave us nought but grief an' pain
For promised joy."

"I trust the Hon. Board of Supervisors will justify our faith and hope (I say nothing of charity) in their deliberations regarding the County Seat. Mr. Forbes represents for us (we the majority) the doctrine of expediency [population and self interest]. Do not criticise the idea of self interest too harshly, it is a ladder that angels have trodden, it is a hallowed medicine that grave senators and all Lycurguses of the present day use.

We gospel swampers love Independence, but we love ourselves, etc. The rest—finish it.

"Self" is a great word—Self interest! money!! what a fulcrum, it excites a glorious enthusiasm, it is inspiring. What laborious reasoning you indulge in when a good fee is in sight. Your language how forcible, and perhaps when not entirely [a doubt] imbued with the correctness of your clients case.

I visited your town only once and I viewed your princely, pretentious Court House with a feeling of pride and serious reverence.

I had not seen a Court House for eight years, and it carried my mind back to former days I enjoyed at the County Seat of old Tuolumne. In the most sportive changes of my fancy I did not dream of what the mutation of fortune had in store for Bishop Creek. In my most visionary prospects of the future of Bishop swamp I never pictured a Court House, and last, but not least, an Academy. I indulge no feverish dream when I say real estate here has gone up already, and my villa has well nigh doubled in value. Bishop Creekers; they also of Round Valley, Big Pine and Lone Pine are indulging in intense enjoyment; the flavor of every glass of bourbon drank in the "Temple of Folly" is hightened; they count on the removal of the Court House with mathematical precision. One-half first signers, and then two-thirds vote. Zeal, talent and industry will engage in the struggle and we will prove as formidable as the democrats who get most of the offices in our republican county. The lucid eloquence of our attorneys will charm the voters all over our county. WE will ask for money and thousands will be subscribed to use in a way called T. A. C. T. Strategy, strategy, my dear boy! a cordial grasp of the hand, an artificial stimulus, a little warmth of flattery, you understand all this—this finesse of sociability. Well sir, we all have it, we Bishop swampers.

We will have the County Seat, Court House, officers, lawyers, et hoc genus omne, every devil of you.

Yours truly,

Notice to Builders.

The Trustees of the Inyo Academy are now ready to receive bids from contractors for the erection of the building. A copy of the specifications can be obtained by writing to the undersigned. All bids to be considered must be sent to the Secretary of the Board of Trustees on or before August 14th. Parties bidding on contract to state when they can begin and when finish the work.

C. L. LOGAN,
Secretary Board of Trustees Inyo Academy, Bishop Creek, Inyo County, Cal.

A Worthy Candidate.

For the office of State Surveyor General an unusually well qualified candidate is found in the person of Mr. C. E. Grunsky, of Sacramento. When yet very young Mr. Grunsky was Principal of a school in Stockton, but his tastes and his thirst for knowledge led him in 1872 to abandon teaching and leave for Europe to pursue a course of study in civil engineering. After five years of close application and arduous study he graduated from the Polytechnic University in Stuttgart, Germany, the first in his class, and received a diploma the highest ever conferred by that institution. He returned home in 1877, and since that time has been engaged in collecting information relating to drainage and irrigation in various parts of the State, and since January, 1880, has been Chief Assistant State Engineer. He has in this position and through his labors in the field in nearly every portion of the State, familiarized himself with every detail of value in solving the irrigation and drainage problems, and has contributed much to the State reports on those subjects. It would seem that his knowledge and experience might now be put to good use and it is to be hoped that he may be nominated and elected to a position in which he will be able to give valuable information to those who must hereafter be called upon to alter the existing laws relative to water rights, irrigation, drainage, reclamation, etc. It is not often that political aspirants are so well qualified for office as Mr. Grunsky.

Ordinance No. 16.

The Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, do order as follows:

A new County Fund is hereby established, to be known as the Special Building Fund, into which shall be placed the amount due Inyo on insurance of Court House, and such other sums as may be provided by the Board of Supervisors of said county, said Fund to be used in payment of the indebtedness to be incurred in constructing a County Court House.

This ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after the 23d day of August, 1886, and it is hereby ordered that this ordinance be published for one week in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a weekly newspaper, printed and published in the County of Inyo.

Impending Ruin.

Great alarm prevails in Montana caused by the heavy decline in the price of silver. The Inter-Mountain estimates that fifty thousand people in the Territory are dependent on the mining industries and cognate enterprises, including merchants, farmers and mechanics. The recent depreciation of 10 cents per ounce in silver represents the profits of mining companies, which will have to close down unless a reaction occurs. The lead and copper mines, in which silver is an important bi-product, are also seriously affected. The Glendale Works, employing 1000 men, will shut down on the 15th. The Alice, Moulton, Lexington, Wicker works and many other great enterprises, which for years have paid heavy dividends, and employing thousands of men, cannot run if the present depreciation in the silver market continues. A general paralysis of business will result unless a change speedily occurs. Butte, a substantial city of 22,000 people, is entirely dependent on mining. 5,000 miners being employed. The copper smelters will continue in operation, but with reduced profits. The silver mills of Montana represent an investment of $2,000,000, and mining machinery as much more. The silver product of the Territory the current year, estimated at $12,000,000, will be suddenly cut short, and fully 12,000 miners will be thrown out of employment, unless things speedily change. The people are still brave and hopeful, but indignant at the action of Congress and the administration.

Is It a Boycott!

EDITOR INYO INDEPENDENT:—The San Francisco Chronicle of the 2nd inst had several columns describing the resources of California and a map of counties in which lands are procurable for settlement, and descriptions of the desireable points that should be visited by the intending settlers. Every county in the State is mentioned in the article and marked upon the map except Inyo, and the question arises whether the Chronicle is endeavoring to boycott Inyo, or whether it supposes we are a part of Arizona.

If our magnificient and beautiful valley of Owens River is not worthy of mention in such an article many good judges are sadly mistaken. We have one hundred and ten thousand acres of unoccupied land, as good as can be found anywhere in the State, with a river running through it capable of irrigating it all. At many places over the entire length of the valley where streams come down from the mountains the same quality of land is now under cultivation, and has been for years, and the fact is demonstrated that we can grow almost anything grown elsewhere in the State, and many of our products are of superior excellence.

Our climate is really the best in the world and Owens Valley will ere many years be considered the sanitarium of the Pacific coast. We have no fogs, no heavy dews nor midsummer showers to drive the invalid to cover night or day. Scarcely an acre of the valley land can be found that cannot be made to produce from five to seven tons of alfalfa hay each season, and the best land produces more than this. That it will produce the finest fruit of all kinds (save the citrus) is fully demonstrated. I have known the valley for twenty-three years and in all that time never knew of a grape vine failing to produce a crop. The finest and best flavored apples, pears, peaches, plums, nectarines and apricots I ever saw anywhere were grown in Inyo. Experts have decided that grapes grown here have more saccharine matter than those grown in moister climates and make better wine and raisins. The absence of fogs and dews will eventually make this country noted for its raisins, and their production is sure to grow into a great and profitable industry.

About two months since I sent to the Chronicle an article in which I endeavored to state the facts in relation to the outlook for Inyo, and requested that if it was not such as they were disposed to publish, the manuscript should be returned, at the same time sending the necessary postage stamps for that purpose. All of which was silently ignored by the Chronicle people; and this, with the later instance cited, makes it look to me as if they intended to boycott us.

Yours, etc.,
SHERMAN STEVENS.

Will Make No Difference.

When a paper was recently circulated at Independence, asking for contributions in aid of the Academy to be built at Bishop Creek, it met with a prompt and—Bishop Creek people themselves being judges—a liberal response. Neither the misfortune that has since fallen upon Independence, nor the attempt of certain parties at Bishop Creek to aggravate that misfortune, will delay for a day the payment of the amounts subscribed at Independence toward paying for the academy building at Bishop Creek. When the money is wanted it will be paid, and that ungrudgingly.

"VIRTUE IS HER OWN REWARD."

"Her own reward," and yet the very noblest
That ever recompensed the souls of men
For all the weight of suffering and of sadness,
For all the anguish of the "might have been."

Each act of virtue is the sure unclasping
Of chains that bind the spirit to the earth,
The glorious winning of that proud position
That fits a thing of an immortal birth.

"Her own reward" for earth can find no other
To offer him who kneels at that fair shrine.
Behold! her glad Shekinah shines upon him,
And in that light he groweth half divine.

The slaves of earth may claim her paltry treasures.
What could she gather from her poisonous sod
As fitting guerdon for that pure endeavor
Whose sweet reward is fellowship with God?

A GREAT INSTITUTION.

The New York Press and Its Tireless Reporters.

The universally accepted idea of a newspaper reporter is that he is an impudent, dissolute person, who wanders over the city until he finds some piece of news—no matter of what character, provided it will find readers. This he takes to his office and writes out in very bad English. Like many other generally accepted conceptions of men whose business brings them into public notice, this is not a correct one. Not only are a majority of newspaper reporters upon our most influential metropolitan papers men of education and of culture, but their work is systematized and gathered through organized channels of investigation.

The work of the reporter is given him by the chief of the local news department of the journal with which he is connected, who is known as the city editor. The duties of this editor require untiring energy and the utmost diligence and application. He must see that his paper gives all the important and interesting news of the city and vicinity while it is yet fresh, and if possible before it has been published in any other paper. Eternal vigilance is the price of his position. Every important and unimportant event in politics, finance, society and crime he must follow, and see that the reporters under him investigate and present promptly for the next edition of his paper.

The city editor of a great New York daily has the whole city under observation, as well as Brooklyn, Jersey City and the adjoining country for fifty miles around. He assigns one reporter to each police court. Men are also detailed to each of the other courts, civil and criminal, from the district courts to the Supreme Bench.

An important bureau of news gathering is the headquarters of the police department. Two men from each newspaper are kept watching the returns of this department day and night. Each of these journals has rooms in a building directly opposite the police headquarters in Mulberry street, where the strictest observation is kept upon all criminal matters. If a murder or a crime of any kind is committed in any part of the city, it is at once reported by the police officer in whose patrol it occurred to the police station of his precinct. Thence it is at once telegraphed to police headquarters.

A record of every event of this kind is made on a "blotter" in the reporter's room at headquarters. The moment this information is obtained, the reporter starts out to hunt up the facts. He may have a whole day in which to make his investigations, or he may have only an hour; perhaps but half an hour. Whenever a fire breaks out in any part of the city, or an accident occurs, an alarm is at once sent to police headquarters. The same transmission strikes a similar alarm in the reporters' building opposite. Ten seconds after it has sounded—be it midday or midnight—twenty men, representing all the papers in the city, burst out of the door and disappear in the direction of the fire. They get there very often before the engines.

If the victim of an accident is carried to the hospital, the reporter visits the place where the sufferer was injured, and ascertains how he was hurt, and then goes to the hospital and learns his condition.

In order that nothing of this sort shall escape notice, reporters are sent out after midnight to all the police stations and hospitals from Harlem to the Battery; for, as most of the papers go to press between half-past two and half-past three o'clock in the morning, there would be a perceptible loss of time while waiting for information to get to police headquarters. Even five minutes makes an important difference in a newspaper office at two o'clock in the morning. Another bureau of criminal news is the coroner's office. Any sudden death under suspicious or extraordinary circumstances is at once reported to the coroner and registered for the reporters who cover that office. They investigate every case for themselves, or report it to their city editors for their judgment. So much for the news obtained through the departments of justice.

Each newspaper has also a reporter who calls daily at the offices of all the city officials, from the mayor and controller down, and learns of any important news that occurs in their departments. Another visits the sheriff, the district attorney and the county officials, and one zealously watches the City Hall, where a large room is furnished with desks and tables for reporters.

A reporter "covers" the post-office and the Federal court in that building and obtains any important news there. Another spends the day among the exchanges and brokers in Wall street, to keep the public posted on financial affairs, and one man's sole duty is to keep a look-out on the water-front for marine news of any kind.

Other reporters visit the various municipal departments—the Department of Parks, of Public Works, of Charities and Correction. One man is kept at the quarantine station in the Narrows to telegraph any important news of newly-arrived trans-Atlantic steamers; another visits all the theaters each night—not to criticise the play, that comes under another department of the paper—but to learn of any important changes in the cast of a performance, or to obtain any interesting information pertaining to the stage. The reporters also visit all the leading hotels to get the names of prominent men from all over the world, from the hotel registers.

From a great many of these places no information worth printing is obtained once a year; but a newspaper takes no risk of being "left" on any matter of news. The large newspapers have each a reporter in Brooklyn, Jersey City, Newark and Paterson, who does not report at the office, but sends in his "copy" by a messenger. Besides these out-of-town men, reporters are kept by each paper—one on Long Island, one on Staten Island and one to travel daily in Westchester County, up the Hudson between Sing Sing and New York, to obtain the news from those places.

But all these are merely the routine reporters, who do the same work each day. Besides these, there are the men who do "general work," as it is called—who are sent to religious meetings and prize-fights; who interview great men and women; who attend funerals; who obtain obituary sketches of men of prominence, whether living or dead; who write sketches of street occurrences; attend important trials in the courts; report sermons and lectures and hangings; investigate rumors, and do a thousand and one other kinds of work that goes towards filling the local columns of the great dailies with current intelligence. If a well-known citizen is dangerously ill, a reporter is sent to some friend or relative of the suffering man, to obtain the main facts of his life for an obituary sketch, in case the man should die. If the sick man recovers, the sketch is written and put in type, with blanks left for the date of his death, when it occurs at some future day. Then a proof-sheet of the article is filed away in the obituary department of the paper, known among newspaper men as "the graveyard," and retained until the prominent citizen does die. In these "graveyards" of the great newspapers, there are kept obituary sketches of the most prominent men and women of the world, ready to be filled in with the date of death and published as soon as the subject of the sketch, as must happen sooner or later, is claimed by the King of Terrors.

When a noted citizen is dangerously ill a reporter keeps watch for his death each night, until the paper goes to press. Should the death take place, the reporter telegraphs at once to his city editor; the blanks in the obituary sketch are filled in, and the sketch of the man's life appears in the paper the next morning. Commodore Vanderbilt's last illness was so long, and his death so lingering that the newspapers hired a room for their reporters in the vicinity of his residence, and during his illness the old man sent jocose messages to the men who were waiting for his death.

When a great accident occurs in the city, such, for instance, as the crush of the East River bridge after it was first opened to the public, when thirteen persons were killed, a number of reporters are sent out to work on the case. Each reporter is detailed to give only one portion of the account that shall appear in the next morning's paper. For example: When the East River bridge tragedy took place one man was directed to obtain such information as would enable him to give the introduction to the sketch and a general description of the tragical scene at the time of its occurrence. There his work ended. Another reporter was detailed to ascertain minutely the cause of the accident. This he was to do and nothing more. A third was sent to the police station, where the dead were carried, to describe the sad scenes there. Another reporter was detailed to visit the hospitals where the wounded were, and to ascertain late at night their condition and chances for recovery. Among five or six other reporters was divided the list of names of the dead and wounded who had been carried to their homes; and that list, which comprised names from all over New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City, was absolutely verified by a personal visit to the house of each victim. Two reporters were sent out to interview as many eye-witnesses of the tragedy as could be found, and to give each man's description of the scene as it appeared to him. The different sections of the article were then given to the city editor, who joined them together in their proper sequence. In this way each paper the next morning had a long and a reasonably accurate description of the tragedy.

Reporters are a recognized institution in New York. The value and importance of their labor is universally conceded. Each prominent church has its reporters' table, where are all accommodations for the men of the pencil. Senate committees, commercial organizations, charitable and benevolent, public and private institutions, lecturers, speakers, associations and meetings of all kinds are careful to send invitations to their proceedings to every newspaper in the city, in order that they may secure a historian of their transactions.

Every public entertainment has a committee to take care of the "members of the press" who shall be present, and all public exhibitions have each a "press agent," who makes himself agreeable to the reporters and gives them all the information they want, and generally a great deal more.—F. Marshall White, in Youth's Companion.

Communicability of Scarlet Fever.

Another case showing the communicability of contagious diseases by clothing is reported from Bath, Me., where a girl had scarlet fever at a boarding school. After recovery she returned home, and a trunk containing the clothing she wore while sick was put away in the garret. Six months later two little children were playing in the garret, and, opening the trunk, took out some of the clothing. In a week both were taken very ill with the disease, and one died. There were no other persons ill with the scarlet fever in the community.—Scientific American.

—A queer reptile was killed one day recently near Americus, Ga. It was something like an eel, being four feet and one inch long, and had four small legs. The reptile had pretty good-sized teeth and was ready to defend itself, biting viciously at everything that touched it. It was about four or five inches in circumference, and was devoid of fins of any kind, although it belonged to the water.

—A Vermonter went with his sweetheart to a justice of the peace to get married. The magistrate performed the ceremony, and the blissful countryman asked: "How much do I hev to pay ye, 'squire?" "The law allows me a dollar and a half," said the justice. "Well, I'll tell ye what I'll do," said the bridegroom, taking a half dollar from his pocket, "I'll make it two dollars for ye!"

—An Atlanta, (Ga.) reporter who once "pulled a hand-press" on a country weekly tells this: One day while the paper was being worked off a man from the country came in and walked all around the room, finally stopping near the press and watching the work very earnestly. "Anything I can do for you?" asked the man at the lever, pausing between impressions. "Naw," was the reply, "I don't want nothin', jis come in to see ye edit."

ARTESIAN WELLS.

Difficulties and Expense of Boring Hundreds of Feet Into the Earth.

It has been remarked from time to time that artesian wells are multiplying in large numbers, especially in large cities, where the water is at times, or all the time, quite unfit for domestic purposes, and where large factories find the meter charges and tax too expensive. Among the latter class it has been proven by experiment that an artesian well soon repays its cost with interest, but among the former class it is a luxury which can be indulged only by people of means. Some of the large hotels of this city get their water supply by the aid of these wells, and there are private families of wealth which have had these wells bored.

The cost of an artesian well is comparatively small now to what it was ten years ago, competition in the business having had the effect of reducing the price. These wells are made very much in the same way as are those from which oil is obtained. The great difference between the two, however, is that the water does not usually "spout." It generally makes its way to the surface and is pumped up to whatever height is wanted. The possession of an artesian well, therefore, involves that of a pump, the cost of the pump and the expense of running it.

When a well-borer is employed he contracts to sink the well at so much per foot. He can not, of course, tell how far down he will have to go to reach water in desirable quantities. It may be one hundred or five hundred feet. It is the consumer who assumes the risk of this. The price of work is from three dollars and fifty cents to twelve dollars a foot, according to the diameter of the well and other considerations. The borer sets up a derrick similar to those used in the oil regions, and fitted with a walking-beam, pulleys and a drum. Then, by the raising and dropping of a heavy weight, a section of pipe two or three feet long is driven into the ground. When it has gone down so far that there are only a few inches protruding above the surface, a second section is screwed on to the top, the heavy weight is set in motion and this in turn goes down into the earth. Section after section is screwed on until the piping strikes rock. Meanwhile, by means of what is called a sand-pump, the piping has been kept clear of earth and sand, with which it soon becomes choked.

When rock is reached the process changes. The pipe, which has been forced with some difficulty down through strata of earth, sand and gravel, remains immovable against the the solid stone, and if the borer tried to drive it down with the iron weight, something would break, and that something would not be the rock. A long cylindrical mass of steel, made so that it will fit inside the piping, and weighing between three hundred and three thousand five hundred pounds, according to the hardness of the rock and the diameter of the piping through which it is to pass, is brought into play. It is shaped at the end something like an axe. It is lowered by a metal rope through the piping. When it reaches the bottom it is raised a few feet by powerful machinery, and then suddenly dropped. This splits the rock and the broken pieces are forced to the surface by means of the sand pump. It is tiresome work going through the rock. Sometimes it takes several hours to bore one foot.

Very often when the rock-breaking is going on the rope that holds the iron breaker gives way, and the tool is left at the bottom of the well. This is a very trying situation for the contractor, for there is great danger that his work will have to be stopped, and that he will lose the money that it cost him, for the contractor is always the loser in such instances as a matter of course. There are implements specially made to recover the breakers, but the process is tedious, and sometimes the recovering apparatus itself lost. Cases have been known where wells a few hundred feet deep, which have cost one thousand dollars or more, have become so choked up with irrecoverable implements that they have had to be abandoned.

The cost of an artesian well can scarcely be estimated, owing to the competition already mentioned. The expense to the borer of fitting up his derrick at the spot where he is to make a well is from one hundred dollars to one hundred and twenty-five dollars. This is before earth can be broken, and it includes cartage of machinery, boilers and derrick. Of course this has to be recovered from the sum stipulated on per foot for boring, as the consumer contracts to pay only for every foot completed, and to take no risks whatever. The borer says the competition that has reduced the price of an artesian well by fifty per cent. in four years has made the occupation of a borer a precarious one.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Deliberate Falsehood.

In some Texas hotels the partition walls are so thin that the conversation in one room can be heard in the next. Two friends from the interior put up at a Galveston hotel and were given one room. The man in the next room overheard the following conversation about daybreak next morning:

"I say, Bill, are you awake?"

"I've been wide awake for the last two hours."

"Lend me five dollars."

"I've dozed off again."

"I thought you were lying when you said you were wide awake."—Texas Siftings.

—Champoireau assist at a railway accident. An idea strikes him and he hunts up the conductor. "Monsieur," he says, earnestly, "it is always said that it is the forward car which suffers the greatest damage in an accident of this kind. Then why not do without it hereafter?"—French Joke.

Watermelon is soothin', coolin', fillin'. It is one of the few things whose consumption may be safely measured by the capacity of the consumer, provided the melon is full ripe, not stale and the consumer is in a similar condition. Don't slander the water melon.

According to the testimony of physicians and coroners, in all parts of the Union, deaths have resulted from the use of cough syrups, containing morphia, opium and other poisons. In this connection, Dr. Sam'l Cox, of Washington, after careful analyses, endorses Red Star Cough Cure as being purely vegetable, and absolutely free from opiates, poisons and narcotics. "Which doctor cures the most patients?" asked a shrewd matron who had just moved into town. When she was told, the lady promptly replied: "He's the man I want in sickness." Drs. STARKEY & PALEN, No. 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., point with sincere pride to their long list of cures of acute and chronic diseases by their Compound, Oxygen Treatment. Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism and Neuralgia are especially curable by this system. They will gladly send you, free by mail, a pamphlet that tells all about the Compound Oxygen. Write and ask for it.

A MYSTERY.

How the human system ever recovers from the bad effects of the nauseous medicines often literally poured into it for the suppositive relief of dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism and other ailments, is a mystery. The mischief done by bad medicines is scarcely less than that caused by disease. If they who are weak, billious, dyspeptic, constipated or rheumatic, would oftener be guided by the experience of invalids who have thoroughly tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, they would in every instance obtain the speediest aid derivable from rational medication. This medicine is a searching and at the same time a thoroughly safe remedy, derived from vegetable sources, and possessing, in consequence of its basis of pure spirits, properties as a medicinal stimulant not to be found in the fiery local bitters and stimulants often resorted to by the debilitated, dyspeptic and languid.

to hear of the resignation of Dr. Pierce as a Congressman to devote himself solely to his labors as a physician. It was because his true constituents were the sick and afflicted everywhere. They will find Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" a beneficent use of his scientific knowledge in their behalf. Consumption, bronchitis, cough, heart disease, fever and ague, intermittent fever, dropsy, neuralgia, goitre or thick neck, and all diseases of the blood, are cured by this world-renowned medicine. Its properties are wonderful, its action magical. By druggist.

THE MODERN DISEASE—NEURASTHENIA, OR DEPRESSION OF THE NERVOUS SYSTEM.

Neurasthenia is a peculiar condition, brought about in two ways. First, by the hurry and bustle and severe mental strain of the age; second, by over indulgence in eating and drinking, the abuse of alcohol, sedentary habits and high-pressure living. The symptoms presented are dependent upon an extremely low condition of vitality of the whole system. There is a lack of tone, elasticity, color of skin and a loss of flesh, or that peculiar undernourished tissue, having the appearance of flesh, but really indicating a condition worse than loss, and one notes a peculiar condition of the brain, vacillating between an unnaturally active and excitable condition to one of quiet melancholic depression and moroseness.

The stomach, the organ upon which all others depend to a great extent, is in a correspondingly low condition of inactivity from loss of vital force and its products are of inferior quality, its solvent powers are impeded, either from a defective supply of gastric fluid or from a deficit in quality. Hence all the tissues fail to receive a proper supply of nutrition. The worn-out, disintegrated material that ought to be eliminated from the body is absorbed and exercises its poisonous influences upon the nerve-centers, interferes with their proper action and places the whole economy in an unhealthy condition.

There is no material for replacing worn-out tissue and no means of supplying it. The tissues of the whole body are constantly undergoing change, and being thrown off through the lungs, kidneys and other excretory organs, and unless the supply of renewing material is of the proper kind—quality and quantity—we have a wasting that will be more rapid than repair. In this enfeebled condition Dujardin's Life Essence is, without any question, the best restorative, since it furnishes all the materials necessary for the sustenance of the nervous system, from which alone can be furnished vital force. Now, if a medicine has power to build up exhausted nature, it has also the power to prevent that exhaustion. It is one of the most valuable combinations which modern science has made available in the treatment and cure of an exhausted nervous system. It improves digestion, restores energy, quiets an irritable nervous system and promotes quiet, refreshing sleep.

CYCLONES AT SEA.

Some of the Most Dreadful Calamities Occasioned by Them.

It is not very remarkable that ships when ignorantly or deliberately steered into cyclones should lose their masts. Possibly what is most surprising is that vessels should outlive such tremendous elemental conflicts. A steamer in the heart of a cyclone is in no better plight than a sailing ship, though it may perhaps be supposed that she will gain a certain advantage from the lightness and slenderness of her spars as compared with those of a sailing vessel, even should the latter have her top-gallant masts on deck. The features which render the cyclone the extremely perilous thing it proves, is the veering of the wind, with its enormous fury at the center, and the colossal pyramidal seas which are formed in the middle of it. There are many curious instances of disaster on record. In the case of the Thalia, for example, very shortly after she had been hove to she lost every stitch of canvas, her mizzenmast, boats, wheel and compasses, had her rudder-head split, and sustained much other damage. Yet her Captain, to his credit be it said, found opportunity, amid all the tumult of the hurricane and the fearful cross-seas, to note a "swing" in the wind, alternating four or five points, first blowing northwest and then a little to the southward of west, and so on with the regular rhythmic stroke or beat of a clock. An awful illustration of the power of the cyclonic gale lies in the historic loss of an Indiaman named the Swift, that was swallowed up in the heart of a revolving gale and vanished as utterly as though her fabric had been formed of vapor. Four hundred souls were lost in her, but the peculiar interest of her story lies in the circumstance of her having had on board the crew of her Majesty's ship Providence that had gone ashore on a coral reef some time before. The vastest calamity, however, for which the cyclone, down to the present time—down to even these days of undermanned and ill-found craft of all sort—is responsible is that of the loss of the prizes taken by Admiral Rodney on April 1, 1782, along with a great number of merchantmen and most of the men-of-war convoying the fleet. There were three battle-ships of seventy-four and sixty-four guns, amounting in all, with merchantmen and others, to ninety-two sail. A cyclone burst upon this fleet on September 16, 1782. In those times there was little if any knowledge of the law of storms, and the ships unhappily hove to on the wrong tack. Next day, at two in the afternoon, a shift of wind of terrific violence took them all aback, and the issue of this memorable storm was that the whole of the men-of-war, with the exception of the Canada, foundered or were abandoned, while such was the havoc among the merchantmen that it is generally accepted as the greatest naval disaster on record. Three thousand seamen are said to have perished. Our sea captains have plentiful knowledge nowadays of the laws which regulate these terrible storms of wind, and the rules laid down for the avoidance of these inconceivably savage atmospheric outbreaks are so plainly written and so easy of comprehension that disaster befalling a ship from a cyclone may commonly, with little fear of doing injustice, be attributed to bad seamanship.—London Telegraph.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The Romance of Youth and the Common Sense of Old-Maidism.

"Ah!" she said, "I loved once."

"Did you?"

"Yes. I thought he was a god, a kind of superior creature. My parents would not hear of the match. The more they objected the more I loved him. We kept up a correspondence secretly. We had arranged to be married. My parents were stern and cruel, but I had a bosom friend, who was married, and she had arranged that the ceremony should take place at her house, unknown to any of my family. Three days before I heard strange stories about my beloved. I broke off the engagement. He came to the house; he groveled on his knees before me. He swore by all the old and several new gods that he loved me, and me alone. I relented, and the wedding was to come off at the home of my bosom friend."

"Well?"

"On the day before the wedding my bosom friend's husband got into a convivial crowd and drank a little too much. In a burst of good humor he invited my brother to the wedding, and I was securely locked up until I was brought to terms."

"And now—"

"And now I'm awfully glad of it."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Queen Mary's Prayer-Book.

A curious and valuable prayer-book has just been sold in London. It is the little volume which the unfortunate Mary Queen of Scots used at her death upon the scaffold. The prayers are the handiwork of some rare fifteenth century scribe; they are written in Latin on vellum. The pages of the missal are exquisitely illuminated with elegant borders of fruit, flowers and birds; they are also decorated with thirty-five miniatures by a Flemish artist, pieces of elaborate workmanship. The little book still rests in the original oak-boards; covered with silk now much worn, in which it was originally bound.—Liverpool Mercury.

HOW TO EAT FRUITS.

Precautions to Be Observed by Adults and Children.

Fruit may be taken with a meal or on an empty stomach. In the former case it promotes digestion by its gently irritating effect on the mucous membrane of the stomach and intestines. If an aperient effect be desired it had better be taken in the morning before breakfast or between meals. A succulent and pleasantly acid variety is best for both these purposes, while it is also a food. The quantity of fruit which should be taken depends on the kind. If it belong to the bland nutritious class, a healthy person may now and then partake of it as freely as any other wholesome food. But he will gain most benefit if he take only a little, and take it regularly. The same may be said of the invalid with whom fruit agrees.

Cooking removes much of the acidity from crude fruit, and renders it lighter as well as more palatable. So treated, it is productive of good and no harm. But it is a fundamental principle that whatever fruit is eaten uncooked must be fully ripe and not over-ripe. This may sound trite, and, indeed, the principle is commonly admitted; but not, it would seem, by all, for we still find people, and not a few, who will themselves deliberately take, and worse, will give to their children green gooseberries, green apples, etc., the very harshness of which, apart from their acid pungency, suggest the unfitness for digestion. Such people use as food an acid, irritant poison, whose necessary action is to cause excessive intestinal secretion, with more or less of inflammation. Hence arises diarrhœa. On the other hand, fruit which is over-ripe, in which fermentation has begun, is a frequent cause of this disorder and equally to be avoided, and perhaps also more difficult to avoid because the insidious beginning of decay is not easily recognized.

It should never be forgotten by any who incline to follow the season in their feeding, that the want of such precautions as the above may produce that dysenteric form of diarrhœa, "British cholera," which is occasionally as rapidly fatal as the more dreaded Asiatic type of that disease.—Boston Medical Journal.

Living Within One's Income.

The close observer can not fail to notice that the habits of our people are undergoing a decided change. We are no longer free-handed and careless, as of yore. We have known the bitterness of poverty, and we have known that economy is the surest means by which to grasp the power that belongs to wealth. This tendency is illustrated on the grand scale, in the case of our banks, which have in recent years pursued the policy of annually laying aside a portion of their profits. The result of this policy is seen in the condition of one of those institutions which has a reserve considerably larger than its capital. Our people, rich and poor alike, are striving to live within their means. This, after all, is the fundamental fact of the situation.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

BILL NYE'S REMINISCENCE

As Committeeman of a Recent Fourth of July Celebration.

In the summer of '77 I was on the committee chosen at a meeting of our citizens "to make arrangements for the proper observation of the regular national day which marks the onward march of freedom." We selected a proper place, hired lumber enough to make seats with pitch on it to insure the audience staying through the overture. We secured a slender, long-waisted Texas shoat named Phallas to act as greased pig, hired a band from "town," got a young woman with a tall head and a twenty-ounce pippin Adam's apple to read the Declaration of Independence, and then we began to cast about us for a good, strong-voiced orator who would remain tolerably sober till he had made his speech. We looked the ground over pretty well, and at last decided to call Col. Braley, of the Sage Hen ranch. I call him Col. Braley because it suits my purpose better to call him Col. Braley. The gentleman to whom I refer is still alive, and I would like to be also. Therefore I call him Col. Braley.

We wrote to the colonel a pleasing note, in which we referred to his genial manners, his great popularity and his good sense upon matters that would naturally interest the people of our section. We told him that it was the general wish that he would favor us on that occasion, and we hoped for an early and satisfactory reply. In two days we received the following, as well as I am able to recall it at this date:

SAGE HEN RANCH, June 27, 1877.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Fourth of July Committee:

Your favor regarding a speech upon the grounds near the old Buffalo Waller, on the Fourth of July, is received. I am no speaker on such an occasion as that, and I therefore beg to be excused. There is only about one man out of ten thousand that can make a good Fourth of July speech, and he is not, as a general thing, good for anything else.

In the first place, I don't seem to have the necessary voice. I have tried it once and did not succeed. The majority of the crowd went home mad because they couldn't hear, and the balance went home mad because they could. So I haven't got the voice. I can stand over on Roundup No. 2 and talk to the foreman on No. 4 easy enough, but I can't talk against a Sabbath school loaded with fire crackers.

Moreover, gentlemen, I am not a ready thinker under these circumstances. I am a man of fair business judgment or else I couldn't have accommodated 2,500 head of No. 1 4-year-olds worth $35 apiece in Omaha with nothing to begin on five years ago but a condemned government mule and a hopeful disposition. You will admit that as a financier I am no slouch, when I tell you that in all that five years the assessor has never got near enough to hold a conversation with me or to sock a valuation on my herd.

The trouble with me is that when I get up on my feet to talk to a large and perspiring throng of people my ideas are like a bunch of cattle in the stock yard, for instance. The whole blamed crowd wants to skin through the shute and be loaded into the same car at the same minute, or else they won't a condemned one of 'em agree to be loaded. That's the best way I can express it. I've either got ideas enough to load a car, all at once, faster than I can get rid of 'em, or else I can't think of a blamed thing. Still, continuing to carry out the comparison, gentlemen, I want to say to you that I have also had a big fat, 5-year-old Maverick idea got wedged into my head when I tried to make a speech, and it would neither go ahead into the speech nor back out for five minutes. You can fancy a man of my position in society standing up before a mob of his fellow men and twisting the tail of a reluctant idea till he is red in the face!

I love my country, gentlemen, and love the dear old flag. You don't hear me brag about it, though it's nothing to be ashamed of, but I have fought for this flag when, if I had listened to the voice of conscience, I would have gone to Canada. I have marched along the endless dusty roads of the south with a seal brown musket on my shoulder for days and days without seeing anything to shoot. I have slept in the bottom of a trench night after night, expecting every time that I would take my breakfast next morning in the New Jerusalem. All this I have done because I thought it was right, and I think so yet; but I am not a good off-hand extemporaneous speaker on the Fourth of July.

I am with you in the spirit on that day. I will bow my head when you open the exercises with prayer. I will hum with you in a low, gutteral tone when the glee club sings "America." I will pause in my labors while the Declaration of Independence is being hissed out through the clenched teeth of a young, scared to death elocutionist, who seems to be afraid of the cars. I will suffer with you in spirit through the long, hot oration, filled with patriotism and perspiration, but I cannot be there. I will think of you, and I will indorse anything you may say regarding Freedom from her mountain heights or Starry Banner Free, or any of those things, but to stand up before my fellow-citizens and fan the air with the tail of an alpaca duster and yell my larynx loose over a large, irregular mass of freedom, of which we have more than we need and don't know where to put it or how to use it, is out of my line.

I beg leave to subscribe myself, yours in the interest of the great, ungifted majority, who do the work but cannot fluently jerk the Roman-nosed bird of freedom.

JAMES W. BRALEY.

To Bill Nye, chairman greased pig and oration committee.—Boston Globe.

Uncle Bill is the colored factotum of a Truckee hotel. It is his duty to be on hand wherever a train stops, night or day. Between times, when not otherwise engaged, he sits on the woodbox in the barroom and dozes. The other day a traveler encountered William on the westbound train, with a florid carpet bag on the seat beside him.

"Hullo, where are you going!" asked the gentleman.

"Well, sah," responded Uncle Bill, politely and cheerfully, "I'se gwine to Sacramento."

UNLUCKY INVENTORS.

But Few of Them Endowed With the Money-Making Sense.

"Do inventors generally make money out of patents?" I asked a gentleman connected with the Patent Office the other day.

"No, as a rule the money is made by people who buy or swindle the inventors out of their rights. Inventors are nearly always poor men. They work their brains for their bread and butter. They are a visionary set of fellows, and have not the money-making sense. They get in with business men in order to develop their patents, and these euchre them out of the profits. The man who invented the elevated railroad in New York died a poor man, and while he was alive the people laughed at his idea. It is so with hundreds of other patents, and if you will look over the history of the Patent Office you will find it is the business men who make the money, while the inventors do the work. Some patent lawyers make a great deal of money, and there are a number in Washington who have grown wealthy in the practice. There is a man here named Pollock who has made a fortune in the patent law. He had something to do with the Goodyear rubber patent, and he has been prospering ever since. He owns a fine mansion on the corner of Seventeenth and I streets, and tried the experiment one time of making a stable for his horses in the basement. All the modern improvements, however, in the shape of water would not do away with the smell, and he finally gave it up as a bad job. Many patent lawyers, when they see that a man has a good thing, contract with him to get out his patent for a certain amount of money and some shares in the stock of the patent. They get paid for their work with the money and have a fair chance of making a fortune out of the profits of the patent if it turns out well. There are hundreds of patent lawyers in Washington. Many of them are smart fellows and all of them are making money.

"A great many inventors devote themselves solely to making patents for kitchen utensils, and others work upon machines relating entirely to water. A great many of the railroads and machine shops and factories of various kinds keep inventors who do nothing else but work upon the specialties of the factories in which they are employed. Women make a great many patents, but these deal chiefly with household matters or with their own work. There has been a great deal of electrical invention during the past few years, and it is perfectly wonderful how rapidly the patents come in after any success in any particular branch of invention. A great accident always brings in patents to prevent its occurence in the future; and when a big fire occurs at any of the big hotels with a great loss of life the fire escapes roll in by the hundreds."

"Have you many patents for perpetual motion?"

"Yes, hundreds are applied for, but they are not granted. I remember once a man walked from Kentucky to Washington to patent a perpetual motion, and one of your Ohio newspaper men, not long ago, telegraphed to the Associated Press that the invention of a perpetual motion had at last been conceived somewhere in Ohio. I should think that Washington would be a good place for an inventor to work. By going to the Patent Office he could see all that had already been done in the line upon which he was working, and he might see where a cog here or a wheel there would perfect some patent which would then be worth tens of thousands of dollars where it is now worth nothing."—Carp, in Cleveland Leader.

A VISIT TO PASTEUR.

The French Savant Energetically Defends His Inoculation Theory.

Dr. G. H. Brandt writes concercing a visit he paid to Pasteur: 'Nothing can exceed the politeness and kindness of M. Pasteur in explaining and answering our numerous questions. He is completely wrapped up in his subject, and, contrary to what has been hinted by some authors, keeps nothing hidden from any one. He generally finishes by saying: 'Gentlemen, I have told you everything I know, you have seen all I do, and now you know as much as I do.' As we were questioning him, a paper was shown him in which there was a paragraph which said: 'We can place no reliance on M. Pasteur's work, as so many cases of rabies appear many months—eighteen, twenty and even twenty-four—after the bite of a mad dog.' To this M. Pasteur answers: 'This is not good reasoning, for statistics show that the great majority of cases have an incubation period of from twenty to sixty days. Cases of rabies happening before the twentieth day are very rare, and those after the sixtieth day are still more rare, so that our treatment includes the majority of cases. Six months have elapsed since young Meister was bitten by a mad dog and treated by my system; he is alive and well. So that it is not fair to condemn a treatment because it me has not allowed the extremely rare cases of long incubation to show the result of our treatment. Statistics also show that there are about fifteen cases annually of hydrophobia admitted into the Paris hospitals, followed by fifteen deaths. Since we have begun our treatment there has been only one case admitted; this case was not inoculated, and death was the result.' To the unbelievers M. Pasteur says; 'Wait; time will reveal many facts connected with this question; and it is only by continued experiments and constant observations, carried on for a considerable time on hundreds of cases, that we shall be able to arrive at positive and definite results. It is satisfactory to know that no evil results have followed the numerous inoculations already made. Several of M. Pasteur's students have inoculated themselves with attenuated virus, and, barring a slight red areola formed over the seat of puncture, no unpleasant symptom has ever shown itself."—*N. Y. PHRENOLOGY AFLOAT.

An Accident Which Showed That the Science of Bumps Is Not Water-Proof.

I can't just now recall his name, but he was registered at the hotel at Elk Rapids as from the Chicago Inter-Ocean. There wasn't any thing singular in two newspaper men making up to each other—not when they were both away from home. I liked his looks from the start, and when he realized it he brought out a chart of his head which Prof. Fowler had given him. According to the chart his leading traits were:

1. Extreme liberality.
2. Utter absence of selfishness.
3. Strong friendship.

I was glad that the chart confirmed my own private impressions, and our friendship was cemented with the blood of the revolution, for which the landlord charged ten cents a glass. On the fourth day we went out together in a skiff on the bay to fish. He insisted on paying for the bait, and in rowing the boat, and that agreed exactly with trait No. 1. We were a half mile off shore, and still going ahead, when the skiff banged against some unseen object, the bottom was stove in, and the next moment she filled to the gunwales. The oars floated away as we floated out, and we settled down to business with the wreck floating full of water and he hanging to one end and I to the other. It was only then that a suspicion crept into my mind that Fowler hadn't felt of that chap's bumps in dead earnest.

"You did it—you infernal idiot—you did it!" he yelled at me as he got Little Traverse Bay out of his mouth.

As Fowler hadn't included Truth in his leading traits I felt free to deny the allegation, but he repeated it in a vigorous manner, and added:

"I've got a revolver, and if you don't let go of this boat I'll shoot you!"

"For why?" says I.

"Because it won't float both of us, and I'm going to save myself at any cost!"

That was his "utter absence of selfishness," as recorded on the chart, and I was surprised and grieved to think Fowler had been so taken in. I asked for a little grace, and he replied:

"Give you just two minutes to say your prayers."

I wanted twenty, and he wouldn't even compromise on six. That was more of his "extreme liberality." When I saw that he was inclined to hurry the funeral I bounced the boat around and prevented him from getting at his weapon, which had stuck fast in his wet pocket. Pretty soon he tried another lay. Said he:

"I am a married man and have four children. All you've got is a wife, and she's half dead at that. Have some reason about you."

I offered to argue the case, each side being limited to five minutes, and he charged me with cold-blooded selfishness. If the circumstances were only reversed he'd die for me in a minute, but as we couldn't reverse 'em he had another proposition. If I'd let go and die quietly and decently he'd raise at least one hundred dollars for my widow if he was saved, and would give a column notice in the Inter-Ocean, describing the details of my heroic act, and winding up with the paragraph:

"We are certain that the public will not let his grave remain unhonored by a fitting tablet."

I wanted to know what sort of a tablet, the cost, etc.? I had seen so many cheap tablets that I felt like holding out for a Scotch-granite monument with an angel on the apex. He got so mad at the delay that I had to bounce the boat again to keep the pistol in his pocket. When he had calmed down he appealed to my generosity and manly honor. He had just had his salary raised. His father-in-law had just come to appreciate him for what he was. He was the president of a Chicago literary society, and the leading member of a debating club. His future was full of the biggest kind of watermelons, and the whole world would miss him. I hadn't any salary worth mentioning—no father-in-law at all—no hope beyond fourth-floor rates. Wasn't it better to die a hero than to live on like a thistle by the roadside? I asked him to put his language in the form of a motion, which he did, and a vote was taken—it was a stand-off. His side only got one vote, and that was half-full of water.

I never saw a chap so full of motions and resolutions as he was for three-quarters of an hour, and I never attended a caucus where the opposition was so determined to vote them all down. He had apparently exhausted his stock and was hunting for something new, when he lost his hold on the wreck and went down—down—down—about four feet where he rested solidly on a sand-bar. The water for fifty feet around was from two to four feet deep, and it was the end of a sunken spar which had wrecked us. He came over to me and held out his hand, but I waded away from him in a delightful manner. He said he was only in fun, and he offered me three fish-hooks, a jack-knife, a ball of string and a big hunk of Petoskey maple sugar to resume friendly and confidential relations. In vain. A fisherman came out and took us off the bar, and we never spoke again. A man whose bumps deceive a phrenologist is no fellow to tie to.—M. Quad, in Detroit Free Press.

Easily Ingratitude.

"I declare!" exclaimed Fogg, "Smith is the most ungrateful fellow I ever had dealings with. He bought a place in the country last fall, and the boys thought they'd help him out with his garden this spring, and they sent him a lot of seeds and bedding plants. In order to make it look like a real garden, I contributed a hen, and I'm told by his neighbors that when that fowl got to work, his garden looked just as natural as life, and you wouldn't have known that he hadn't been in the country all his life. But Smith, the ingrate, sent the hen home last night, with the unfeeling remark that he preferred to have his seeds come up in their own good time; that he wasn't so impatient as some folks might suppose. Did you ever hear of such beastly ingratitude? I sometimes think I'll never do a good act again in my life."—Boston Transcript.

State Convention

The Republican State Convention will meet at Los Angeles next Wednesday. Probably at no other time since the State was organized was there greater uncertainty about the nomination of candidates than at present. Among the candidates for Governor are several able men; John F. Swift, Chancellor Hartson, Charles F. Reed, being the most talked of; but no one of these appears to have much advantage of the others. If Mr. Swift is supported by the full strength of the San Francisco delegation he might get votes enough from the southern counties to secure him the nomination. But Mr. Hartson though not a citizen of San Francisco, like Mr. Swift, as equally well known there, and has much strength in the City; the delegation is therefore likely to be divided. Mr. Reed's friends claim that he is very strong in the central counties, and these all send large delegations to the convention. The strength of these three candidates may be so nearly equal that no one of them can secure a nomination. Very little is said about candidates for the other State offices. For Secretary of State hardly a name has been mentioned but that of James A. Orr, of Plumas, a very capable man.

For Attorney General we have not seen the name of a single candidate mentioned but that of A. R. Conklin, of Inyo.

The irrigation question is likely to be of some importance in the convention. When nominations are made of candidates for the Supreme Bench, the appropriators and riparianists will each be likely to strive for the nominations of men believed to be favorable to their respective interests. In this struggle it is not impossible that the qualifications of candidates might be less considered than their supposed leaning to one side or the other of a particular interest. It would be very unfortunace if any considerations should govern in the selection of Judges other than integrity, learning and talent.

The Conference and the School.

Methodist Conference met at Virginia City on Thursday. At this meeting appointments will be made for all church stations in Nevada, and for California east of the Sierra mountains. No doubt the Conference will give a good deal of consideration to the new Academy at Bishop Creek. It is of great importance that every encouragement should be given to the Church in its efforts to build up a good school here. Without the aid and guidance of some powerful organization it will not be possible to make the school a success, and the Methodist Church is the only org nization that has taken any interest in the matter. If we act wisely we will have the great influence of that powerful body to aid us; pupils will be influenced to attend the school, able and devoted teachers will be supplied, and if necessary other aid will be given. Entire control of the property will always remain with us, through the Board of Trustees elected each year. No one need have the slightest fear that the school will be used in the interest of the denomination. Similar schools have been in existence for many years in Pennsylvania, Indiana; Illinois and other states, and no word of complaint has ever been heard on this subject from any of them. On the contrary, wherever a school has been established and maintained under the patronage of the Methodist Church, it has proved to be an unalloyed blessing, and people of all protestant denominations favor it. At the worst, a little good, sound Methodist doctrine and discipline won't hurt anybody, and a great deal will do everybody a great deal of good. The most devoted adherent of any other sect would surely prefer Methodist religious teaching to no teaching at all. We must heartily support the Conference in its efforts to give us a good school.

The Call reports Senator Stanford as saying;

"The wheat crop of California this year will, it is estimated, yield breadstuffs for twenty millions of people, and to produce that enormous quantity only 125,000 men, women and children are engaged in agricultural pursuits. All our other agricultural industries are also in a flourishing condition. This is entirely attributable to the fact that labor is so intelligently directed and applied. In Bavaria, which has a population of seven millions and is neither a commercial nor a manufacturing, but a purely agricultural country, the people who are the most industrious in the world, find themselves at the end of each year as poor as when it began, and all owing to the fact that their labor is not intellectually directed or applied. They dig the ground with the spade to sow the wheat and when it ripens they cut it with the sickle, and the men and women—for the women are as industrious there as the men—carry the sheafs to the village, where it is thrashed out with the flail. These people export not a grain and aptly illustrates the great loss arising from the waste of labor by its not being intellectually directed and applied."

Condemnation of the conduct of Secretary Bayard is not confined to his political opponents There is no more staunch Democratic newspaper in the United States than the Cincinnati Enquirer, yet the following comment on the conduct of the Secretary is quite as scathing as anything yet published by any Republican paper.

"This great country cannot afford unjustly to drive a little nation into war, and to bend like a coward before a great one. Why is not Great Britain forced to give us our rights? Why is the cheek of American citizenship red with the gross insults of Canada? It is to this matter that the heart of the nation directs itself The Mexican racket is a little tempest in a teapot. The course of Great Britian is shaking the welfare of our continent."
